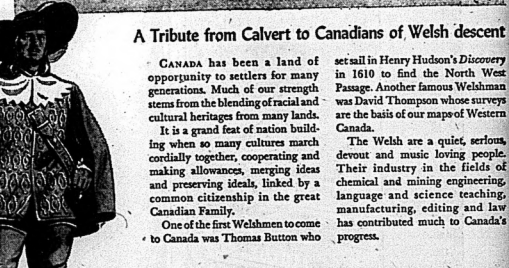
The Canadian Family owes much to . . . . Wales



A Tribute from Calvert to Canadians of Welsh descent

CANADA has been a land of opportunity to settlers for many generations. Much of our strength stems from the blending of racial and cultural heritages from many lands.

It is a grand feat of nation building when so many cultures march cordially together, cooperating and making allowances, merging ideas and preserving ideals, linked by a common citizenship in the great Canadian Family.

One of the first Welshmen to come to Canada was Thomas Button who set sail in Henry Hudson's Discovery in 1610 to find the North West Passage. Another famous Welshman was David Thompson whose surveys are the basis of our maps of Western Canada.

The Welsh are a quiet, serious, devout and music loving people. Their industry in the fields of chemical and mining engineering, language and science teaching, manufacturing, editing and law has contributed much to Canada's progress.

Car Hits Train, Three Killed North of Toronto

Automobile Torn to Ribbons In Midnight Smash

Schomberg, Ont., July 20 (CP) — Three Schomberg residents were killed early today in a mid-night level crossing collision between a freight train and an automobile.

Dead are: Jack Piercy, 26, Grant Brown, 26 and Mervin Houghton, 30.

Ten children were left fatherless by the crash. All three victims were married and Piercy and Houghton, each had two children and Brown six, ranging from two to eight years.

Police said the accident occurred 15 miles west of here. In December six persons were killed in a car-train crash just 100 yards away on a parallel railway line.

Barrie provincial police said the men had taken a load of meat to Thornhill, nine miles from here, and had returned by way of Bees-ton to pick up parts for Houghton's garage.

William Stephenson, Bestco section foreman, said the freight train and the car met head-on at 12:53 a. m. The car was torn to ribbons.

Schomberg is 25 miles north of Toronto.

Former Crown Prince Wilhelm Dies in Germany

Hechingen, Germany, July 20 — (AP)— Imperial Germany's last crown prince—Friederich Wilhelm of Hohenzollern—died at his little villa here today after a long illness. He was 69.

Eldest son of Germany's last Kaiser, Wilhelm II, Prince Wilhelm was the Second World War had lived in near-seclusion here within sight of a hilltop Hohenzollen castle which he could not afford to run.

In the First World War hewas in nominal charge —with general staff experts constantly at his elbow of the German army in the bloody carnage of Verdun. After the heroic French stand had stemmed the German offensive, he was kicked upstairs to command of an army group.

He followed his abdicating father into exile in Holland, remaining there five years. Allowed back in Germany in 1923, he settled down between the vast Hohenzollen estates. Russian occupation after the Second World War took most of them from him.

The crown prince had been in frail health. He suffered a severe heart attack a few weeks ago and at first made a promising recovery, but then a turn for the worse during the last few days.

Hardening of Arteries

A heart specialist gave the cause of death as sterial sclerosis.

Born Friederich Wilhelm Viktor August Ernst of Hohenzollern, he was the son of Germany's last Kaiser, Wilhelm II, who abdicated at the end of the First World War.

He commanded the German fifth army on the western front in that war and was nominally in charge of German operations against Verdun.

The crown prince, who was a direct descendant of Queen Victoria, occasionally received foreign guests in his last years and dwelt on his favorite topic—how much better off Germany would have been if the Hohenzollern monarchy had not been toppled in 1918.

Wilhelm married Cecilie, Duchess of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, in 1905. They had four sons and two daughters. The crown princess has lived apart from her husband for many years.

Slug Manager, Take $6,600, Two Captured

Toronto, July 20 — (CP) — Two Windsor men, who police said slugged and robbed the assistant manager of the National Casket Company of $6,600 as he was leaving the office one day were captured in a downtown Toronto park minutes after the hold-up.

Albert Cahill, 20, and Reg Johnson, 20, were charged with armed robbery.

Several laborers working nearby helped police nab one of the suspects, who opened his shirt front and a flurry of bills fall out when police arrested him.

Police said $4,580.41 was recovered.

The thugs held up Roy E. Stewart as he returned from a bank with the payroll. They stuck a gun in his back, kicked him in the kidneys and hit him over the left eye.

As the pair fled, money scattered behind them. Police were still picking it up 20 minutes after the robbery.

Insane Killers Captured After Hospital Escape

Penetanguishene, July 20 — (CP)— Two criminally insane killers from Ontario Mental Hospital were captured late Thursday night by a posse of 10 guards with dogs.

The two, Max Von Matt, 44, of Port Arthur and Louis Lee, 61, of Matheson, Ont., were flushed from their hiding place here in a wooded area close to the hospital from which they escaped seven hours and 10 minutes earlier.

Both had been sent to the hospital after being charged with murder, one in Toronto and the other in Sudbury.

Von Matt was reported to have shot his mother while he was in an epileptic fit; Lee was said to have struck and killed his daughter's boy friend.

They escaped shortly after three o'clock Thursday afternoon when they absented themselves from a group working in a hospital hayfield.

Provincial Police officials in Toronto said neither now was considered dangerous.

Lee has been in custody 16 years Von Matt five years.

81 Long Years of Sleepless Nights Endured by London Businessman

London, July 20—(CP)—Ernest Lanchbery, retired London businessman, has come to the conclusion that man can adjust himself to anything—even such as doing without sleep. He himself can't recall having a wink of sleep in his 81 years.

Six months ago, Mr. Lanchbery offered $25 to anyone able to produce an iron-clad formula guaranteeing him five or six hours of slumber at night.

More than 3,000 suggestions rolled in. He read them all, tried some and got good and tired, but sleep still eluded him.

Some of the recipes, he said, were just plain silly. One urged him to eat onions just before retiring. Another advised him to stuff his pillow with dried hops, while a third assured him a positive cure for insomnia was to suck two lumps of sugar slowly, concentrating at the same time on something black.

Several women offered themselves in marriage. There were also suggestions of hypnotism and drugs. But Mr. Lanchbery said he has already tried practically all he's avail and refuses to have anything to do with hypnotism or drugs.

He tried reading the dullest novels he into the night, but only got bored. Some of the correspondence he insisted low of, unusually was to keep the head cool and the feet warm. Others recommended keeping the head warm and the feet cool. Both ideas were tested without producing results. Finally, Mr. Lanchbery put the navies' remedy to a test and got good and drunk. It left him more wide awake than ever.

Even if he gets no sleep, he goes to bed regularly every night and stays there until morning. It's probably him with the necessary bodily rest.

Mr. Lanchbery says he would sleep only for the experience of whatever pleasure it might bring.

"I can't remember when I last slept," he said. "But all my life I have seldom had to call a doctor and am still in the best of health. I have come to the conclusion that one can get used to anything."

JAP PEACE TREATY TO BE COMPLETED IN SAN FRANCISO

Expect Red Rejection On Bid to Parley

Washington, July 20 — (AP) — The United States today invited 50 nations to meet in San Francisco, Sept. 4, to complete and sign a peace treaty with Japan.

The invitations were accompanied by copies of a treaty draft jointly sponsored by the United States and Britain. The invitations specified the conference begins Sept. 4 "on the terms of" that draft.

Russia was among the countries invited but officials here regarded it as virtually certain that Moscow would reject the bid. The Soviet Union has sharply criticized not only some parts of the proposed treaty but also the way it was drawn up.

Russia had wanted a drafting system which would give it a veto over treaty provisions.

The treaty as drafted, does not recognize Russia's possession of the Kurile Islands or the south half of Sakhalin taken from Japan after the Second World War. The official announcement reminded each country that the treaty draft and the issues calculated to all prior to issuance of the conference bids and added:

"It is believed that the enclosed draft treaty and declarations combine and reconcile, as far as is practicable, the point of view of all the allied powers which were at war with Japan and will establish, with Japan, a just and durable peace."

Fighting in Korea Provides Valuable Lessons for Training Canadian Troops

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the Canadians in Korea, July 20 — (CP) — It is almost a year since the Canadian government embarked on the formation of its United Nations force — the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade Group.

In that time the force has been recruited, trained and yielded, and now is engaged in aggressive, unthrilling that may be prelude to the end of its Korea campaigning.

How has the training received in Canada and at Fort Lewis, Wash., withstood the test of battle and campaign?

Has Korea taught any lessons of future value to the army?

Excellent Preparation

Basing their opinions on the performance of the 2nd Battalion Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry and later, on the rest of the brigade, authoritative observers answered:

"The training the troops received was excellent preparation for the conditions they later encountered here.

"And experience here indicates that part of the specialized training they received might well be integrated into the regular program at home."

They consider it unlikely that Canadians will fight anywhere else under conditions equalling those imposed by Korea. They say only mountain warfare in the defence of Canada would place the same demands on the troops.

Even so, anything which points the way to producing harder, tougher, better trained soldiers merits borrowing, and Korea has provided some hints.

The Patricias learned in Korea to inure themselves to the country's difficulties of terrain and climate.

Physical Fitness Stressed

The rest of the brigade, in their training in Canada and Fort Lewis, underwent, it is said here, exercise conditions for prolonged periods far worse than anything they have encountered in "the real thing."

St. Louis Expects to Confine Flood to Riverfront Sections

St. Louis, July 20 — (AP) — The crest of the Missouri River surged through Eastern Missouri today for its final great blow.

More flood barriers crumpled as the Missouri emptied its heavy load into the overflowing Mississippi at the junction 15 miles north of St. Louis.

St. Louis and nearby communities expected the highest flood marks since 1844.

Workers in the Missouri and Kansas rivers left wreckage and ruin estimated at $1,000,000,000 in communities Missouri and eastern Kansas last week. The giant clean-up task in those areas was just beginning.

Although the Mississippi is expected to reach 90% feet at St. Louis Monday, damage in the city probably will be confined mainly to riverfront sections as it was in the 1947 flood.

Only a small part of the city's industry is situated in the vulnerable area.

The mammoth dikes on down the Mississippi from St. Louis are reported in better condition than they were in 1947, when the water went to 40.2 feet here. Army engineers say they are expected to hold.

St. Louisians were urged to go sparingly on water. Rising waters have halted trains which supply the city's two pumping plants—one on the Missouri and the other on the Mississippi — with coal and chemicals.

A small levee collapsed on the Missouri and water poured over the top of another, spilling over the Creve Coeur area northwest of St. Louis where about 300 persons live. Some residents already had been evacuated and others were being moved out.

Two more levees near the junction of the two rivers gave way, increasing the threat to the village of West Alton, Mo., population 300.

Only one Missouri River bridge remained open between Kansas City and St. Charles near the mouth of the stream. Highway department officials were not sure how long it would remain open.

The flood waters were ending at Jefferson City, the state capitol in central Missouri. There the Missouri had flooded parts of about 50 blocks and about 350 persons had to be moved out.

Missouri's highways were closed at 62 points by high water.

The cost of the flood in St. Louis thus far was estimated at $1,500,000. The figure included loss of business and wages and flood protection expenses. Actual water damage is not yet of serious proportions here.

Rail yards at the river level in north St. Louis are paralyzed. A number of waterfront plants have been shutdown.

President Truman yesterday called on the country to make at least $5,000,000 in personal contributions to the Red Cross to supplement the $25,000,000 already voted by Congress for flood relief.

FRANCO APPOINTS NEW CABINET IN BID FOR DOLLARS

Monarchy May be Restored Say Reports

Madrid, July 20 — (AP) — Generalisimo Francisco Franco appointed a new cabinet that might in a bid for American dollars and closer ties with the non - communist west.

Highly - placed sources said also that the new cabinet, which is strongly monarchist, would place a king on Spain's throne. The throne has been vacant since Alfonso XIII abdicated and fled in 1931. Restoration of the monarchy is supposed to come only after long and delicate negotiations.

Still Heads Govt.

Franco himself remains as chief of state and president of the government.

The shake-up came shortly after the visit to Spain of eight American senators, representing the Foreign Relations Committee, and of Admiral Forrest Sherman, the U. S. Navy chief, who was reported to have reached a basic agreement with Franco on American use of Spanish naval and air bases.

President Truman told his press conference yesterday that the U. S. has somewhat warmed its policy towards Spain mainly for military reasons. Britain and France have announced their opposition to closer U. S. ties with Spain, even though limited to military aid.

Other Changes Expected

In addition to the return of the monarchy, other changes expected in the cabinet are those more acceptable to western public opinion, and open the way for U. S. loans include:

1. Greater freedom of the press, with liberty to criticize everything except the Roman Catholic Church, France and the fundamental laws of the realm.

2. Greater participation by the cortes (parliament) in the affairs. The cortes now is little more than a rubber stamp. Its members are to be expanded to give it more power to criticize the government.

3. A general amnesty for political prisoners who now are here in the Spanish jails.

Spain's desperate economic situation, and a large measure of Franco's new policy, the country has been wallowing in the economic doldrums. The people are finding it more and more difficult to make a living.

Repairs Urgently Needed

The highway and railway networks, the world's Western Europe, are in urgent need of repair. Industry needs replacements and new manufacturing plants. The armed forces have only antiquated equipment and not enough of it.

American diplomatic representatives in Madrid and Franco's representative in Washington have long been telling him that American aid for depressing Spain would come only after he made some concessions toward liberalizing.

12,000-Mile Sailing Trip in Store For Five Starry-Eyed Canadians

Montreal, July 20 — (CP) Five starry-eyed sailors from the town of Lac La Biche in northern Alberta sailed from here today bound for Liverpool, England on the first leg of a 12,000 mile trip that will take them and their 36-foot ketch on a circuit of European waters.

Led by Rev. Joseph Edward McGrane, 49, Roman Catholic priest and commander of the Ex-Sea Cadet Corps at Lac La Biche, the sea cadet party will sail their 36-foot ketch, the Lac La Biche, through English canals, the English Channel, and French rivers. Aboard with McGrane are Gordon Jack Wolstenholme, 17; Harold Klein, 16; Wilf Woyahuck, 16; and Romeo Lebeuf, 15.

The decision to sail the craft overseas will fulfill a "boyhood dream" of 40 years of Father McGrane.

"I am just as excited as the boys," he said. "I've been dreaming about this since I was a little boy in Manchester, England."

The ketch was used for countless press photographs beside their boat which was built by the boys themselves at Camp of Canada.

The Exeter II, only 9 1-4 feet across the beam, left Edmonton two weeks ago on a railway flat car. She will be re-launched at Liverpool, proceed to Manchester via canals, then down the River London, Dover and across the channel to Calais, France.

Return in September

Her five-man crew will return to Canada next September on the Empress of France which also will be carrying Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip on their official The trip was financed by $1,000 of Father McGrane's savings, $1,-100 from the 850 townspeople of trip to Canada.

Monarch Shot As He Entered Jerusalem Mosque

Staunch Friend of Britain Most Powerful in East

Cairo, July 20 — (CP) — King Abdullah of Jordan was assassinated today as he was entering a mosque in Jerusalem.

The killing promised new difficulties in the Middle East for britain, already harried by the Iranian oil crisis. Britain put Abdullah on the Jordan throne after the Second World War and supplied funds to his government and its strong Arab legion.

Abdullah, 69, was shot and killed at the entrance of the Aqsa Mosque in the old city of Jerusalem, the British Foreign Office said. The government radio at Ahman, in announcing the death of the bearded leader, said Abdullah's second son, 35-year-old Prince Naif, has been named temporarily as prince regent. The crown prince, Talhal, 46, has been under treatment for a nervous disorder.

DESCENDANT OF MOHAMMED

Mullahs (Moslem priests) chanted verses of the Mohammedan Koran over the Amman radio in mourning as soon as the news was announced. Friday is the Moslem Sabbath.

The king claimed direct descent from the family of the Prophet Mohammed.

The British Foreign Office said the assassin was identified as Mustafa Shakir. He was said to have been shot dead.

Informed British soufces said Mustafa Shakir was a known terrorist who had contacts with the Ex-Mufti of Jerusalem, now living in Cairo. The Ex-Mufti and Abdullah often had differed on the conduct of the Palestine war and negotiations with Israel.

Prince Naif already has taken the oath before parliament, Amman radio said.

Radio Version

The Amman radio gave this version of the assassination:

"King Abdullah was on the point of entering the Aqsa Mosque in Jerusalem.

The killer was hidden behind a door of the mosque.

"He opened fire on the king. "King Abdullah guards immediately killed the assassin."

Abdullah's violent death ended a reign marked by strife. The king wore a silver dagger always at his belt but presided over his country with oriental scrimity.

A turbaned, little man swathed in flowing robes, Abdullah was constantly a thorn in the side of other Arab rulers because of his independence. At staunch friend of Britain who brought him to power and helped him make strategically situated country, he often refused to play a lone hand in the complex politics of the Middle East.

Abdullah joined with the other Arab states when they made war upon the budding state of Israel in May, 1948, but immediately signed a truce with Israel after the fighting had ended in a peace settlement. He emerged from the war with a large slice of what had been Palestine, including the old shrine area in the walled city of Jerusalem and the city of Jericho, storied in the Bible.

Last Monday in Amman Riad El Solh, Foreign Minister of Leb-anon was killed by Syrian nationalists. The act touched off Solh assassination in her country.

Coroner Ben Staten said the woman, Mrs. Jean Patters, told him she took the boy to the basement of their home at nearby East Ainley, and "whipped him with a stick."

Storm Halts Truce Talks

Munsan, Korea, July 20—(AP) —The Korean armistice talks, focus of world hopes for peace, took a back seat today to the weather.

A flash flood turned a creek 10 miles south of the Kaesong conference into a raging torrent and washed away a bridge carrying United Nations delegates to the truce city.

Bad weather also grounded the helicopters in which U.N. delegates usually travel the 14 miles to Kaesong.

The eighth session between U.N. and communist teams—generally regarded as crucial in this first phase of the peace talks—was postponed until 10 a.m. tomorrow (8 p.m. EST) Friday.

A single major issue bars agreement on an agenda which would permit the armistice talks to move into the second phase.

Woman Admits Beating Stepson, 9, to Death

Coroner Ben Staten said the woman, Mrs. Jean Patters, told him she took the boy to the basement of their home at nearby East Ainley, and "whipped him with a stick."

Much talent in dramatics has been discovered at will be evident tonight before the parents when a camp review will be presented. It will be interspersed with music and skits.

Handicrafts have been an attraction for every camper and from early in the morning until the last fading of light they may be found with their projects in their hand. Crafts are supervised by Mrs. Ken Hansel.

Grade Seven Boy Wins Sea-Flea Race at Regatta

Bancroft — Ted Gibson, a twelve-year-old boy from Ajax, and Gregory Anderson, a seventeen-year-old student at University of Toronto, provided two of the biggest highlights at Bancroft Lions Club's third annual regatta, held at Baptiste Lake on Wednesday afternoon.

Ted, who weighs eighty-nine pounds, and who is entering grade seven in public school this fall, ably drove his sea-flea to the Re Re to an easy victory in the A 1 class. Watching his every move were his father, a garage owner from Ajax and his two younger brothers who also pilot racing boats but not in open competition.

Gregory, the son of a local doctor, entered the boat that he made in the basement behind the family residence, in the A 1 and local classes. He won two thirds, nearly a gallon supply of marine lubricating oil and spar varnish.

Altogether $240 in prize money was given to the winners in the boat races. Fiesta regatta, first seconds received $15 and thirds prizes in the remaining events, something useful for the outdoor person.

Besides the boat races, there were swimming events for boys and girls, paddling, log rolling, greased pole walk, water clowns, canoe races and exhibitions of water skiing. Bancroft Lions Club sponsored the first good day in the fields.

Gordon Minty, of Peterborough was the chief judge and announcer for the day and Bill Hawthorn of Oak Orchard, was starter for the races. Every member of Bancroft Lions Club, aided by the Lionettes and a few volunteer helpers helped to keep everything moving fairly smoothly. Cecil Ingraham, the club president, was in overall charge of the affair.

Following the regatta, the largest money-making event that the local Lions have yearly, is for general welfare and community work.

Daily Vacation Bible Schools Held in District

A successful daily vacation Bible school was held from July 3 to 13th at the Christian and Missionary Alliance Church. Fourteen were 127 different children who attended with an average attendance of 86 each day.

The gospel of John was studied under the theme "The Gospel of Love". One class studied the seven "I Ams" of Christ, the other the seven witnesses that Christ was the Son of God, and the third the seven signs of His deity and power to show that He was the Son of God.

School opened at 9 a.m., and each day one of the teachers gave her testimony as to when she was saved and her favorite verse of scripture.

After the Bible study period handiwork was done. Each day a verse of scripture was memorized and repeated. Often on their handwork objects. A new chorus was taught each day and part of the story of Pilgrim's Progress was given with lantern slides.

The demonstration program was held Friday at 8 p.m., when the parents and friends of the children came to see and hear what the children had been learning during the nine days of summer Bible school.

A daily vacation Bible school was held from July 3-13th at Redmerville Gospel Beach under the auspices of the Canadian Sunday School Mission and the leadership of Miss Muriel Craig, district director of the mission.

Children were present from Rossmore, Carrying Place, Salem, and Redmerville.

The gospel of John was studied under the theme, "The Gospel of Love". One class studied the seven "I Ams of Christ", the other the seven witnesses that Christ was the Son of God, and the third the seven signs of Christ's deity and power because He was the Son of God.

Reserve Squadons End Training At Deseronto

Trenton (Special) —Saturday will see the largest number of reserve squadron personnel ever to assemble at Deseronto for a two-week period pack up and return to their respective homes and civil occupation.

Members of the 411 squadron from Toronto and the city of Hamilton squadron 424 will leave Mohawk field some four miles west of the village of Deseronto following an exercise of nothing but hard work under realistic operational conditions.

Squadron Leader Bob Smith, Hamilton real estate salesman and officer commanding 'A' flight of the Hamilton Tiger squadron described the feeling that exists among members of the reserve. "The majority of the men are now on their holiday days and while they are fond of flying and all that is connected with it, they are all well aware of the important part the reserves would play in the defence of Canada. It is a serious business and all squadron members are getting all they can out of the training they receive at summer camp. We think we know our place in the defence scheme and are proud of the fact that the aerial defence of our country will be left equally between the reserves and the regular force squadrons."

The commanding officers of the Toronto and Hamilton outfits, Tiger and Aquadrons have done extremely well in exceeding the training hours in flying and gunnery.

Gunnery and Combat

The Hamilton Tigers, commanded by Wing Commander G. C. Frostad, has been concentrating on gunnery and aerial combat formation flying while Toronto's 411 squadron has been primarily concerned with the conversion of the squadron's pilots from Vampires to Sabre fighter squadron Vampires.

The squadron's commander, Wing Commander R. I. A. 'Rod' Smith, 29-year-old Osgoode Hall law student, was voluble in his praise for the "exceedingly smart manner in which sixty-two and groundcrew men up to the two weeks test of full time operation. This is the first summer camp 411 squadron has attended, being formed as Toronto's auxiliary fighter squadron a little over six months ago.

When the Toronto and Hamilton squadrons move the officers and airmen of 420 reserve squadron from London replace them.

Next year a bigger and better summer camp is planned for the four reserve squadrons at Mohawk.

Employee Group Shares Profit Bonus of $9,900

The directors of Belleville Artisans Limited announced that their company distributed today $9,900 to 62 of its employees entitled to share in the profits of the company.

This represents an interim distribution at the end of six months, a further distribution is expected at the end of the year.

The directors explain that employees with six months or more seniority receive a share of the profits based on a point system which in turn is calculated on a combination of wages and length of service.

Commenting on the substantial sum distributed Mr. J. F. Gill, president of Belleville Artisans, stated, "these profits had been brought about by the initiative and efficiency of the employees who received them and that the results which Belleville Artisans Limited had achieved in this six-month period were a great credit to them."

Based on this past performance, should shortage of materials not develop, the annual employee profit figure should be favorable and should provide further appreciable bonus at the end of the year, said Mr. Gill.

Three Steers Bring $1,930

Lindsay, July 20 — (CP) Farmer Roy Martin believed he has set a new high price for beef. He recently sold three steers on the Toronto market for what he claims is the top price ever paid. Each steer weighed 1,650 pounds and brought $1,930.

FIGHTING IN KOREA

What has Korea taught, then, that can be used to improve Canadian training?

Infantrymen must be conditioned into taking 2,000 and 3,000 - foot mountains in their stride. They must learn to climb them with 50-and 75-pound packs on their backs. They must reach the point of physical fitness that becomes just another, if more taxing, form of walking.

Troops must be taught water discipline — not to drink on the ascent, to ignore their thirst and conserve their water for the summit. Troops who empty their water bottles on the climb find they've perspired all the water away by the time they get there, and have nothing left to slake the accentuated thirst.

Troops, too, might learn while training in Canada the taste of treated water so that the slight bitterness lent by purification tablets and chlorination does not put them off water, coffee or tea when soldiering really begins.

They should learn more uphill fieldcraft, how to flush their way up a mountainside, making best use of cover and concealment.

They should be taught uphill weapons firing and grenade-throwing. Grenades are rather than bayonets for emptying enemy-occupied dig-outs or killing them in the open. But they also have to be thrown skillfully lest they fall back onto the thrower.

Once at the top the men have to eat, usually on tinned rations they've carried with them. They should be taught field cooking, individually or in small groups of four and five, how to use their canned-heat tablets economically, and the craft of building a smokeless fire with dried twigs when the tablets give out.

Care of Feet Important

The Canadian Army always has been foot-conscious. Its mountain work it has to be more so. The buddies who pair-up in their slit trenches must learn to care for one another's feet, to massage them, to use foot-powder (which now is issued) properly.

Turning from the infantry to the cities, a squadron of the Lord Strathcona Horse has demonstrated that keen armor can, and will, go practically anywhere the infantry it is supporting goes. That means training grounds in Mountain areas.

Similarly with the artillery and mortar men. They need mountain firing ranges with plenty of razor-backed spines on which to practise. In this area of country, with false crests and tricky gullies, the difference of one foot in elevation can mean whether a shell will land where it's supposed to, or go careening on into the next valley.

Korea also has emphasized the value of daily maintenance and good road discipline for the army's transport. Without attention or a mother the vehicles jostle and bounce apart. Unless drivers learn to keep their 50-yard intervals between one another traffic jams and free-running traffic is unable to thread its way through convoys.

Korea has had its lessons for everybody—even the signallers, who have had to be tough enough to climb with the infantry, stringing out telephone lines. Signalling out behind them 50-pound dispensers or wire linking up unit communications. Physically, the signallers have the most exacting job in the army.

Fast Train Slices Transport in Two

Winchester, Ont., July 20—(CP) —Two men escaped uninjured today when a fast Toronto-Montreal passenger train literally cut in two the big tractor-trailer in which they were driving.

Driver of the truck was Gerry Drouin, 30, of Ottawa, who had picked up a hitch hiker, Charles Gervin of Goderich, Ont. Drouin said he saw the train coming but apparently misjudged its speed. The tractor part of the vehicle had just crossed the tracks when the train crashed into the front of the trailer.

The front of the locomotive was badly damaged and the train was held up until another engine was sent from Ottawa.

Lac la Biche, and $1,000 from the northern Alberta and Montreal divisions of the Navy League of Canada. The cadets contributed $135 each.

Father McGrane estimates that the cruise will cost about $4,000.

The cadets were chosen on a basis of racial extraction with a view to showing Britain how successful the mixing of the 150 nationalities has worked in Canada.

Wolstenholme is of English extraction, Lebelle is French, Klein is German and Woyschuck is Ukrainian. Two boys are Protestant and two are Roman Catholic.

Last summer the cadets took their boat on a $450 mile trip from Helnsburg to Prince Albert down the North Saskatchewan River.

Plenty Seaworthy

"She's plenty seaworthy," Father McGrane said proudly as he showed reporters the sturdy craft. "She's equipped with little craft, sails, oars, life jackets, a two-way radio, and plenty of storage room for supplies."

The happy band appeared confident they could navigate the treacherous Hudson Bay portion.

"These kids will be able to handle the boat, okay," the priest said. "They know their boat and her capabilities."

The boys had little to say, but all seemed overwhelmed by the attention they were getting. When told it was time for dinner, they asked if they could miss it as they wanted to explore the big ship.

Harold Klein said all the boys wanted to be remembered to their girl friends back home. He added that he was "awful proud to be chosen for the trip."

Lebeuf, a short stalky boy, was having fun surprising the French-speaking reporters with his French. None suspected he understood what they were saying.

MONARCH SHOT

Abdullah's greater Syria ambitions.

His Majesty Ibn Hussein Abdullah, ruler of the Hashemite kingdom of Jordan, was the second son of the late Hussein, Sherif (ruler) of Hejaz. His elder brother was Feisal, King of Syria, deposed by the French. The two were comrades in arms with Lawrence of Arabia in the Arab revolt against the Turks. Before the French left Syria Abdullah was invited upon armed invasion of that country to restore his brother to the throne but this never came off.

Abdullah was born in Mecca, Holy City of the Moslems, and claims 39th generation descent from Mohammed. He grew up at the court of the Turkish tyrant, Abdul Hamid, in Constantinople (now Istanbul), held as a hostage for the good behavior of his rebellious father. He was active in his youth in behind-the-scenes of the anti-Turkish movements which marked the crumbling days of the Ottoman Empire. His passion was Arab nationalism; his goal, to increase the power and the sway of the Hashemite family.

Held Balance of Power

Abdullah was regarded as one of the most powerful figures in the Middle East, holding the balance of power there with his formidable Arab Legion army trained under British direction.

Abdullah's eldest son, Crown Prince Tallal, who once acted as ruler of Jordan in the King's absence, now is in Beirut for treatment for what published reports have called a "general nervous breakdown."

Reports from Jordan July 10 said Tallal, 40, had suffered a relapse and that his removal to Switzerland had been recommended.

Recently, reports published in Egypt said King Abdullah was planning a country-wide constitution so that he could appoint his grand-nephew, boy King Feisal of Iraq, as Jordan's Crown Prince and thus successor to the Jordan throne. Prince Abdul Ilah, Regent of Iraq and Abdullah's nephew, recently visited the king in Amman.

Abdullah's small but tightly-knit kingdom is closely tied to Britain by treaty. Britain retains rights to base troops and planes in Jordan, a country bordered by allsated northeast of the Suez near east's rich oil fields.

Canal and in the midst of the Foe of Israel

Abdullah gained international importance during the Palestine war, when his troops put up the main battle in the fight against fledgling Israel by her Arab neighbors. Since the end of the war his relations bettered considerably with neighbor Israel across the Jordan, and other Arab nations looked with some suspicion upon the Hashemite ruler.

The Arab Legion added considerable strength to Abdullah's kingdom of little more than 1,000,000 persons, many of Arab refugees displaced in the formation of the new Israeli state.

Reports of the Jewish press in Jerusalem last May said Tallal had shot and wounded Glubb Pasha just prior to being taken to a hospital in Beirut. In Amman, it was announced only that Tallal had left the country for reasons of health and that his duties were being performed by Abdullah's second son, Emir Nalf.

Britain has financed Abdullah to the extent of some £2,000,000 a year, keeping up these payment even after Britain gave up her mandate of Nations mandate over Jordan in 1946. In that year the country became Jordan instead of the man who was then Emir Abdullah became its king in a dazzling series of ceremonies.

During the Palestine war, Abdullah, often accused of wanting to annex all Palestine and get himself an outlet to the Mediterranean Sea, sent his troops across the Jordan against the Israelis.

His troops soon occupied the old city part of Jerusalem and stayed there throughout the war. The old city of Jerusalem is now part of the Jordan kingdom, along with other parts of Palestine outside the limits of Israel.

Abdullah was elder son of Grand Sherif of Mecca and head of one of the oldest dynasties in the world, the Hashemites.

SEAMEN PROTEST SENTENCE

Melbourne, Australia, July 20—(Reuters) — Twenty ships and 1,500 workers were thrown idle today when seamen cut off steam in all interstate vessels here.

They were protesting against yesterday's sentences on James Healy, communist general secretary of the Waterside Workers' Federation, on charges arising from the five-month New Zealand dock strike.

Healy was sentenced in Sydney to two concurrent terms of six weeks' hard labor and fined a total of $1,000 (about $2200).

He was released on bail of £100 pending an appeal, which his defence said would be lodged immediately.

THE APPOINTMENT OF A DIRECTOR

The appointment of a Toronto man who has specialized in forensic fields allied with the detection of criminal activities, as director of the provincial crime laboratory should be a major step in law enforcement in Ontario. Dr. H. Ward Smith, a professor of the University of Toronto, has been named as head of Ontario's crime detection laboratory. The appointment is a forward move in the extension of war against crime in the province.

Proof that more rigid inspections and a strengthened system of detection were needed in Ontario was provided by successive investigations of police methods in three or four municipalities within the province. The Windsor inquiry was the first major move by the Attorney-General's department. It was followed by charges against police officers in London, Ontario, in Oakville and in Crystal Beach, to mention the main ones. Connections between Ontario gangsters and crime rings operating in the United States were rumored more than once during the investigations but they have not been substantiated with any great success, one clear conclusion was reached. That is that crime in Ontario is, and has been since the end of the Second World War, a lucrative and large business.

Now Dr. Smith's appointment, and the provincial crime laboratory had the benefit of medico-legal advice on a consulting basis. Under the new setup, Dr. Smith will direct the laboratory and offer assistance to all police forces in Ontario. Laboratory facilities and assistance will be made available in the scientific fields, where microscopic work in hit-run cases, drunken driving incidents, and many other branches of crime, will be of particular value to police forces throughout the province.

Dr. Smith is well qualified for the job. For six years, he has been involved in research on alcohol, in all its various forms. This work will be continued in the provincial laboratory and the knowledge of the best services that could be provided to police forces beleaguered at times by incidents where drinking was suspected but was hard to prove.

It is well to see that the province, through the Attorney-General's department, is taking a realistic view of a growing situation. The latest move will afford more protection to citizens of Ontario, and should prove to be a valuable boost to crime detection in Ontario.

THE CEASE-FIRE TALKS

"No progress was made." How disheartening four words can be, especially when they tell the story of the cease-fire negotiations in Korea. To date, little has been accomplished, but it is expected that the next two days will either see the complete end of the talks or a hopeful continuation. There is a general opinion among United Nations representatives that agreement will be reached, or that if there is no accord, the disagreement will be final. In the latter case, the war would resume on a full scale once again, and the world can set its sights on Korea as a long-term problem.

The talks apparently have bogged down to this stage on a point submitted by the communists. They are insisting that one of the conditions relative to any armistice is that all United Nations troops must leave Korea, but they will not guarantee that the hostile North Koreans will stay within their own boundaries. Thus, the issues are the same as before, and can be reduced to the same plain words. The Russians want everything, and will give nothing in return.

There cannot be many things any United Nations soldier in Korea would like better than to go home. And it is a certainty that the South Koreans would like everyone to go home and leave their country alone; they heartily wish that the communist had never crossed the 38th parallel, and that they could be left to rebuild their country with financial help from the United Nations.

It is not possible, however, to send all the troops out of Korea as an appeasement gesture. For as soon as they left the shores, the hostile efforts of communist North Koreans would be resumed. If that should happen, all the principles that the U.N. has fought for and succeeded in attaining will have gone for nought.

SONG BIRDS THRIVE

There has grown up in the past generations a belief that song birds on the continent have decreased in numbers before the advancement of settlement. It is a relief, therefore, to learn from Dr. Allan Brooks, president of the Association of Audubon Societies that this is not the case. On the contrary, they are flourishing nowadays as never before.

Contrary to public opinion, unbroken forests do not afford an ideal habitat for a great variety of song birds. Consequently, with the gradual clearing away of forest areas, the planting of orchards and the growth of diversified agriculture there has been brought about a change of conditions which has been conducive to the welfare of birds.

To anyone who delights in the presence of song birds, this must come as a bit of welcome news. — (Timmins Press.)

JUST FOLKS

GOOD AS GOLD

When I was a little boy,
Now and then her pride and joy,
"Good as gold" my mother said
With a pat upon my head.

That was flattery I know,
But I've wished it could be
Just to keep her pride in me
"Good as gold" I'd like to be.

In the mail the other day
Came a card I can display,
Needing a credit this it told
(As said mother) "Good as gold."

Fancied mother, as I read,
Pating once again my head,
Thought I heard her, as of old,
Proudly saying: "Good as gold."

The members of the Belleville Liberal Club invaded Massassaga Park yesterday afternoon and evening and are have a whale of a time. Every cub had a bathing suit and every cub was supplied with the waist and tail of lions most of the time. The baseball match was the event of the day. Russ Wotten and Ray Zufelt as fielders showed some class and Doc. O'Callaghan's marvelous running one hand catch did not leave a doubt in the game. The ball players unanimously voted Ernie Finkle and Doc. Trulasch the two most worst umpires in the league, but that did not worry Ernie or Doc; they calmly gave their decisions good, bad and indifferent or Silver License called the decisions rotten, rotten, not otherwise. Dinner was served at the hotel and the hungry bunch of Lions voted it a fine spread.

NEITHER POSSIBLE NOR DESIREABLE

"My husband and I made pals of our children."

I am sorry to tell you, lady, that you are probably mistaken. If your children really accept you as pals, there is something abnormal either about them or about you. There is only one thing more abnormal than an artist who believes that he or she has the adolescent viewpoint, and that is the adult who actually has it. Such a person is in need of psychiatric attention.

The healthy attitude of children toward older people is to regard them as somewhat tiresome. If your children believe you to be old fogies and are constantly exclaiming over your narrow-mindedness, then they are perfectly normal and you are too. This idea that middle-aged people can become pals of their teen-age children is a mistake. It is not possible in the case of normal people, or even if it were possible, it would not be desireable. Children especially would not want to have it so.

For what children want in their parents is a sense of security. That parent is wise who is continually on guard against the prospect of his or her children. When these children come into middle age, they will be happy and satisfied only if they can look back on parents for whom they had a real veneration.

Letter to the Editor

Dobbin not Answer To High Meat Costs

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

I see some enthusiastic references in the news recently. I quote one from the June 28 frontpage of your Vancouver contemporary, to garnish what I have to say: "Banquet-sized roast sold for well under $5 today with the opening of the city's first horse-meat shop. Customer number one was amazed when the work-happy butcher showed her a 10% pound sirloin roast for $4.40. She knew it would feed 22 people. The shop's stock of tenderloin steaks disappeared in 20 minutes, and butchers thought more cuts would vanish through the noon hour." (Daily Province).

That's the story, Mr. Editor, and following are the thoughts it gives rise to. Number 1: The remember the fact that during the past 25 years, in the United States, the drift to mechanization on farms is reported, by the experts, to have been 55,000,000 acres for the growing of food for direct human consumption which, in earlier years, had to be devoted to growing feed for horse and mule power. So, I began to wonder just as to what effect the passing of the horsemeat is which your coast contemporary points with pride to having been sold. Remembering the number of horses in Canada at 10-year intervals 1921-51:

1931	3,113,909
1941	3,789,349
1951	1,538,000

With 5½ million more mouths around the Canadian dining table today than in 1921, one need not be an economist to see that 50% is not the answer to the sirloin roast problem question: "What are cattle worth?"

"Feeder".

British Doctors Threaten Strike

London, July 20 — (AP)—The Labor government received notice tonight that all 20,000 doctors in Britain's national health service will pull out Sept. 25 unless they get $3,000 to $6,000 a year for higher pay.

The British Medical Association delivered the ultimatum to Health Minister Hillary A. Marquand after 24 hours of meetings in local committees from all counties had conferred in London.

Pay negotiations have been going on for months between the health ministry and the physicians. Now it looks like doctors intend they have been getting nowhere.

The physicians now get a fixed rate of about $2.50 a year for each patient and are allowed to sign up to 4,000 patients. They claim they have to work around the clock to make ends meet.

The average income of the doctors who signed up under the national Health Service is estimated between $3,000 and $6,000 a year.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A collie dog of my acquaintance is the most royal and serene character you ever saw whenever the head of the family to which he belongs is gathered on the cottage verandah, with nobody absent, and with each adult and child sitting in full view and at rest.

The instinct to herd is an overmastering passion in a collie. As his acquaintance with the business, greetings and tended the sheep, as a collie today herds his human flock, and he smiles and unflappy when they stray.

When the family goes down off the verandah to the cottage wharf for the afternoon swim, the collie installs himself at a vantage point. He barks, leaps about excitedly, and emits warning whines when the children dive into the treacherous water and scatter all over the landscape like strayed lambs, the collie gallops up and down, barking, protesting, wailing, signalling the way safe home. Strangers imagine he is just a noisy dog at such times. But he is simply being a collie.

Once a while, when the swimmers grow less frisky, and return to the shore for a bath, the collie runs about, checking, counting, and making sure all are safe and sound. When they relax and settle down and stay put, the collie, after one last circuit, sinks heavily and sinks down with a thud on the dock, rests his long muzzle on his paws, and gives upon the flock, safely garnered, safely home.

And finally, at last, when the family, full of swimming and sun-bathed enough, get up and wander back to the house, the collie, all radiant with relief, leads them up the beach and onto the verandah, like the fold. With his the bucht, as the shepherds call it.

And so for, a little while, his job is done. And were you to pass by and see his lordly majesty lying couchant on the verandah, you might never know what comfort is in his heart.

Egyptian Captain Censured for Searching Ship

Cairo, Egypt, July 20 (Reuters) —Egypt Thursday censured the Egyptian warship captain who held up and searched a British freighter in the Red Sea July 1 and touched off an international rumpus.

Today's reply to British protests also condemned the attitude of the master of freighter, the Empire Rosa, and reiterated Egypt's sovereignty in territorial waters and her right to blockade Israel.

The reply was said to describe the boarding as a "regrettable incident."

High sources said these were the main points of a note due to be delivered to the British Ambassador here in the next 24 hours in answer to Britain's protest.

The Egyptian warship halted the Empire Rosch in the Red Sea, sent an armed party aboard and searched the ship for Israeli contraband.

The English captain reported the Egyptians held his ship for 24 hours, looted a storeroom and smashed the radio.

No contraband or [illegible]— the ship was actually carrying stores to the Arab Legion garrison at Aka Jordan.

(Britain is seeking American co-operation in a United Nations Security Council bid. The Security Council to take action against the Egyptian blockade of Israel. Therefore A British draft protest is being circulated at Lake Success.

Council Applies for Housing Permit To Build 20 New $10,000 Homes

Trenton (Special) — In what was perhaps the first time council ever gathered in a hospital room the town fathers Wednesday passed three resolutions which could change the entire face of he municipality and provide more work and accommodation for the citizens as a whole.

The councillors deliberated in the clerk-treasurer O. W. Larry's room in Trenton Memorial Hospital where Mr. Larry has been confined undergoing a check-up for some weeks. The meeting was called especially to discuss the government's low rental housing scheme, the establishment of a project on the recently annexed Hendrick's property and final sanctioning for the employment of Dominion Management Associates.

The council was in full force, with the exception of the chairman of finance, councillor Vic Ryan. It was reported later that the special meeting and the visit of the councillors cheered clerk Larry considerably.

20 New Homes

Application was made to the Department of Planning and Development for authority to build 20 new houses in the $10,000 class, to rent at between $55 and $60 per month.

Councilor Norm Banfield opposed the resolution although he favored the low-rental project. Mr. Banfield contended that 60 houses at $5,000 each to rent for around $40 would be more sensible, but by putting his approval on any rental scheme councillor Banfield asked to have several questions answered.

"How can you call the adopted project a low-rental plan when the working people in Trenton have to struggle today to meet monthly rent payments?" he asked. "How can the average working man afford to keep up a $10,000 home?"

Mr. Banfield suggested that the existence of an abundance of houses for sale in the town be investigated before any new ones are approved. "Why are there so many houses for sale?" he queried. "Every street displays a 'for sale' sign," he revealed.

Housing Motion Carried

A resolution to establish a housing project on the Hendrick's farm property annexed recently carried. It is proposed to erect 20 homes in the $15,000 class on its five acres of land. It is understood that in the event the low rental project is approved, the units will be established in the approximate area. Councillor Banfield felt that a survey should be made of the town and the low-rental units erected where they are needed most.

The Dominion Management Associates proposed to survey the town for possible industrial expansion when he resumed in the near future. It will cost $2,000 when completed.

In the evening, following the meeting and ed by Mayor Ken Couch, the council and a number of volunteer workers, some with trucks, gathered at the grounds around the Trenton Memorial Hospital and started the job of completing the landscaping. Much headway was made and the work is continuing on a voluntary basis.

Trenton Briefs

Trenton—(Special)— An overheated electric iron caused a fire at the home of K. Moreau, 42 McGill Street, Wednesday, damaging an ironing board and ruining a number of articles of clothing.

The fire department confined the loss to a minimum.

Fishing News

Old timers claim the pickerel have started to bite below No. 1 dam on the Trent River.

Fireman Jess Baker had his share of luck on Wednesday, returning with three nice ones.

And the pickerel aren't the only fish that are biting these days. Earlier in the week, Vic McMurray picked up a 17½ pound muskie while fishing off No. 1 dam.

Old timer Harry Rush, who concentrates his efforts solely on the muskie, tells of losing two big ones the other night.

Fire Engine Fixed

The new fire engine, smashed up in an accident at the Dundas and Dufferin intersection earlier this year, has returned from the factory looking as good as new. The entire front bumper was damaged in the crash.

Catches 12 Pickerel

LAC Johnny Moon, who ran into a nice piece of money when his pet skunk Petunia brought home eight stripped kittens three weeks ago, shared a catch of 12 fair-sized pickerel on Wednesday.

With a friend, Moon went fishing up the Trent at a time when the game fish were really hitting. Moon limited their spots in almost as little time as it takes to tell the story.

More than the usual amount of good fortune has been following LAC Moon his last month.

His pet Petunia was a welcome visitor and the eight little ones, although not deodorized, were soon cherished by their captor. And when buyers began calling around to the Moon house to acquire pets airmen Moon wondered why Lady Luck should smile so much on him.

To date all but two of Petunia's babies have gone to customers in the district and Johnny Moon has close to $100 more in his pocket.

Lightning Hits Man in Stable At Mountain View

Picton — A severe electrical storm, accompanied by heavy rain, swept over the district early Thursday last despite its severity, no damage was reported. In a storm earlier this week, F. D. Hamlin of Mountain View was rendered unconscious when a bolt of lightning entered the stable where he was working.

"I was operating the cream separator at the time," Mr. Hamlin related. The bolt appeared to have struck the metal roof and followed the water down the roof, along the eavestrough and down the water pipe to the stable door. "It knocked me over," he said. "My daughter Pearl Hamilton, who is a registered nurse, and my son, Seymour revived me and there were no serious after-effects. My hired boy, Fred Patke, was operating a milking machine but felt no shock. Next day and since, he has not felt well. Luckily there was no fire and no damage to the barn," Mr. Hamilton said.

The frequent rains have caused heavy losses for fruit growers in Prince Edward county, a survey yesterday revealed. The rains prevent regular spraying and as a result there is much damage from scab.

The apple crop is estimated at 60 percent of normal by C. B. Teskey, spray supervisor. He stated that approximately one-half of the McIntosh variety will be a loss as far as domestic sale is concerned. Some can be salvaged for juice.

The cherry crop in the county is about 60 percent of normal, according to Howard Leavens, whose crop is one of the largest in the province. Though the yield is down, the quality is excellent, he said. Pickers will be busy in the orchards at the beginning of the week and fruit will be canned at local factories.

Toronto-Barrie Road Will be Ready Next Year

Toronto, July 20 (CP) — Ontario's new four-lane highway from Toronto to Barrie will be completed by July of next year, Highways Minister George Doucett announced Thursday.

It has been decided to pave the road with asphalt in order to speed the work and conserve cement.

The minister said that with favorable weather it might be possible to have one lane open for traffic as far as Barrie this fall.

Ten miles of concrete paving have been completed.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

Botheredby What We Understand

By ROY L. SMITH

A friend is reported to have said to Mark Twain on one occasion: "I am greatly troubled by a lot of things in the Bible which I do not understand," to which the great humorist replied, "I am not bothered by the things I do not understand, but by those which I do understand and which seem so very difficult."

Paul Speaks Plainly

A good deal of the time the Apostle Paul, in the New Testament discusses complicated themes and deals in abstract ideas. But there come times when he comes down very near to the earth and preaches out of the grass roots.

It is a fact, of course, that there is a great deal in the Christian scriptures which the plain man will not understand the first time he reads it. There is a great deal else he will understand the first time his eye rests upon the words.

In today's lesson the great evangelist and missionary is talking about some very plain and understandable matters.

The Uniform Sunday School Lesson for July 22: "Living Together in the Neighborhood," Matthew 25:31-46; Acts 6:1-7; Romans 12:9-21; 13:8-10.

Don't pretend in your loving. Hate evil with all your soul.

Seek honors for other men rather than for yourself.

Be patient in dealing with your troubles.

Sympathize with those who are in trouble.

Be happy with the happy.

Any man can understand teaching like that, but the man who wants to be religious can start out along one of those lines inside the first few seconds without waiting for any teacher to explain the texts.

Good Religion Begins There

The best religion is not that which is the most logical but that which makes a man most loveable.

Good religion begins where good intentions leave off—with action.

That religion which becomes quarrelsome and vindictive in the defence of its doctrines is bad religion.

The Answer is There

There is not a quarrel or controversy in your neighborhood which could not be cured if all parties would turn to the 12th chapter of Romans and follow its advice.

Try to imagine, if you can, what a transformation would come over the life in your town if you, and all other citizens, would set out to make those precepts work.

The burden of life in the average city does not originate in the law-breaking of the vicious, but in the carelessness of the good people. A lack of courtesy, small consideration for the rights of others, envy, jealousy, and pretensions—what havoc these insidious sins create in the life of any neighborhood.

We All Know Better

We all know better than to trespass on our neighbor's rights, than to inspire jealousy in the family next door, than to spend more than we can afford, than to buy because we want to put on a show.

We all know better than to tamper with evil, than to spend recklessly, than to go out looking our lives getting even, than to be for trouble.

We all know better than to try to make happiness out of revenge, than to fight those who hate us already, than to pile up regrets.

No Personal Liberty

The Apostle Paul has the right to do as he pleases. All of us must learn to live inside certain restrictions.

General Eisenhower said: "Every man who decides to make the army his life work accepts certain inhibitions." Similarly, it might be said: "Every man who tries to live with other people must accept certain abridgements of his personal liberties."

That religion which fails to make a man a better neighbor, fails as a religion.

Harriman Plans Visit To Shah of Iran

Tehran, Iran, July 20 (AP) — W. Averell Harriman, continuing his door-to-door calls on Iran's officials to try to work out some compromise in the bitter British-Iranian oil row, may visit the Shah today.

A security curtain cloaks the movements of President Truman's emissary to avoid more anti-American demonstrations by communists or nationalists, but it is believed he plans next to visit Iran's ruler and meet with the Iranian oil nationalization board.

Since he arrived from Washington last Sunday, Harriman already has paid three visits to Premier Mohammed Mossadegh in an attempt to get modification of the nationalization of the Anglo - Iranian Oil Company holdings which has halted shipments from southern oil fields.

WEDDINGS

WAKE—BUTLER

A wedding of local interest was solemnized in St. John's Anglican Church, Gull Lake, Saskatchewan, on Sunday, July 15th, at 1 p.m., when Joyce Lorraine Butler, of Calgary Hospital, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Butler, of Gull Lake, Saskatche-wan, became the bride of Harold Wake, paratrooper instructor, 1st R.C.A.F. Station, at Currie Barracks, Alberta, formerly of Point Anne, and son of Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Wright, of Belleville. The Reverend John Thompson, rector of the church, officiated be-fore a background of mixed summer flowers and ferns.

Mrs. Cecil Butler, church or-ganist, and mother of the bride, rendered the traditional wed-ding music.

Given in marriage by her fa-ther, the bride was charming in her bridal gown of white satin fashioned with molded bodice long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. The skirt was full, and fell grace-fully into a chapel train. Her full length veil of silk illusion net was caught by a coronet of lily-of-the-valley and seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of white carnations and adiantum fern.

Miss Pamela Butler, sister of the bride, was her only attend-ant, becomingly attired in a gown of peach colored satin made on lines similar to that of the bride's. She wore a matching picture hat of tulle with matching elbow-length mitts, and carried a bouquet of mixed summer flowers.

Mr. Cecil Butler, Jr., of Gull Lake, Sask., brother of the bride, was groomsman.

The reception was held at the bride's home, where the many guests were received by the bride's mother, who wore a gown of black sheer, with black and white accessories and corsage of red roses.

The bride's table was centred by a three-tier wedding cake lop-ped by a miniature bride and bridegroom, surrounded by a fluff of pink tulle and flanked by tall pink cathedral tapers in silver holders, while summer flowers added their beauty and fragrance.

Following the reception, the young couple left for Trenton by motor, the bride travelling in a navy blue ensemble with white accessories and corsage of white roses and lily-of-the-valley. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Wake will reside in Calgary.

Out-of-town guests were pres-ent from Calgary, Rosetown, Sas-katchewan; Edmonton, Alberta; and Winnipeg.

PASCOE—GILBERT

Grace United Church, Napanee, Ontario, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday, July 16, at 3:30 p.m., when the Reverend C. D. McLellan, pastor of the church, before a background of yellow gladioli and ferns, united in mar-riage Ruth Geraldine Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morley Gilbert, of Napanee, to Eugene Morris Pascoe, of Melrose, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Pascoe.

The wedding music was fur-nished by Mrs. R. M. Black, and Mrs. R. Wrightman sang "The Lord's Prayer", before the cere-mony, and during the signing of the register, "Through the Years".

Given in marriage by her fa-ther, the bride wore an exquisite gown of white satin, featuring a fitted bodice with yoke of Chan-tilly lace and seed pearls, long sleeves extending to points over the wrists. The full skirt, with short panniers edged with Chan-tilly lace, extended into a slight train. She wore a halo hat of seed pearls and lace with finger-tip veil of nylon net, and car-ried a white prayer book with roses and long, white satin stream-ers tipped with rosebuds.

Mrs. Morley Gilbert, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, gown-ed in pink nylon net featuring a tucked bodice with matching cape and full skirt. A matching picture hat and mitts completed her ensemble. The bridesmaids, Mrs. Morley Fraser and Miss Marjory Pascoe wore gowns iden-tical to that of the matron of honor; Mrs. Pascoe in pale green, and Miss Pascoe in mauve. All carried baskets of variegated roses and greenery.

Some New Ideas for Sandwiches

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Picnicking? Then you may want some new ideas for sandwiches. Home economists of the con-sumer section, Dominion Depart-ment of Agriculture, have come forth with some suggestions on "the art of making sandwiches."

Correct estimate of supplies is important, particularly when it's a case of making sandwiches for large groups of people. One small sandwich loaf cuts into 30 to 40 slices—each slightly less than one-quarter inch thick.

One loaf needs one-quarter pound of butter, say the home economists. Enough moist meat filling for 2½ cups (1¼ pounds) spreads one loaf of bread.

One dozen hard-cooked eggs, chopped and mixed with onion and salad-dressing spreads one loaf.

If crusts are to be cut from sandwiches save butter and filling by removing crusts before spread-ing butter. Crusts can be used for crumbs, bread puddings and so on.

Butter will go farther if cream-ed until light and fluffy.

Garnishes for Glamor

Fancy sandwiches always need color. Here are garnishes to re-member: Red—beets, cherries, cranberries, pimento, radishes; Green—Asparagus, celery, green pepper, pepper grass, watercress; Yellow—Cheese, pears; Orange—pimento cheese, apricots; Black—pimento, pickled walnuts, ripe olives; Brown—dates, figs, potato chips.

Peanut butter mixed with sal-ad dressing, fruit juice or honey; chili sauce and crisp bacon; hon-ey and grated carrot; mashed or sliced bananas and salad dressing or marmalade or honey.

Individual rolled sandwiches —use fresh bread, sliced thinly. Be certain crusts are removed. Spread with salad dressing or butter, then with filling. Roll like a jelly-roll. Seal edge of each roll with salad dressing, butter or filling. Wrap rolled sandwiches in slightly dampened wax-lined or waxed paper. Chill until set before tasting or serving plain. Toothpicks may be used to keep the sandwich rolled.

Pinwheel sandwich—use fresh bread, slice loaf lengthwise and make certain all crusts are re-moved. Spread filling on slices. Beginning at the end, roll like jelly-roll. For a contrasting cen-ter place the following across one end of each slice and begin roll-ing from this end: a peeled ban-ana, a dill pickle (whole or with centre removed and stuffed with cream cheese); halves or quarters of hard cooked eggs; a row of stuffed olives.

Wrap roll in wax paper and chill. Slice before serving. Each roll will cut into from six to eight pinwheels.

Ribbon Sandwiches

Using fresh or day-old bread, stack alternately two slices of brown bread and two slices of white bread, filling with one or more spreads. Press firmly to-gether. With a sharp knife using a sawing motion slice crusts from all sides of each stack. Cover with wax paper or a moist cloth. Chill for at least several hours. Cut in one-half inch slices. At-ter cutting each loaf into five slices cut each slice in thirds, halves or two or four triangles.

EARTHQUAKE REPORTED

It was decided that all attend the Free Chest Clinic on Friday morn-ing, August 10th, in the Orange Hall, Eldorado.

After the meeting closed re-freshments were served by the hostess and her assistants, and a social half hour was enjoyed.

CANNIFTON W.A.

Sunday evening last, the Can-nifton W.A. held a special service to raise funds for the preservation of the church which will celebrate its one hundredth anniversary next year.

The church, decorated by Mrs. Willis Brenton and Miss Elsie Smallhorn, was lovely for the occasion.

Following the president's wel-come to all, the Holloway Street United Church choir rendered an anthem under the direction of Mr. Templer. Announcements were read by Mr. Merrick.

The speaker, Mrs. Dobbs, then addressed the group. Her sub-ject was "How willing are you to do your part for the work of the church". It was a challeng-ing and inspirational address.

Offering was taken by Mrs. W. Brenton and Mrs. Clarence Bird after which Mr. Merrick closed the meeting with a prayer.

OFFER REFUSED

Canberra, Australia, July 20—(Reuters)— India has politely turned down Australia's offer to extend "good offices" toward ending tension between India and Pakistan.

Prime Minister Robert Menzies wrote to both India and Pakistan offering friendly good offices Wednesday.

Prime Minister Nehru of India replied today there was no such need at the present time that India had no aggressive inten-tions towards Pakistan.

Five Run Rally Not Enough Ramsays Lose 9-7

Ramsey Paints five run rally in the bottom of the ninth inning, while giving Howe and Hagerman's Plumbers and the fans apoplexy, couldn't quite catch the harried Plumbers who eked out a 9-7 decision in the first game of a best-in-three semi-final series in the OASA playdowns.

The two teams meet again Saturday night at 6.45 at the Alemite Field with H. and H. playing host.

There were thrills and chills galore last evening as both teams alternately excelled and appalled on defence. The porous Painters appeared to be out of contention after the first inning as the Plumbers poured over five runs on three singles, two walks, two errors, and a sacrifice. They added a single run in the second with Dick Fitzpatrick taking second on error and scoring on flies to centre field by Don Adams and Vern Goyer.

A two base error on an overthrow to first on Don Adams' drive rallies to short set the stage for the Plumbers seventh run. Vern Goyer slammed a single to centre-field to plate Adams.

The Painters, who managed to put only two men on base in the first five innings got into the scoring column in the sixth with a single by Ramsey and a home run over the right field fence by Earl Beall. Al Adams, who was working on a two-hitter until this happened settled down and got through the eighth frame without further damage.

In the top of the seventh the Plumbers started to rally again. Leo Goyer connected for his second single of the night, McGregor walked, and Henn and Locke singled to score two runs.

That was all for Ramsay starter Bunk Young. Connie Harris came on to retire the next three men, without further damage. Harris toiled his way through the rest of the game slowballing the Plumbers to death as he faced only ten men in three innings, for a no hit no run effort masterpiece.

Ramsays batted around in the ninth in a belated rally. Errors by Vern Goyer and Don Locke, the latter a three base miscue on Claude Carr's bounding ball down the right field line for three runs, played a big part in Ramsays five run splurge.

It was a hard night on catchers. Leo Goyer, who won the league batting crown with a 431 percentage was sidelined in the seventh inning with a wrenched knee picked up stealing second base. Glen Young, clubbing the ball at .405 for Ramsays was shedding blood from his left hand from the first inning but he stayed in the game.

Al Adams toiled all the way on the hill for the Plumbers to notch the win. He walked two, struck out three and gave up seven hits.

Bunk Young took the loss for Ramsey walking four, and giving nine hits.

Lineup:

Howe and Hagerman: Fitzpatrick 2b; D. Adams If, c; V. Goyer cf; L. Goyer c, replaced by M.-Carson, if, in 7th; McGregor ss; Henn 3b; Locke 1b; H. Wentaugh rf; A. Adams p.

Argos, Tiger-Cats To Display Wares At Buffalo

Buffalo, N.Y., July 20 (AP)—Canadian professional football, which is attracting many of the better United States college and pro stars ,will have its U.S. debut here Aug. 12.

The Toronto Argonauts, 1950 Canadian champions, will meet Hamilton Tigers in an exhibition.

The promoters hope that some of the big men in U.S. football will be on hand to see what all the shouting's about.

Carl Voyles, former William and Mary and Brooklyn Dodgers coach who now heads the Tigers, and Frank Cialy, former University of Buffalo coach now at the helm of the Argos, were in Buffalo this week to drum up interest in the game.

There is a chance that the Eastern Big-Four circuit—Toronto, Hamilton, Montreal and Ottawa—may expand some day into the United States, but there are too many stumbling blocks at the present. Biggest problem is the current limit of seven Americans on a Big-Four team.

Each club is allowed 21 of their game and are slow to change it.

PAINFUL "END" TO BULLFIGHTER'S CAREER

An abrupt and painful end was put to bullfighting debut of Jose Rodriguez Pichardo in Madrid, Spain, recently by a bored bull who wearied of playing around with a cape and decided to "end" it all. By hooking a horn into seat of Joses' fancy-pants, he not only ripped them, but caused a slight abrasion on matador's "you know what." Result: Jose suffered serious injury to his pride. — Central Press Canadian.

Clash of Cash Sweet Music To Promoters

Pittsburgh, July 20 — (CP) — Boxing promoters are bursting with potential money-making offers following Jersey Joe Walcott's "perfect punch" seven-round knockout of Ezzard Charles.

Ready to pour greenbacks into the coffers of the International Boxing Club are the television set manufacturers as well as $100,000 for the air rights of the Charles-Walcott thriller, the theatre-television business and the Brewing Company and the Gilliette Razor Company.

The bidding for the TV rights for the Charles-Walcott return in September already has started among the big four and before it's ended the price is expected to pass the $250,000 mark.

In addition to the Charles-Walcott natural, the I.B.C. is ready to offer the Ray Robinson-Randy Turpin middleweight title fight return for September, a light heavyweight title clash between champion Joe Maxim and Bob Murphy for Aug. 22 and the possibility of a contenders' clash between Joe Louis and undefeated Rocky Marciano.

All four are in the works and everyone of them appears to be a box-office bonanza.

Louis, frozen out of a title bout because of Walcott's surprising seven-round knockout of Charles on Wednesday, wants to keep busy. He has an Aug. 1 date with Cesar Brion in San Francisco but what happens after that? Neither Walcott nor Charles will be ready for him until next year because of tax problems, and the Brown Bomber, in the best shape in many years, wants to clean up while he can.

Norris has offered Marshall Miles, Louis' manager, a Marciano match to keep the Bomber busy while he's awaiting the outcome of the fourth Charles-Walcott fight. Rocky, after his brilliant knockout win over Rex Layne, and Louis, on the basis of his good showing against Lee Savold, figure to pack the customers in.

Pittsburgh, which Wednesday set a city record crowd of 23,272 and a gate of $245,00 plus $100,000 for the air rights, hopes to grab off the Charles-Walcott return fight for September.

Ontario Amateurs Seek Spot On Cup Team

London, Ont., July 20.—(CP)—A fast field of amateur golfers is expected for the Ontario Amateur Golf Championship which starts Wednesday at the London Hunt and Country Club.

Several former champions will be trying to knock the crown from the head of Nick Weslock of Windsor who won last year at Toronto Golf Club. Included are Jack Nash of the host club, Gerry Kesslring of Kitchener, 1949 winner, and Phil Farley, Toronto Scarboro who last won the title in 1948.

About 140 of the province's best are expected to tee off Wednesday morning seeking a spot among the low 32 scorers to qualify for match play, Thursday and Friday will be devoted to 18-hole match play contests and the finals are scheduled for Saturday over 36 holes.

In addition to the title of provincial championship the qualifying round will provide a tight finish in the Willingdon Cup team trials.

Blind Golfer Champion For Second Time

Toronto, July 20. (CP)—Phil Lederhouse of Prince Albert, Sask., yesterday won the Canadian Blind Golfers' championship for the second straight year. He shot a 56-56—112 over the Sunnieriea course at Weston to beat Nick Genovese, of Dundas, just as he had edged out the Ontario man last year.

Lederhouse was accompanied by Hubert Cooke, Prince Albert pro and coach of the Canadian champion.

Genovese shot 57-56—119 and would have been closer to the winner but he took 12 strokes on the 16th hole after getting into the rough.

Third man was Dr. W. J. H. Oxenham from Toronto Roedale with 60-60—120; Harold Mitchell of Hamilton Glendale, had 125 for fourth.

Genovese won the Kenesy Trophy for putting, using only 134 putts over the 18 holes.

Scores for the other players were—Wilson Barret, Thornhill, 141; Charles E. Tooth, Hamilton, 152; Bob Pattermore, Chedoke, 170; Ches Gerrie, Chedoke, 172; Roy Meghan, Chedoke, 183; Charles Robinson, Burlington, 276.

Mimico Gains Third Place Tie With Hamilton

(By The Canadian Press)

Mimico Mountaineers moved into a third place tie with Hamilton last night with a 12-9 victory over Toronto West Yorks in the first senior Ontario Lacrosse Association tilt staged at suburban Weston this season.

The Yorkers led 7-6 at the half, way mark but Mimico mounted a last-half offensive to outscore the Toronto team 6-2.

Archie Dixon paced the Mountaies netting three goals and playing a steady defence. Brother Ken Dixon scored one marker and assisted on five others.

Leo Teatro and Howes were West York's top scorers with two each.

The field will play 18 holes on Friday with a 36-hole stint Saturday. There are six flights including the special "55 and over" event.

At Truro, N.S., Mrs. Anne Hodson of Halifax captured the Maritime Ladies' Golf Championship Thursday defeating Connie Archibald of Truro.

Miss Archibald was leading up to the end of the first nine holes but Mrs. Hodson came back to take the next three.

Appointment of Charles Leslie of Montreal as official referee of the Davis Cup matches between Canada and Cuba at Montreal next month was announced Thursday by the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association.

Both Canada and Cuba have accepted the appointment.

Leslie's job will entail general supervision and he will not necessarily referee any one game.

Nearly 100 golfers will be shooting for the Seagram Trophy in the 18th annual Granbury Golf Club invitation tournament which gets under way today. Tony Martino, of Kitchener Rockaway Club, present title holder, made a practice round on the course Thursday.

Others getting in an early lick at the tricky course were Nick Weslock, Windsor-Detroit stylist, Nick Cinor of California, Mo Norman, Bill Franklin both of Kitchener and Ontario junior champion Jerry Knechtel, of Kitchener.

Judge G. W. Schilling rode a horse over Exhibition Park Thursday and ruled that Edmonton races would resume. He said the track was "much improved." His ruling was abandoned, Wednesday after the first race because of the dangerous condition of the track, mired by a heavy downpour.

An emergency meeting of the Horsemen's Benevolent Protective Association decided to leave it to Judge Schilling whether they would risk their horses on the track.

Paul Richards, who lifted Chicago White Sox to one of the top spots in the American League, has signed a contract to continue to manage the club at least through next year.

Richards' salary was not disclosed.

Asked if Richards received a raise, a spokesman said: "I can't tell."

At Bastaad, Sweden, Sweden's Davis Cup team completed a 5-0 rout of the Philippines in the European zone semi-final Thursday when Lennart Bergelin and Sven Davidsson won a pair of five-set single matches.

Sweden already had clinched the right to meet Germany in the European zone finals July 27-29 by winning the doubles matches Wednesday.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Well Jersey Joe finally made it! If his knockout victory over Ezzard Charles in Pittsburgh Wednesday night did nothing else it gave thousands in the "middle-aged division" a new lease on life. The wicer brigade has a new hero. After all it is easier to look up to a 37-year-old heavyweight champion who, reputedly, is well on in his forties, than it is to idolize a tall glass of yogurt. It is a wonderful advertisement for setting-up exercises too.

* * *

But aside from the sentimental values accrued by Jersey Joe, the victory also has the added distinction of stirring up the heavyweight potpourri just when Randy Turpin and the middleweights seemed about to take over. To say that Jersey Joe is a shot in the arm for the fight game would be carrying the joke too far because Joe has been around to these past twenty years and it is long past the time that any hypoe he might be carrying for the fight business will be of any use. He just transferred the heavyweight crown to his own battered noggin from the educated brow of a champion that unfortunately has been a public disappointment since he downed old Jersey in Chicago for the crown two years ago.

* * *

It is nice to know, however, that perseverance pays off. We have always thought that Walcott was jobbed in his first fight with Joe Louis. However, it must be remembered that a champion is usually given the edge on close ones. A knockout is the most unmistakable method of transfer and it is good to see a champ back on the throne who can score a knockout. How long Walcott can retain his crown is debatable. Age, which devastates movie stars, and used to be the bane of heavyweights, is apparently not the obstacle to success that it used to be. Walcott looked strong and trim Wednesday night. It may be that he is truly ageless.

* * *

We also suspect that he is very human. It seems likely that having obtained boxing's golden fleece at last old Joe will be content to bask the fires that have kept him steaming along the trail for two decades. He also has the certain knowledge that he will not last forever. That, combined with the nice nest - egg that will be coming his way in the return bout with Charles, should take his mind off the financial problems engendered by his six children. All things considered, it does not look as though Joe will be champion too long. Who will succeed him is not known. It is to be sincerely hoped that it is a young man, possibly the wicked-after Rocky Marciano, or some other stripling just fresh from his teens. Besides scrambling the fight picture into a tasty meringue such a fighter would also provide for the legitimate retirement of all the old pros who have been dragging their battered bodies about heavyweight rings for years. In addition it would restore the status quo. Who wants to worry in a heavyweight championship fight about the participants' pension plan or speculate on the probability that a good stiff punch will give the "champ" a heart attack?

* * *

While there are pleasanter ways of making a living than publicly dismembering human beings, Lord Athol Layton, the klanpin of British wrestling, wouldn't trade places with Aly Khan tonight as he resumes his feud with the Zebra. Layton, who last week was so certain that he had defeated the Zebra that he was removing his mask, is still incensed over the referee's decision that he was out of bounds in performing the unveiling. He is fully confident that tonight he will have no trouble with the 305 pound striped grappler and that the mystery of his opponent's identity will be solved. Layton does not intend to let his chances for a second shot at Whipper Watson's British Empire title be stopped by an "unknown" wrestler.

Mystery and mayhem are promised for the main preliminary as well, with Chief Sunl War Cloud slated to meet the Masked Marvel. The Chief, who is fast and aggressive may make it a double unveiling. In the opening bout George Scott and Pat Flanagan go at it for 30 minutes or one fall.

* * *

While the continuing rain in this district is making life miserable for sports fans, players, and league executives alike, the general population can take some solace from the fact that at least the farmers are being blessed with their best crops in years. The anticipated heavy yield in just about every crop, and the remote possibility that bumper harvests will lower prices, is a consolation. But we have learned differently. A friend of ours was speculating on the bounty of this year's harvest with a farmer up Campbellford way last week. When the talk finally wound up with our city-dwelling friend left speechless over the prospects of the size of the crops the farmer chimed in, "Yes, but think what these heavy crops are doing to the land", You can't win.

Tightest AL Race on Record Indians Drop Bosox 5-4 in 10 Chisox Defeat Yankees 2-1

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writers)

Bob Avila, fleet-footed Cleveland second-baseman, is the principal reason why the Indians today are only 1½ games behind the American league-leading Boston Red Sox.

It was Avila's batting and fielding yesterday that gave the Indians an 11-inning 5-4 victory over Boston, their ninth in 15 meetings with the pace-setters.

The victory left the tribe still in fourth place, but a bare two percentage points behind third-place New York which bowed to Chicago White Sox 2-1.

Only 17 points and 1½ games separate the first four clubs in one of the tightest races on record.

Detroit and Philadelphia divided a doubleheader. The Tigers won the nightcap 4-3 after Morris Martin pitched the third 5-0 decision in the opener. In the other league game the Browns scored in the ninth for the eighth inning to whip Washington Senators 3-2 for a night sweep.

Rain wiped out the National League schedule.

It wasn't until this year that Avila discovered he had "cousins" as far southward as Mexico. In fact, the stocky little Mexican from Vera-Cruz has a flock of 'em. They all pitch for the Red Sox.

In 15 games with Boston, Avila has cracked Red Sox pitchers for 28 hits in 62 times at bat, a rousing .452 batting average. Three of his four homers have been banged off Boston twirlers, all in one game, Seven of Bob's 24 R. B. I's have been at their expense too.

Good on Defence

Avila has been just as murderous against the Red Sox on defence. He has made only one miscue in 103 chances for a .990 percentage.

Avila, a singles hitter (only 15 of his 87 hits have gone for extra bases), slapped four yesterday to lead the Indians to victory. His fourth single scored pinch-hitter Bob Lemon with the tying run, Sam Chapman then singled behind third. Left fielder fielder Ted Williams, expecting Avila to stop at third, held the ball momentarily. Avila, with a burst of speed, surprised Williams by continuing to run to beat Ted's throw to the plate.

Early Wynn went the route for the Tribe to win his fifth straight and his 10th of the season against nine losses.

Outhit 11-5, the White Sox nevertheless took the rubber of the three-game set with New York on the erratic hurling of Howie Judson. The righthander yielded at least one hit in each of the first seven innings, and put runners on base in every frame until relieved by Billy Pierce in the ninth.

The Sox got their runs off loser Ed Lopat in the third. Chico Carrasquel singled, Joe Krautt walked, both runners advanced on a sacrifice and scored on a fly ball by Dillinger and a double by Fox.

First-baseman Lou Limmer's wild throw allowed the Tigers to tally a tie-breaking run in the eighth inning to win the second game after Martin had held them to five hits and no runs in the opener.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting, Bob Avila, Indians—his single—fourth of the day—drove in the tying run and he scored on Sam Chapman's single with the tally that beat the Red Sox 5-4 in 11 innings.

Pitching, Morris Martin, Athletics—blanked the Tigers 5-0 on five hits and no walks in the first game of a doubleheader.

Happy Day As Jersey Joe Goes Home

By GIB STALEY

Pittsburgh, July 20 — (AP) — Jersey Joe Walcott got set today for "one of the happiest days of my life" — a day when he goes home to Camden, N. J. with the richest ring bauble of them all.

The newly - crowned heavyweight champion of the world could hardly control his excitement as he prepared to leave for Camden. He expected to arrive at the airport there about 4 p. m. (EST).

"I just wonder how many people will be on hand," said Felix Bocchicchi, manager of the Cinderella man who won the championship in his fifth try by knocking Ezzard Charles in the 7th round of a scheduled 15 - rounder Wednesday night.

"When Joe went back to Camden after his first fight with Joe Louis in 1947 a round 100,000 were on hand. There'll probably be more today."

The size of the crowd didn't worry Walcott. The 37-year-old quiet-spoken champ just said he was eager to "see my wife, six kiddies and all my friends."

Walcott wasn't a bit tired although he found his first 24 hours as champion more rigorous than a training grind.

He climaxed his first day as champ by motoring 100 miles to Harrisburg, Pa., and returning to the steel city.

Making the trip to Harrisburg less than 24 hours after he was crowned champ, the New Jersey Negro made good on a promise many years ago that he'd visit Pennsylvania's state capital as soon as he won the heavyweight title.

Another Date

Another date Walcott kept yesterday was with 10-year-old Jimmie Slater, who lived near his training camp at McKeesport. Day after day it was a familiar sight to see the husky Walcott and the little boy trudging along a country road.

And, day after day, it was Jimmie who greeted Walcott at the ring and ran errands for him. Walcott said he promised Jimmy he'd come out to see him right after the fight.

When Walcott and his police escort wheeled up to Jimmie's house the boy was overwhelmed.

"Gee, champ, gee," he said. "Thanks a lot for coming out to see me."

Citation is Retired, Only Million Dollar Winner In Thoroughbred History

By BOB MYERS

Inglewood, Calif., July 20 (AP) —"The big horse is through."

With those five words, this was written to the racing career of Citation, the first million dollar winner in turf history and a thoroughbred many call the greatest of all time.

Jimmy Jones, the Calumet's trainer, who has guided Citation since first he groped as a shaky legged yearling in Kentucky said the words. He said them with tears in his eyes and sadness in his voice.

Retirement of Citation was the wish of Mrs. Warren Wright. She is the widow of the master of the Calumet farm, the Thoroughbred country, and it was her husband who set the final goal for Citation.

The goal was $1,000,000. Citation hit and passed the mark last Saturday when he won the $100,000 Hollywood Gold Cup handicap. The $100,000 sent his all-time earnings up to $1,085,760.

The mark will stand for a long time. There is no one on the scene now, from all appearances, able to threaten it.

The cold record shows that Citation raced 45 times. Of those starts, he captured 32 wins. He ran second 10 times—never finishing a troublesome year of 1950. He raced third twice, when he was just getting again early this spring. He ran out of the money one time. He's bowing out at a great time. And if we raced him some more—well, any horse can get broken up in a race. Might never happen, but again, it might.

"Yes," concluded Jimmy, "I guess this is the time, when he's at the peak."

Scourge of Division

Citation was the scourge of the three-year-old division in 1948. He won the triple crown, Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont—in sparkling fashion.

He won 19 of 20 races that year and smassed the unprecedented sum for a three-year-old of $709,470.

Then came bad racing luck. He popped an ossicle late in 1948 and was sidelined throughout 1949. He started comeback No. 1 in January, 1950. He raced nine times that year, and won two, and in four of those trips postward he was beaten by the mighty Irish champion, Noor.

Came another training setback and Citation took another vacation. He came back.

Many figuratively sent him to the green pastures when he trailed fifth at Hollywood Park in May. But he got up for a second after that, then came two straight wins, and then the third and best of all last week.

The comeback was a success, the $1,000,000 had been reached.

A pitcher who throws a slow curve last night used his specialty to score a shutout before a hometown crowd.

Jack Barry of Galt Terriers gave up only three hits in stopping Kitchener Legionnaires 9-0. The victory sent Galt into a fourth-place tie with Guelph in the Intercounty Baseball League standings.

Guelph also scored a shutout on home ground last night, the Maple Leafs blanked Toronto Crofions of the Viaduct League 7-0 in an exhibition game.

In the Galt game, the Terriers scored six of their runs in the second inning. The barrage of Galt hits drove Kitchener's Don Fosher from the mound with only one out.

Galt shortstop Andy Gerbas had one of his best nights so far this season. He got five putouts and one assist.

A postponed game between Galt and London Majors had been rescheduled for Monday night.

Tonight's schedule has Kitchener at St. Thomas, Waterloo at Brantford and London at Guelph.

In Viaduct League action, Toronto Staffords beat Toronto Kingsway 12-6 in the opener of a doubleheader, but Kingsway came back to win the other game 17-3.

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's Solunar Tables. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times, if you wish to fill the best sport hours each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration. All times given are Daylight Saving. The period is from July 21st to July 29th.

Strong Field Of Oarsmen In Two Day Meet

Worcester, Mass., July 20 (AP) —After a 31-year lapse, the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen's regatta will return to Lake Quinsigamond tomorrow when representatives of 19 American and Canadian rowing clubs launch their two-day competition.

With Jack Kelly, Jr., of Philadelphia, on active duty with the U.S. Navy, a new titlist will be crowned in the regatta's top individual event, the championship singles.

Only two among the 68 individual entries are automatically qualified for that event, Joe McIntyre of Seattle, Wash., and Bob Williams of Hamilton, Ont. They are former winners of the Association singles and "comeback" prize in that event will be eligible to compete against them on Sunday.

Philadelphia's Vesper Boat Club, which gained group honors with a total of 120 points on its home course last year, will attempt to retrail its laurels in the eight-oar quadruple sculls, the 145-lb. four-oared shells with and without coxswains, and the doubles.

Other Philadelphia clubs bent on repeating in other championship events are the Fairmount Rowing Association and the Undine Barge Club. Philadelphia also will be represented by the Malta Boat Club and La Salle College.

Other defenders are the West Side Rowing Club of Buffalo, N.Y., in the championship eights and the New York Athletic Club in the intermediate eights.

Canadian carmen are entered from Toronto Argonauts, St. Catharines, Ont., Boat Club and Hamilton Leander.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, July 20 (AP) — Just before the radio signed off on the Walcott-Charles fight, a canned voice broke in with a commercial: "See the fistic upset of the year—the Randy Turpin-Ray Robinson fight" . . by that time even the listeners who had been trying to make sense out of the radio report knew that one big upset had just taken place in Pittsburgh.

It's hard to comprehend Jersey Joe Walcott's victory. . . He was a washed-up old fighter when Felix Bocchicchio brought him out of retirement in 1945. He admits to 37 years, though most people think he's older.

Sherts and Shells

George Trauiman, minor-league baseball boss, has asked all minor-league clubs to furnish attendance and payroll data for the last four years. . he wants the information for use in Congressional hearings about the reserve clause and other matters. First person to jump from Cleveland Indians to St. Louis Browns to join Bill Veeck was Ada Ireland, the switchboard operator. . .

Olympic Hopefuls Set Sights On Track Records

Vancouver, July 20. (CP)—The Canadian track and field championships—and important tryout for the 1952 Olympic games—open today at the University of British Columbia stadium here.

Nearly 100 male and female athletes, training diligently for weeks, will carry out an concentrated attack on Dominion records.

Finals in the 100-yard dash, 440-yards, the mile six miles and two hurdles events will be run off today.

The quarter mile, final event of today's program shapes up as a wide-open affair.

Roy Hutchison, last year's British Columbia champion, has entered under the auspices of the Victoria YMCA. But he still will meet stiff opposition in Doug Clement, Ex Henninger, Jack Maxwell and Don Barrieau.

Clement recently set a Canadian juvenile record of 15.5 seconds in Kelowna, B.C. Henniger, Canadian champion in 1949, will be making his first start of the year in this event. Maxwell and Barrieau will represent the Vancouver Olympic Club, sponsors of the two-day meet.

Strong favorite in the mile event is Bill Parnell of North Vancouver, the British Empire games athlete.

At 1950 B.C. championships, Parnell ran the fastest mile ever run by a Canadian in Canada when he set a Canadian native record with a 4:13.8 performance.

Gillenwater Leads Chiefs Into Second Slot

(By The Associated Press)

A major league dud but a minor league demon. Meet Gordon Gillenwater, centre fielder of the Syracuse Chiefs.

That's the story of this strapping six-foot-one veteran. Remember him? He had chances with St. Louis, Brooklyn, Boston and Washington—and he flubbed them all.

Each time he was sent down, he bounced back. But the years are running out (he's 33 now), and Gillenwater may have had his last chance at the big time.

He's slowing up, sure, but his bat still speaks with authority.

The Chiefs are in second place today thanks to Gillenwater's hitting. He drove across five runs last night—three on a home run —as Syracuse whipped Rochester 11-4.

Gillenwater boosted his average to .368, a modest figure but consider his 45 runs batted in. They still pay off in the run department.

Gene Costello, fourth of five Syracuse pitchers, was the winner.

The Chiefs picked up a half game on Montreal as the league-leading Royals split with Ottawa, winning the opener 4-2 but dropping the nightcap 3-2. Montreal still leads by ten games.

In the only other game, the rising Toronto Maple Leafs went one game over the .500 mark by outlasting the Buffalo Bisons 5-4.

For the second straight night, Les Fleming delivered the game-winning hit for the Leafs, this time a lone single to centre in the 10th inning that scored Bobby Sullivan from third with two out.

Hollywood, July 20 — (AP) — There she was, smack in the middle of the big stage, 7,500 pairs of eyes on her, 7,500 pairs of ears listening.

It was quite a switch for Vancouver's Yvonne de Carlo, queen of the color-movie harems. She hadn't even been in a play before, let alone an opera.

How does it feel to perform for the opera set, with no camera around to rephotograph possible mistakes.

Says Yvonne: "I thought I was going to fall apart."

The curvy French-Canadian brunette made her opera debut at the Hollywood Bowl last week, playing the role of Prince Orlovsky in "Die Fledermaus."

She had studied opera off and on for seven years, and this was her first chance to show her stuff.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

The main cause of so much poor bridge is the use of mysterious formulas for determining the bids. Your game will be good if you understand the common sense purpose and meaning of each bid.

When you bid you use a number. The number states how many tricks over six your pair must take. Until you hear from partner, assume he has only two. Have the balance needed in your bid.

This is why the first bid of one by your side promises five tricks in the bidder's hand. And you need the five tricks whether you are the opening bidder or the first defending bidder.

What I mean is, suppose your opponent starts with an opening bid of one heart and you have the hand shown here:

♥10 3
♣A J 10 6

You are a defending bidder. If you bid one you tell your partner you can take five tricks. The five tricks are not some flighty imagination. They are tricks you truly expect to take.

Over one heart you are not permitted to say one diamond or one club. To bid either diamonds or clubs in that spot you would have to bid two. You are compelled to say two if you bid either minor.

If you bid two in either suit, you and your partner must take two tricks more than six, or a total of eight. Since you must not yet count on partner for more than two, you need six.

With the hand you have it is not very likely that six tricks will be taken. Especially when you have not yet heard from partner.

You may as well face the facts. If you think you can take six tricks you are forgetting how many big cards are held by opponents, or you are hoping against hope to capture most of them.

Let's not argue now over the best way to count tricks. Use any accurate method you like. But if you are unable to count six, you should not bid two. That's common sense.

"You'll probably go out there and faint," I told myself.

"I made my entrance feeling fine. I stayed fine until I sat down to watch the ballet. Then suddenly it hit me.. I began trembling so badly they could have noticed it in the back row. I thought I was going to fall apart."

Pep Talk

"I had to do something, so I started talking to myself. I told myself not to be afraid, that if the others could perform so could I. By the time the ballet was over I'd talked myself out of it."

Although the critics lauded her acting — "clever characterization" — "completely convincing" — there was less said about her voice. "The present stage of her vocal development can scarcely be termed enchanting," said the Times critic. All agreed that it needs polishing.

August 22 to September 22—(Virgo)—A little sound force in business, in your position, can turn things in your favor now. A request from others may bring surprise benefits. Will not lessen your dignity to comply.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Any sort of carbon copy of Virgo's. Have no fear, yet be not too forceful in whatever your work, proposition. Keep right purpose, avoid needless argument with associates. You should advance.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Generous acting carefully directed should bring fine result. All worthy endeavor highlighted. Make best of true opportunities. You can, should have a most useful day.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Very promising indications today. Essential matters, money interests favored with the pleasant and vocational affairs. Be mindful of health needs and little but vital duties.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Whole day generally favorable with financial interests, household and general family affairs in front place. Should be ideal day for healthy outdoor sports and recreation.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Best planetary day so far this month. Show appreciation for all blessings by attending due tasks efficiently, pleasantly and early, thus earn your leisure time, and credits.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces) — Excellent aspects for your special talents and personal interests. Use your tact and artistic honored. Unexpected good news. Fresh opportunities for the effort. Be rightly ambitious.

YOU BORN TODAY: Active, fearless; ever ready to push ahead despite opposition or obstacles. But also sensitive. May have to curb tendency to be too aggressive at times, perhaps boastful. Yet on occasion are too retiring. A great and valuable asset for anyone to possess is humility. How much more we can learn and gain when we recognize our own shortcomings and appreciate the capability of others. You can succeed quickly in fields bringing you in contact with many people. Develop your many fine characteristics.

Birthdate; Philip Neri, Italian saint, founder of the Oratorians.

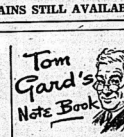
Tom Gard's Note Book



My lawn roller never seems to be handy when I should make another one—just to lend to people! Fooling aside, this borrowing mole and then forgetting to bring them back can be most annoying—and I'm not guiltless. I was all set to roll the area just scaled for late vegetables when I discovered it was missing. The needlessness was finally settled by borrowing Herb's sleek "store" job. It gave me the idea of looking for a short, fat hot water tank and fixing up a handle attachment from inch water pipe. Its weight can be regulated by the amount of water used in the tank—quite an improvement on my present one filled with heavy concrete. Possibly that will be my first job when holidays are over.

Chintz Canopy

Here is a simple way to perk up your kitchen window, noticed while in the St. Thias area. A light canopy was constructed from building board and fastened on the inside to the edge of the window frame. Bright chintz was sewn in the form of an awning to fit the frame and thumb tacked in place, with the tacks out of sight. It was most attractive. After repeated attempts to describe its construction to my usually bright "better half", I finally took the hint and built one. Now she will have to get busy and sew one!

While she is sewing the canopy, maybe I can talk her into covering the guest book I made out of a cigar box last spring. It's quite attractive in its natural finish but it will be even better covered with some of the drapery material that was left over.

Knick-Knack Shelf

If you want a small shelf for light knickknacks try your hand at making one from coat hangers. It will take a bit of patience to form the wire into the desired pattern but it can be done.

NEW BOOKLET You'll find more information on these and many other interesting ideas in the booklet "Around the Home Again", just published. Write for your copy to Tom Gard, c/o MOLSON'S (ONTARIO) LIMITED, P.O. Box 690, Adelaide St. Station, Toronto

AS A PUBLIC SERVICE

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

"Miss Green." Paris strolled up and mounted the scales. Mrs. Cockhawle twiddled the weight with a growing expression of horror. "Miss Green! You weighed 121 last Friday, and 125 today. Your pounds gain! What did you do over the weekend?" As Paris opened her mouth to reply, Mrs. Cockhawle made it out to be that in this case the answer might be too candid for comfort. "Whatever you did, you were terribly naughty," she went on ferociously. "You must have eaten food."

Paris stood sullenly, unwilling to confess to so low a crime. "We will have to double the dosage of mineral oil," her loquitator continued. "And no solids but the rind of one grapefruit."

Paris shrugged. "All it can do is kill me." As she returned to her bench, her hips swung mutinously.

The check-up went on through the alphabet, with Mrs. Cockhawle handing out praise or Day of Atonement diets, and the students' moods varying from elation to deep melancholia. Lucilla, who came last, turned out to be the heroine of the hour. Mrs. Cockhwaile peered incredulously at the scale's indicator. "Why, it it can't be—but it is. A gain of. . ." She raised her voice to a shriek. "Class, this little Bony has gained six whole pounds."

All the students ooched and aashed. Lucilla herself was dumb-founded. As she stepped down off the scales, she was conscious of her body in its entirety; there was the feeling that when ever she did now carried weight, literally. Even the New Girls stout dejected by their own plus crowded around to congratulate her, and to speculate where the six pounds showed best. Some students said Lucilla's hips looked heavier. Mrs. Colps voted for the cheeks. Miss Thumbold, the hockey-muscled girl, eyed Lucilla with hungry hope. "It just goes to show," she kept saying, "that this school is really working. Sometime implied she wanted desperately to believe that. She herself had been deprived for fiid she'd lost only four ounces. "It's because my flesh is too firm," she explained to Lucilla, kneading her sausage-like arms.

At 3, they sat in the lecture room in which they'd taken the B. Q. quiz, ready for their first application of Brain Cosmetics. Each new girl had been given a cardboard packet containing a pad and a pencil, for taking notes. Lucilla, Paris and Mrs. Colps took seats in the back row of chairs.

It was irritating to have Mr. Marlowe so late in appearing. Finally he strolled in and faced the class with the same whimsically cherubic smile she had encountered in her fantasy. He had his left hand thrust easily into the pocket of his peat-brown tweed jacket and this gave an appealing shrugged effect to the left shoulder. When he stood behind the desk and produced the hand, it was holding a pipe.

"Doesn't he look like Rex Harrison?" Miss Midge murmured.

Mr. Marlowe, with masterful timing, had arranged his pipe and notes on the desk before saying a word. When he grinned, a tweedy, boyish grin. "Doll's get it into your heads that this is a lecture, because I hate 'em as much as you do." The ladies laughed adoringly.

"It's simply a chance for all of us to chat about some things we're interested in." His glance made a circuit of the room pausing an extra second on Paris. "But I'd rather not have to shout to those exclusive members of the back row," he added charmingly. "Won't you three come down and join us?" His pipe waved, indicating empty seats directly 'n front of him. Mrs. Colps bounded up like a puppy, and trotted in to aisle, where she stood waiting for her schoolmates. Paris muttered, "Oh nuts," but rose in beautifully controlled curves. Lucilla, for a mild moment, thought of saying, "I can hear perfectly well back here."

But Paris was reaping. "Hey, are you cruising?" and Lucilla's dread of being conspicuous reaped at her nerves even louder. She walked slowly, with chin up, shoulders back; this admirable posture wasted, in that she was walking directly behind Paris, whose stroll was a production in itself.

As they settled into the front seats, Mr. Marlowe grinned his cheekbones. "Thanks." His hand returned to his jacket pocket. "Now supposing I talk for awhile and if you get bored, just sing out." It was the tone of a man confident of his charm. He glanced at Paris, but she was looking blankly at an after poster. "As you know this class is called Brain Cosmetics. Why, do you suppose?" He paused. "Well, if your skin is too pale, you apply rouge, don't you?" The New Girls nodded. Even Lucilla inclined her head slightly. "And if your thoughts are too pale you must apply color so that they'll stand out attractively in conversation." Miss Midge clasped her hands.

Mr. Marlowe quirked an eyebrow. "But don't get the idea you're to look like an intellectual, the kind who wears heavy-soled shoes, a heavy expression and thick glasses." He saw Mrs. Cleery snatch at her harlequin rims. "Not that glasses can't be becoming. In fact Miss Meadows feels that the modern girl wears gay tinted glasses as part of her make-up, and she can use amusing bright thoughts in the very same way."

Mr. Marlowe went on. He recommended that the ladies at least glance at headlines in the news, for a spot of brain make-up. As he enlarged on this, Lucilla felt vaguely uneasy. After years of living with Arthur and his opinions, she observed the papers even to carry-over columns, she was nonplussed by the idea that one read just enough to get brain rouge. It was at this point that she noticed Mr. Marlowe's face was a bit too triangular, because of the pointed chin.

He glanced again at Paris, but she was raveling a loose silver thread on her costume. "In this course we'll try to create some of those ideas you'll need. We'll discuss colorful facts on art, music, literature and the theatre. By the way, how many of you have been to the theatre recently? Will you raise your hands."

Lucilla's hand rose in automatic reflex to the word theatre. As several other hands followed, Mr. Marlowe pointed his pipe at Lucilla. "And what did you see?"

She tried desperately to think back over the past season of theatre-going, but amnesia blotted out all but one name. She had blurt it out: "Little Red Riding Hood."

There were snickers. Mr. Marlowe looked annoyed. "I meant current productions, class. This lady evidently didn't quite understand the question."

A steam of humiliation bathed her body. She wanted to explain but couldn't; nerve herself to speak up. The pipe pointed again. "You—Mrs. ——"

"Mrs. Cleery." She rose, a third-grade pupil about to recite. It belong to the White Plains matinee-of-the - month club."

"Very good," the instructor cut in. He ignored the other hands. "I'm glad to see so many of you are theatre lovers, because it happen to be in the theatre myself, as a director-lecturer."

Lucilla was so intrigued by his statement that she stopped brooding; her mind slipped into a fantasy in which Mr. Marlowe apologized for the misunderstanding over Little Red Riding Hood," and congratulated her on Hoopy's taste. "Would you bring your daughter to see a rehearsal of mine? I think she'd enjoy it, and I'd love to get your opinion on a scene that. . ."

Mrs. Colps turning a page of her notebook, accidentally dislodged the sleeping Paris, who jerked sideways. Paris opened her eyes and muttered, "I musta dozed off." She yawned. Mr. Marlowe, who had finished a sentence, broke off, frowning. His lean cheeks loosened into petulant creases, as he observed her. "How do you feel about art Miss Green?"

"Who me?" Paris said. She set her tongue around her ripe red lips, indicating thought. "Art's okay," she admitted handsome-ly.

Mrs. Colps, with unexpected bravery raised her hand. "What's some of the movies you recommend for the brain?"

Mr. Marlowe smiled. "Naturally I prefer the French and Italian pictures, for their realism, but it so happens that I actually have recently returned from a stint in Hollywood."

This announcement met with a buzz of excitement. There were bold cries of "what movie were you in?"

Mr. Marlowe's raised pipe playfully requested silence. "Please ladies, I was involved in one of those historical fancy-dress films I'd rather not talk about." His deprecating manner implied he'd directed and starred, under protest. "Besides, we aren't here to learn about me."

Mr. Marlowe went on to speak glibly of a three-dimensional camera technique. "By the way, how many of you enjoy television?"

Stripped-Down Economics Bill Passed by Representatives

Washington, July 21 — (AP) — A stripped-down economic controls bill, minus most of the added features President Truman wanted, was passed by the House of Representatives early today.

The bill, extending wage, price and other controls for one year, now goes to a Senate-House Committee to iron out differences between it and an eight-month extension voted by the Senate. On the whole, the two differed but little on several major points; none on a few.

As the House bill finally emerged, it was a series of amendments which appeared to satisfy neither Democrats nor Republicans.

Economic stabilizer Eric Johnston said the bill does not give consumers "the break they deserved."

In the gruelling 14-hour windup session ending early this morning, Democratic leaders were able to snatch at least partial victory out of a fight studded with defeats over the last two weeks.

They knocked out an amendment freezing price and wage ceilings for 120 days at July 1 levels.

They succeeded in reversing a previously-adopted requirement that price ceilings on farm and manufactured goods must reflect not less than a "reasonable profit."

Administration forces also managed to reverse an earlier House action which assured meat packers and processors a profit on every animal processed.

And they salvaged the recent 10-per-cent. cutback on live beef prices, though the House refused to grant the additional nine per cent. asked by Agriculture Secretary Michael V. Dissle.

On several other major issues, the administration suffered stinging defeats.

Among other things, the House torpedoed Truman's repeated plans for livestock slaughtering quotas; denied him authority to acquire and operate defence plants or create new government corporations; refused him powers to license factories or regulate commodity speculation; banned the import of foreign fats and oils for two years; refused to consider farm subsidies, and slapped down a request for a new formula for figuring farm parity.

As finally written, the House bill eases credit controls over installment buying of automobiles, household appliances and furniture, and raises rent ceilings 20 per cent above the figure of 1947.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 21. (CP)—Syn-opsis—Cloudy skies and showers have occurred over most parts of Ontario this morning into central portions of the province due to an active disturbance near Lake Superior. Thunderstorms were frequent and sudden severe overnight in the north-central United States where winds as high as 100 miles per hour were reported.

Cooler air moving eastward behind this disturbance will spread into Ontario tonight and Sunday, but southern sections of the province with first experience a brief spell of warmer, more humid weather as well as scattered thunderstorms.

CEASE-FIRE TALKS RECESSED UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Much Speculation Over Red Reason for Delay

Munsan, Korea, July 21 — (AP) — Korean cease-fire talks at Kaesong were recessed today until July 25 at red request.

The communists said they wanted the recess "to enable both sides to study the proposals thus far presented."

After today's meeting, Vice Admiral Charles Turner Joy, United Nations negotiator, flew to Tokyo to confer with United Nations Supreme Commander Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway.

Reporters there asked him if things were going all right and he replied: "I guess so." He had no further comment.

Joy was accompanied by Maj.-Gen. L. C. Craigie and Rear Admiral Arleigh Burke, two other members of the Allied five-man negotiating team.

The delegates will return to the Allied peace camp here Monday. Chairman of the team is

United Nations headquarters in Tokyo said in a statement the U. N. command agreed to the temporary halt in the talks "although it sees no need for such a recess in view of the agreement reached that the point [it considers necessary for, an agenda."

A question not immediately answered was: Did that mean that not many points had been agreed upon?

Or did it mean that negotiations had been progressing so smoothly and agreeably that the United Nations delegates saw no reason for any backward looking?

At Eighth Army headquarters, Associated Press correspondent Wes Gallagher said there was speculation that communists needed time to receive further instructions from Moscow. The U. N. delegation's adamant stand against withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

Real Issue Disclosed

Today, for the first time, the United Nations command disclosed publicly that the "basic" issue between the two delegations was the communist demand for withdrawal of foreign troops as a condition to a cease-fire.

Robert Barnes, Allied spokesman at the Allied peace camp here, said Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior U. N. delegate, would fly to Tokyo to confer with Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, Supreme United Nations Commander.

Joy hopes for a quick continuation of the talks.

An official army statement said: "The senior Allied delegate has accurately requested that communications between the two delegations be maintained. He expects to initiate a meeting at an earlier date than July 25, if at all possible.

WORKMAN FALLS DEAD

Record Cargo Carried by Lake Freighter

Port McNicoll, Ont., July 21, (CP)—The S.S. Scott Misener, latest new flagship of Canada Steamships, brought a record wheat cargo to this Georgian Bay port yesterday.

The new queen of Canadian lake freighters started unloading her 650,613-bushel load within two minutes of arrival. Canadian Pacific Railway officials said it would take 360 freight cars—nine 40-car trains—to carry the cargo to Montreal for overseas shipment.

Captain James S. Walton, the vessel's master, reported it was the third grain cargo for the vessel which started its lake operations only recently. Each set a record and the third was the largest by 16,500 bushels. At an average of 17 bushels to the acre, the load represented the product of 38,271 acres of prairie farmland.

Dog Heroine Recaptured in Montreal

Montreal, July 21 (CP) — Perhaps the Yugoslav dog-heroine who helped her master and family escape from the communists, was recaptured Friday. After a 12-day search, Robert Gauthier of Montreal, found her sleeping in his back yard.

Perra escaped July 9 following her arrival by plane from Europe. Her master, Josef Sillh, now is en route to Canada with his family as an immigrant. The dog was sent ahead in a crate.

Retired Railway Engineer Noted Student of Western Canadian History

Edmonton, July 21 — (CP) — There are two sides to the life of Frank Gilbert Roe,

On the one hand he is a retired railway engineer, on the other a scholar recognized by historical societies in Canada and the U.S. as an expert on historical research.

Though he stopped formal schooling at the age of 11, his knowledge of western Canadian history is so great that the University of Alberta will award him with an honorary Degree of Doctor of Laws this fall.

Mr. Roe came to Alberta in 1894 with parents from Sheffield England, where he was born more than 70 years ago.

He farmed until 1909 when he joined the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway at Edmonton as a coal man and engineer wiper. In 1918 he was promoted to engineer.

In his spare time, and since his retirement to Victoria in 1943, he studied history.

A review of his book on North American Buffalo soon, to be published by the University of Alberta Press, says he has played an enthusiasm and spirit for scholarly research rarely found outside professional scientific circles."

His book is a 350 page historic and scientific volume on Buffalo which took 15 years of work.

Mr. Roe is also a Canadian research fave appeared since 1934 in such scholarly publications as the Canadian Historical Review, transactions of the Royal Society of Canada and reports of the Canadian Historical Association and Antiquity.

He is one of five Canadians at a cultural conference, sponsored by the Rockefeller Foundation at Lincoln, Nebraska, in 1942, studying the history of the northwestern plans of the U.S. and Canada.

He was a member of the Lexington group on railway historical research, a member of the English Place Name Society and a Fellow of the American Geographical Society of New York.

Strife Expected

Abdullah's Eldest Son Furious Over Naming of Younger Brother as Regent of Jordan

Cairo, July 21—(AP)—Prince Talal, the anti-British eldest son of murdered King Abdullah of Jordan, was reported furious today because his younger brother, Prince Naif has been named regent, and thus the apparent heir to Jordan's throne.

The Egyptian news magazine Akhbar El Yom, reporting this in a dispatch from Geneva, predicted Talal would make a surprise visit to Cairo. If he does so, a dynastic struggle might ensue which could plunge the whole middle east into flames.

The magazine declared, however, that Talal, 40, would not succeed to the throne because of his nervous state, "even though members of his entourage were addressing him as "His Majesty, The King."

Only six weeks ago, the Israeli press declared Prince Talal had been taken to a Swiss sanitarium after shooting Brig. John Glubb Pasha, British-born commander of the crack Arab Legion, pro-British in Amman denied the attack. After Abdullah's assassination in Jerusalem yesterday, it was announced that Talal had left Beirut for a sanitarium in Switzerland.)

Renewal of War Feasible

Another possibility in the explosive middle east was a renewal of the Palestine war. And to the north, Russia watched the whole scene with great interest.

The Jordan legation here announced that it had been "officially forbidden" for newspaper correspondents to go to Jordan, which always has had one of the tightest censorships in the middle east.

Reports reaching Cairo from Jordan's capital of Amman have attributed King Abdullah's a follower of the exiled Mufti of Jerusalem, Arab Legion informants said the mufti, Haj Amin El Husseini, was in Cairo, but reporters were unable to find him for comment.

The tiny, 59-year-old Abdullah was shot by an Arab yesterday noon as he entered the Mosque of Omar in the Arab-held old city here to pray at the tomb of his father. The mosque marks the spot from which the prophet Mohammed is said to have ascended to heaven.

An official announcement identified the assassin, who was shot down immediately by the king's bodyguards, as a 21-year-old Jerusalem Moslem tailor named Mustapha Shukry Ashsho. The Arab News Agency said he was a member of the sabotage squad of an underground terrorist group called the "Sacred Struggle Organization."

Valued Assistance

Abdullah, staunch friend of Britain, was counted on by the west to maintain some semblance of order in the middle east. Britain and the United States also hoped, through him, to obtain a peace pact between the Arab-Jewish quarrel over Palestine.

The murdered king's personality was his own undoing, said Jordan, a strong power among Arab countries, even though his small country was so poor it depended on British subsidiaries to keep afloat.

The British-run legion apparently had no trouble with Transjordan under control for the present.

A tug of war between British and anti-British influences appears imminent, however, over succession to the crown.

Crown Prince Talal, 40, Abdullah's eldest son, is in Switzerland where he went to vacation after a nervous breakdown. Arab sources describe the crown prince as strongly anti-British. He has been replaced temporarily in the line of succession because of his ailment.

Group of British M.P.'s Approves New Army Rifle

London, July 21 (CP)—A group of Conservative and Socialist members of parliament yesterday approved a new small-automatic, self-loading rifle the war department proposes to adopt for the British army.

The much-discussed rifle which will be known as the Enfield L2 or Enfield as standard equipment for the British army, passed the test in demonstration arranged by Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell.

The demonstration was staged to show the comparative merits of the new rifle and the old Garand semi-automatic, used by United States forces and adopted by Canada earlier in the year. Several of the members fired the rifle themselves.

Capt. R. E. D. Ryder, Conservative member for Hexham, and Mr. Morden, who won the Victoria Cross in the Zeebrugge Raid, 1918, described the 280 rifle as "an excellent weapon."

The rifle is only revolutionary in design but was lighter and with a less pronounced kick than the old .300 rifle which has been the British army's standard bore since 1910.

"The American rifle with its heavier bullet has greater penetration but its weight more than the .280. If I was buying a rifle for myself I would choose the new one," Capt. Ryder said.

The two rifles are briefly to be the subject of ministerial talks between Britain, the United States and Canada in an effort to reach an agreement on standardization.

Critics of the plan to re-equip the British forces argue that the ammunition will be used primarily for a major change which would make the British standard weapons of friendly countries.

They add that while some United States officials concede advantages of the new weapon they say the southwestern Pacific would be well to move cautiously and consider the change-over when other changes in armaments are less pressing.

HONEYMOONERS GIGGLE

Brantford, July 21 — (CP) — An Ontario Highways Department survey in southwestern Ontario has come up with a mixed bag after checking more than 200,000 automobiles. Amongst their findings: heaviest traffic is around London; 99 per cent of bus drivers are co-operative, only one driver each day was rude, honeymoon couples always giggle when questioned.

Malicious Spite Blamed for Cattle Poisoning

Wiarton, Ont., July 21—(CP)—Seven head of cattle have died on a farm near here in the last few days, leaving one of what police call "deliberate poisoning."

Police say they believe it is a case of malicious spite against David Ottewell, who lost 18 of his 23 cattle and six calves poisoned, seven dying.

Police believe the poison to be some kind of commercial pesticide, but they are unable to find the exact brand.

The loss to Ottewell, a long time farmer at Wiarton, about 20 miles west of Owen Sound, has been estimated at about $3,000. Eleven head still are ill from the poison.

The first three cattle were found dead from poisoning in a field by Ottewell. Following day a paper bag containing the poison was found on the 53-year-old farmers lawn.

Ottewell watched the seventh cow die Thursday, but despite efforts to stimulate administered by veterinarian Dr. E. H. Hopkins of Wiarton, hope is held for the remaining cattle.

Poisoned cattle are not allowed to be sold for butchering, although some can be used by fertilizer manufacturers. Most of Ottewell's loss, however, have been sold or burned.

So far, none of the farmer's neighbors' cattle are known to have died.

The poison first causes the animal to lose control of itself and act drunk. It then wastes away in prolonged agony.

The criminal investigation branch of Ontario Provincial Police is investigating the wholesale slaughter, but chemical analysis has been unsuccessful in identifying the poison.

MOOT GOOSE BAY AS BIG PART AIRFIELD NETWORK

Chain of Airpower Around Soviet Russia

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 21—(CP)—Canada's big northern airport at Goose Bay, Labrador, is expected to play a part in United States plans to throw up a global ring of airfields around Soviet Russia.

The word here is that the U. S. is going to pour men and money into Goose Bay to enlarge the facilities and "better fit into a chain of airpower ranging from Greenland to the Middle east." The expansion is believed part of the proposed $5,767,000,000 military expenditure program now before congress.

The airport, built during the Second World War, will continue under R. C. A. F. command but the American establishment there is expected to be increased.

The development would tie in with the construction by the U. S. airfields in Greenland along the top of the world bomber routes from — and to — Britain. Goose Bay would be a stepping stone to Europe.

Canada herself is skipping the strategic bombing field in peacetime, leaving it to the air forces and concentrating on fighter squadrons.

The U. S. has its own airfields in Newfoundland but they are in the Gander area, which was built by the U. S. in 1941 at the time of the Atlantic battle — bases deal between Washington and London.

Radar Stations

Another—and more expensive —Canadian development expected is the construction, subject to approval of the military construction program is a number of radar stations in the Arctic north of this country. The radar program will cost more than $100,000,000 and buttress those stations Canada is building herself.

The biggest air airport is used by Canada for various purposes. It is an alternative landing field for commercial airliners when they can't land at Gander, in Newfoundland, and is a big eastern transport flying and the pivot of many a northland search.

Hold Married Man On Murder Charge

Champaign, Ill. July 21—(AP) —A 34-year-old married man was held in the slaying of a girl he was to be charged with murder in the eye-stabbing of Janet Clark, 17, a pretty high school girl.

Assistant state's attorney Frank Middleton said the murder charge would be filed today against Pete Parmer, a friend of the Clark family.

Parmer was questioned by police for several hours yesterday before he broke down with a confession, Middleton said. He said he knew nothing of the matter except that he was unable to keep a secret.

Parmer was questioned over the brutally-beaten, stabbed and nude body of the high school senior.

Record of Oatis' Trial, Conviction Shows no Evidence of Espionage

Washington, July 21—(AP)— The full record of the trial and conviction of Associated Press correspondent William N. Oatis in communist Czechoslovakia has been released by the state department from American Ambassador Ellis O. Briggs in Prague.

Department officials said today it showed no evidence of what any government outside the iron curtain would consider espionage. Oatis who was arrested April 22, was sentenced July 4 to 10 years imprisonment on a charge of spying.

The Oatis case is unique among the 11 Americans held by communist countries, department experts said, because the record shows clearly that the defendant was judged guilty of doing well the job which he had been employed by his boss, the AP, to do.

Throughout the transcript of the testimony the communist prosecutor treats routine news inquiries from Associated Press offices in New York and London as "instructions" for espionage. Oatis is pictured as the "head" of an espionage network. His news reports, though published for the world to read, are referred to as if they were secret dispatches to a hostile government.

Officials here said much of the questioning at the trial was designed to show that Oatis was guilty of espionage simply because he sought to dig out information which the Czech government wanted withheld.

After being in jail two months and denied counsel, Oatis "confessed" to espionage and, more generally, to activities hostile to the Czech state.

However, on the second day of his trial, in a voluntary statement couched in the terms familiar to communist court procedure, he made clear in the view of officials here that he was not actually confessing to was 'the normal, industrious activity of a reporter.'

Oatis pleaded to the charges to do.

Britain Impounds Visa of Scientist Bound for Russia

Foreign Office Official Fired in Security Moves

London, July 21—(CP)— Britain's foreign office today fired one of its officials after requesting that he turn in his passport and simultaneously impounded the passport of a London University atomic scientist, bound for a good-will trip to Russia.

The Foreign Office said neither case is connected with the disappearance last month of two other foreign office officials, Guy Burgess and Donald Maclean.

The scientist, London University's Professor E. H. Burhop, cancelled an air trip to Russia with members of a British goodwill delegation half an hour before the plane was to leave, it was reported.

The suspended foreign official was not named, but it was reported his passport had not been cancelled, but returned to the author.

A foreign office spokesman said the two men were on a list of 13 persons forbidden by the government to leave the country. The list was issued to all air and sea ports with instructions to detain any persons on it if they should try to leave.

Burhop was to have accompanied a party of 20, visiting Russia under the British-Soviet friendship society, a communist-front organization.

Burhop and other 19 members left London airport as scheduled.

Possesses Scientific Lore

William Ridsdale, foreign news department chief, said the men in question "are not the Australian-born Burhop from going to Moscow and that he was in possession of scientific knowledge.

Burhop worked on atomic bomb projects in the United States during the Second World War. He is a member of the British Association of Scientific Workers and a leading member of its Atomic Sciences Committee.

At a farewell dinner last night, Burhop said he was looking forward to meeting Soviet scientists and specialists and of the flood, but precautions were taken against a water shortage and contaminated by the supply from sewer seepage.

The Missouri crest passed into Mississippi, Maj.-Gen. Lewis A. Pick, chief of U.S. army engineers, followed by a billion-dollar flood had cost 41 lives in Kansas and Missouri.

Reported to a Senate sub-committee in Washington after an on-the-spot survey, Pick gave the following estimate of damage covering the area for the period up to last Tuesday.

Two million acres flooded, 1,074,000 in Kansas and 926,000 in Missouri; 18,000 homes damaged, placed, 368,500 in Kansas and 150,000 in Missouri, and bridges swept away in Kansas.

The Missouri smashed nearly all the flood barriers near its mouth, including 12,000 miles and thousands of additional acres in Missouri and Illinois. 60,000 acres already was flooded.

Army engineers still were confident that nearly all of the major dikes on the Mississippi downstream from St. Louis would hold.

It was business as usual in most of the 48 percent of St. Louis establishments.

Travel still was sharply curtailed in Missouri.

Flood Relief Co-ordinator Raymond Moley authorized expenditure of $1,000,000 for the purchase of livestock and feed for stricken farmers. The sum will come from the $25,000,000 in emergency flood relief funds appropriated by Congress.

Dike after Dike Smashed as Flood Crest Moves East

St. Louis, July 21—(AP)—Fed by the devastating flood waters of the Missouri River, the Mississippi is expected to climb late tonight to its highest level at St. Louis in 107 years.

Two predicted crest of 40½ feet at midnight tonight would be just .9 of a foot under the all-time record set in 1844.

The Missouri was swollen to a width of five miles in many places. It smashed one dike after another as the crest moved across the state from Kansas City, in the hardest hit area, to the point where it is emptying its grimy burden into the Mississippi 15 miles north of here.

Most of St. Louis is on high ground but as a result of the flood, but precautions were taken against a water shortage and contamination of the supply from sewer seepage.

Say Welsh Opposes L. C. B. O. Union

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) — A union official Friday night accused Liquor Controller Arthur Welsh of trying to stop union organization of Ontario Liquor Control Board employees.

William Mills, president of the General Truck Drivers' Union (A. F. L.), said in a statement that his union was almost ready to apply for certification when Mr. Welsh told the executive members of the board's Employees' Association that the Association alone would be the bargaining agent for the workers.

In a telephone interview Friday night from his home in Montreal, Mr. Welsh said "I certainly won't deal with the union as long as they have a majority."

FOURTH DIVORCE

Cuernavaca, Mexico, July 21 — (AP) — Dime-store heiress Barbara Hutton has won her Mexican divorce from her fourth husband. Judge Alfonso Roqueni said yesterday he signed the decree July 14 freeing Barbara from Prince Igor Troubetzkoy.

The divorce was granted "nearly five months after the blonde, ailing 38-year-old heiress to the Woolworth fortune first filed her suit here.

Judge Roqdeni disclosed that the Supreme Court of Morelos State, of which Cuernavaca is the capital, overruled the 39-year-old Lithuanian Prince's protest.

Honor System at Hospital Proves Popular With Nurses

Financial problems may cause concern to officials of the Belleville General Hospital "from time to time, but one thing is "paying off" and that is the honor system inaugurated last winter for members of the Student Nurses' Council.

The new system, started last November, gives members of the association "privileges" on daily leave hours. For instance the "specials" (short for probationers) now may remain out until midnight each night. The junior and intermediates have only until one a. m. and senior nurses until two a. m.

Quite a difference from the former system when all nurses regardless of status were required to be in quarters at 10.30 each evening with special "stay-out" privileges granted each week.

Under the old system juniors were given two "11.30" and one "midnights" monthly. Intermediates got three "midnights" and one "11.30" and seniors four "midnights."

Placed on Honor

Under the honor system, each nurse is given a key to the residence door. She knows her hour limits and is placed "on her honor" to be in her quarters before expiration of time deadline. The residence doors close nightly at 12.30.

The nurses sign out and sign in. A number of duty checks quarters after the 10.30 closing time. She knows who is "out" and who is in. Each morning the register is checked for signatures.

Violators of the system are "tried and punished" by a committee of the Student Nurses Council and with the help and assists of the council president, director of nursing, representatives of the various floors. The committee must at all times be composed of a majority number.

Each violation is heard and judged separately. Punishment varies according to the seriousness of the charge and ranges from terms of "sentence duty" to forfeiture of keys for certain period.

Few Violations

But, violations have been very few and since the start of the year eight months the system has been in force. The student nurses are taking it seriously and living up to its requirements. Of course at times there are or will be extenuating circumstances when it is impossible for a nurse to make the hour deadline" and all angles are taken into consideration during the hearings.

"The honor system is working splendidly," director of nursing Dorothy Potts said. "We have had little or no trouble with the students thus far, and we do not expect any. The girls realize what is meant by being placed on their honor and they are doing their best to live up to it."

These comments were echoed by Student Nurses' Council president, Mrs. Keith Mills, and Secretary Mary Bongard. "We feel the system is "paying off" — she said. "The girls appear to be more satisfied and the fact that they can remain out for a longer period does not mean that they do so. The psychological effect has been good and we can say that thus far the system has been a success."

Introduced System

In fact it was Mrs. Mills and Miss Elinor Newman, Reg. N., who inaugurated the idea of the honor system. They introduced the Student Nurses' Associations Convention at Vancouver, B.C., last November and after learned about the system there. Incidentally the Belleville General Hospital is the third such institution in Canada to adopt the system. The other two are located in Toronto and the west.

Suggesting and explaining the system to the director of nursing, it was decided to give it a trial, and it was immediately put into effect.

Another thing which has been inaugurated, and which is proving the instant approval of the student nurses was permission to marry while training.

This, too, has met with success, according to a committee of Mrs. Mills who should know since she is a senior student and a bride of seven months.

Some Married Secretly

"Formerly", she said, "some of the girls were getting married secretly, without the opportunity to have kind of wedding their girl desires. Now, she can go 'all out' for the wedding and when the body is happy. I know I am, with the exception that my husband is stationed in Winnipeg."

To get back to the honor system, up to the present time probationers have been given residence keys immediately upon acceptance as a student. However a point is now under discussion to withhold the keys until the 'proby' has completed six months study and received her cap. This is not being done with a view to deprive the student of her extended daily leave, but rather to allow her to concentrate on studies and other matters pertaining to training.

Number of Unemployed About Same as 1950

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) — As many people may be out of work in Ontario this month as during July, 1950 (50,800), The Ontario Bureau of statistics estimated said Friday. Every other month to date in 1951, unemployment has been lower than during the same months last year.

The bureau, in its July bulletin, blamed this month's rise in the number of work-seekers on recently-imposed controls, restrictions—together with disruption caused by a recent strike—to increased defence production.

TVL Meeting Refuses to Admit Trenton Juniors

FRANKFORD

Frankford—A meeting of the Trent Valley Softball League executive was held in the office of secretary Gene Lohnes on Thursday evening. Teams present were Ferguson, Stirling, Wooler, RCAF, and Frankford were represented.

Campbellford's withdrawal from the TVL was officially accepted. The problem of how to continue the league was discussed at length, with several options put forth. It was finally decided that all Campbellford games would be washed out of the records, and the TVL would continue for the balance of the season as a five-team loop.

An application for admission into the league by Campbellford's Junior team was received from Trenton juniors. This was given careful consideration, but it was decided that it would be rejected for the following reasons: the Trenton juniors play in the city OASA playoffs and this would interfere with the TVL playoffs in other years. Since no team of the TVL is entering the OASA this year, the TVL would have no offs to proceed without interruption. Secondly, the TVL has always encouraged junior ball, and that a five-team circuit would afford more opportunity to complete them.

Thirdly, with only a few more weeks left in the schedule, Trenton juniors would have high hopes to get in three or four games at the most. The teams represented at the meeting felt that they could arrange an exhibition game or two with the juniors, which would benefit both the parties they desire, prior to their entry in the OASA. It was clearly pointed out to the Trenton representative present that no official games would be played by junior team, and that if the TVL clubs would participate, the league would have enough games in exhibition.

With many games rained out recently, a complete new schedule was compiled for the balance of the season, incorporating the postponements.

Frankford and Stirling asked permission to obtain players from Campbellford players lists filled, if they could not field a team. They were granted permission by the other teams, provided their complete league management did not exceed the limit of 15 players. The RCAF stated that four of their players had been posted, and asked permission to bring in two others, names of whom were submitted. This was granted.

It was decided that the end of the schedule, postponements which would have no actual bearing on the league standings would not be played.

Playoffs were discussed, and the following set-up arranged. The pennant-winning team will receive the Belleville trophy, donated by the Cobourg Member of Parliament. The two teams will compete in the playoff series for the Goodfellow Trophy. In series "A", Stirling will meet the east and Trenton will play Frankford, Wooler and the RCAF. In series "A", Stirling will meet the team of the remaining two which finished lowest in the league standings schedule. Series "C" will see the two remaining teams fight it out for the title. Series "A" and "B" will be best of three, with series "C" best of five. Playoffs will begin on August 13th. In all playoff series, the team finishing higher in the schedule will have the first home game, and will get the extra one if necessary.

Should two teams finish tied for a position in the league, a sudden death playoff will result, with the ball park to be decided by the toss of a coin, or by mutual consent.

Two Successful 'Fishermen' Thumb Their Noses at Seasons, Regulations

Wellington, (Staff)—There's a couple of fish-hungry males here that don't give a hoot for the season: thumb noses at regulations; use their backs on conservation officers; don't use tackle and fish when they feel like it, unmolested.

Their favorite fin-food is the ubiquitous shad that swarm along the shores of Lake Ontario during the early summer months.

While villagers bemoan the fact that these zanzlee-like fish clutter up the sandy shorelines; smell to high heaven after a few days sunshine, and are a detriment to bathing, this pair of doughty sportsmen quietly take what they need, eat 'em and go back for more.

Their favorite fishing spot is a small pond at the foot of the Norman Clinton property that borders the lake in the centre of the village. Shad-laden water gushes into the pond "in season" and the fish are to be had for the taking.

Our heroes silently pussyfoot their way to a quiet spot alongside the pond, take up a position and wait until an unwary shad comes within striking distance. Sometimes they sit for an hour at a stretch.

Then they reach in the pond, pick off a fat juicy shad, lug it to their respective homes and enjoy the meal. A few hours later they are back.

It is a common sight during the shad season for Kit and his pal to stroll quietly from their "fishin' hole" to their homes, a fresh shad clutched tightly in their jaws.

Jetliner Crossing Said Seven Hours

London, July 21 — (Reuters)— Britain is building a more powerful Comet jetliner which will be able to fly from London to New York in seven hours, Newfoundland in about seven hours' flying time.

Allowing for a 90-minute halt at Gander, Nfld., it should link London and New York in about 8½ hours.

In big piston-engined aircraft it presently takes some 12 hours or about 16 to 17 hours for the trip.

The more - powerful Comet is designed to be in the air before the end of this year.

The reds last Dec. 29 ordered seizure of all American property in China and all companies had been under strict red control since then, apparently had not been physically taken over until July 18.

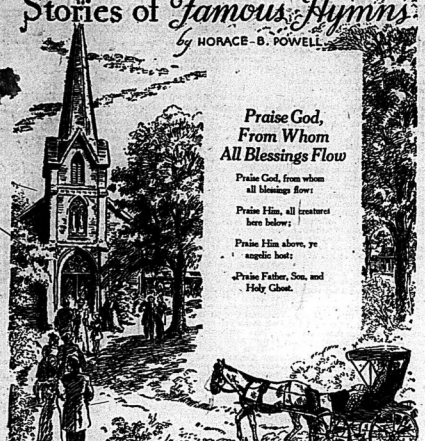
Stories of Famous Hymns

by HORACE B. POWELL



There is a little churchyard at Frome, England and if some day you should visit it be sure to seek out an iron railing on the sod under the east window of the church itself.

That plain iron railing frames the grave of Bishop Thomas Ken, beloved seventeenth century churchman and the man who gave Christendom its great doxology.

Born at Berkhampstead, England in 1637, Bishop Ken was educated at Winchester School and at Oxford University. He wrote three rather famous hymns — a "morning hymn", an "evening hymn" and a "midnight hymn"—all to be used by students of Winchester College for their devotions. The hymns were published in 1695. Oddly enough, he closed each of them with the four lines which today are sung as a doxology by Christians everywhere

There was a foreword in the booklet in which the hymns appeared, the good bishop told the students: "Be sure to sing the morning and evening hymns in your chamber, devoutly remembering that the Psalmist upon happy experience assures you that it is a good thing to tell of the loving-kindness of the Lord early in the morning and of His truth in the night season".

It is said that Bishop Ken used to sing the hymns himself, playing his own accompaniment on a lute, and that when he died in 1711 he was buried at sunrise while his morning hymn was sung at the graveside by friends.

about the only day that this can be conveniently done, and very few seem to be against this, realizing that the situation warrants it. Where the line is one question, but it should not provide too much trouble.

It has been suggested that sporting events should be more grouped, that is, as many as possible should be held on one Sunday, and leave the rest of the Sundays in the month completely free, but whether this will be accepted or not remains to be seen.

This month the sporting season in Switzerland was concluded for the summer and will be resumed in the fall. It will be very interesting to watch the outcome of this controversy and to see what changes, if any, are made in the coming season.

Europe as I See It

By Raymond R. Canon

SUNDAY SPORTS IN SWITZERLAND

(Article 29)

Zug, Switzerland, (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — What before I left Canada the question of Sunday sport had come into prominence by its acceptance in Toronto, Windsor and other smaller centres. Not only was there the problem of whether to have sports at all on Sunday, but also to what degree, and at what time. After having begun to take an interest in this, I had to leave, but was given no chance to let this interest wane, since the Swiss are in the act of thrashing out the same problem, only here it is just the reverse. They have Sunday sports everywhere and are thinking of doing away with them, at least to a certain extent.

At present the sporting situation here is something like this. In the two sports that occupy the most attention on Sunday there is no professionalism. This is true in hockey and football. The coaches receive money but that is all. As a result,all the players have to work full time during the week in order to have a living. In the past almost all the workers have been on a 48 hour week, and only recently this had been partly reduced to 44 hours and in isolated cases to 40 hours.

Rabid Sports Fans

This means that some workers have Saturday afternoon free, but very few the whole day. The Swiss are rabid sport fans, and in order for as many people as possible to see these games, and for the players themselves to have the time, matches have almost always been held on Sunday afternoon or evening.

Since hockey can be played in the evening as well as in the afternoon, the tendency recently has been to hold some of the games during the week. Because the sporting fields here are not equipped with powerful floodlights, this is almost impossible with football. Hence the Sunday games. The teams use Sunday morning for travelling in order to play early in the afternoon.

In addition there has always been a "Sport Toto" for football —that is, one writes down on a slip of paper the probable winners for the next week and has it registered.

If he is right or almost right he receives a sum of money since he had to pay a franc or so to have his choices registered. This is similar to the system being used in England.

Debate on Dates

Now many people feel that the time has come for a revision of the situation. Some feel that there is no need to abolish Sunday sport completely but only to prevent it from becoming more widespread. Others want to forbid it completely, others want things the way they are now, and some just don't care.

One plan that recently been put forward which has backing from numerous organizations, as well as being approved by both the Protestant and Catholic Churches. It has three main points: (1) Until all church services are over, no sporting event to take place. (2) Eventual retention of Sunday morning as sport free. (3) The moving forward of as many events as possible to Saturday afternoon.

In addition General Guisan, who was the Commander-in-Chief of the Swiss army from 1939-1945 and whose name every Swiss knows and respects, has recently expressed his opinion in this matter saying that "in the name of the family and in the interest of the hallowing of the Christian Sunday, as many of the sports as possible now being held on Sunday should be moved forward a day.

No Radical Solution Now

In commenting on the problem the "Ostschweiz," one of the leading newspapers in eastern Switzerland, states, "When the Protestant Church poses the question of whether sports should be held on work-days, it believes that the time has not yet arrived to find a radical solution, for Europe is at present attempting to rebuild and raise production under the threat of another war. Because of this the decision to shorten the hours of working would present many difficulties.

We should like to remind our readers of the present day situation in England; that at present this country has certainly its share of economic difficulties, but nevertheless has managed, from tradition and religious convictions, to keep Sunday free from sport and enjoy its sporting events on Saturday.

Culture Before Business

From all sides have been expressed a desire that our Sabbath should be more and more freed from sport, even at the expense of curtailing business a bit, which certainly would not mean all irretrievable loss of culture.

Of course, when teams have to travel from one end of Switzerland to the other, Sunday is

World Saviour Given Only Lip Service

"A world teacher of the caliber of Jesus, Mohammad or Buddha will arise soon to save mankind from devils incarnate like the atom and hydrogen bombs, say India's holy men." Thus read a dispatch from New Delhi, India, where hundreds of "holy men" were gathered on the banks of the Jumna River for their annual conference.

According to a concensus of the holy men, the "terror and confusion created under the shadow of these powers of destruction are a necessary prelude to the emergence of a divine Saviour in human form."

India is a country of wishful thinking. It is a country that confuses dreams with realities. The coming of another Christ or Mohammed or Buddha may be a wonderful ideal. So is the coming or eternal peace. But present-day conditions are not a "necessary prelude" to the emergence of a new divine Saviour. And even if that new Saviour should emerge — what then?

The Indian holy men and all those everywhere who are awaiting a new Saviour forget that the original Saviour is still very much alive. He is still very much among us. But in the mad rush of events we fail to recognize Him.

Oh, yes, we give Him lip service. We have built thousands of churches to Him. We go to these churches on Sundays and holidays and loudly proclaim our devotion to Him. But lip service is not heart service. Talking about something, and living that something are two different functions. What does Christ mean to you? did Jesus teach and preach? Peace — brotherly love — honesty — decency — humility — simplicity — modesty — abstinence.

All these qualities and many more are put down for us to read and to follow in that eternally valid book, the Bible. Why do we need a new Saviour? What could he do that Christ did not try to do? What new preachments, what better rules for living could a new Saviour give us?

Unfortunately, man is still living by the sword rather than by the word. All honor to General MacArthur and the other great warrior heroes. Millions turned out to do them homage. Statues of fighting men are erected all over the world. How many would turn out to honor that new Saviour if He came to us today?

If He did come, He would be crucified again. Not, perhaps, on the cross with a crown of thorns. But crucified in action and indeed, in negligence of His words and in disobedience of His teachings.

The new Saviour is here now. He has been here for 1951 years. He is the truth — and the truth can never grow old.

WHY WE SAY "LUCKY HORSESHOES"

. . . Some Protection

The idea of the lucky horseshoe must likely sprang from nothing that horses wearing this type of protection were spared from many common foot ailments. From that idea, people began hanging horseshoes over their own doors for similar protection — and even today many people hang lucky horseshoes. President Truman has a horseshoe hanging over his office door.

A FEW SOLID FACTS

Out of the welter of talk that is at present surrounding the establishment of U.S.-air and naval bases in Spain there seems to appear only two solid facts, neither one very new. The first is that the United States has now definitely left her isolationist tendencies behind, and has made up her mind that she will set up an effective network against communism, throughout the world, if need be.

The second piece of information that may be gleaned from the various statements is that dictators obviously are not as bad a risk as they used to be. Furthermore, they might make extremely useful allies at one time or another, and their friendship is an object for cultivation. The first example of that was the wooing of Marshal Tito. This was not done, however, until Tito let it be known that he was ready to be wooed by American finances. His method of so doing was singularly direct — he told the world that he was through with Russia in particular and the brand of communism. The results were amazing, and it seems almost a certainty that Tito can now count on continued support from the west, as long as he retains Titoism. But if he switches back to Stalinism, he can expect the curtain to drop.

Thus Francisco Franco of Spain is not the first dictator to find that the worth of his country to western defence moves is, or may be, more valuable to the west than democratic condemnation of dictators are all bad. Over the objections of Britain and France, the United States is currently negotiating with Spain for the provision of bases, and there seems to be no doubt that the plans will be realized. The second fact is also a fact in parallel with American policies of 1951. If there is a shadow in Washington within a year, it is hard to say whether or not the moves will remain in parallel. But Franco, like Tito, needs American money for highways and railroads and is in bad shape. Not only that, his country's industries are almost archaic, and his armed forces are sadly lacking in training and equipment.

Part of the legitimate fuss that is being raised comes from France, because a 38-year-old agreement between that country and Spain provides that the Spanish government must consult French heads before any bases are established in Spanish Morocco. In addition, there are still many men in both British and French governments who were opposed to Franco during the Spanish Civil War. They have not changed their feelings, and the present negotiations are embarrassing to them, to say the least.

Not the least of Franco's moves is the one which will install a monarch on the throne of Spain. He has stated that the restoration of the monarchy will go hand in hand with the tightening of relations with western democracies. What is meant, in effect, is that the mere re-establishment of a monarchist regime will do a great deal of tightening by itself. The symbolic part of the whole episode, however, remains a step which is not approved by the United States, who is willing to deal with Spain while Franco was still supreme. The dealings now will have a more-healthy aspect for both sides.

STORM PRECAUTIONS

Lightning is not the most important accident killer, but because of its ripping power, its noise and its blinding flash it has held a fascination for many throughout the ages. To understand it better the National Safety Council offers these facts:

Lightning is chiefly a rural problem, as far as individual protection is concerned. Nine-tenths of the fatalities and injuries occur in rural areas or in outlying districts where buildings are isolated and relatively small.

High places are the most dangerous. If you must remain outdoors, seek shelter, find a gully, a cave or a base of a cliff. Second best is a grove of trees if care is taken not to stand under the tallest one. Avoid hilltops, isolated trees and lone buildings.

The ordinary home in a settled district is relatively safe, since there usually are higher structures nearby and the network of plumbing and wiring in a house provides some protection. It is a good idea, however, to stay away from doors and windows in a house, especially if they are connected to the outside by wires.

But do not think that lightning never strikes twice in the same place. Wherever lightning strikes, there is the possibility that it may strike again because certain conditions at that spot may offer a special attraction.

Observing these few simple precautions may enable one to endure a storm with equanimity and observe some of the startling — and interesting — displays of natural pyrotechnics.

TO SPANK OR NOT

Parents who have continued to believe that the most effective cure for insolence and other assorted misdemeanors was a sturdy hand vigorously applied you know where are finally backed up by an expert, comments the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Dr. Robert R. Sears, director of the Laboratory of Human Delevopment at Harvard told a group of Indianapolis school teachers that "some books on child psychology would be more effective if applied to a child's backside."

AT A WEDDING

I said to her father: "You're getting a son."
And he choked just a little to say:
"That's true, but as soon as the rites are begun
I am giving my daughter away."
I went to his father and smiling said:
"You are getting a daughter today."
"That's true," he replied, "but as soon as they're wed
My son she'll be taking away."
"What now you think lost time may double repay,"
I said to the two of them then.
"Should you become grandfathers, that very day You'll all be united again."

"Thanks for the lovely dinner, Wallace, and the show, and the dance — eh, for goodness sake, put your purse back in your pocket."

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE COMFORT OF FRIENDS

If people spent as much time trying to gather to themselves a rich group of friends, as they do in trying to make a fortune, there would be more happy people in the world and far richer ones in their money could create.

But we must first be a friend before we can attract friends to us. I am reminded of this expression by Bacon in his essay on Friendship: "There is no man that imparteth his joys to his friend, but he enjoyeth the more; and no man that imparteth his griefs to his friends, but he grieveth the less."

The comfort of friends is superior to all other considerations in life. Most of us crave honest understanding. We get a measure of this from those who are loyal to us, and whose tastes and ideals meet much of our own. A friend's companionship is a precious thing at any time, but it becomes rich and inspiring when sorrow comes, or difficulties press, and there is need of a counsellor and of one with sympathy and understanding.

The ancients used to say that "a friend is another himself." Not until we fully partake of all that a friend may offer and give will we realize that nothing which ours is none too good for a genuine friend. Such a one is a comfort under any and all circumstances.

The door to the heart of a genuine friend is never barred. Nor is it ever locked. It is open and the door is open and you are taken into the very chamber where your joys, sorrows, problems, and dreams are discussed in the most understanding manner. And then there are those fears, but how quickly a friend shows how to dispense with them at once.

It matters not how great is your material success, if you have not cultivated a few friends there will be timer when you will feel poor indeed. All the honors in the world may be heaped upon you, but if you cannot turn, in times of stress, to the comfort of a friend, you might as well never have received those honors, for they would only spell emptiness.

They are homesick and want to go home.

Fish and Anglers are Plentiful But Canadian Catches Only Fair

(By The Canadian Press)

This is the year for fish but not for fishermen.

On the British Columbia coast, it's the drought—too hot to fish. In the west it's the rain—too wet to fish. In central and maritime Canada fishermen brave the rain and blackflies, mosquitos, tent caterpillars and horseflies.

Reports hooked in a Canadian Press survey today indicated that fishing is the best it has been in years for the determined Canadian angler.

On the west coast, they're talking about fighting 25-pound steelhead trout in the interior and the thrill of hooking a tasty salmon in one of the coast rivers. There's a good supply still swimming around for the catching.

Alberta reports lots of fish but few catches. The difficulty has been that heavy rains have turned roads into quagmires and clouded the water. (Fishermen insist the fish can't see the hook as well.)

Raw Beef Best Bait

The Alberta standby, raw beef, is still the best bait, but only the wealthy are using it this year.

Manitoba has three of the most profitable fishing centres. Paul D. Edwards of Chicago drove home from a fishing trip in a new car, first prize in the annual northern Manitoba trout festival at Fin Flon.

High water last spring produced ideal spawning conditions and paved the way for superb fishing this year. Every district reports excellent hunt of rainbow, muskellunge, pike and pickerel. Live bait is the favorite lure.

Saskatchewan reports the most productive fishing in years. Salmon and trout, the perennial fish of the Maritimes are running full this season. Where fishing is allowed without a licence, is gaining in angler appeal with the game the prize catch. Inland, visitors can catch fish for $5 licence fee.

Hundreds of Lakes

Newfoundland, dotted with hundreds of small lakes and ponds, teems with salmon and trout in numbers sufficient to take the waiting out of fishing. The annual May 24 "trouting day" saw the provincial capital, St. John's, a near ghost town as residents headed for lakes and streams.

Quebec has a whopping fish story to make up for reports of poor salmon fishing and average trout bites.

Straight-faced Indians on Lake Matapedia, where Atlantic salmon they caught a grey trout weighing 158 pounds.

Northern Saskatchewan thinks it has a record with a 54-pound lake trout taken at Lac La Ronge, 190 miles north of Prince Albert. The fish measured 2½ pounds and measured 50 inches.

The lake has become the favorite fishing haunt of Premier Duplessis who come in by plane. Non-resident licences in April brought in $12,000, compared with $8,000 the same month last year.

Similar increases in fishing licences issued were reported from most provinces — showing that more Canadians have been bitten by the fishing fever.

And if you're after more than fish, your bright visit Ontario. One angler threw in his line and pulled out a wallet containing $33.25.

Car 'Mass Production' Much Different From Other Manufacturing Methods

By FORBES RHODE
(Canadian Press Business Editor)

The phrase "mass production" has a different meaning in the making of automobiles than in manufacturing ordinary articles, says Theodore J. Emmert, executive vice-president of Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd.

He explained it as follows in a recent address:

"The manufacturer of radios, sewing machines, or stoves, for example, turns out thousands of items using one set of specifications. And, anyone who buys one of those items, or the goods he has made, is pleased.

"But each of our cars and trucks is built to individual specifications. Each vehicle is assembled after an order has been received, indicating the dealer's particular requirements.

"In our business, volume output results from orders received. When orders are cancelled because of adverse economic conditions, our production and employment are automatically affected.

"We cannot work out a year's average for production to be used as a basis for each month's operations. Nor can we produce cars for dumping at a bargain price each year and then store them for future use. Cars produced must be sold quickly. The bulk of an automobile makes it impossible to maintain large stocks, and the cost of an automobile makes a large inventory impractical."

Nevertheless, Belleville's construction industry is not expected to suffer any drastic attacks abruptly or develop overnight. These nutritional deficiencies are usually the result of gradual in development; there is

OCCIDENTAL BERIBERI

In an earlier spiel about beriberi (Singhalese for weakness), the first of it was published, I expressed the opinion that beriberi in a comparatively moderate form is as widespread among the unsuspected people of this country as the use of white flour and white sugar as staples of everyday diet. American beriberi is generally not recognized or diagnosed as beriberi, for reasons which would take too much space to explain here. Suffice to say that American doctors, until the last year or two, have persisted blindly in the belief that nutritional deficiency disease is out of the question among their well-to-do patients. The truth is that nonpersons of well-to-do Americans and their children are as likely to develop deficiency disease as are the poor or "underprivileged," as the $500 mobs call them.

The occidental, American, chronic adult type of beriberi is insidious in onset—one reason why the nature of the trouble usually escapes recognition. Accidental beriberi hardly ever kills anymore, fortunately, for the reason that famine and semi-starvation can't happen here. The most extreme poverty in this civilization does not restrict anybody to a "handful of rice" or a handful of any other food. Even well-to-do people who get all they want to eat (that is, "refined," refined, denaturized, bleached, devitalized, pasteurized, fortified, canned, embalmed food) inadvertently get some vitamins and minerals by sibilation at least in some instance.

The stereotyped denunciation of the "vitamin fad" by self-constituted spokesmen and acknowledged leaders of the medical profession which virtually made the bill which was passed over my head to silence one—a comical silence, after the bombastic way the big shots were talking about it the day before yesterday. For example, in my files is a newspaper article in which the head drummer for the best advertised "clinic" sounded the key note for all the lesser racketeers, to wit:

"A physician sees a large practice among the better class of people will see only two or three cases a year in which he will suspect that there may be a nutritional deficiency factor"—or words to this effect.

Beriberi, like scurvy, pellagra or rickets, is not a disease that attacks abruptly or develops overnight. These nutritional deficiencies are insidious in their gradual in development; there is no sharp dividing line between good nutrition, health, vite, functional efficiency on the one hand and beriberi, pellagra, scurvy or rickets on the other. It is possible with the old timers in practice is that they lack the newer knowledge of nutrition and the diagnostic acumen to recognize manifestations of accidental beriberi in everyday practice. It is easier to go along with the preconceived notions of patients that the trouble is just fatigue from overwork, gastric colon, neurasthenia, neuritis or whatever the poor geeks like.

Among the psychological manifestations or mild American beriberi I'll mention here only inability to concentrate and realization by the subject that his or her memory is not as good as it was before.

Alertness—that is something to talk about next.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Proof of Paternity

Can blood tests prove that a man is the father of a given child? (H. M. A.)

Answer—But blood tests may give strong evidence that a man is not the child's father.

Was She Stupid?

I confess I was indignant about it when just received a talk for some pamphlet by title. But, thank God, I managed to overcame my stupidity and asked for it. Never had considerable trouble but managed to discover a doctor here who gives injection treatments. Thank you now that I am grateful—I never felt better in my life. (Mrs. M. F. C.)

Answer—Your letter request accompanied with stamped self-addressed envelope any reader may have a copy of the pamphlet. It is Stupid to Suffer From Piles. If you have change date to by one jot or tittle—no pamphlet.

Make a Face and Hear Better

I was about to buy a hearing aid, but found that my job would not permit me to wear one. Sent for your pamphlet on Deafness and Head Noises. Practised the exercises and now I can hear. It is amazing the results I have had. Thanks a million. (F. W. M.)

Answer—Trouble is, most victims of deafness and/or head noises (tinnitus) haven't patience to do the exercises regularly. Incidentally, a number of readers report that the exercises cured them of snoring. For the pamphlet, stamped, self-addressed envelope,

WHENCE TRUE WISDOM?

The wise men who came out of the East were on the strangest mission man ever set out upon. Their friends must have thought them free fools.

First they were following a star, and what a crazy thing that is to do. Almost all men feed that star was leading them to a Babe. Well, if they were going to make that long journey in search of something valuable, why not hold out for something worth while? At that time there were tens of thousands of babies being born every day, just as there are now; and what was one baby more or less? What fools dreamers these men out of the East were.

Yes, but that Babe changed all the calendars in the world. He changed the course of human history. In His person was to be found all that which the wise men had sought for in vain.

What a wisdom it is in the right use of information! It is the ability to use facts. We live in a world which has done more in this decade than any preceding age. But is this a wise age? Are we as wise as were those men from Persia who started out to follow a star and find a Babe?

God has strange ways of not hiding His wisdom and of not revealing it. And we indeed were the men who recognized the hand of God in the heavens and in history.

Lithuanian Refugees Overpower Red Crew

Stockholm, Sweden, July 21—(AP) —Three Lithuanian refugees have arrived in Sweden after overpowering the crew of a small Russian ship at sea.

The Lithuanians told police they rushed up with knives behind the iron curtain and wanted to go to the United States.

They said they overpowered the lone Russian crew members of the trawler Samsug, below decks, took all navigating equipment and ordered those who did lifeboat to. Kalmar, Sweden.

The Russians were released leniently until they were picked up by a Swedish captain and brought to Swedish port.

The Lithuanians are being held by Swedish police at Kalmar pending determination of their status.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

We have been keeping records only a short time, relatively. It is only about a hundred years that we have been keeping records of weather, for instance. The idea that things go in cycles is comparatively new.

About twenty-four hundred years ago, the Greeks began writing down their ideas in what we could call modern form. Prior to them, the Egyptians and Greek Babylonians amassed a literature of record. Beyond that, few records survive in obscure and half-intelligible form. We have a dim picture of what has happened on earth for the past five thousand years.

But what about cycles that occur every twenty thousand years? Or every hundred thousand? And How do we know we are not proceeding at full speed towards the completion of some cycle of which no record exists but which has been handed down by word of mouth?

Scientists dig in fossil beds, and in the sediments of ancient lakes, and peer eternally into the heavens in the hope to guess the past and guess the future. Quite recently, science has come up with a theory that the earth was once as far back in history as has been known to exist. Briefly a year goes by that some new and revolutionary discovery is not made in astronomy, in the study of rocks in the earth for relics of earliest men, or regularly finding fresh evidence that modifies it if it does not discredit what was believed before. Science is not new with science is that it is so switched today with being right, that it forgets how wrong it was the day before yesterday.

However wrong its guess of today may be the day after tomorrow, science is at least busy recording those who did useful thing. The Sumerian cuneiform writing on clay tablets in mud bricks five thousand years ago was being useful, too; though it may, like science, probably no better than Einstein's.

HOLD EIGHT ROBBERY SUSPECTS, FIND ARSENAL OF WEAPONS

Eight men are in the custody of Toronto police who raided apartments and rooming houses and collected, as well as the men, this assortment of loaded revolvers, knives and a rifle. The eight men are held in connection with jewelry store robberies which may total $15,000. Some of the men will face 25 charges in what police describe as the biggest case in years. — Central Press Canadian.

Vast Change in Number and Equipment Of Children's Playgrounds Noted in City

Children's playgrounds in the city have undergone a vast change during the past two years.

Two years ago there were but two playgrounds in the entire city — one each on the East and West hills . . . these expected to fill the needs of all city children.

Today the picture has changed to one boasting of 15 playgrounds — ten junior and five senior — all spotted at convenient locations and under competent supervision.

Two years ago the city was noted for its lack of playground facilities. Today it is one of the most favorably second to none in the province.

The whole idea of increased playground facilities was fostered by a group of local men and women who realized the lack and then putting thought into action pulled up their sleeves and went to work. Such was the birth of the Belleville Recreation Commission which, today, in co-operation with the Belleville Parks Board, is proud of the city's elaborate playground system.

Co-operative Effort

The Recreation Commission pays for the supervision, the supervisors being selected by the Y. M. C. A. while the Parks Board is responsible for maintenance of playgrounds.

Chairman of the commission this year is Al. J. Davis of the Y. M. C. A. with Henry Becker, chairman of the Parks Board, as vice-chairman and Drury Denyes, secretary.

Members of the commission include Bill VanTassel in charge of equipment and grounds; Mrs. David, representative of the Board of Education; Mayor R. P. Potter, council representative; Richard Cowan and Mrs. W. R. H. Gander.

Without funds at the start of its first year of operation the Recreation Commission took up a public subscription, sought donations from the Board of Education and other organizations and was able to provide paid supervision for the playgrounds operated last year. This year two more playgrounds have been added and supervision will cost approximately $4,-500.

City Shares Cost

Cost of supervision this year is provided through the city tax rate. The Parks Board supplies equipment and grounds as it can from its limited budget.

Chairmen and supervisors of the various playgrounds are:— Queen Mary, Fred T. Symons, chairman; F. Bradley, Doris Kerr, Betty Woodley, and Jean Dolg, supervisors.

East Hill: Mrs. F. M. Carscallen, chairman; C. Sloan, Eleanor Sprague, Carol Weston and Jean Finkle, supervisors.

King George: Mrs. W. R. H. Gander, chairman; J. W. Bowen, Helen Weston, Marilyn Andrews and Donna McNish, supervisors.

Brock Street: Wm. Britton, chairman; May Griffiths, supervisor.

Foster: A. Keegan, chairman; Marilyn Cormier, supervisor.

Charles H. Keller, chairman; Joyce Firth, supervisor.

Bayview: Bob Holmes, chairman; Juanita Fox, supervisor.

Churchill: L. Blaker, chairman; Phyllis Angus, supervisor.

C.N.R.: C. Bowler and H. Foote chairmen; Mrs. P. Bennett, and Jean Faulkner, supervisors.

Fireman's Park: Chief Vance, chairman; Vivian Williams, supervisor.

Total registration of children at the 15 playgrounds is roughly 1,500 with an average daily attendance of close to one half of that number. Wet weather has resulted in decreased attendance.

Planned Activities

For the kiddies who attend at the playgrounds there is a planned program of activity. The playgrounds operate Pee Wee, Bantam, Midget and Juvenile softball leagues. Schedules are provided for boys and girls teams.

Other activities include swimming at the Y.M.C.A., volley ball, soccer, horseshoes, crafts, golfing and tennis.

Considerable interest has been shown in crafts, but at some of the playgrounds activities have been hampered because of lack of supplies. But supervisors are doing a bang up job under the circumstances. Supervisors at the various playgrounds are under the direction of James Musgrove, chief supervisor.

Junior playgrounds keep the kiddies interested with the usual round of plasticine, coloring and other like activities. Equipment includes swings, slides and sandboxes.

A tour of all the city playgrounds yesterday showed that neighborhood kiddies are taking good advantage of the new playground facilities and in the words of a committee member, "the kiddies are being kept off the street."

Many Improvements Noted

Foster Ward playground has been enlarged, extra land having been made available by Mr. Harry Smith. At Bayview Heights the kiddies have an ideal spot with a bay breeze always blowing across the playground. This is a junior playground of ample size and has been completely fenced.

The East Hill playground is also taking on greater dimensions and the low area to the north is being gradually filled, the ditch has been tiled and the whole new area will eventually be seeded. This is possibly one of the most popular playgrounds of the entire system and always has a good attendance.

Much interest was noticed at some of the playgrounds, noticeably at Charles Street, at Churchill and at Queen Mary and C.N.R. grounds. Here, however, canopy topped play tables are planned to provide shade from the summer sun.

The new Firemen's Park playground opened this year, has provided an especially popular spot for the kiddies in the Moira Street district and the junior playground is always crowded with children. The softball diamond is also put to good use with many of the playgrounds teams using this diamond. Supervision is given by firemen.

Lots of Room, Shade

At the West Hill playgrounds there is ample room for the kiddies to romp and play and at the same time there is adequate shade. There is a softball diamond on these grounds, while at the King George school grounds, which also offers senior and junior playground facilities, there is likewise a softball diamond. A backstop is now being erected here.

One of the smallest playgrounds is that on Brock Street. These grounds were enlarged this year and new swings and other equipment added.

Another spot which this year is proving popular is Zwick's Island. Through the joint forces of the Parks Board and the local Optimists' Club, the Island has been cleaned up; the trees trimmed and tables and sandboxes provided. A softball diamond is being prepared and a canteen is planned. Donations are sought to assist in equipping this park have been donated from Phil Till and Wes Evans.

This is proving an ideal picnic spot and last Sunday there was a large crowd of picnickers on hand. As H. N. Becker, Parks Board chairman said, "It's the coolest spot in town."

In fact the local Parks Board extends a cordial welcome to rural residents as well as to city dwellers to take advantage of the city's parks for picnics and other outings.

"That is what they are for," it was pointed out.

Iceland bases would be needed critically by the United States for both defensive and offensive warfare.

Greenland is at approximately the half-way point on the 4,000 mile air route between Murmansk area of Russia and New York City. Similarly, almost any of the great port or industrial cities of the United States would be at the southern terminus of such a bomber route.

Because the Greenland and Iceland areas also could be of such value to red planes, it was important that they neither / be able to seize nor set up at remote points any airfields in the area. In "denying" use of the area to Soviet airmen a continued surveillance must be maintained. With basey back in use, U.S. planes can patrol the ice caps and hinterlands of Greenland and Iceland to guard against aerial infiltrations.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THE UNEARNED EPIC

My old pal Elmore Philpott had a snappy little essay the other day about "Fatigue" and "Peace" and I just had to sit right down and write him a note of congratulation.

It is nice to have friends like this who have made their mark and I have a friend who made a hole in one. I have another who built a four-masted schooner model inside a bottle. Now I have a friend who has read "War and Peace." There's no telling what my friends are liable to do.

I guess I am particularly impressed by Elmore because I have just been having some holidays. Whenever I have holidays I make a running broad jump at "War and Peace." With two whole weeks of empty time stretching ahead I always get the feeling that at least I'll get my teeth into "War and Peace" and maybe worry it a little. Somehow it never works.

For one thing, "War and Peace" is a mighty hard book to handle in its hammock, the Modern Library edition of the novel. It is 1146 pages and would go about a mile and a half. Also this edition on some fish scales at the summer camp where I've been and it has a fish-smell about the scale have worn off I can tell you that "War and Peace" is better than a full-grown small-bass.

Well, now, you get to holding that in a hammock, particularly if you are using one hand to hold a glass of lemonade or get into something, and the exertion is something fierce. Pretty soon you are going to feel "War and Peace" slipping from your lifeless fingers and the next thing you know ful you are liable to doze off from sheer fatigue.

Because of this plain fact of gross tonnage I get no further than page four and, reluctantly, begin to turn to some Agatha Christie pocket books as a kind of therapy for my aching arm.

It is a minor accomplishment, I know, but I claim to have read the first four pages of "War and Peace" more times than any living man.

On The Road

I have been trying to read "War and Peace", man and boy, for almost 20 years. The first copy I had was given to me by my father for a birthday present. On the flyleaf he had written "This is the greatest of them all." Some years later, I learned that my father had once got as far as Page Eight.

This edition weighed at least three pounds (or as much as two small-mouth bass) and I carried it with me when I went into the Army.

I expected to be in the Army four or five years, and I thought surely that would be long enough to get into the book.

As it turned out, I had to sell the volume in a moment of financial stringency to a second hand dealer in Charing Cross Road gave me five shillings for it. Right away I was in the clear with the world and I made a few bob at the dog races with the first thing I did was buy the newer, lighter edition.

Always when I am going on a trip and looking for something to read, I bring down "War and Peace" from the shelf and put it in my bag.

There comes a time in every man's life when conditions seem just right. I settle down, heave Tolstoy's giant epic into my lap and begin to read:

"Well, prince, Genoa and Lucca are now no more than private estates of the Bonaparte family."

Girl Collapses Day After Hypnotism Act

Gall, July 21 (CP) — Madeline Jansen, 17, hypnotized for 15 minutes at a theatre Thursday night, collapsed in a trance Friday and was taken to hospital where what a doctor described as "simply a case of hysteria."

The girl was at work in a shoe factory when she went into the trance. She became unconscious after a fellow worker waved his hands in front of her face while she was describing her experiences under hypnotism to friends at the plant.

At the hospital she became hysterical and threw herself about, but later was revived and appeared normal.

At the theatre, she was put into a trance by a professional hypnotist, known as Dr. Zonk, who has been touring Ontario. Several women were reported to have become ill after his engagement in St. Catharines.

Crime Roundup Gives Police Busy Friday

Toronto, July 21 — (CP) — A round-up of nine men accused of a series of large robberies, the arrest of two thugs who stole $6,600 and a hunt for two others who attempted to snatch a payroll gave Toronto police a busy Friday.

In a full-scale roundup, said to be the biggest in years, police netted nine youths and men believed responsible for a series of robberies in Toronto recently.

Police said some of the gang will face as many as 25 charges. Their loot from a series of jewelry store robberies totalled more than $125,000. Most of it is still unrecovered.

Later, five carloads of officers converged on a park and flushed out two Windsor men minutes after the assistant manager of the National Basket Company was slugged and robbed of $6,600.

Police are still looking for two thugs who tried to snatch a $1,100 payroll from the manager of the Pengelly Iron Works.

One of the men taken in the roundup was identified as Tony Ian, 28, still carrying a bullet in his lung from a shooting altercation with his father in North Bay June 24.

Iata was charged with having an unregistered revolver and with receiving stolen goods. Charges laid against the other eight ranged from shoplreaking to armed robbery.

PRIMITIVE SPORT

Wrestling is the most universal and primitive of all sports.

Air Force Headquarters today announced the transfer of Wing Commander A. T. Mason, M.B.E., 39, of Brantford, Ont., and Aylmer, P.Q., to Trenton, Ont., where he will be Chief Administrative Officer. W/C Mason has been with the Directorate of Personnel Administration at Air Force Headquarters since September 1948.

CRISIS IN ZOO

London, July 21 (Reuters) — London zoo, stricken with elephant troubles averted its third major crisis in 10 days today by luring the order "no buns for Dickal." Dickal, 10-foot-tall African elephant, is ill with stomach trouble. The public were allowed to see but not feed her. Top dope ago Rajah, an elephant from Ceylon, was shot, after injuring a keeper. Last Tuesday Rajah's mate Ranee was found dead from a stomach ailment.

U.S. Starts Rebuilding Important 2nd War Air Fields in Greenland

Washington, July 20 (AP) — American military and civilian workers have started rebuilding some vitally-important Second World War air fields in Greenland, along the front-line-world bomber routes from Russia.

Equipment, supplies and construction workers started moving to Greenland several weeks ago, it was learned today.

Actual construction work at the Greenland bases apparently is being carried on by private firms under contracts with the army engineers and air force.

The 6,500-foot runway at Narsarssuak and the smaller strips at three other bases used by the U.S. during the Second World War would be too short for modern jet fighter or bomber aircraft or for B-36 bombers taking off with full load of fuel and bombs. The same situation would prevail in Iceland, where the U.S. recently began re-use of some wartime bases.

American return to Greenland and Iceland bases was made possible by the conclusion earlier this year of long negotiations with governments of Denmark, which owns Greenland, and of Iceland.

WEDDINGS

GLOVER—MASTERSON

St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, was the scene of a wedding of local interest, when Helen Joyce Masterson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Masterson, of Campbellford, became the bride of Robert Arthur Gordon Glover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Glover, of Warkworth. Rev. J. C. Moloney officiated at the double-ring ceremony. David Masterson, brother of the bride, served the Mass. The church was beautifully decorated with pink carnations, blue delphiniums, snapdragons, Canterbury bells, and the bride's home with peonies, Sweet William and roses.

Miss Marie Crosson played the wedding music, and the soloist, Miss Barbara Long, sang "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," and "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She was gowned in white bridal satin, the train and full-length veil with orange blossom trimmings and carried a cascade of red roses.

Miss Marie Masterson of Belleville, was the maid of honor, and was gowned in orchid nylon net over taffeta with matching picture hat and mitts, and carried yellow gladioli surrounded by green fern. Miss Barbara Long, of Warkworth, as bridesmaid, was attired in nile green nylon net over taffeta with matching picture hat and mittens, and carried mauve gladioli surrounded by yellow mallne. Little Miss Anne Masterson, sister of the bride, as flower girl, was also gowned in white brocaded organdy over pink taffeta with matching headdress and mittens, and carried basket of Sweetheart roses and daisies.

Mr. James Glover of Warkworth, attended his brother. Ushers were Messrs. Harold Redden, Warkworth; Leo Finnegan, Belleville; Jack Masterson, Campbellford.

Later a reception was held at Kay's dining room, at which the bride's mother received in a gown of montreaux blue with lace pep-

Helen B. Anderson One of Ontario's Foremost Poets Finds Inspiration In Natural Surroundings of Home

Wellington (Staff) —A gentle little lady, slight to the point of frailness stood in the kitchen of her home on an elm-shaded street of this quiet lakeshore village.

Columnist, poetess, authoress, Helen B. Anderson, to use her pen name, graciously smiled as a photographer knocked for the third time on a half-open screen door.

"I'm sorry" she said, "I did not hear you. I was preparing vegetables for luncheon."

Waving aside with a warm welcoming smile the reporter's apology for the untimeliness of the hour (it was 10.30 in the morning) Mrs. Anderson invited at some length on a life of letters well and truly lived, but which unfortunately omitted the subject verged on the personal.

While she conversed freely on rural life, her own life her poems, columns and fiction, Mrs. Anderson claimed the feminine prerogative and smilingly declined to discuss her age.

Fine Memory

With a whimsical gleam in her eyes that at times sparkled with merriment and at others seemed to become the delved depths of the well-stocked store of a remarkably retentive memory, this poetess laureate of Prince Edward County gently shook her head on the subject of age was talked.

However, from information gleaned during the interview, it is this writer's hazarding guess that Mrs. Anderson is in her early eighties.

Time, though it has taken some physical toll, has not touched the remarkable mind of this silver-haired lady of the "Garden of the County of Ontario."

The poetic gems, which are household treasures in many homes of Canada and the United States flow as freely from her typewriter today as they did thirty years ago. Time has failed to mar the marked facility she has on everyday life, her friends in every walk of rural environments, and her fingers-to-pulse touch with nature.

Prefers Country Life

Born on the farm, Mrs. Anderson is a true daughter of the soil.

She first left her life on a farm of the beauty of rural environment. At no time has she felt the cable tow of the modernistic sophistication, the raucous cacophonies of metropolitan life with rush and bustle and divorce from the sweet fresh air of the quiet countryside.

Even in this quiet village with its population of almost 1,000, she has a touch of clannishness. "I like it here," she smiled, "but I would rather be back again in the quiet solitude of the farm where it is restful and one can think and write without interruption."

Her flair for writing is a natural gift. Her ability, and it is marked, is not something that has been garnished with educational tonics. It is as natural for Helen B. Anderson to write a poem, and as easy, as it is for the layman to write a letter to his family.

Plenty of Material

While in school, she said, she memorized every piece of verse that "reached" her. Later she started to write. It came easy. She had an unlimited supply of material. Nature provided that. In the birds and bees, the golden sunsets, the silvery dawns, the ever-changing nature's handiwork she found her "copy".

Mrs. Anderson does not know how many poems have flowed from her pen. She has had books of her verse published, has contributed to a New York Poetic Anthology and a Canadian Birthday Book. Her verse in rhyme and metre is read by country and district papers as well as those of the metropolitan centres.

But her writing efforts have not put her entirely to the poetic. "Her News and Views" column in the Picton press was and is widely read by all people in the district. She started her first newspaper column years ago in the former Belleville Intelligencer. It was called "Wayside Thoughts" by Aunt Wayfarer." Later she contributed a column to the Picton Gazette called 'Thoughts By the Way."

"Nothing of a particular nature," she said. "I just wrote about things as I saw them."

Born Near Wellington

Born in the Gilead district two miles north of this village Mrs. Anderson is the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Blakely. A sister Miss Jean Blakely, resides here. After attending the rural schools here she graduated from the Picton High School, and deciding to become a school teacher, attended the Ontario Normal School.

She taught for twenty years in various parts of the county including Amellasburg, Victoria, Salem, and in Melville where she remained eight years. Ill health forced her to resign from the school teaching activities and she devoted all her efforts on her writing.

She married William H. Anderson, well - known farmer of Consecon Lake, The late Mr. Anderson passed away in 1932.

With more time on her hands, Mrs. Anderson augmented her poetic and columnar efforts with fiction. She has had several short stories published, all dealing with her favorite theme, nature and the quiet countryside out-doors.

Received Treasured Gift

Her most treasured possession is the King's Jubilee Medal presented to her by Their Majesties the King and Queen in 1935.

"I do not know what I did to deserve the honor," she said. "And I have never found out whether it was because of my writing or teaching."

Mrs. Anderson has saved what she considers the best of her poetic efforts during the past thirty years, and is now preparing publishing them in book form in the near future.

The most alert mind "takes in" practically all that happens in her adopted village that comes within her writing sphere. She never, as she puts it, is "at a loss for words" for events or spot news". She concentrates on her beloved nature for her poetic inspiration, but does not digress a few weeks ago and wrote a clever poem on the village newspaper.

She, naturally, is invited to attend a few of meetings especially those of women's societies, a charming friendly personality has endeared her to residents of this village and she enjoys a well-merited popularity.

Enjoys Good Health

Physically, Mrs. Anderson is enjoying good health. She rises fairly early and tackles herself with some of the household duties.

She seems happy and contented here, surrounded by friends and near her only relative, Miss Blakely. But for all that, it is this writer's impression, that Helen B. Anderson is still true to her "first love," the quiet peaceful solitude of a well-appointed farmhouse with spreading acres, golden with wheat and green with lush pastures that overlook the blue waters of pretty Consecon Lake.

Canadian Schoolgirls Meet The Queen After Hectic Time

London, July 21, (Reuters)—Fifty excited Canadian schoolgirls met Queen Elizabeth at Buckingham Palace Friday after the most hectic bustle of their lives.

The girls, all in their teens, arrived at Liverpool on the Empress of France—Friday morning as guests of Garfield Weston, the Canadian industrialist.

Hustled ashore about 7 a.m., they were just in time to catch a train for London, and arrived about 2 1-4 hours before they were due to go to the Palace. In the interval they had to lunch, wash, change and have their beauty treatment.

All through the rush amid billowing silk dresses and showers of powder the girls' hostess hurried around inspecting fingernails and seeing nylon seams were straight.

There was one last minute hitch as the girls had changed their dresses little black bows over their teenage frocks for necklaces.

Dr. Muriel Rosco, dean of women at the Royal Victoria College, McGill University, ordered "no pearls or bows."

All this time six beauty specialists were making up the girls in six armchairs.

"Just a light, youthful make-up," the specialists explained.

Forget-all of the girls had their first experiment in make-up.

DELICATE HANDLING

marks the new offerings of nylon blouses, now far removed from the original basis shirt type as sleeveless model, with wrist-length cuffs is covered in front with row upon row of nylon frilling, and fastens with tiny gold-and-glitter buttons.

LUCKY WOMEN, whose figures permits them to wear a dress cut on princess lines, will find their favorite in many collections for mid-summer and early fall. Beige linen is used for a handsome dinner dress with a deep border of beige and white straw flowers bordering the wide, open neckline.

WARM WEATHER togs are the ideal choice for all summer, which has not always been the case. A delicate lace print on sheer cotton fabrics makes beautiful and pretty little frock that closes below the waistline with rhinestone buttons. Diagonal hip pockets, wing collar and notched, flaring cuffs on the short sleeves are other details.

A TIGHT FIT marks many of the cau-like hats on display, especially at hat bars. Navy felt is used for a cap done in a series of curved, overlapping, petal-like sections, each edged with navy velvet. The hat is pulled well down on the head, the petals at the side front turning up saucily. The hat gains height through a high, curved petal at the crown tip.

Trained Feet

Ever since the present Governor-General made his first public appearance in Canada, we've been watching, of all things, his feet. Trained soldiers are known for their straight posture and marching ability. But few of them know how to walk without effort. Many a uniformed man freezes in his khaki and stiffens under training. He enters a room with a fast, awkward clump, as if his feet were loaded. This heavy walk characterizes even some of the world's highest ranking military officers.

But when it comes to charm and grace and rhythm of step, it is Field Marshal Alexander who demonstrates the art of knowing what to do with his feet at all times. If you've ever seen Alexander review troops, you will have marvelled at the ease and poise of his stance and his walk. If you watch closely, you'll see that he places one foot directly in front of the other, as a pheasant walks, or a fashion model moves along the runway. His step is smooth, manly, sure.

Yesterday, we found the secret man. I knew he would develop into a great step dancer. He was the brightest pupil I ever had."

Only time we saw the Governor-General on the dance floor was at a Red Cross press ball in the Chateau Laurier in Ottawa three years ago. Nothing was more artistically performed than the waltz with which he and Lady Alexander led off the ball.

That night the Field Marshal partnered with many partners. He did not miss a dance. Featured on the floor show was Gloske, who is a step dancer of such renown from the vice-regal party.

Next time you have a chance to see the Governor-General, keep your eye on his feet. They speak a language all their own.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Everyone is entitled to privacy of correspondence.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I have a wonderful mother, the kind everybody wants. I love her dearly but yet I seem to be always having hurt her.

For example, today she went into one of my drawers and got one of my books. I got mad (I have a terrible temper) and said things I wish now I hadn't. But yet I am too stubborn to say I am sorry.

I think people should ask before they go into someone else's things.

Please, won't you help me overcome this awfulness before it is too late? M. M.

Dear M.M.:

I think with you that people are entitled to their privacy and that no one, not even a mother, should go through their personal belongings and pry into them. It is perfectly understandable that it makes you angry when your mother does something like this.

At the same time, she is your mother and if you try to decide which is more important to you, keeping peace between the two of you or trying to stop this annoying habit of hers, I think you will decide you would rather have peace. After all, one of these days, you're likely to be away from home where no one will be apt to pry into your affairs, so perhaps you can put up with this a little while longer.

I might suggest one thing, however, which seems to me entirely legitimate under the circumstances. That is, that you try to find a hiding place where you can keep the things you don't want anyone else to see. Then if your mother goes through your things, it won't irritate you so much, because she won't come across anything that matters to you.

Says she's a servant in her home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My mother has been sick off and on ever since I can remember, and I have been doing everything in the house since I was eight years old. I have an older sister and a younger one of 13. The older one was taken to live with my aunt at the age of six months and has always had everything she wanted but would never help me. I always was the servant in the home. Now my sister is married and she wants the younger sister to come and live with her.

My father never gives me a cent and never thinks anything I do is right. He is always finding fault, but my mother is just like him. I have stood all this as long as I can. I never can go anywhere or do anything I want to do. Something I have even thought of suicide; other times I think of leaving home and doing on my own. What do you think I should do? I am 18 years old.

A. D.

Dear A.D.:

If you think that your mother and father could manage without you, then it seems to me you would be perfectly justified in going away and finding a job so that you could live a life of your own. I am assuming that you are a girl who would have the good sense to live properly if you were by yourself, and do only the things that are right and wise.

Before you make any decision, however, I suggest that you go either to the Family Service Society in your city, or to the YWCA, or any other organization where you can talk your situation over with someone. It always helps to be able to discuss something like this in person, and it would be wise to get the viewpoint of one experienced in handling family problems to aid you in making plans.

Feminine Fragrance for You

Perfume for a loveller You. This atomizer, plus a gold-plated bottle cap to use when you travel.

By HELEN FOLLETT

MAKE your daily bath a relaxing pleasure instead of a duty, with a fragrant bath sotteneur to fill the room with that so-good-to-smell scent. It will make you feel luxurious and lovely.

Whether you use bath salts, bubbles or oil, you will get the best results if you place them in the dry tub directly under the faucet and turn on the hot water full force. Add cool water until you have a tepid temperature; this is the best method if you would have a ten-minute rest and soaking. You can heat up the water a little when you start loving your svelte shape with a well-soaped brush.

Utterly Feminine

After the bath, give yourself a friction with eau de cologne or a spicy toilet water. It will rub away dead skin scales to which the deposits of perspiration may cling like all get-out. You will have a definite sense of being utterly feminine. Not by like a florettied odor to add to charm and distinction.

Put all your precious scents on your dressing table or in the bathroom cabinet so they will remind you to use them every day. Don't just save them for special gala occasions. Used with an atomizer, they will last a long time. Keep out of sunlight which will cause the alcoholic content to evaporate.

No Nicer Gift

When somebody makes you a gift of a delightful perfume—and what nicer gift can there be—do you have trouble loosening the glass stopper? Don't ask the strong-armed man of the house to remove it. Just tap the underside of the stopper with a glass article, such as another bottle. At the same time, turn the perfume bottle sl owly in your hand so that the stopper will be tapped evenly all around. Lot out it will come easy as pie!

Don't overlook sachets. They are wonderful buys and come in the cutest of all possible forms. Tuck them among your linens, place them in handkerchief and glove boxes. Put little ones in coat pockets. Your friends and acquaintances will be justly conscious of the thoughtful, and delightful fragrance.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

In ancient Egypt laborers were paid in bread and beer.

Both foods still have sound money value. A loaf of bread is still a loaf whether it costs a peso, a shilling or a Confederate dollar.

Where food is scarce people want their bread as plain and wholesome as possible. Hungry workmen don't want to munch on a clover leaf roll.

But where there is an abundance of food, bakers and homemakers can afford to experiment and turn out yeast products with variety and imagination. Not too cloyingly sweet are the cinnamon buns made of a yeast dough and rolled with raisins and sugar.

You can eat them with the main course or serve them as dessert with coffee. Sour cream or sour milk may be used in this recipe. Cream will naturally make a richer bun.

Cream Cinnamon Buns. 12.

1 cake yeast or 1 pkg. dry granular yeast
2 cups sifted all purpose flour
3-4 teaspoon baking soda
3-4 teaspoon salt
1-4 cup sugar
1-4 cup shortening
3-4 cup sour cream
2 tablespoons softened butter or margarine
Cinnamon
2 tablespoons granulated sugar
1-2 cup raisins

Crumble the yeast cake in 1-4 cup lukewarm water or dissolve dry yeast following directions on package. Sift the flour with the baking soda, salt and 1-4 cup of sugar. Cut in the shortening until pieces of shortening are the size of pea beans.

Add sour cream to dissolved yeast. Add liquids to dry ingredients and mix well. A dough is formed that does not stick to the fingers. Work dough lightly to keep it soft. Sprinkle more flour over dough if necessary to keep from sticking.

Turn dough onto lightly floured board. Knead lightly one minute. Roll out to a rectangle about 9 by 12 inches. Spread dough with softened butter, dust with cinnamon, sprinkle with 2 tablespoons granulated sugar and sprinkle with raisins. Roll dough lengthwise, lelly roll fashion. Cut crosswise in 12 slices.

Place each slice, cut side down, in a greased muffin pan Cover with a damp towel. Place dough in a warm place, 90 degrees, or over a bowl or hot water, until dough doubles in bulk. Bake at 375 degrees 15 to 20 minutes or until brown.

GOOD MANNERS

The enigma of the seating of the bride's table.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me if the bride's mother did the right thing in the following circumstances. The bride's parents are divorced. The mother has remarried. The father has not remarried, the bride and her brother have been living with him, and he has been the reception for her. The father refused to invite the couple to the reception but the girl wanted her mother to be at the church to see her married. Her mother said that she had checked and found that it was all right for her to sit in the front pew with members of her family. So—she sat in the front pew with the son (who, as I said ,lives with his father), and her brother and his daughter. Was this proper? If not, where should she have sat? And with whom?

M. C.

You say the bride's father gave the reception. Was it held in the church wedding? It sounds to me as if possibly the bride and her brother did a bit of planning on their own with the mother as to where she was to sit, and with whom. You don't say where the bride's father sat . . . didn't he sit in the front pew (on the right) after he had finished his part in the ceremony? Didn't the mother's husband have the wedding? If so, where did he sit? And who was standing with the father as to where the bride's mother was to sit (and with whom) . . . since the seating of anyone in the significant first pew is such an important (and sometimes touchy) decision at a wedding. I judge that there must have been some definite arrangement about it. In other words, there are so many angles about this circumstance, I imagine that no one not "in the know" can pass judgment.

How to sign plain card enclosed with wedding present

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband and I haven't any engraved personal cards, and we really have very little use for them. When we send a wedding gift from a store and are given a plain white card to enclose, we should I write our names on the card—"Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Robinson", or "Mary and Jonathan Robinson"?

"Mrs."

If you write your names only, "Mr. and Mrs. Jonathan Robinson" is correct. The same form as the name would be engraved on cards. Then you also write a message (which would, I think, be and look more natural for this informal card) in which you sign your informal names to the message. For instance: "With love and every good wish for your happiness, always, Jonathan and Mary Robinson."

A toast to the bride's mother to the bride's mother and father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At the wedding breakfast or reception, who is the one to propose a toast to the bride's mother? For special reasons this is very important to me, and my friends will be grateful for your answer to this question.

S. S.

Customarily it is the bridegroom who proposes the toast to the mother of his bride in an especially charming toast it can be and should be! Sometimes also the bridegroom's father proposes a toast to the bride's mother. Other times, for example, "Kenneh's mother and I would like to propose a toast to Mary's mother and father as the wonderful parent- of a wonderful daughter, "and the mother of such a beautiful and memorable occasion. A standing toast, please . . . to our hostess and host.

The host answers the bell

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please—to settle a discussion my husband (very recent!) and I are having—answer this question: When a couple are giving a party in their own home (and need to answer the bell) should the wife or the husband go to the door to greet guests?

C. D.

The husband.

BEAUTY

How goes the hoofing, lady?

It would be well for a woman to put her mind on her feet now and then, take a downward survey, observe how the little pink piggies are getting along. Usually feminine pedals receive no other attention than the daily scrubbing in the bathtub; suddenly they revolt and develop a flock of corns and callouses. That's just too bad. You can't cure these afflictions in a hurry. And it is cheaper to use your head, and select suitable shoes, than to pay chiropodist's bills. Well-fitting shoes are a common source of foot ills

Considering that she is scuttling around most of the day, the busy housewife is the one who needs extra-fastidious foot attentions. Here is the most important job in the world—cooking, cleaning, washing, ironing, taking care of the kids. If she is to get through her responsibilities without fatigue, she must select suitable shoes.

It won't do for her to trot around in clogs and slippers and worn dress shoes. According to the medical profession, many aches and pains could be avoided if feet were properly shod. They recommend laced oxfords with supple uppers and flexible leather soles which give adequate support, both freely with the many different positions that the foot assumes in the course of a busy day. Heels should not be over one and a half inches high. There must be ample room in the front of the shoes, so the toes will not be cramped.

Confirmed by King Features Syndicate.

It won't do for her to trot around in worn dress shoes

Aside from the financial dividends, proper care of shoes will pay off in walking ease and smarter appearance. Observed the life of shoes is an important matter in these days of high prices.

Use a good quality shoe polish. Rub oils in the polish lubricate and soften the leather, while the wax prevents stains from penetrating the pores of the leather. Be sure to apply polish to the edges of the soles, in order to maintain their trim, clearcut appearance.

Change your shoes as often as possible to make them last longer; also, to make the feet feel better. Keeping shoes on trees when not in use helps them to maintain their shape. Suede shoes should be brushed carefully to restore the nap and take out stains. Use a stiff-bristled brush and a piece

Officials said that with this der Canada has largely commit- d the $365,000,000 parliament has ked for mutual aid to Europe der the Atlantic Pact setup. A three-fifths vote is expected to e sought by the government within the next year.

The defence department an- nouncement of the radar set con- ibution said nothing about their ize or character and officials de- lined to elaborate. The only hint ve that the sets "are of a Second orld War pattern used as an rly warning against planes and missiles."

Chances are they are the mobile, ravan-like units that moved round England during the war, air rotating detecting apparatus ever searching the air for enemy planes or missiles.

Pandemonium at Ringside As Lord Athol Layton Gets Only Draw With Zebra

Lord Athol Layton ran out of time in the main event of the wrestling card last evening, and though the referee awarded his epic battle with the Zebra was a draw at the end of 60 minutes" he left no doubts in the minds of 1400 roaring partisans that he scored at least a moral triumph. Layton, who it seemed had the Zebra ready for an unveiling in the final minutes of the bout couldn't keep the carcass still long enough to satisfy referee Bert Maxwell. Layton, convinced that he had won the bout paid no heed to the final bell but continued to pummel the exhausted Zebra. He tossed him about the ring like a beach ball and nothing that referee Maxwell could do would halt him.

Pandemonium broke loose and the fans swarmed to ringside to see some of the most furious action of the whole night. Both grapplers continued to fight long after the bell and it was more than four minutes before order could be restored. Layton's deadly scissor slash dropped the Zebra like a sack of old skins to finally halt the overtime carnage.

Zebra Takes Fall

In the first fall the Zebra used his hair-pulling, eye-gouging exercises to set up pier Layton who finally succumbed in the "Flying Body Smasher", a hold in which the Zebra deposits his 305 pounds on his opponent after a mad charge across the ring and a flying leap.

Layton managed to stave off two such horrifying blows but he stayed plunderdamn the third one.

In the second fall Layton was apparently making considerable headway with his "Scissor Slash" when referee Maxwell intervened to proclaim that it was his considered opinion that was a slash was illegal. The reprieved Zebra returned to the attack with a series of elbow smashes and shoulder jabs to the midsection.

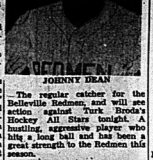
This left Layton rather exposed and the Zebra was all set to demolish him with the "Flying Body Smasher" Layton caught Alm in midair with his feet, fielded him neatly with a high lob to the far corner of the ring where he easily pinned the bruised remains.

In the main preliminary Pat Flanagan and George Scott fought a fast, clean, scientific, highly pleasing 30 minute bout before Pat's vaster experience proved too much for Scott's youth and exuberance. The fans loved it and when Flanagan congratulated Scotton his gentlemanly conduct was a rousing cheer for two good sports.

In the opener Chief Suni War Cloud failed to unmask the "Masked Marvel". He didn't win the fight either, it was a draw in 30 minutes.

JOHNNY DEAN

The regular catcher for the Belleville Redmen, and will see action against Turk Broda's Hockey All Stars tonight. A hustling, aggressive player who hits a long ball and has been a great strength to the Redmen this season.



HUCK REEVES

Here is a lad who is really delivering the goods at shortstop for the Belleville Redmen this season and likes it best when the going is tough — a good clutch hitter, he will see action against the Turk Broda Hockey All Stars tonight.

SAMMY MULHOLLAND.

"Sam, you made the hits too long."

Sammy Mulholland, fleet centre fielder for the Belleville Redmen, and will see action against Turk Broda's Hockey All Stars tonight. Sam broke up the ball game in Kingston this week with a three-run homer.

Big Water - Big Fish

By JOHN ALDEN KNIGHT

Noted Sportsman, Author and Creator of Solunar Tables

We hear a great deal of talk and we read in the outdoor magazines about fishing being the relaxing pastime, good for jangled nerves and over-worked systems. "It is not all of fishing to fish", they tell you. "Relax on the bank and enjoy the outdoors."

Well, that's all right as far as it goes. I like to loaf in the shade as well as the next fellow. It is pleasant to sit beside a stream or a lake and watch what goes on.

Just the same, deep down in my heart, I'm like all other fishermen. Each and every one of us has the common hope that this will be the day when he hooks and lands the monstrous tackle buster of his dreams.

For many years I, my son and I, have studied the habits of large game fish. We have learned about the types where they prefer and have perfected methods both for finding them and hooking them.

While we do not see eye to eye on all things (what two fishermen do?) there is one point on which we are in agreement. If you want to find big fish, look for them in big water.

A great deal of our fishing for smallmouth bass has been done for many years in the headwaters of the Delaware River in the vicinity of Deposit, New York State. Here the river is small and easily wadable and it makes a wonderful place for old boy to learn about bass fishing.

Plenty of Bass

There are plenty of small bass in these pleasant waters, fish that average around 10 or 11 inches. Now and then we do manage to pick up a larger bass, one which is around the two or three pound mark, but mostly the fish are small.

Twelve miles downstream from the town of Deposit the east branch joins the west branch to form the main Delaware River. Naturally the river is larger below this junction and we find that the average bass is proportionately larger.

On down in the vicinity of Narrowsburg, Mast Hope and Port Jervis the river is larger still. So are the bass. Still further down, in the neighborhood of Delaware Water Gap your day's catch can run to smallmouths that average better than three pounds.

It is quite evident that there is a downstream movement as the seasons pass and the bass put on weight. While we do not find any big fellow in small water now and then, there seems to be a well-established ratio between big water and big bass.

We have worked out this same progression in the Susquehanna River. The north branch of this river rises in the Catskills. We have fished the head-waters of this branch where we found it so small that I can cast a fly from one bank to the other. As we expected, the bass in these waters are small also.

Bigger and Bigger

When the river moves down into Pennsylvania, numerous tributaries build it up to majestic proportions so that by the time it reaches the vicinity of Wyalusing, Penna., it is so large that it must be fished from a boat.

Here the three-pounder is a matter of daily expectancy and bass of four and five pounds are not uncommon. Fifty miles upstream you may run into a five-pounder once in a while but your chances for this size are much better in the larger water.

For about five years we lived in Orlando, Florida, and during that time I had the opportunity to become well acquainted with the southern largemouth. Most of our fishing was done in lakes, with now and then a trip to one of the rivers.

Here the story is the same—big water for big fish. Again we had to deal in averages. Now and then we would find an old tackle buster in small water but generally the rule held very well.

Another thing which was quite evident was the uniformity of size of the fish in any given lake. I remember two lakes in the vicinity of Clermont, Florida. These were separated by a narrow strip of land, wide enough only for a footpath.

The fish in one lake averaged around a pound and a half while on the other side of the road the average was at least a pound heavier.

Cut-Size Whoppers

For the real, out-size whoppers we would find the St. John's River. This stream is big water all the way. It rises in Lake Hetchhaws, directly inland from Melbourne, and flows north to the sea in the vicinity of Jacksonville.

Of course the fishing in that river is not as good now as it was back in 1925, but it is still good. Then we had a self-imposed deadline of five pounds. Any bass under that figure was returned to the water to grow up. We have taken fish from that river which topped the 14 pound mark.

Incidentally, the way to catch big bass is to fish for them during Solunar Periods. Big fish, who eat mostly to support their body weight rather than to increase it, are fussy feeders.

Small bass, like small children, will eat most any time but large bass confine their feeding activity to the feeding and activity periods. Then they are hungry and, in addition, their food is out of hiding, moving around and readily available.

So if you want that big boy this season, take a tip from us—ten to one you will find him in big water. Then fish for him during the Solunar Periods.

GRANDMOTHER TO ATTEMPT CHANNEL CROSSING

Bernard Cohn in New York prior to her flight to London, Eng. The 43 year - old grandmother from Brooklyn, N. Tennis Notes

This afternoon four players from each of the Quinte, Point Anne and Trenton clubs will travel to Kingston to take on the Kingston Tennis Club in exhibition games. They should be a very good match and a dance has been scheduled to follow in the evening to end the day's fun in the senior loop. Batawa will visit Trenton on Tuesday evening. The Shoetowners will be out to curb the league-leading Trenton squad in their first match after three weeks vacating. On Thursday evening Point Anne and Quinte tie up in the city. Last Thursday night these two clubs split 3-3 at the Quinte courts with Point Anne being on the short end of the score.

Turning to the intermediate section of the loop, the Trenton Quinte game was rained out once again on Monday evening and will be rescheduled for a later date. Holloway consolidated their hold on top position in the league on Thursday when they downed the Quinte racket wielders 5-2.

On Monday evening Trenton are host to the St. Andrew's Church outfit whilst on Wednesday Holloway and Point Anne do battle at the Holloway Church courts. Last time out Point Anne were the winners in the only match Holloway have lost this year so the Church Club will be out for revenge this time.

Next week we will be out of town on vacation so we'll see you again on Saturday, July 28th.

Montreal Royals Lead Int. Loop By Eight Games

(By The Associated Press)

Montreal, the experts insist, can't miss at international league champions this year, but try to tell that to Syracuse Chiefs.

The Chiefs, although nine games behind the high-flying Royals, keep plugging away. Last night they cut the deficit by one game, blanking Baltimore 2-0 on Bill Miller's two-hitter. Montreal, meanwhile, was losing 3-2 to Ottawa.

In other games, Springfield nipped Rochester 4-3, and Buffalo downed Toronto 6-3.

Jack Mayo, Baltimore centre-fielder, got the only two hits off Miller. Mayo singled to start the game and scratched another single in the third inning. After that, Miller, in winning his 10th game, was untouchable.

Three Baltimore errors gave Syracuse a run in the first inning, and that was enough for Miller, who pitched his second two-hitter of the season.

At Ottawa, John Ketkovich knocked in two runs for the winners. Harry Nicholas was credited with his first victory.

Springfield downed Rochester when Jack Wallaesa smacked a three-run double in the pitcher's inning. It gave Frank Marino his eighth victory against five losses.

Fred Hancock's three-run triple in the fourth inning helped Buffalo's Lynn Lovenguth register his second triumph. In addition to his game-winning three-bagger, Hancock smashed two doubles.

Dressen, Palica Shake Hands To End Feud

Brooklyn, July 21. (AP)—Manager Chuck Dressen and Pitcher Erv Palica of the Brooklyn Dodgers shook hands last night to bring their feud to an end.

Dressen, two days ago called Palica "a gutless kid who doesn't belong in the majors." Dressen charged that Palica "chokes up and always has something to crab about."

Palica said that Dressen "had better watch out." The pitcher claimed he was worried about his wife who expects to have a baby in the next two or three weeks.

Dodger vice president Buzzy Bavasi asked Palica "why didn't you punch Dressen in the nose?" Palica replied: "Imagine me punching my manager in the nose? I'd probably get a heavy fine and kicked off the team to boot."

Bavasi said the Dodgers have been trying to get Palic "out" for two years. Dressen said: "I once punched Paul Derringer in the nose and he won 22 games."

Dressen said that Palica would pitch next Monday in the exhibition against Cleveland at Coopperstown, N.Y. Dressen said Palica would return to Ebbet's Field next week but until the powers that be believe he is capable of pitching major league ball.

Festival Stakes Richest Race On British Soil

(By The Canadian Press)

Twenty of Europe's stoutest staying thoroughbreds, including five classic winners, will test their strides today at Ascot Heath in the richest race ever run on British soil.

As a special gesture of festival year, Ascot officials increased purses into one. The result is a £30,000 fifty for the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth festival of Britain Stakes.

The first post is at 2. The post in the 1½-mile grind over Ascot's green turf will draw down £25,000 more than the £5,000 Irish-owned Arctic Prince got for this year's Epsom Derby, the richest on record.

Billed as the race of a lifetime, the Festival Stakes will be run for the first and last time. Thereafter, the Festival will confine its field one of the classiest ever assembled in Britain.

United States Lawn Tennis Association officials announced Friday night arrangements had been completed for second-round matches in the American zone Davis Cup play.

The winner of the Louisville matches between the U.S. and Japan will meet Mexico at Rye, N.Y. Aug. 3-4-5.

The 14-day Niagara Racing Association meet which concluded at Fort Erie Thursday handled a betting total of $2,800,790, 12.8 per cent higher than last year's total for the same period.

The daily average handle for the meeting was $206,485, officials said today.

Racing continues here with the Ascot meet, now underway.

Leo Durocher Friday signed a one-year contract to continue as manager of New York Giants through the 1952 baseball season.

No terms were announced, but both Durocher and owner Horace Stoneham said they were "mutually satisfied." Guesses as to the salary were in the neighborhood of $50,000.

In a lawn bowling upset Thursday night, last year's Ontario champions were eliminated in the first round of district play-offs at Kitchener. A Waterloo mutual entry skipped by Ted Slim defeated Hillard's Waterloo bowling rink 19-18.

Ken Dorscht and Lorne Heldman, the Belleville Ontario junior doubles champions from Waterloo, advanced with a 20-16 victory over an Elora doubles entry.

Toronto Argonauts Friday night wound up a week of football practice and coach Frank Clair said the Big Four team is considerably ahead of last year's squad with the same length of training.

"Mostly it's because the maturity of the boys are familiar with the system," he said in an interview. "Now we can spend more time on the fundamentals."

Judge J. Elliott Hudson of the Maritime Major Hockey League said Friday that five clubs have posted bonds for play next year.

They are: Saint John Beavers, Moncton Hawks, Charlottetown Islanders and Halifax St. Mary's of the old Maritime Major League (Big Four) and Sydney Millionaires of the Cape Breton League.

At Wedgeport, N.S., bluefin tuna are running wild in famed Soldier's Rip, world-renowned playground for game anglers.

Forty-one of the giant torpedoes of the sea had been taken by rod-and-line anglers by Friday, it was announced. Twice as many fish have been caught as last year and the count is ahead of the total for the same date in 1940 when a record number of tuna—1,670 weighing 450,000 pounds—were boated.

According to guides the Rip is full of fish, "hundreds of 'em!" The bluefin are big, averaging from 400 to 600 pounds. Largest tuna found this season was a 741-pounder taken by A. J. Mueller of Chicago.

Three-Year-Olds Go to Post for Arlington Classic

Chicago, July 21 — (AP)— A field of 13 three-year-old stars who have been defeating one another this year, racing season, matched strides again today for $81,300 in the 33rd running of the Arlington Classic.

With the lightning-fast strip of record possibilities, the stakes event of the 1 1-4 mile event will net $62,975.

Louisville at 8-5 is George D. Widener's Battlefield, 1950 juvenile champion, who has collected at least a slice of each purse in his 21 starts. The veteran Eddie Arcaro came from the east to ride Battlefield.

Mrs. Frances A. Genter's Dwight's Double, who shares high weight of 123 pounds with Battlefield under the allowance conditions of the classic, appeared second choice at 5-2. Rough'n Tumble, winner of the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby, had veteran Johnny Adams in the saddle.

In a poll of 16 writers yesterday, Battlefield was the choice of eight to win the classic. Five experts selected Rough'n Tumble, while two picked Brownell Combs' Bernwood.

Queen of Trotters In Winner's Circle For Last Time

Westbury, N.Y., July 21 (CP)— Proximity, gallant queen of the trotting world, made her farewell appearance last night at Roosevelt Raceway, scene of many of her greatest victories and the launching place of her spectacular rise to fame.

As a climax to a career which saw her establish 10 world records and earn $252,929, largest in standard-bred history, Proximity was led past the stands unharnessed, and was greeted by an ovation from the crowd of 24,623.

Frank War, her groom for three seasons, and Clint Hodgins, Clarenboys, Ont., breeder, who drove her to her greatest glory, led her into the winner's circle for the last time.

She was met at the finish line by Ralph and Gordon Verharst, her owners, and a host of trotting horse celebrities.

Proximity is to be shipped to the Walnut Hall Farm in Donerail, Ont., where she will serve as a broodmare.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

Tonight, at 9:00 p. m. in Exhibition Park, the improving Belleville Redmen will play an exhibition game against the Broda-less NHL All-Stars. The amiable Turk staged a phenomenal performance in surgery earlier this week when he had his gall stones were forcibly parted. While this has no bearing on Turk's celebrated weight problem, and will hardly hamper his goal tending for the Maple Leafs it has made it rather unlikely that he will appear at the game this evening, much less cavort about first base.

However, while Broda is rapidly mending, his NHL All-Stars will be on hand to give the evening a definitely scintillating touch, bedecked in the sweat shirts of Harry Watson, Jim Thompson, Gus Mortson, Sid Smith, Cal Gardner, Ray Timgren, John McCormick, Max Quackenbush and Al Dewsbury.

* * *

The Redmen, busy as beavers these past 10 days take on the second place Smiths Falls Royals under the lights Monday night at 8:00 p. m. The Royals, who trail the league-leading Brockville Memos, can be overhauled by the Redmen if they win tonight. Wednesday evening the COBI All-Star game will be played at Exhibition Park with several of the locals in action again. Redmen lining up with the western division are pitchers John Morvat and Harry Bower; catcher, John Dean; second-baseman, Dick Pitsiladis; shortstop, Huck Reeves, and outfielder Sam Mulholland. Redmen manager Pat Wilson has been selected to guide the western division.

Tomorrow afternoon on the bay boating enthusiasts will present their biggest water show in years. At 2:00 p. m. starter John Black is slated to fire the first round in a canoeade that will start standing keel craft, dinghys, snipe class boats and runabouts ploughing up the bay.

Feature event of the afternoon is the challenge race for the W. C. Mikel Trophy with at least five standing keel craft and two punts entered. The initial race of the season barred punts, but the racing committee relaxed the rules to allow Maurice Callaghan's "After You" and the Hagris brothers' "Hagris" to take part. J. J. Meade's boat "Dreadful", winner in the race more than two weeks ago, will not be taking part in the contest. That leaves George Graham and his nameless 26-footer, second place finisher by three minutes, and the Gilbert Five minutes behind Graham, as the favorites. Freeman Barrowes, winner of the Wills Cup at Northport earlier in the season is expected to put in a strong challenge, if the wind is light both punts are expected to give the conventional craft a sound trouncing. If she blows it will be a dandy contest.

Rivalling the sail boats will be the high-speed runabouts of Art Croji, Art Young, Dr. Harold Cranz, Jack Sills and Stan Roblin. The speed boats will start 15 minutes after the sailboats and will make two circuits of the course extending from the government dock to Cow Island to the bay bridge and back to the dock. Twice around is one heat and two heats makes a race.

Dinghys and snipes get away at 15 minute intervals thereafter.

Word from Speedway Parkland is that the Wednesday and Sunday night practice sessions are producing some outstanding stuff. Last Wednesday night, for instance, two of the steadily-improving local drivers, Arnold Duffy and Jack Finkle, hooked up in a match race for four laps with Duffy nosing out Finkle in 2:48. A fairly good crowd was on hand too. Impresario Dick Burrowes is happy to welcome all spectators free of charge any Wednesday or Sunday night for the practice sessions.

While on the subject of stock car racing Dick tells us that Saturday, July 28, the "big cars" will be at Speedway Parkland for the outstanding auto racing meet in eastern Ontario this summer. These cars are really something. They are big, specially built jobs, with souped-up engines, dual centres of gravity, and daredevils at the wheel. There are same type of car that thousands pay to see every Memorial Day at Indianapolis. These swifties accelerate so fast that even on a half mile track they hit 85 miles per, on the straightaway.

* * *

Drivers taking part in the meet include Jim Schumacher, Akron, N. Y.; Hugh Darragh, Ebenezer, N. Y.; Jim Rowe, Petrolia, Ontario; Bob Neal, Toronto; Ed Tardiff, Port Credit; Lloyd Shaw, Toronto; Harry Leister, Pine City, N. Y.; Dick Belter, N. Y.; and many others. Shaw, incidentally holds the Canadian auto record for a half mile track with a blistering 39.2 seconds. He will be driving his specially Jaguar-powered speedster come Saturday.

The playground softball schedule appears elsewhere in this issue and speaks volumes for the size of the playground program. Listed in the schedule are the juvenile games. We have been told that this four-team league has been organized and is being operated by the boys themselves. The team members are chipping in the money to present crests to the winning club. Sweaters, if any, will be bought by the boys themselves. This is really playing the game for the love of sport, and is an effort that cannot be commended too highly.

Well, this is our final column of the season. George Carver, resident master of the pillar returns Monday to take up where he left off three weeks ago. We have been happy to be able to sub for George, who unfortunately, had a nasty time of it during his holidays, what with being nearly passed by a leaky refrigerator and spending 10 days in the hospital. He has recovered fully thanks to an extra week in the pleasant environs of Wellington. Before saying goodbye we would like to thank you fans who have been kind enough to stay with us. You will all be 'back home' again Monday. Welcome back, George.

Don Boyle Hurls 4-Hitter Glen Roy Win 7-1

Flawless support in the field and a ten hit attack gave Don Boyle more than enough working room last evening as he fired a masterful four hitter at Point Anne Consolmen to give Glen Roy Athletic Club a 7-1 decision and a one game edge in the round robin playoffs for the city league title.

Boyle was never in trouble throughout the game. Ironically enough Point Anne collected their only run in the first inning without a hit. Lead off man Art Genereaux walked, took second on a passed ball and scored on Murray Green's infield out and Bob Strahan's long fly to left field.

Until Strahan banged a liner into left field with two out in the sixth inning Boyle was working on a no-hitter. Everett singled in the seventh, Lorne Maracle singled in the eighth and Strahan got his second single of the night in the ninth.

Backing up Boyle's solid pitching was an errorless performance by Glen Roy infield. Jack Hunter in left field made six put outs, including the first out in the eighth. His running shoe-string catch of Art Genereaux looper in the fifth was the deciding gem of the game.

Glen Roy hustled into the scoring column in the first frame with Rowbotham walking, taking second on a passed ball, moving to third on Spafford's sacrifice and scoring on Murray's grounder went through short.

Three More in Second

Glen Roy added three more in the second. With two out, Boyle and Rondo Sword on base, Rowbotham singled. Spafford slashed one at short and Boyle and Sword into centrefield for three runs. Spafford was erased on Genereaux' ground ball to Strahan as he tried to steal second on the play.

Single runs in the third, seventh and eighth wound up the scoring.

Don Boyle led all batters with a single and double, the only extra base blow of the game, in three tries. Rowbotham, Mallory, and Sword had two singles apiece.

Pat Maracle tolled all the way on the hill for Point Anne, striking out four, walking three, and giving up ten hits.

Redmen Win 6-3 in Napanee, Move Closer to Second Slot

Although outhit, 11 to 7, the Belleville Redmen were never behind as they handed the luckless Napanee Athletics a 6-3 setback in Gilbardville last evening.

The win moved the locals a step closer to second place, and should the Smiths Falls Royals lose their scheduled game with Brockville tonight, the Redmen in turn would move into undisputed possession of the runner-up runs.

The Redmen scored two runs in the opening inning on one hit an error and two free passes and were never headed from then on, although threatened several times. A single tally in the fifth gave Belleville a temporary three-run lead.

Napanee came up with a brace of runs in the bottom of the fifth and 3 solid singles by Robinson, Turner and Jocko. Vern Goyer's overturn of the ball allowed the second man in.

Belleville scored another in their sixth as the top of the batting order connected for three safe blows after Mowat, batting for Fordham, had struck out. This two-run lead did not last long though, as the Athletics picked up an unearned run off Billy Strahan, who had replaced starter Wilson Reeves in the sixth, on Billy's own error, an overthrow on first.

Two More in Eighth

The Redmen's final pair were scored in the eighth, both unearned, when Murphy dropped Gilmour's fly ball to right. As two men were on both Turner and Soules who were occupying third and second respectively, slid home and scored on the error.

The Athletics threatened in their last chance, but Jocko's youthful William put out the fire before damage was done.

Another blow was dealt to the Napanee cause in the seventh inning when Johnny Munro, sliding into third, turned his ankle on the bag. He was taken to a doctor and it was found that he had possibly fractured the bone.

Munro left the Napa attack, getting three sharp singles. Hayes had a pair including a double, Munro hit a single and Jocko had their only other extra-base clout.

Goyer topped the Redmen at the plate with two singles and a double in five appearances, Carson had a pair, while Sam Mulholland garnering the others.

Ten Free Ones

Robinson, on the mound for the losers, had difficulty with his control, giving no less than ten bases on balls while striking out six. Fordham struck out one and issued one free pass while Strahan passed one and threw the third one by catcher.

Hitting in the pinches seemed to be the failing of both sides as the At 21 struck in three and has passed one and threw the the sacks.

Just Five Percentage Points Separate First From Fourth In Hot American Loop Race

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

.505.

That insignificant figure is the difference between first and fourth place in the sizzling American League pennant race today.

Boston Red Sox lead the procession by two percentage points. Chicago White Sox are second, New York Yankees are third and Cleveland Indians fourth.

The race tightened up considerably last night as both the White Sox and Red Sox lost while the Yanks and Indians won squeakers.

Boston dropped a 8-1 decision to the Detroit Tigers while the White Sox lost a 2-1 10-inning battle to the Washington Senators. The Yanks edged the St. Louis Browns, 1-0, and the Indians nipped Philadelphia Athletics 1-0 in 10 innings.

Meanwhile, the Brooklyn Dodgers retained their eight game lead in the National League. The Dodgers defeated St. Louis Cardinals 5-3, as New York Giants trounced Cincinnati Reds 11-5. Philadelphia Phils humbled Pittsburgh Pirates 11-4.

First Start, Beats Sox

Marlin Stuart, 22-year-old righthander, made his first start of the season and shackled the Red Sox on six hits before 45,000 fans at Detroit.

The Tigers bopped on Chuck Stobbs for five hits and the ball game in the fourth inning.

Chicago was one away from regaining first place. The White Sox led 1-0, going into the ninth and Lou Kretlow retired the first two hitters. Ed Yost singled and Gil Coan whacked a double, his fourth hit of the game, to tie the score. The Senators, beaten 10 straight times by Chicago, won out in the 10th, on singles by Mickey Vernon, Sam Mele and Cass Michaels' run-scoring out.

Young Tom Morgan won a brilliant pitching duel from little Bill Garver, Brownie ace, at St. Louis. Morgan permitted three singles while Garver was tapped for six hits.

The Browns' largest crowd of the season, 15,242 fans, witnessed the game. The Yanks broke a scoreless tie in the eighth when Morgan singled and later scored on a single by Bobby Brown.

In the pitching gem at Cleveland, hustling Bob Avila doubled Dale Mitchell from first base with two out in the 10th. Sam Zoldak, former Indian, and Mike Garcia battled all the way. Zoldak allowed eight hits while Garcia checked Philadelphia on four.

13th for Roe

Lefty Preacher Roe turned in his 12th victory as the Dodgers made it seven straight over the Cardinals before 30,653 at Brooklyn. Home runs by Enos Slaughter and Wally Westlake accounted for all of St. Louis' runs. Roe now has thrown 20 home run balls, tops in the majors.

Home runs by Willie Mays and Sal Yvars featured the Giants' victory over the Reds. Mays drove in four runs, three on a home run in the eighth inning. Yvars connected with one on in the seventh. The triumph moved the Giants into second place, eight games behind the Dodgers and one ahead of the Cards.

Kiner Homers, Naturally

Boston also piled up an early lead in smearing the Pirate. The Braves backed Vern Law for six runs in the first inning and added three more in the second. Warren Spahn breezed to his 10th conquest. Ralph Kiner smashed a 390-foot homer for Pittsburgh's first run in the fourth inning.

Richie Ashburn singled with the bases loaded and one out in the 11th to give Phils the nod over the Cubs. Rookie Cub first-baseman, Chuck Connors, tipped Ashburn's bounder into a base hit and Ed Pellagrini scored. Connors set up the payoff by committing two errors. Reliefer Jim Konstanty was the winner and Bob Rush the loser.

Corner Shots

After last Saturday's Belleville-Kingston United game, which Kingston won 9-1 to take over second place in the league, the Bay of Quinte Football Association met to select the All-Star team to oppose Toronto Celtics at Greenwood Park in Toronto on August 4th.

The following players were invited to turn out for this team: Blakley, Cranston, Arbuckle Belleville Vets; Whyte, Airns, 6 R.D.; Carter, Jones, Northern Electric; W. Heron, Foster, C. Heron, Picton Gunners; Mueller, Planovsky, Batawa; L. Helyer, E. Helyer, Trenton Merchants.

This is a fairly strong team which should give a good account of themselves against the Toronto outfit if all are available.

Only two matches are scheduled for today on the Eastern Ontario Football League. No. 6 R.D. play host to Vimy Signals, and Brockville travel to Kingston to Kingston to take on the United squad.

The Bay of Quinte League has four games scheduled this week. Tuesday evening Belleville Vets visit Trenton Merchants while league-leading Picton travel to Batawa to take on last year's champions.

Thursday evening Belleville Vets play host to Picton Gunners in the match which was rained out on June 13th. Batawa visit Trenton Merchants.

As your correspondent will be on vacation next week this column will not appear until July 28th.

Tout Louis Fight With Walcott Instead of Charles

Camden, N.J., July 21 (AP) — The only thing certain about the heavyweight boxing picture today is that Jersey Joe Walcott is champion and that he has a very prosperous future.

Walcott is committed by contract to give Ezzard Charles a return shot at the title in New York.

But big question marks have suddenly appeared, fogging the heavyweight horizon. Will Walcott fight Charles next? Or will the new champion risk boxing's most coveted crown in the ring with the old Brown Bomber, Joe Louis? And then will Charles meet the winner of this match?

The answer might come from Jim Norris, president of the International Boxing Club that has exclusive rights to Walcott, Charles and Louis.

Up until yesterday, when Walcott was greeted by 100,000 wildly-cheering neighbors here on his return from Pittsburgh where he lifted the title Wednesday, it appeared certain that the next big heavyweight fight would be a fourth Walcott-Charles meeting. Only the date and site were indefinite.

Louis First Crack?

Then Felix Bocchicchio, Walcott's manager, let loose a statement that packed almost as much dynamite as the left hook that Walcott used to kayo Charles Bocchicchio said Joe Louis had asked for the first crack at Walcott's title.

Said Bocchicchio:

"I told Joe it was okay with me if it was okay with the International Boxing Club. Louis gave us two shots at the title, I think we owe it to him. Walcott will be glad to oblige Louis if Norris and I.B.C. okay."

Louis denied in Detroit that he had talked with anybody about a title fight but said, "I sure hope it's so." The Brown Bomber declared he was ready to fight Walcott at any time but that he really thought Charles deserved the first chance. "He's entitled to it. But, he does need a rest. He's been fighting too much," added Louis.

The only comment from the I.B.C. was from Harry Markson, the club's managing director. He said Norris told him the only fight he was working on was a return bout between Walcott and Charles.

Lot of Baloney

What has the Charles' camp to say about all this? The only comment was from the volatile Jake Mintz, currently under suspension by the Pennsylvania Boxing Commission for arguing over judges prior to last Wednesday's title fight.

"Any report that Walcott will give Louis the first shot is a lot of baloney. We have an ironclad contract with Walcott for Ezzard to have first crack."

BEGINNING OF THE END FOR HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMP

Kingston Saints Whip NHL 13-9

Kingston, July 21 — (CP) Kingston Pedlitentiary Saints Friday beat the National Hockey League All Stars 13-9 in an exhibition softball game on the Saints' enclosed field.

The visitors led 8-6 toward the end of the last half of the sixth inning but their hosts scored two runs in quick succession to tie the score. In the seventh the Saints racked up five runs and settled the issue.

Syd Smith paced the All Stars' attack with two singles, while Max Quackenbush connected with a double.

400 Athletes Second Fiddle To Beauty Queen

Toronto, July 21—(CP)—Nearly 400 athletes are entered in the 69th annual police games to be held here today but they'll get second billing to a girl.

The girl will be the final choice of judges in the annual Miss Toronto contest sponsored by city police. She will be chosen from a field of long-stemmed beauties who won in semi-final competition.

At least 30,000 spectators are expected to jam the Canadian National Exhibition stadium for the sports program. Everything from bicycle racing to caber tossing and vaudeville acts will be displayed, but the spotlight will be on outstanding track and field performers.

Gordon Crosby, fleet - footed British Empire Games hurdler will lead the Toronto Gendarmes. A 30-man team from Montreal includes Valdo Lillakas, Montreal track and field club's Estonian middle-distance runner.

Detroit has entered a 33-man police team including their big-of-war heavies, undefeated for the past 12 years.

Biggest haul of the day will be taken by the winner of the Miss Toronto contest. First prize is a choice of a three-to-four year scholarship at any Canadian university, valued at $1,500; $1,000 in cash, or a two-week trip for two to Hollywood and Mexico valued at $1,200.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There are two kinds of doubles; takeout and penalty. A takeout double is a signal that asks partner to bid. A penalty double tells partner the opponent bid can be defeated.

When a player doubles there is nothing in his bid that tells his partner which kind it is. Nor in his voice. So, what determines it? The circumstances preceding the double.

A double of a suit bid is for takeout if partner has not yet bid and the latest bid is lower than four. If partner has already bid, a double of any bid (even a bid of one) is for penalty.

South opens with a bid of one heart. West stuck in a defensive simple overcall. North doubled. The hands were as shown in this deal:

NORTH
♠Q 9 3
♥Q 6 4
♦K J 10 9 8 4 2
♣K 8

WEST	EAST
♠J 10 2	♠9 7 4
♥10 9 3	♥9 8 5 2
♦A Q 7 6	♦J 3
♣A J 10 6	♣Q 9 3 2

SOUTH
♥A K 7 5
♣7 5 4

The west bid of two diamonds was a promise of six tricks. As you can see he did not have that many. But north did not know this at the time, of course. If so, was his double sound?

The double by north was after a bid had been made by his own partner. Therefore, it was for penalty. Could he promise to defeat the two diamond bid by west? The answer is yes!

An opening one bidder promises a certain amount of high card strength. In an opponent trump suit, this strength is expected to produce at least three tricks.

Therefore, to defeat a bid of one the doubler needs four tricks in the opponent trump suit. To defeat a bid of two, doubler needs only three trump tricks.

If diamonds are the trumps, north certainly expects to take three trump tricks. As a matter of fact, he has almost sure taking four tricks. But three trump tricks are all he promises.

Therefore, the double for penalty by north is sound business. Be sure you are right and then go ahead.

Sarnia Refinery Estimated Cost $10,000,000

Philadelphia, July 20 (CP) — Sun Oil Company today announced plans for construction of a refinery at Sarnia, Ont., at a cost of about $10,000,000.

Joseph N. Pew, chairman of the board, said that start of construction will depend on the materials situation, but March 1953, is scheduled as completion date.

The plant will be able to process 10,000 to 15,000 barrels a day of crude oil. It will consist of combination atmospheric and vacuum distillation units and an 8,000 to 10,000 barrel-a-day catalytic cracking unit. It will produce high quality motor gasoline, kerosene, domestic heating oil, residual or heavy burning oil, and also light hydrocarbons for use by Polymer Corporation, synthetic rubber plant at Sarnia.

Site for the refinery is a 120 acre tract fronting on the St. Clair River, Catalytic Construction Company of Philadelphia will be the principal contractor.

Sun Oil Company since 1923, through its wholly-owned subsidiary, Sun Oil Company, Ltd., has marketed motor gasoline to Sunoco retail outlets in Quebec and Ontario; and other petroleum products directly to Canadian customers. In 1949, Sun established a Canadian production division with headquarters at Calgary and since then has intensified its exploratory efforts in western Canada.

ANONYMOUSLY GENEROUS

Hull, England (CP) — A Mr. and Mrs. Fish received a letter bearing an unsigned note — "have you ever thought it would be nice to get a surprise when you open a letter?" A five-pound note fluttered out of the letter.

GISELE MacKENZIE, "Canada's First Lady of Song", now is a permanent member of Coca Cola's "Mario Lanza Show", heard every Sunday evening at 8.00 over CJBQ. Make this program a steady listening date! You'll enjoy it!

AT THE McCARTHY — Valentina Cortese and William Lundigan are questioned by police over the death of Miss Cortese's screen husband in 20th. Century-Fox's "House On Telegraph Hill," closing tonight at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre. Ashmead Scott (right) is the attentive detective.

Bagpipes 'Grim' In Victoria, B.C.

Victoria, B. C., July 21—CP —There has been too much bagpipe music in Victoria to suit some people.

So two of the city's three gird pipers, who had been entertaining United States tourists were "requested" by Police Chief John Blackstock to stop playing. "I did not order them off the street," he hastily explained.

For 17-year-old kilted pipers Mary Fletcher and Dinah Kerr it was a sad decision. They had received lots of encouragement from tourists, who had taken photos of the pair.

Not affected is Anita Baird, 15, who performs for tourists at boat time only.

One complaint described the continuous piping as "grim." He said the hourly wail of the pipes was driving his co-workers to the brink of despair.

"It's not that we object to bagpipes, but having to listen to them all day is getting to be too much," he said.

AT THE CAPITOL — Steve Cochrane and Dorothy Hart have leading roles in Warner Bros.' prison drama, "Inside the Walls of Folsom Prison," coming to the Capitol Theatre on Monday. Filmed at the California prison itself, the picture also stars David Brian, with Philip Carey and Ted de Corsia. On the same program an exciting drama "Missing Women," starring Penny Edwards. Both hits are first showings.

Movie Column

(By JACK QUIGG)

Hollywood, July 21—(AP) — Loking at the Hollywood News:

Producers are drooling at the fantastic grosses drawn by touring entertainers, notably Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis in New York and torrid Josephine Baker in Los Angeles.

Culups Martin and Lewis made more than $100,000 in a single week on Broadway. La Baker drew some $52,000 during her second week in a theatre here.

Unfortunately, it's only the big houses that get such big draws.

The producers' solution: A heavy schedule of films for Martin and Lewis; a proposed screen biography of Miss Baker, the American Negro dancer who makes her home in Paris.

Hollywood Fighting

Unhappy news (from Hollywood's point of view) from London, where a new Anglo-American film pact is being negotiated. Hollywood is fighting for permission to spend its frozen British pounds in new ways. British authorities are against it. . . .

Lana Turner's all-white foreign convertible, selected to match the white sweaters she fills so admirably . . . an independent producer's announced plans to film the life of Mickey Cohen, and how sad it is the mobster, recently convicted on income tax evasion charges, wont be around to act as technical adviser. . . .

Twentieth Century-Fox's decision to change the title of "Old Soldiers Never Die" to "Fixed Bayonets".

BANKNOTE CONFETTI

London (CP) — Bride and bridegroom at a recent wedding in suburban Eltham reluctantly believe that one of their friends has more money than sense. Someone cut pound and 10-shilling notes into hundreds of pieces for the wedding at St. Barnabas Church.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Monday, July 23

March 21 to April 20—(Aries) —Won't find things all to your liking in business or finances. Be wisely careful, know what you are dealing in personal affairs, be diplomat. Co-operate where you should, and smile.

April 21 to May 21—(Taurus)— Professional endeavors can move forward appreciably in day's progress. You have to be the central director in many instances, the one to give the signals. Heart inclending favorably.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)— Look both ways before making moves! In matters of importance, contracts, property, etc. Avoid schemers, those who live on their wits and take up other time.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)— Another somewhat uncertain period, calls for more conservative handling of all business. Things, that can hurt if you mix them up. Recklessness is out of order. Be sensibly cautious.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)— At last you have fine understanding aspects, even if no helpful ones. You are ambitious, industrious, good salesman, and these gifts from God in right manner and achieve much.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—First know where you are headed, then check the best route to travel. May find some restrictions, very exacting obstacles or people. Be diplomatic, smile your way through.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Can be most successful period of the week if you are tuned to your best and have worked through carefully. Business, mining, contractors, buyers, transportation-freshly favored.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Things may be coming slowly, efforts at getting the returns you'd like. Perhaps that is well, as it should be. Keep pushing forward, nose to grindstone, will eventually work out best.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Most workers in factories, mills, mines, clerks, all those working with figures are in better position to seek advancement, financial help. Live as you think others should, it brings rewards.

December 22 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Usually favorable aspects, especially for engineering, handling live stock, produce, merchandise. Avoid foolish physical risk, safeguard health, loved ones, spiritual welfare.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius) — You will have to think of more than one thing at a time today or you'll find the parade has passed. Check agenda early, push yourself, but not to straining point. You can achieve.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Some favorable influences for finances, business deals where some doubt may be as to sound action. After 4 p.m. some friendly rays. Pleasant, perhaps profitable contacts offered.

YOU BORN TODAY are bright, magnetic, interesting. Can make your life story one happening something very worth while listening to. You have plenty of energy, apply it to almost anything, and the ability to put across difficult things successfully, if you stick to it. Good natured, a leader; educate yourself, it means so much in life's work. You want your way because you believe in it. Will argue often for it. Tone this down for your own and loved ones' good. Avoid rushing into the unknown.

Hundreds of Regt. Prisoners of Reds Newsman Reports

Kaesong, Korea, July 20 (AP) —A North Korean correspondent attending the Korean war ceasefire talks today told allied correspondents: "Hundred's of survivors of Britain's Royal Gloucestershire Regiment are in the North Korean prison camps."

The communist correspondent could give no additional information, except that the troops were prisoners of war in barbed wire enclosures.

The fate of almost all the Gloucestershire unit has been a mystery. They were trapped, surrounded and overrun by overwhelming numbers of Chinese reds in the battle of the Imjin River in western Korea April 23-25.

Only 44 of more than 800 men of the regiment's 1st battalion were able to fight their way back to allied lines. Three days after Greek troops recaptured the area and discovered one badly wounded survivor, Pte. Lionel Essex, concealed in a hut.

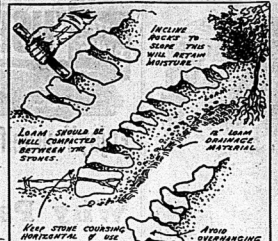
The rest of the men in the battalion have been listed as dead, wounded or missing.

Close examination of the ground where the men fought showed some shallow graves where the Chinese had buried some of the Gloucestershire dead. More bodies were buried on nearby ridges.

But comparatively few dead were recovered at the scene. That suggested many wounded and unwounded survivors had been forced to surrender to the Chinese hordes.

FAILS TO RECOVER AFTER HEART MASSAGE

Return from death was only temporary for Donald Lepine, left, shown with his father and brother Robert. Doctors in the General Hospital at Port Colborne, Ont., cut through his chest to massage his heart into beating again after it had stopped. The five-year-old boy rallied and appeared to be recovering. His 16 hours later his temperature rose to 106 and he expired. —Central Press Canadian.



HOW TO CONSTRUCT ROCK SLOPES

Provide always a stable rock foundation to keep rock garden in place and also a good bed of cinders or gravel for drainage.

Select only well weathered stone and keep coursing horizontal. Allow large soil pockets for plants. The soil mixture should be 3 parts loam from rotted sods and leaves, 1 part sharp sand and 2 parts of fine gravel. This mixture about 12" deep on top of drainage material. A dressing of fine gravel will keep roots of plants cool.

Avoid error of too small stones at bottom of slope. Do not use bricks to fill in odd natural crevices, as leader; educate yourself, it means so much in life's work. You want your way because you believe in it. Will argue often for it. Tone this down for your own and loved ones' good. Avoid rushing into the unknown.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Lucilla stiffened. Parties and Mrs. Colpo' hands were dabbing with 13 others. "Whatever you might say about Lucilla, she's no dissenter, if Mrs. Colpo hadn't whispered to Lucilla, "don't you even like Arthur Godfrey?" She caught this and also Lucilla's fierce glance. "Because that person why don't you like television?"

Lucilla had expressed herself so often on the subject at home that the words were grooved in her head, and rolled out without conscious volition. "It seems more infantile than comic books or pop-corn," she said, as fine-ly as if she were talking to Arthur, her husband. Mr. Marlowe's expression was a sad blend of surprise and hmm, not bad. When she said: "And the actions and directors must be having anything to do with it," his smile was fondly appreciative.

The end-of-class bell sounded; Lucilla's voice shrivelled away, as self-consciousness clutcher her. She had a panicky feeling that she'd talked too much and made a fool of herself.

She reached the end of the corridor, still trembling, and turned back, only to bang smack into the tweed-clad cause of her discomfiture. Outside in person. Only.

Mr. Lucilla, his smile of recognition conveyed nothing but de-zision. "Oh, hello, you're the one who spoke on television."

"I didn't mean to get up on a soap box she mumbled.

"I found it very interesting," Mr. Marlowe said. "I'm always glad when the students speak up."

She resented being lumped with the others, and her chin smarted, she was surprised to hear herself saying, "when you mentioned being in Florida, I was wondering if you knew my friend Rodney Mool?"

Mr. Marlowe, who had been standing with the transient look of a man who has someone else in mind to go, became suddenly thoughtful and unhurried. "Rodney Mool the prodigious?" His professional figure shifted ever so slightly, from the door and back to Lucilla. "I knew his work, of course." His voice trailed off, then returned in a big friendly tone. "What I started to say a minute ago," Mr. Marlowe said, "was that I'd be delighted with you more, about television."

She stared at him, searching for signs of condescension. He went on, with a charming crinkle twinkle that dissolved her suspicions. "Miss Meadows wouldn't like me tearing down their ideals. Promise you I won't, me sway."

"I promise," Lucilla said.

"So you know Rodney Mool." "He's an old beau of mine," Lucilla confided, and blushed at her shorts-clad legs gracefully. "It's amusing to think of Rodney as a big movie producer. He used to read me his proletarian novels in manuscript and rant on about capitalism."

"You mean"—Derek saido "You mean Derek peered furtively over his right shoulder as it even the vegetable pigeons had ears—"you mean Rodney Mool is a communist!" Lucilla was flattered to be the problem, at least momentarily. She advanced on them mortally at an accelerated rate and took Lucilla by the arm. Ignoring Derek, she said, "C'mon down and rest your cockers while I take my 4 o'clock quinerel.ol." Lucilla shrank from this world of mirth and gaiety, oil into fine-spun and intellectual atmosphere. Derek's aesthetic sensibilities were assaulted, he bravely hid the pain. "I'll see you girls after class," he called, he added, "and I'm dying to hear more about—er—that Hollywood matter."

As he left them, Paris muttered, "She's dying to hear him-self so yacketa yacketa." She wanted to know if he'd bawled Lucilla out for her speech on television. "I'll bet you just did it to make him sore," she said approvingly. "Him and his rouge-smooze, he'll tak your pants off."

Lucilla smiled grimly. She was thinking that Paris, like television, was rather crude and infantile.

Derek Marlowe's cheekbones, floating in her thoughts with the tantalizing nearness of a mirage, gave a new intensity to each exercise and beauty class that week. When Miss Willit had the students practice picking up marbles with their toes, "for graceful, supple footwork," neither Lucilla nor any of the other girls had read specifically that men love a woman who can play marbles with her feet, but the air at Beautiful-You was perfumed with such knowledge. Surprisingly, it turned out that one man actually did love a woman who could play marbles with her feet. Paris reported that Harry, her boy friend, was enchanted with the new game. "We were playing for 10 cents a marble, so he's cleaning me out. Honest, he's got toes like a gorilla."

Lucilla was still a little hazy in voice class the last period that afternoon. Mrs. Heath Jones wearing a dapple gray trotteur, announced to the students that a low resonant voice, vibrating with vitality, was the clue to a successful P.Q. or Personality Quotient. Whereas a high voice like Mrs. Jones demonstrated by pitching her tone to that of a frightened horse) indicated that person is nervous and unstable, with acid emotions.

She beckoned Miss Thumbold from a bench to distribute the mimeographed copies, a task Miss Thumbold performed with lumbering eagerness. Two Glamour Guides appeared, one carrying the small, boxed recording machine, the other a packet of black discs, which she bore at chest level like a crown on a velvet cushion. Mrs. Heath Jones placed the first disc on the machine, dismissed the Guides and addressed the class: "You may have a few moments to glance at the test before we begin." The students studied the paragraph on their sheets:

A slinky mink roamed the jungle searching for his lunch, and yet capriciously determined not to find it, when a mouse came along. However, the other animals, who were less particular, felt, with even a small juicy rodent will do.

Mrs. Heath Jones' nostrils constricted, "Rahily, the idea is not to make sense, but to test one's command of voice, diction and enunciation. Now Mr. Lyngate, you'll please begin."

Lucilla couldn't resist this direct appeal. She quoted Miss Willit's scientific explanation of the benefits derived. She also mentioned the Well-Street magazine article. Mrs. Heath Jones' face went a dull purple. Angle every soon hour. Her listener was impressed. Lucilla had to remind him several times about the task, before he finally departed into the kitchen.

She phoned Grisette's and was giving her order to the clerk when the door bell's odd noise like sobbing coming from the kitchen. She wondered uneasily if the repair man was suffering delayed shock. And two boxes of Miss Lucilla's

Mossadegh Agrees To Renew Talks On Oil Dispute

Britain Willing to Send Hugh Dalton to Tehran

Tehran, July 23 (CP)—An Iranian cabinet minister said today a formula has been found for reopening negotiations with Britain on the oil-nationalization dispute.

Usually-well-informed sources said Iran has agreed to a suggestion by W. Averell Harriman, United States special envoy, to "talk over" the dispute with a British cabinet minister.

The specific statement of progress in settling the Anglo-Iranian deadlock came from Dr. Kazim Sanjabi, Minister of Education, after a three-hour conference between Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, the cabinet and the Iranian Oil-Nationalization Board.

Another member of the government indicated that some formal announcement of the extent and nature of the progress might be made after continued talks with Harriman.

Named Men Not Available

Harriman's proposal, suggesting Hugh Gaitskell, Chancellor of the Exchequer, be conveyed to Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh, was reported to be preferred Sir Stafford Cripps, Gaitskell's predecessor now in Switzerland for health reasons. Cripps was also reported to be unwilling because of his resignation, the sources said.

The same sources said Britain was informed of Mossadegh's decision but has rejected neither Gaitskell nor Cripps was available. Britain is willing, however, to send another leading minister with "knowledge of economics."

It was believed this might be Hugh Dalton, Minister of Local Government and Planning, a former treasury official.

Meanwhile, according to local observers, it appears Iran might be willing to shelve the oil nationalization law a little while Britain might go further than her earlier intention of recognizing only the principle of and "some form" of nationalization.

After last night's two-hour conference between Harriman and members of Iran's oil committee at the Shah's summer palace, the Iranian press openly hailed Harriman, normally serious and reticent, as "full of progress". questions. "It's full of progress", was all the United States envoy would say.

Memorandum Drawn Up

One Iranian commission member said last night's talk was mainly about preventing a close-down of Iran's refineries.

Kazem Hassidi, a government representative on the oil board, said:

"The cabinet and the joint oil board have drawn up a memorandum which will be handed to Harriman tonight.

U.S. Naval Chief Lies in State In Bay of Naples

Naples, Italy, July 23—(AP)—The body of Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, United States Chief of Naval Operations, lay aboard an American Navy ship in the Bay of Naples today. The 54-year-old admiral died in his hotel here Sunday after suffering two heart attacks.

Sherman, boss of the American Navy since 1949, had just completed a tour of Europe's Atlantic Pact military command and also made a visit to Generalissimo Franco during which he was believed to have reached a tentative agreement for American use of Spanish naval and air bases.

Sherman's body will be taken tomorrow to Naples airport for its flight home after simple services aboard the American warship USS. S. S. Mt. Olympus.

A message from President Truman said the "country's loss is great" and State Secretary Dean Acheson, holding the dual member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff as "a statesman who saw beyond the military problems to the objectives of national policy."

Mrs. Sherman, who was at her husband's bedside when he died, left last night for the United States by special plane.

The admiral's body was placed aboard the U.S.S. Mt. Olympus. It is expected to be flown home shortly for burial.

Vice-Chief To Take Over

Also at the deathbed was Admiral Robert B. Carney, American commander in chief in Italy, his southern Europe, who is being mentioned as a possible successor to Sherman. Admiral L. D. McCormick, vice-chief of naval operations, also came over from Washington temporarily.

Sherman replaced Admiral Louis Denfeld as navy chief in the bitter squabble over unification of the Army, Navy and Air Force. A "fighting admiral" and "admiral", he was jumped over the heads of nine senior officers to become the youngest chief of operations in the Navy's history.

The Admiral arrived here Saturday after talks in Madrid, Paris and London. Last week he talked with him said he appeared in good health, but looked tired.

Known as a trouble-shooting compromise expert, Sherman first learned about the Navy from his grandfather, an old New Bedford, Mass., whaling captain. Born in Merrimac, N.H., he was graduated second in his class at Annapolis in 1917 and saw service in the First World War.

During the Second World War he served as chief of staff to the commander of the Pacific Fleet Air Force and later as deputy chief of staff.

Chatham Boy Saves Trucker From Drowning

Erieau, Ont., July 23 (CP) — A 16-year-old Chatham boy was credited Sunday with saving the life of a driver whose truck rolled into Lake Erie near here.

Bill Howe, passing on a bicycle, swam underwater to the cab and opened the truck door. Alfred Lee, Bar Refuse of Erieau, he pulled the truck driver to safety.

U.N. NEGOTIATORS MEET AGAIN TO RESUME TALKS

Month Meeting Will Take Place Wednesday

U.N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 23 (AP)—Allied negotiators gathered here again tonight, armed with final United Nations instructions for the resumption of Korean war cease-fire talks in Kaesong Wednesday.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief of the five-man U.N. team, flew back from Tokyo after a series of conferences with Gen. Matthew Ridgway and was accompanied by two other U. N. delegates, Maj.-Gen. L. C. Craigie and Rear-Admiral Arleigh Burke.

They met with the supreme allied commander Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

The decisions made in Tokyo probably will remain secret until the ninth military negotiators in a Kaesong schoolhouse Wednesday.

War 13 Months Old

The Korean war will be 13 months old Wednesday. Whether it will end soon or flare up anew in bloody fighting hinges on settlement of one vital question: Shall the question of withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea be placed on the cease-fire agenda?

The reds have insisted that the question be debated in full-scale political talks after the war. It is the list of topics for discussion has been deadlocked.

The United Nations have said it is a political matter to be decided after an armistice.

Wednesday's meeting may produce a deadlock, or a compromise that will permit the talks to go on.

The eighth meeting between allied and red negotiators ended abruptly Saturday after the communists requested a recess "to enable both sides to study the proposals that are contained in Consultations Possibly Held

It may be the last wanted time to consult Peiping and Moscow.

Joy flew to Tokyo Saturday, accompanied by delegates Maj.-Gen. C. Craigie of the U.S. Air Force and Rear-Admiral Arleigh Burke.

Maj.-Gen. H. I. Hodes and Maj.-Gen. Paik Sun Yup, the other members of the allied delegation, did not accompany Joy.

It is presumed Paik used the interval to report to the south Korean President, Syngman Rhee.

Eisenhower Opens New Headquarters

Marly Le Roi, France, July 22. (AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower opened his new Atlantic Pact headquarters today and said it is the first Allied headquarters "which will be built to peace to serve peace and not wage war."

The new headquarters, seat of western European defence, came into existence at 12:25 p.m., after a colorful ceremony presided over by Eisenhower and Vincent Auriol, president of France.

Auriol, in welcoming Eisenhower, "that with high courage and faith in the support of our people and the Grace of God, we shall not fail in striving to lift fear or callbacks and slave camps."

Familiar Tirade Against Yugoslavia Voiced by Communist Big-Wigs

Warsaw, Poland, July 23—(AP) Russia's deputy premier, V. M. Molotov, and military hero Marshal Georgi K. Zhukov headed a large group of dignitaries from Russia and the people's (communist) democracies gathered here during the weekend to celebrate the seventh anniversary of Poland's communist regime.

In the presence of these high officials was considered significant.

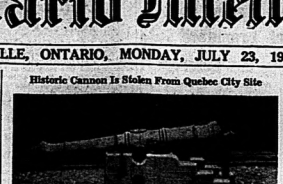
Western observers outside Poland speculated that the communist-bloc boss of Yugoslavia as an agent of the imperialists. He said that the regime will not be lasting much longer.

Realizing that the Yugoslav people hate this hired gang of criminals who stole its way to power, he said, "it holds itself up by force and terror and the fascist methods of ruling. The peoples of Yugoslavia have the right to freedom and liquidation of the Titoist fascist regime."

Russia's former foreign minister also denounced establishment of American bases in Europe and the middle east.

On the platform at the Polish National Theatre, Molotov also spoke were Poland's president Boleslaw Beirut, Marshal Zhukov, Deputy Premier Hilary Minc, Walter Ulbricht of the East German Republic and Marshal Konstantin Rokossovsky, Poland's Defence Minister.

Western observers were interested to see Rokossovsky at the festivities. His prolonged absence from official functions had led to rumors that he had been shot or had committed suicide.



Historic Cannon Is Stolen From Quebec City Site

Hope Fades for 38 on Plane, Centre Hunt on Panhandle

Vancouver, July 23. (CP)—A Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-4—The first Korean airlift plane to meet disaster in 83,000,000 miles of flying—was hunted by air and sea today along the Alaska Panhandle.

Hope was fading for the 38 occupants of the four-engined aircraft, which vanished Saturday.

But, with gradually-improving weather forecast for today, plans were made to step up the scope of the search for the plane, which may have disappeared into the Pacific or crashed in one of the mountains which tower as high as 13,000 feet.

More than 20 aircraft from Juneau and Anchorage in Alaska took off in the hunt today. They include four C.P.A. planes, two U.S. air force planes, 12 U. S. Coast Guard aircraft and two civil air patrol planes.

Col. W. G. Walton, U.S. Air Force officer directing the search at Juneau, said he "certainly hope" the hunt will uncover either the lost liner or survivors.

He described the area being searched as "incredibly rugged" but said he thought it possible that Capt. Victor Fix of Vancouver, pilot of the missing plane, could have made a landing on water on one of the narrow valleys of the panhandle.

It was reported that Canadian Navy vessels, including a destroyer, are now in the three U.S. Coast Guard cutters now on the scene.

Also planes were sent from Vancouver early Saturday with Anchorage, Alaska, as first stop.

Aboard the plane were 32 Canadian Navy men, three United States Army officers, three civilians attached to the U.S. Army and 23 U.S. Air Force men bound for Elmendorf Air Force base, the plane's final destination

It made its last position report at 1:17 a.m. (P.D.T.) Saturday off Cape Spencer, about 80 miles west of Juneau, and 300 air miles south of Anchorage.

Two Navy Men

The Navy men were identified yesterday as AB. Robert J. Moore of Westphal, Ont., and AB. Frank R. Laker, of Winnipeg.

Other passengers included Col. Audley H. F. Stephan, who helped balance Japan's post-war occupation budget, and Gen. Fix, Claude, of Seattle, an expert on the Far East. His family declined to discuss the plane's passengers on military security.

A C.P.A. spokesman here said 20 planes participated in yesterday's futile search, the first time that so many aircraft moved aircraft to get off the ground.

Each flight had to be monitored to keep the planes from crowding into each other in the sooty weather. Planes skimming the waters cut the panhandle, the coastal strip extending south of Alaska proper, were unable to complete their missions because of poor visibility.

R.C.A.F. Stands by, awaiting any requests from the United States Coast Guard officials conducting the hunt.

Thousands Wail, Guns Boom As Murdered Abdullah Buried

Amman, Jordan, July 23—(AP) Bugles sounded a funeral dirge across the barren, rocky hills of Jordan as the body of murdered King Abdullah was lowered into his grave. Guns of the Arab legion boomed out a 21-gun salute. Jordan's vals as the cortege moved to the grave.

The wailing of thousands of Arab women could be heard on the surrounding hills during the solemn funeral procession from the assassinated King's royal palace to his burial place.

Black flags draped this dusty little capital in mourning after three months of mourning for the powerful, British-supported King. He was assassinated Friday as he went to pray at the tomb of his father in Jerusalem's Old City in the Jordan-held old city of Jerusalem.

Chant Death Prayers

Commanders of Abdullah's Arab legion had carried the flag-draped coffin from the palace to a gun carriage and then from the carriage to the grave. High Moslem priests chanted death prayers.

Abdullah's white horse in black, and carrying Abdullah's silver sword and his riding boots, led the funeral procession immediately behind the coffin.

An estimated 7,000 dignitaries from neighboring Arab countries and from other parts of the world marched in the procession. Only those with special permits were permitted to take part in the procession. Others were kept away by machine-gun and barbed-wire emplacements on the surrounding hills.

After the body lay in state in the palace throne room, with commanders of the Arab Legion in formal uniforms and Bedouin Moslem leaders forming a ring of honor around it.

Capital Guarded

The Arab Legion troops in full battle dress guarded the capital, but the city was calm.

The late King's nephew, Prince Abdul Illah, regent of neighboring Iraq, and his son, Prince Naif, now regent of Iraq, headed the list of mourners. Abdullah's eldest son, Prince Talal, is still ailing in Switzerland and did not come home for the funeral.

Delegations came from all Arab countries, a military mission from Turkey, the diplomatic corps, high Jordan officials and notables attended.

The body arrived in Israel was increased vigilance.

Ralph Parker, Times correspondent of the Jerusalem Post, unofficial spokesman of the Israel Foreign Office, declared that Israel has no doubt that the exiled Mufti of Jerusalem, leader of Moslem fanatics, was connected with the slaying.

But Cairo the Mufti denied that he had anything to do with the assassination.

FAMILY TRAGEDY SEES FIVE DROWN IN LAKE SIMCOE

Motorboat Capsizes, Two Pulled From Water

Stroud, Ont., July 23—(CP)—While almost all their close relatives celebrated their annual family reunion ashore, five men were drowned Sunday when their motorboat capsized in choppy Lake Simcoe as they were returning from a fishing trip.

Two other members of the same family were saved only because another boat happened to break down near the scene of the tragedy. All five victims were widowed, and 12 children fatherless.

The drowning victims were Wesley Fletcher, 68; his sons, Harvel, 30, Lorne, 47 and Austin, 32, and his son-in-law, Beverley Leslie, 43-year-old Toronto public school principal.

Lorne Fletcher, 21-year-old son, Glen, and Kenneth Hill, 22, were pulled from the water three-quarters of an hour after the accident by June Fraser, 19, and Jack Fraser, 16, who had just installed motor launch to the scene as the two exhausted youths clung to the boat. They righted overturned boat.

Provincial police, unable to recover the bodies before dusk, took up the task again today.

Hill Rescued

The fishing party was returning from Fox Island, two miles offshore, when the 12-ft. boat capsized high in the air by the weight of a 18-horsepower outboard motor, apparently struck rough water and made a sharp turn.

Wesley Fletcher, a resident of Drayton, Ont., as was his son, Harvel, was a former councillor of Peel and Marlborough Townships. Austin and Lorne were from Fergus, Ont. Austin left five children, Harvel and Lorne three each.

H.M.C.S. Nootka Leaves Korea After Six Months

Ottawa, July 23—(CP) — The Canadian destroyer Nootka is coming home from Korea.

The navy announced today that the Nootka, under command of Lieut.-Cmdr. Jack Hughes-Games of Halifax, is now on her way back to Canada after a six-month tour of duty in Korean waters.

The Nootka, first east coast destroyer to return from the eastern operations, has been relieved by H.M.C.S. Cayuga. She will make a two-day stop at Esquimalt naval base near Victoria July 31 and Aug. 2 and will proceed to her home base at Halifax via the Panama Canal. She is expected to reach Halifax Aug. 21.

The Nootka sailed from Halifax for Korean waters Nov. 25 and arrived there in January, relieving H.M.C.S. Sioux.

Speaker of N.Z. House Would Like To See Banned Epithets Reinstated

Wellington, N.Z., July 23—(CP) — The Speaker of New Zealand's House of Representatives has a red book of banned words and phrases, use of which is liable to be ruled unparliamentary.

The Minister of External Affairs, Mr. F. W. Doidge, made a plea for an overhaul of the list when speaking in the house, this week. "When you study our little book of words you find that it is a confidence, hooey, conceit and make-believe listed as unparliamentary," he said.

"But if we turn in the Hansards of the House of Commons we find an amazing latitude allowed. Thus we find Mr. Churchill describing Mr. Aneurin Bevan as a "squalid nuisance" and Mr. Bevan calling Mr. Churchill a "parasite" with reprimand.

"In Australia we find even more terms tolerated. On one occasion Mr. William Hughes attacked the then prime minister, Mr. A. Deakin, and called him unreliable and corrupt. The speaker actually apologized to Mr. Hughes for interrupting his speech.

"Critics could criticize the work of the words listed in our book. It is all right as it is, he behavior in a young ladies' finishing school, but it is ridiculous that members should be permitted some latitude without being responsible for a breach of temperate decorum."

The speaker, Mr. M. H. Oram, said the main question was to determine whether the words were offensive in the circumstances. He had never considered himself bound by the list of words in the book.

Truman Calls For Full Speed Ahead On Defence Plans

Necessary To Go Beyond 3,500,000-Man Strength

Washington, July 23 — (AP)— President Truman today told Congress it probably will be necessary to strengthen the armed forces beyond the present goal of 3,500,00 men, regardless of peace prospects in Korea.

He called for "full speed ahead" on the military build-up, with no yielding to those who would discard the anti-inflation control "or shoot it full of holes."

Truman sent his mid-year economic report, went to Congress along with a 255-page economic review prepared by his council of economic advisers. In it, Truman repeated his longstanding request for approval of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

Truman set his sights on a $30,000,000,000 increase in the annual military spending rate in the year ahead.

2,000,000 More Workers

This, he said, will require up to 2,000,000 more workers, a five-per-cent boost in national output despite cuts in civilian goods plus stiff taxes and controls to offset a widening inflationary gap.

At this moment, he disclosed, the armed forces are two-thirds of the goals for military strength, and it is quite possible we shall have to raise them in several key portant respects."

The president called the 3,500,000 — man strength of the armed forces, now almost reached, "the minimum" which must be increased "as the situation requires."

Truman struck out at "extremists" who "at the first signs of a let-down of the conflict in Korea ... have commenced to agitate for a reduction in our defence program."

Asks Labor Minister Give Liquor Ruling

Toronto, July 23 — (CP) William Mills, president of the Ontario Provincial Police Union (A.F.L.), said today that he will seek a ruling from Labor Minister Daley Halliday on the question of whether employees of government liquor stores and brewers' warehouses may join a trade union.

In a wire to Premier Frost Saturday, Mr. Mills demanded the reinstatement of Police Commissioner G. Arthur Welsh "for his dictatorial and discriminatory attitude" in refusing to recognize union organization among the Liquor Control Board employees."

Said Mr. Mills today: "We hope to have the labor minister establish the full definition of the Labor Relations Act covering union organization of government employees not in the regular civil service."

Two-Year-Old Fatally Injured

Run over by a backing auto near her home, two-year-old Betty Ann Semark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Semark, 36 St. Charles St., was fatally injured Saturday evening and died an hour later in Belleville General Hospital. She suffered face and chest injuries.

Police who investigated the accident said the little girl had been playing in a vacant lot near the intersection of St. Charles and Ridley St., when Fred Saunders, Ridley St. backed his car toward the intersection. She ran out into the road as the car approached and the driver failed to see her.

Felt a Bump

Saunders told police that he had not realized anything had happened until he felt a bump and stopped.

Several doctors were called but Saunders' son was finding one home. The unconscious girl was then taken to the hospital in the hope that she might be saved, but died an hour later.

The pasture is 20 miles west of Owen Sound.

Investigate Fire In Grimsby Block

Grimsby, Ont., July 23 —(CP)— A re-investigation of the Grimsby fire marshal's department today is investigating circumstances surrounding a fire which broke out at the rear of a downtown business block Saturday afternoon.

Fire Chief Arthur Jennings described the blaze as "definitely incendiary," and said that had it not been discovered when it was, another five minutes would have resulted in loss of the five-unit possible danger to human life. The fire, he said, had been set in cardboard cartons that he believed was a coal box, at the back of a drug store.

Following the incident Forsythe drove his car to Belleville where he received medical attention at the hospital.

Ordered Off Property

The family quarrel which came to a head Saturday night was said to have been going on for at least six weeks. Forsythe's wife, with their two children, had gone home to live with her parents. On visits to see his children Forsythe had been ordered off the Mullett property on several occasions.

Saturday night it is reported that Forsythe had come with his mother to get the children when he was again ordered off the property by Mullett. Charges laid as a result of the incident with the 38-40 hunting rifle followed.

The incident was investigated by Provincial Constable Harry Barker of Belleville and they passed over to Cpl. Jack Bond of Madoc. Police will confer with Crown Attorney H. C. Donnan with respect to any charge against Mullett.

Cash, Postal Notes, Stamps Loot As Safe Blown at Frankford

Frankford,—(Special) — Safe-crackers some time over the weekend entered the Frankford post office and blew the safe, escaping with approximately $600 in cash, postal notes and stamps.

The smashed safe was discovered this morning by the postmasters assistant, Miss Kathleen MacAulay, when she opened the office for the day's business. She found the safe blown open and the contents missing.

Chief of Police Ed McGeachie of Frankford said entry to the post office building had been made by a back south window which had been pried up and the inside bars then pried off. The safe-crackers made their escape by the back door, which was opened from the inside.

Villagers residing near the post office told police they had heard a muffled explosion about three o'clock this morning but at the time had not considered the matter worth investigating. The explosion was heard by two families living across the street from the post office.

Provincial police Constable Harry Barker, who investigated with Corporal J. Morden and James Driscoll, former OPP photographer, said this morning that "the safecracking was a real professional job." The door was blown open, completely wrecked, and was hanging on one hinge.

Quantity, Quality Raspberry Yield Said Best in Years

Canning plants, especially in Prince Edward county, are readying for one of the biggest yields of raspberries in years.

Not only is the quantity greatly in excess of previous seasons, but veteran growers and canning officials state the early season quality rates well above that of other years.

Some difficulty is being experienced in obtaining sufficient efficient picking help, since the better-than-average pea harvest overlapped the berry field during the first few days. However, since the pea crop is expected to be finish in midweek, berry growers should get their quota of help for what they term the "best picking" which starts today and tomorrow.

Incidentally, canning factories in Wellington and other parts of the district operated on Sunday in order to clear their plants of weekend accumulation of peas.

Timely Rains Help

Timely rains, berry growers say, are also responsible for the heavy yield this year.

Cherry stores are losing no time in getting their packs on the market. One company sent a fleet of trucks to one Wellington canning plant and loaded 7,000 cases. Another took 6,000 cases of "Sweet Kelly" cherries for canning shipment.

Growers are receiving 30 cents per box for berries delivered at factories.

Call for Tenders For Grade, Fill On Highway 62

The Ontario Department of Highways will shortly call for tenders for the construction of grade and fill on eight and a half miles of No. 62 Highway north of Bancroft, it was stated today by Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., for Hastings East.

With the completion of this stretch of road, and also with the completion of the construction in progress, all of No. 62 Highway from Madoc to Combermere will have been re-constructed.

The section of highway on which tenders are to be called runs from the village of Bancroft to Selby Hill, which was rebuilt two years ago.

Construction work on the highway is now underway at Bannockburn and is expected will be completed within a few weeks, and also between Bancroft and Bancroft, is also nearing completion. Another stretch of the highway on which work is progressing is from four miles south of Maynooth to two miles east of Maynooth.

It was expected that some regraded sections of the highway would be blacktopped this year, but Mr. Robson said this was now doubtful. However, the new stretch of highway at L'Amable may still be surfaced this year, it was stated.

Sea Cadet Suffers Minor Injuries In Boat Mishap

Ron Day, a member of the sea cadet ship "Quinte", suffered minor abrasions to his left leg yesterday afternoon when the sea cadet whaler was rammed by Rae Roblin's runabout at the race meet staged off the government dock.

No one was seriously injured.

Damage to the whaler was extensive, with a V-shaped gouge smashed in its starboard side just aft of the bow. The whaler had split the whaler's cedar planking all the way to the keel.

There was no damage sustained by Roblin's boat.

The accident occurred following the runabout races. Dr. Harold Craig was preparing to do some water skiing behind the Roblin boat when the collision occurred. The motorboat had not reached its top speed at the time of the crash.

Day, sitting in the bow, was tossed into the air. Roblin's boat immediately picked up the sea-cadet when the whaler which was under the command of sea cadet Sid Samuels and had them aboard before the whaler filled with water and rolled over.

Day was taken to the doctor, immediately, as it was feared that his leg may have been broken. It was found that he was suffering only minor abrasions.

The whaler was righted and Dr Craig sat in the submerged stern in order to lift the bow high enough to permit its being towed to the sea cadet base where repairs will be made.

Driver Suffers Nose Injuries As Car Rolls

Ernest C. Roberts, 23, of 25 North Park Street, suffered a broken nose and cuts and bruises when his car went out of control and rolled over.

Roberts was driving alone on North Park Street when he lost control of his car and the vehicle rolled over in the ditch. When Provincial police arrived the driver was not at the scene of the accident but he was located later at his home. At the time of the accident Roberts had only a temporary driver's permit.

The accident was investigated by Provincial Constables McCready and Barker.

Born in what used to be Czernowitz, Austria, but what is now Russian, Rumania, Mrs. Lerner fled to Russia during the Second World War. In 1946 she posted a letter to Prime Minister Stalin appealing for permission to join her son in Israel.

Soviet authorities usually permit no emigration. But after a considerable wait, she got a passport.

'Astra' Captures Challenge Trophy In Second Bay Race Meet in Years

Bright sunshine and a strong, steady northwesterly wind made for ideal sailing conditions yesterday afternoon as local yachtsmen staged their second race meet of the year.

In the feature event for sailing yachts, Group Captain Hautrey of RCAF station, Trenton, skippered "Astra" twice around the two-mile course in one hour and 51 minutes to finish eight minutes in front of George Graham's "Windrift I". His victory gives him possession of the W. G. Mikel Challenge Trophy which was won in the first meet of the year by J. J. Morch in the "Dorlan". "Dorlan" did not take part yesterday.

The boats had barely time to dock before George Graham presented Group Captain Hautrey with a challenge for the cup. The next race will be held on August 4.

In the runabout race Rae Roblin driving "Miss Roblin" came in in front of J. Sprague on the "Windrift II" driving through the out. He cut in sharply rounding the finishing buoy to win by a few seconds, finishing the race were Fred Rawson driving "Amy Lynn" and Ted Wright in the "Alli". They finished in that order.

In the dinghy race, Jack Dickens defeated a boat from the RCAF station by nine minutes and seconds, finishing the two lap course from the government dock to Cow Island. The bay bridge and back, in one hour and 28 minutes.

Only One Entrant

Don Kellaway was the only entrant in the snipe class and he sailed the same course as the dinghys in one hour and 36 minutes.

In the race for the Mikel Trophy, Maurice Callaghan, skippering Harold Seldon's "Helicon" defeated Ken Thomas and Jack Burrows in the "Viking" and the Haggis boys in "Joka." George Graham in "Windrift I", Group Captain Hautrey in "Astra" and Jack Sills in "Windrift II" completed the starting lineup.

On the first turn at Peak's Point, the "Joka" appeared to be in the lead. She lacked sweep over along the south shore and became trapped behind the islands losing so much way on the other boats that she never was in contention again.

Meanwhile, "Windrift II" and "Astra" made their way up the bay together just north of the islands with "Windrift I" in the lead.

Great Manoeuvre

"Windrift II" tacked away across the north shore of the bay and then made its run to the bridge on one long tack. It was a great manoeuvre by Jack Sills who closed rapidly on the leaders to move from sixth place at the start to third place at the start of the second lap.

Meanwhile the "Helicon" stayed close to the island and lost much valuable ground on the leaders. "Viking" following a course much similar to the one taken by "Windrift II" came up to the bridge in fourth position.

At the start of the second lap it was "Windrift I", "Astra," "Windrift II," "Viking," "Helicon" and "Joka" in that order.

Graham held his small lead over "Astra" around the turn off Peak's Point on the second lap. He then followed the same course which he had taken on the first lap, tying in close to Cow Island.

Comfortable Lead

Meanwhile "Astra," taking a leaf from Jack Sills' book tacked away over to the north coming about on a course that was right at the buoy at the bay bridge on one tack. This move caught "Windrift II" napping and gave the "Astra" a comfortable lead when it became necessary for "Windrift" to tack out from the island to give it room to make the turn for the bridge.

"Windrift II" following the course it laid out in the first lap closed rapidly on "Windrift I" but could not overtake her.

At the finish it was "Astra," "Windrift I," "Windrift II," "Viking," "Helicon" and "Joka."

Swing Bridge Across Bay Under Discussion

A delegation from the two counties of Hastings and Prince Edward will meet with officials of the Federal Department of Public Works to discuss the construction of a swing bridge across the Bay or Quinte at Deseronto.

Frank S. Follwell, M. P. P. for Hastings South, has been contacted by the committee and will seek an appointment with the department officials.

Last week, a delegation from Hastings with Roscoe Robson, M.L.A., along with the reeves of Deseronto and Ameliasburg, waited on the Department of Highways at Toronto to discuss the construction of a bridge across the bay at Deseronto. They were assured by Hon. George Doucett, highways minister, that the department would pay 80 per cent of the cost of a causeway, the balance to be divided between Hastings and Prince Edward.

Mr. Roscoe Robson, M. L. A., for Hastings East, said this was as far as the Department could go, as construction of a swing bridge would be a matter for the federal government to undertake.

The bay is one half mile across at the point where the bridge and causeway would be constructed. Depth of the bay, with the exception of a 30-foot ship channel, ranges from seven to 13 feet, it was stated.

Mr. Robson said that preliminary estimates of the cost of the causeway were between $140,000 and $150,000.

U.S. Tax Collections Set Record in Last Year

Washington, July 23. (AP)—Federal tax collections in the United States totalled a record $50,386,682,228 in fiscal year 1951, which ended June 30, the Internal Revenue Bureau announced Saturday. That was a 15-per-cent gain over the previous high of $43,800,276,776 in the fiscal year 1945. Individual income tax collections reached an unprecedented $26,302,481,995 in 1951.

TRUMAN CALLS

It would be a "costly mistake" to heed such counsel, he said.

Red Rulers Main Threat

"The main danger to world peace comes from the Soviet rulers, from the growing military force at their disposal, and from their proved willingness to use aggression to gain their ends," he said.

"The military build-up of the Soviet Union, which has been continuing since 1945, has no other purpose than to blackmail the free world into submission to communist domination.

"Or, if the free world lacks strength of determination to prevent it, the purpose is to overrun its members one by one.

The costs of national security, domestic and foreign, now are running above $35,000,000,000 a year, he said. The rate will be $50,000,000,000 by New Year's Day and nearly $65,000,000,000 a year hence.

No. 6 R.D. Crews Fly 10 Mitchells From U.S. Field

Trenton — (Special)—Two and one-half million dollars worth of aircraft, purchased by the Canadian government from United States, has been brought to No. 6 Repair Depot, Trenton, in the past week, from Mobile, Ala.

The planes, all Mitchell bombers, were flown from Alabama by aircrews of the Acceptance and Ferry Flight Command of No. 6 R.D. under Squadron Leader Joe McCarthy. Ten of the bombers, each worth $250,000, were flown in, the last of them hitting the deck at Trenton on Saturday. Twenty pilots, plus mechanics, made the Mobile trip.

The ships were bought by Canada for dispersal to training schools. They are the B-25s of the Second World War.

$500 Damage As Truck Skids

Trenton — (Special) — A pick-up truck, driven by George Lavertue of Toronto, went out of control on wet pavement on Saturday night striking a parked car and breaking off a telephone pole and two traffic signs. The crash occurred just west of the Dundas and Dufferin Street intersection.

The truck, carrying two passengers, Hollyrah and N. Scale both of Toronto, was proceeding east when the [traffic light] changed at the river and started to stop. Instead, the vehicle went into a skid, careening up over the boulevard on the south side into John Shambrook's parked car. The truck finally came to a halt after the two signs had been smashed.

Large Boat Passes Through

Fishing at the mouth

Fishing at the mouth of the river on Saturday, Ronnie Dobbie of 83 Bay Street picked up a 2½-pound muskie. The big fish gave him a great struggle and had to be subdued by a club before it was finally lifted into the boat.

Sandra, 4, escaped injury on Saturday when they ran out from the curb in front of the Century Theatre into the side of a car driven by Norman J. Braida of Acton, Ont.

Eye-witnesses said the children threw their hands up, avoiding impact with the side of the car. Police reported that the imprint of little hands could be seen on the rear door of the auto afterwards. The little girl sustained a skinned nose where it rubbed against the door.

The Braida car was proceeding west and had not stopped by the time the children ran into it. Furthermore, the driver had seen the children running out from the curb.

Parents of the children are Mr. and Mrs. Keith Menzie of Trenton Street, Trenton.

Lorne and Wilkins Collision

A collision on Friday at the corner of Lorne and Wilkins streets resulted in head bruises to Mrs. Willie Speight and her seven-year-old son, Paul, of Middleton Park.

A car driven by Abel Brien of Carrying Place, and a truck operated by Gordon Unger of Trenton came together at the intersection, causing a total of $125 to both machines.

Mrs. Speight and her son were riding on the Brien car and were thrown heavily against the windshield when the crash occurred.

Mr. Unger's caste and son, Garry, experienced severe shaking but were not hurt.

Dog's Greeting Thought Cause Of Fatal Shot

Owen Sound, Ont., July 23—(CP)—A dog's excited greeting is believed to have caused its owner to shoot and kill himself here early today.

Lloyd Bowman Seaman, 34, accidentally shot and killed himself shortly after 1 a. m. when a 22 rifle bullet entered his head.

Seaman had just stepped out of his car on his return from an unsuccessful hunting trip when his hound, Sport, started jump and bark for joy. As Seaman banged the car door shut his rifle discharged.

It is thought that the dog had jumped up to greet his master in the usual manner, causing the gun to be fired.

"It forms the basis on which negotiations with the British might be resumed."

The memorandum apparently is based on the result of the weeklong talks between Harriman and Iranian leaders.

There was no indication what specific points were contained in the memorandum.

If Britain finds the Iranian "formula" acceptable, Harriman's mission may have averted a deadlock which might brought the world's biggest refinery at Abadan, on the Persian Gulf, to a virtual standstill and might have imperilled the peace of the world.

Charged With Murder By T.B. Injections

Frankfurt, Germany, July 23—(Reuters)—Friedrich Baecher, 29, will be tried on charges of murdering his wife by injecting her with tuberculosis germs, the public prosecutor announced today.

Baecher, a former medical student, gave himself up last March and said he killed his wife, a nurse in May, 1949.

She believed he was giving her a salvarsan injection to treat syphilis, on the Parsifan cure, but was cremated when a post-mortem examination indicated she died of tuberculosis.

THOMASBURG

Highways Truck Hits Sedan, Rolls in Ditch

Thomasburg—A Department of Highways truck, driven by Hugh McGuire, of Tweed, collided head-on with a sedan, driven by Donald McInroy of Moira, at the corner in front of the residence of Mrs. Gideon Ridout on Friday.

The truck went out of control into the west ditch, broke off a telephone pole and hydro wiring, turning completely over. Mr. McGuire, superintendent of this district, and Mr. McInroy and occupants were unharmed, although the cab was badly smashed in.

The Ridout vehicle came to rest on its side crosswise to the road. None of its occupants was injured.

After the accident was investigated by Constable George Spratt of Tweed, traffic was rerouted on the highway, which is under construction, east of the village.

Wrecking truck from Thomasburg removed Mr. McInroy's car from the scene of the accident while a Department of Highways crane removed the truck.

Several Boys Win Y Camp Awards

Awards have been announced at the Moira Lake Y.M.C.A. camp for the two-week period ending July 14.

Rob Roy McGregor, Roy Rupert and Mic Mac Kesterus were double honor campers each having been top boy in his cabin for each camp session. Other honor campers are Don Wilson, Jim Robinson, Dennis Clarke, George Fowler, Doug Aselstine, John Schillinger, Bill Green, Jim Green, Bob Saunders and George Ketchen. The honor is based on co-operation, courtesy, punctuality and tidiness.

Chris Rupert has been recognized as the handiest boy in camp always ready to help when needed. Cabin honors went to cabin number two of which Bill Cornell was leader and cabin number seven of which Doug Shook was counsellor.

Dave Giles and Maurice Wright took top honors in craft work. The quality and quantity of the work done in the craft shack has been greatly in excess of craft work of former years.

Rat Spoils Trip

Ten boys enjoyed the overnight canoe trip up the Moira River during the week until the rat damaged their provisions along with that of the other campers who were spending the night on Sunset Hill.

Jack Pringle and Allen Hackett were responsible for the arrival at camp passed their tests and were presented with a colorful ceremony. Swimming and boating is an important feature of the camp program. Special instruction and water safety makes for the enjoyment of the water with prizes offered for its proper usage.

An overland trip to the fluorspar mine and a boat trip to the lead mine proved educational. Chris Rupert was able to give some interesting information and the campers found lots of fools and quartz were prized treasures for the camera.

A visitor to the camp was Justice Charles Cameron of Ottawa, who listened to the court cases in former years is still fresh in the minds of Belleville people. His son, Rod Cameron, who accompanied him, was a former camper and his visit was greatly appreciated.

Variety Night Enjoyed

The Variety Night presented on July 20 before an audience of parents and cottagers, under the direction of Dr. Ken Mara, was an outstanding performance, considering the short time in a busy camp program for rehearsals. The boys' camp choir delighted the audience with several numbers. Members of the choir were Jim Green, John Davidson, Rob Roy McGregor, Dick Green, David Punchard, James Mockford, Paul Boyd, Bill Green, Dennis Clarke and Jim Robinson, Don Wilson and Dick Hunt.

The quartet of Doug Soule, Tom Lynch, Bill Green and Barry Sells was well received as were the piano duets by Chris Rupert and violin solo by Maurice Wright and the vocal solo by Paul Boyd. A. M. Cassidy, Belleville, director of lac cook in any boys' camp, delighted the campers and audiences with his accordion solos and his features many camp programs. Jack Pringle was also a talking feature on the program. The humorous skit "Big Sing-song and the message by Camp Director, J. Kenneth Hansel, wound up a very fine evening.

As the last days for boys' camping close in, the excitement of girls becomes evident around the Y.M.C.A. in anticipation of their camping which gets underway at the end of the week. The camp is completely filled until August 11 with only a few vacancies remaining for this last week. Inquiries should be directed immediately to the Y.M.C.A. for the few remaining reservations. All medical certificates and other registrations forms must be at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday.

WE MUST START THE SEAWAY

Canadians might just as well face the fact, early as late, that the St. Lawrence Seaway discussions at present being carried on in the public works committee of the House of Representatives in Washington are doomed. True, there is a slight possibility that the committee will eventually emerge with a favorable report for the House, but it so, the vote will be carried by only one or two ballots, at the most.

If authorization of the project should come from the committee, the proposal must then go through Congress. A long and bitter fight is expected there, if the seaway is ever allowed to get to the discussion stage. Again, the latter seems highly improbable to any man who regard themselves as experts in the diagnosis of American politics. The reason? Next year is an election year, and none of the three groups in American politics — the three considered to have considerable control of votes in different sections of the nation — the Democrats, Republicans and the Southern Democrats, will wish to do any harm to its 1952 cause.

These same experts conceded that although there is plenty of legislation for Congress to deal with yet this year, none of it is of earth-shaking proportions, and none of it is likely to make any difference to the balloting of 1952. Hence, for two reasons, the seaway may never be heard about. Firstly, Congress has other things to occupy its mind. And secondly, the seaway is too contentious a question.

The issue, then, is left up to Canada. Already, the legislatures of this nations have stated that the seaway, in all probability, will be all-Canadian, if necessary. Certainly, they say, the power project will be completed, with or without help and cooperation from the United States. These statements were made some time ago, but nothing has been done as yet.

The seaway, despite the fact that 38 per cent of the people of this nation still know nothing about it, is a monstrous piece of work. It will cost in excess of $900,000,000, and particularly if Canada is to do it alone, will take years of planning and effort. It has already been established that this country, and the United States also, will benefit immensely from the seaway, and the construction of it will come sooner or later. The politicians say that the handwriting is on the wall, as far as the United States is concerned. If it is, then Canada, by now, should be making her own plans.

THE GROWTH OF A NATION

Three months ago, Iran was just another name in the Middle East to most people. For some, it was synonymous with oil, but to very few was it the great pivot upon which might hang the future of the world. To Britain, it was the site of a huge industry — the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. To Russia, it was a gold mine which at some time, and somehow, must come under the communist hand. To the better part of the free world, it was just another of those small Middle East countries which had turmoil as one of its basic ingredients.

Now, however, this country, only one-fifth the size of the United States, has gained a stature which is making the whole world sit up and take notice. Ninety per cent of its lands cannot be cultivated. Half of it is salt desert, and the most of the other half barren mountains. Only in the past few years has it gained an appreciation of western civilization, and then only of the advancements of its oil industry. It is only since 1925, under Riza Khan, that Iran has enjoyed any of the conveniences of the western world. Indeed, until that time, nomad bands almost as primitive as Canada were virtually non-existent, and a well-built railroad only a dream.

Oil was first brought out as a modern industry in Iran by British capital. The first well was drilled in western Iran, then Persia, in 1908. It didn't pay, because of the difficulties of transportation to the Persian Gulf. So closer discoveries were made, and at Abadan, on the Iranian side of the Shatt-al-Arab River, was built today's largest oil refinery. It is also today's hottest centre of controversy in world strife.

In 1950, Iran was the largest producer of crude oil in the Middle East, and ranked fourth in world production. More than 660,000 barrels of crude oil flowed out of the country each day via Anglo-Iranian, and Iran prospered on the money it received in royalties.

Then came the announcement that was to throw the western world for a loss. Iran was disregarding her contract commitments with Anglo-Iranian, and was going to nationalize the industry. This, despite the fact that she could not hope to run the industry without the skilled technical advice of many British experts.

In less than half a century, Iran has changed from a backward state into a high-ranking, mostly civilized nation. It has watched itself grow because of technical knowledge given it, in return for a good fee, by an advancing world. It has now decided to strike out on its own, hoping against hope that Russia will bring forth a better deal for the rich supply of oil. It is a futile hope.

PRISON INCIDENT

I talked to him through prison bars. A crime
Had taken from him everything but time.
And that for years would slowly lick away,
Now with each weather matter day by day.

"I had a wife," he said, "and she was ill.
I needed money and I robbed a mill.

My sentence, twenty years! Is that quite a spell?
But what are twenty years if she gets well?

I've often thought — for that was long ago:
A man must deeply love to suffer so.

I've wondered, too, while he was in his cell,
If ever called the word that she was well.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The perfect holiday, as most of you envisage it, is one on which the weather is glorious, cloudless and pleasantly cool, though sufficiently warm to give a tan. On this holiday, nothing will go amiss with our long-laid plans. From start to finish of the journey, everything will be on time, nothing will be crowded, neither the highways nor the spots we want to stop for lunch.

The hotel or cottage at which we plan to stay will come up to our exact expectations—the fellow-guests, the beds, the food, the swimming, the fishing. And when the business will cost us not more, but a little less than we had expected.

Of all the featureless experiences we could suffer, a perfect holiday such as that would be the prize. It would be time lost out of our lives. For if you will cast back in memory, you will discover that it is the misadventures of life that you remember most vividly. It is they that are the memories of your life, over which you chuckle most in private, and which come up oftenest in conversation with friends.

Flat tires, cloudbursts, coppers on the beat, and the wrong destination at midnight, hay mutrosses, just enough bedbugs to keep life leather, ants in the jam, leeches in the swimming beach, elderly acquaintances with voices like files in command of the verandahs, not a fish within forty miles, and at the end, outrageous charges which you refuse to pay, and the proprietor refuses to accept a check.

Ah, there's a holiday. The fact of the matter is, if you try to recall the perfect passages of your life, what a terrifying bore it would be and untroubled, you have the worst trouble digging them out. They are the holes, the vacant spots in your memory. Pleasant we may have been, at the time, they are not worth filing in the records your mind keeps. They are chucked, to speak, into the waste basket of your life.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

DON'T ADMIT DEFEAT

A friend of mine told a large gathering recently how, when he was a young man, his family sold certain properties and handed him money over to him that he might get an education. He deposited the check in a bank and within a few days the bank closed its doors. But one of his friend now approaching sewage, and behind him lies a splendid educational experience and a profession to which few men ever attain. He got his education all right. He got it by college and graduate school and probably twenty years after the bank crash was not hardly conscious of the severe financial loss which on the dark day it happened seemed to spell for him the end of all opportunity.

Opportunities never end until we admit them to be. We are never knocked out until we say we are. And if we say that we are knocked out, then ten thousand protests to the contrary will not help us. Defeat is not something external but something within. We are never defeated until we lose faith in God, in humanity, and in ourselves.

Many times we have heard that bank does fail or the loved one dies; even if health departs or the job you have always wanted goes to someone else, just remember that you are never defeated until you raise your hand and say, "I am through."

Children Live, Parents Die In Plane Crash

Chatham, Ont., July 23 (CP) — Out of the crumpled wreckage of a plane came the voice of a dazed five-year-old, calling for his mother.

Rescuers found Alexander John Davis, and his two-year-old sister, Jeannette, hanging upside-down by their safety straps Saturday night at the edge of the spot where a single-engined Cessna had crashed in a futile effort to make an emergency landing during an electrical storm.

The children were unharmed. But their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Donald E. Davis, of Toronto, died instantly when their lives were extricated from the wreck.

Eyewitnesses in Chatham Township said the plane circled for nearly three-quarters of an hour before its engine gained a 60-mile pine tree and it plunged into a mass of blazing wreckage.

Less than a quarter-mile away, obscured from the pilot's vision by the thick overcast, were three hay and wheat fields in which the plane could have landed safely.

Mr. Davis, a veteran RCAF pilot, was returning from a combination business and pleasure trip to Winnipeg. He was Canadian representative of the Florists' Telegraph Delivery Association.

Murder Charge Laid in Slaying

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., July 23 — (CP) — Wasyl Krawiec, 22-year-old Sault Central High School student, was charged Sunday night with murder in the slaying of Gordon Ellis, 18, at Algoma Saturday midnight.

Algoma is 19 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie.

Norkus' body was found lying in a pool of blood on the back porch of a railway section house. Both skull and chest had been stabbed several times in the back and chest.

Furniture had been overturned in the section house, broken glass was scattered throughout the ground floor rooms and a trail of blood led from the front of the building to where the body was lying.

Norkus, also a section man, lived in a ground-floor room of the section house which was occupied by a railway foreman and his wife. The foreman was in Sault Ste. Marie at the time of the slaying but his two small children, age four and five, were in bed in the building.

HOWDJA GET THEM STONES, BABY?

Cholecystitis is the medical nicians generally consider responsible for gallstones—(1) infection, (2) diet including too much cholesterol, and (3) stasis, the only one that we can or should eliminate or combat, in my opinion, is stasis.

Stasis, says Webster, is a stoppage of the normal flow of fluid in any organ or vessel; a standing still. Well, that's not quite true. The fluids do not stop, they just flow sluggishly.

So far as the liver and bile are concerned the old timers persuaded the customers that vigorous cathartics were necessary to keep things stirred up—and the side-effects of the cathartics generally did victims more harm than the liver complaint itself.

Thursday we'll tell how to prevent or correct stasis.

Tell Me

Kindly tell me what causes allergies and what can be done. (R. M. G.)

Answer—I'll be happy to tell you and the world if I ever stumble upon the cause. For the present I can only offer suggestions of palliative or preventative treatment. Send stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for pamphlet Relief from Allergy.

Entity?

I'd like to know if you are really a person or just a newspaper column. (Mrs. T. L. G.)

Answer—Not half, I'm afraid. Or seven days a week, maybe it would be more truthful for a column. I submit the same amount of copy for daily and Sunday as the latter is published four times. How much shall be printed the editors determine.

Letter to the Editors

Wants New Highway Construction Speeded

Editor, Ontario Intelligencer,

The Editor:—Sir: There is something will have to be done about the traffic congestion in Belleville. The first requirement is to urge the provincial government, in no uncertain terms, to get on with the four-lane highway. There are several fine highways from Toronto west, but none going east. From the amount of truck, bus and car traffic on Highway No. 2, it is quite apparent that a modern highway, linking Toronto with Montreal, is the country's largest. It is very long overdue. This has been mooted for about twenty years and yet, we have been quite passive, but insist on immediate action.

We realize about the shortage of steel and cement, but with the new Northern highway to go ahead just the same. A bridge connecting the two Quinte Streets at Belleville, and one across the bay, warrant the expenses on our taxpayers. Besides our No. 2 highway is completely out of date with its many twists and turns and its congestion-house, getting ahead of slow traffic in spots. Have our authorities enough public interest, to act, or must we wait another twenty years?

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

KINDLINESS

Kindliness is one of those old-fashioned virtues, but it has so much to do with the joy and hope of so many of us that we welcome it, whenever it turns up as something rare in our lives. It's something like rare perfume, influencing far beyond its immediate distinctive nature.

We feel a spiritual warmth in the presence of a kindly person. Burdens slip from our shoulders when we come in contact with such a one. We feel ashamed of our fears and our petty worries that rob us of so much. We hold our head a little higher, and with greater self-respect and confidence, Meeting a kindly person is like the cool, sunny day after a shower.

All genuinely great people are of a kindly nature. All you have to do to learn this is to read the published lives of world figures. A dazzling reputation may precede a person, but when that person is met, it is a pleasant surprise to find him or her just like other people, but also each one of us, kindly and affable. It is beyond all intrinsic value.

There may be exceptions but they are only exceptions.

The late Elbert Hubbard wrote a line that I have set down with me for years. He said: "Do the best you can, and be kind." Simple enough, but if every one of us followed that out this would be a far happier world in which to live.

That familiar story of the Good Samaritan in the Bible is an example of kindliness united to that of sympathy and understanding. The word must have brightened up considerably as that good man approached the unfortunate one, lifted him to his own beast, and took him to an inn where he could be cared for. Life and the entire world look good to us when we note a kindly act before our eyes. It looks much better to all concerned, however when we are a part of that kindliness.

Kindliness is a great healer, too. I have seen a dog punished and then later reacted to kindliness, as though all were forgiven. Kindness can enter into our everyday lives in a marked degree making them richer and happier. It is beyond all intrinsic value.

REIGNING BEAUTY OF THE PEACE TALKS

Newsmen at the Kaesong talks have taken as many photographs of the communist woman corporal as they have of the chief figures in the negotiations. Usually, she is grim-faced, as in this photo, as she hands a field telephone to her superior, but on occasion she is talkative and smiling. — Central Press Canadian.

Officer Thinks Theft of Cannon 'Bad Joke'

Quebec, July 23 — (CP) — The commanding officer of Quebec's Citadel—home of the Royal 22nd Regiment—said Sunday night he thinks the R. C. A. F. officers who carted away a historic cannon last week "acted childishly."

Col. L. Fremont Trudeau, also commanding officer of the famed Van Doos crack first battalion, said if the matter was being considered a joke it was "one unpalatable farce"—a bad joke.

The cannon, captured by British forces at the Battle of Bunker Hill in 1776, was trucked out of the walled fortress on top of Cape Diamond Wednesday night. R. C. A. F. officers, who come to Quebec regularly to fly paratroopers in night exercises at Valcartier, had been guests of the Van Doos officers and took the cannon out in a panel truck on their way back to Lorette Airport on the city's outskirts.

The cannon, driven right through the main entrance of the fortress and past armed sentinals, was placed in one of three planes returning to Ottawa.

Sarnia, July 23—(CP)—Henry Hueston, 73, former president and editor of the Sarnia Canadian Observer, died in hospital today after 10 days' illness.

Starting as sports editor in his native Ottawa, he went to Winnipeg as a reporter and rose through the ranks of the Winnipeg Free Press to the post of city editor. Then, with Allen Holmes, another Free Press staffer, he went to Prince Albert, Sask., where they purchased the Herald.

In 1944, when they sold their holdings to Roy H. Thomson and Mr. Holmes came east where they purchased the Canadian Observer and the Galt Evening Reporter.

In 1944, when they sold their holdings to Roy H. Thomson and the Thomson Company, Limited, they, along with A. D. McKenzie of Sarnia, Galt, Welland and Woodstock.

Until recently Mr. Hueston was interested in the Sarnia Broadcasting Company, Limited.

Still Looking For Dream Man

Vicksburg, Mich., July 23—(AP)—Vicksburg's pert divorcee Mrs. Jean Gregory, is still looking for her dream man.

The attractive 27-year-old mother of three children offered through a newspaper to accept a marriage proposal from a man who makes about $100 a week and will support her children and mother.

But as yet, she said yesterday, she hasn't found the right husband from more than 200 applicants.

Most of the applicants, she said, "just aren't making enough money." The one she chooses, she says, will have to pay for an operation for her mother who suffers from cancer.

'Water Babies' Held in France

Paris, July 23 — (AP) — The swimming Tongays of Miami, Fla., may be allowed to stay in France only if they promise not to try to swim out across the English channel.

Russell Tongay, father of "water babies" Bubba, 5, and Kathy, 4, was ordered to Le Bourget airfield for an immigration hearing but didn't go, he told reporters.

Instead, he saw the consul at the American embassy, he said.

"I was planning that Bubba and Kathy would try to swim the English Channel from Cap Gris Nez to Dover but now I don't know what to do," he added.

French police said the government probably would let the Tongays stay in France if they guarantee that the children will not attempt the channel swim or "otherwise make public exhibitions for exploitation of the children."

The Tongay family arrived here yesterday from London, where they were allowed to remain for a month on a similar guarantee to the British government.

Marshall Petain Dies at 95 On French Island

Ile D'yeu, France, July 23—(AP) —Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, 95, the hero of Verdun in the First World War, died today on this bleak island where he had served more than five years of a life sentence for treason in the Second World War.

But he was not a prisoner when he died. The French government commuted his sentence last month, shortly after the parliamentary elections, because of the state of his health. He was moved from his prison cell to a private mansion here off the southwest coast of France.

The aged marshal succumbed at 9:30 a.m. (4:30 a.m. EDT) in the island's military hospital. He had been in failing health for months and since an attack of pneumonia in April had suffered several relapses.

Two days ago his family and his lawyers again were called to his bedside. His 75-year-old wife, Annie, who had voluntarily shared his exile, was with him when he died.

Ironically, death came to Petain only three days after it claimed the German commander—former Crown Prince Wilhelm—who opposed him at Verdun. Wilhelm died Friday at Hechingen, Germany.

French Military Hero

Petain's heroic defence at Verdun in 1916 had made him one of France's greatest military heroes. His immortal battle cry—"they shall not pass"—echoed around the world. With it he rallied the French to a memorable stand in one of the great battles of modern history.

But the national hero of the First World War and elder statesman of the between-war years became a traitor in the eyes of many Frenchmen after Hitler invaded France in 1940.

Summoned at the age of 80 to the helm of a France recolling before the onrushing Nazi armies, it was his lot to surrender his country to the victorious Germans. Then he became chief of state of a semi-puppet government set up in Vichy.

After the liberation, Petain faced trial in 1945. It was the first trial of the head of a French government since King Louis XVI was convicted and guillotined in 1793 for "treating with the enemy."

Death Sentence Commuted

The high court of justice found Petain guilty of intelligence with the German enemy and pronounced a death sentence. But the court expressed hope the sentence would not be executed.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle, the wartime free French leader who became president of the French provisional government immediately after the war, commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

Petain, 89, at the time of the trial, told the jury that "on the threshold of death, I swear that I always served France."

Besides the death sentence, the court sentenced him to "national indignity," and ordered all his property confiscated. He retained his title of marshal, which under French law is a personal title lasting for life.

Nov. 16, 1945, he was sent to this tiny, sea-lashed island off the French Atlantic coast, southwest of Nantes, to serve out his sentence.

COMMUNISTS USE U.S. JEEPS

WEDDINGS

JEFFREY—WINTER

Tall standards of white gladioli formed a lovely setting in St. John's Church, York Mills, on Saturday, July 21, at 2:30 p.m., when Donna Jean Winter, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David James Winter became the bride of Donald H. Jeffrey, of Belleville, R.R. 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Jeffrey. The Rev. Reverend Canon A. C. McCollum officiated.

Mr. W. F. Camerin provided the traditional wedding music.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was elegant in her bridal gown designed in classic period lines, of nylon tulle over ice blue taffeta featuring a shirred bodice with softly gathered tulle at the shoulders. The tulle skirt of many layers, which was shirred at the hips, swept into a chapel train. Her fingertip veil of French tulle illusion was worn mantilla fashion, pleated across the top and caught at either side with a tiny floral spray. Completing her bridal attire with white orchid and bouvardia.

Miss Claire Winter, of Toronto, was maid of honor, and Miss Jane Ann Sword, also of Toronto, was bridesmaid. They were attired in honey-toned net over taffeta, featuring full skirts and fitted bodices. They carried bouquets of gladioli flowerets and short matching gloves, the ensembles completed by coral-toned gladioli interspersed with blue and white.

Mr. Roy K. Jeffrey, of Belleville, R.R. 2, was groomsman, and the ushers were Mr. Bill Winter, Mr. Bill Le Bar, both of Toronto, and Mr. Fred Kingsmill, of London, Ontario.

The reception was held at Thornhill Golf and Country Club, where the bride's mother received, wearing a floor-length gown of Parisian blue taffeta. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was attired in a floor-length gown, in a contrasting blue lace.

For the wedding trip to Bermuda by air, the bride chose a banana-toned suit with British tan accessories. On their return, Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey will reside in Valleyfield, Quebec.

Out-of-town guests who attended included, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Jeffrey, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Jeffrey, Mr. and Mrs. F. K. Denyes, Mr. Drury Denyes, Mr. and Mrs. Chester Denyes, of Belleville, and Mrs. C. C. Winter, of Winnipeg, Man.; and Miss Marion Roberts, London, Ontario.

SCHOLER—SHEPHERD

White gladioli formed the setting in Christ Church, Deer Park, Toronto, July 19th, at 3 p.m., for the marriage of Marion Isobel Shepherd, of Toronto, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfrid Shepherd, of Belleville, to Erhart Nathaniel Scholer, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Scholer. The Reverend John Patterson-Smyth, rector of the church officiated.

Traditional wedding music was rendered.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was charming in her bridal gown of ivory satin with deep accordian pleated French lace inserts, and fashioned on decollete style, with long train. The full-length veil of embroidered net fell from a halo of bouvardia. She wore matching French lace gloves and carried a white prayer book with white satin streamers, rose-tipped.

Mrs. Gordon Dawe, of Toronto, sister of the bride, was matron of honor, gowned in lilac moon marquisette over heliotrope taffets.

Mrs. Hardy Martens, of Toronto, sister of the bridegroom, was bridesmaid, wearing a gown of heliotrope nylon marquisette over matching taffeta. The matron of honor carried a shower bouquet of blue marguerites and pink roses tied with wide, yellow satin ribbon, while that of the bridesmaid was of blue cornflowers and pink roses tied with wide, pink satin ribbon.

Mr. Hardy Martens, of Toronto, was groomsman, and the ushers, Mr. Gordon Dawe, brother-in-law of the bride and Mr. Glen Wilkes, brother-in-law of the bridegroom, both of Toronto.

The reception was held at "The Towers", 190 St. George Street, where the bride's mother, attired in black sheer with gold leaf design over taffeta and mauve orchid corsage, received the guests. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in navy crepe with matching flowered hat and mauve orchid corsage.

Following the reception, the young couple left for an extended trip to New York State, the bride travelling in a suit of chartreuse green with black velvet accessories with basair and velvet hat and corsage of red American Beauty roses. Upon their return, they will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were present from Saskatchewan, Fredericton, Detroit, Ottawa, Almonte and Hamilton.

HEDGER—VENN

A pretty wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon at 10 o'clock, July 21st., in Christ Church, Bellville, when Reverend Rose Venn, of Belleville, R.R. 8, niece of Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Locke, became the bride of Douglas Gilbert Hedger, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hedger. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, officiated in the double ring ceremony before a background of white snowballs.

Professor Ernest Wheatley, organist of St. Thomas Church, rendered the wedding music and "Because".

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. George Locke, the bride was radiant in her bridal gown of white nylon net over white taffeta with shoulder-length veil and coronet of seed pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses.

Miss June Carol Summers, aunt of the bride, was the only attendant, becomingly gowned in mauve silk trimmed with white, and wearing a mauve halo hat with veil, and corsage of pink Sweetheart roses.

Mr. William Arthur Hedger attended the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's aunt, which was profusely decorated with pastel-tinted snapdragons, white wedding bells and streamers. Mrs. G. H. Locke, aunt of the bride, received, gowned in blue gabardine with white accessories and corsage of red roses. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore grey printed silk with white accessories and corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hedger received the guests, the bride, also attended. Mrs. Summers was attractively attired in a white printed silk gown with white accessories and a corsage of red roses. Mr. and Mrs. Summers will soon celebrate their golden wedding anniversary.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Hedger left for Niagara Falls and New York City, the bride travelling in a grey shark-skin suit with pink accessories. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

The bride's gift to her bridesmaid was luggage; to her bridesmaid, jewellery. The bridegroom's gift to his bride, a set of luggage and to the groomsman, jewellery.

Out-of-town guests were present from Markham and Kilenburg.

AN AUTHENTIC tartan pattern although not in Scottish wool but American rayon, is used for this junior size suit ready for autumn school days. The model is in the shade of a strawberry, and is a good traveller's item for summer holidays.

The collar is convertible, and the pockets are big enough really to hold goodies. Note the fine designer Doris Dodson's idea of an extra dividend for the girls.

I suggest that you find an opportunity to tell your daughter, if you have noticed that your daughter's friends are developing, while she has not yet begun to mature, you can be sure that you are well aware of all this herself. Consequently since you have seen to be brought more childish than her friends, she is trying to do something about it. It is definitely nothing for you to take seriously.

I suggest that you find an opportunity to tell your daughter, in a perfectly casual way, that you have noticed these things when you were putting away her socks and that you have also noticed and worried about her lack of development because that will come in due time; that all girls develop a little later than others. Tell her that you think it would be a good idea for her to wait a little longer before being concerned about this. Then just let the whole thing drop and pay no further attention.

Fourteen, and in the 8th grade, she want's to marry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 14 years old, and have been planning to marry a boy 22. I think I love him.

I am in the eighth grade, and my uncle wants me to keep on going to school and wait a while before marriage, but my family wants me to make my own choice, so I decided to write to you to find out what you think about it.

L. M. A.

Dear L.M.A.:

I am sorry to say that in addition to your own state, there are eight others in the United States of America, where a girl or 14 can be married if her parents consent. To me, and to a great many others, she is in this country, this shocking. No girl of 14 can possibly be ready to take on the responsibilities of marriage.

I hope you will do as your uncle has the good sense to suggest, and finish school before you even begin to think of getting married. I am sure you will have plenty of other chances, even if you turn this boy down, and I am extremely doubtful that you would be a happy girl for very long if you married him.

Community Friends, Honor Bride With Many Fine Gifts

2nd. Thurlow — About 100 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Greatrix in honor of their son, Lloyd, and bride, who were recently married. Those attendered them a miscellaneous shower.

Mr. Donald Mitchell acted as chairman and on behalf of the community presented an appropriate address, expressing the good wishes of all.

The bride, who was wearing her wedding gown, and the bridegroom, were assisted by the bride's sister, Jeanette, who also wore her bridesmaid's gown, and the bridegroom, with unwrapped gifts, for which Lloyd and Beth made suitable reply. Refreshments were served and social time spent.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

No need for this mother to worry

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What I am writing you about will I am afraid, sound silly, but it has bothered me a little and I would like to know how you feel about it.

I just went to my twelve-year-old daughter's bureau to put mates socks away and I came across a pair of "falsies" she had in the drawer.

Do you think this is normal for a girl so young or does it show a bad trait in her? I have noticed that all her friends are developing, while she is not. —Mrs. X.

Dear Mrs. X:

Don't give it another thought. If you have noticed that your daughter's friends are developing, while she has not yet begun to mature, you can be sure that you are well aware of all this herself. Consequently since you have seen to be brought more childish than her friends, she is trying to do something about it. It is definitely nothing for you to take seriously.

BEAUTY

Beauty has many variations

The woman with beautiful carriage is a joy to the eye.

If a girl cannot cultivate one kind of beauty, she can develop along another line. There are wonderful possibilities if she will keep her eyes and her ears open for observing, notice how other girls make the grade. It is surprising how even a minor quality or charm will make a lasie popular and beloved. A sense of fun, for instance, an inclination to "laugh it off." That habit keeps her out of arguments, makes her different, good-natured, sweet as peaches.

The woman who carries herself beautifully is a joy to the eye. She has splendor of movement. She can wear a frock five years old and still look like a lady of fashion. She has distinction. When she joins the party you know that somebody has arrived. It isn't enough just to be pretty. Pretty dollies are a dime a dozen; you see them everywhere. It is the girl who can be pretty, of course, but that is not the whole charm story. Prettiness has to be supported by nice manners, friendliness, responsiveness.

Plain Jane need not despair. Some homely women, shortchanged in features and figure, have had sense enough to compensate for these lapses by making themselves fascinating. They are nice to talk to, to walk with, to do nothing with.

If a girl has a well-developed dress sense she can be chic. She will outshine the pretty one who hasn't style, who doesn't know how to select her clothes or how to wear them. Becoming colors,

GOOD MANNERS

The fiancee's mother writes to the fiance's mother

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My daughter has just become engaged to a young man whose parents have, as yet, never met, live quite a distance from here. I would like to write a letter to them. Would this be out of place? If you approve, would you please be so kind as to help me with suggestions as to the wording of such a note? (His parents will be at the wedding, which will be in several months.)

A. R.

I am so glad that you are not "standing on ceremony", waiting for the young man's parents to make the first social move... even though this is their social duty. So often the parents of the young man are unaware that they should at once write or telephone (if a call is not possible because of distance or for any other reason) to the parents of the after their son has told them of the engagement, this call or letter welcoming her into their family. But it's a proper and gracious and appealing gesture for you to write parents of your daughter's fiance . . . and this can be the all-important establishment of a relationship between the two families.

Your mother-heart will guide you in telling them what you know they will want to be told: how happy you and your husband are about the engagement, how devoted you both are to your son and how much you admire him and his achievements. Especially in love "our two young people are"; then chat about the wedding plans so far, and tell them how very much you and your family are looking forward to meeting them at the wedding (welcoming them to your home, if this plan is possible for you).

Don't hold back . . . they'll be delighted with every word you write to them about this "favorite subject" you can so happily share with each other!

In such circumstances a tip is better than a present for maid

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

This past winter my husband and I have become very close friends with a married couple who have a house at the shore. They are planning to invite us for several weekends this summer, and speak about a maid from the village whom they have for the summer every year. When we go to visit them, should we tip this maid, or would it be better taste to take her a present?

B. R.

My advice is that you give this maid a tip rather than taking her a present . . . at least for the first one or two visits, and then, if you wish, you might take her a small present and give her a tip also.

May properly wear simple afternoon dress, long or ankle-length

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have been married before, had my marriage annulled, and am now planning to be married again in early autumn. I wore a suit when I was married before, but now I would like to wear a long gown and hat in a color suitable for the fall. Would that be proper, or must I wear a suit? (I am 5 feet tall, weigh 109 pounds.) It will be an afternoon church wedding.

J. M. C.

For your afternoon church wedding it is entirely proper for you to wear a floor-length (or newer ankle-length) simple afternoon dress of, say, a not-too-light shade or white if that is most becoming to you. . . small hat and accessories to harmonize.

After second marriage, woman does not use any part of first husband's name

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow, and will soon be married to a widower.. After our wedding should I use my present married surname for a middle name? Or how should I use this name?

C.

After your marriage you drop all parts of the name of your first husband. . . just as you should no longer wear your first wedding ring.

Pacers Provide Thrilling Finish At Thorncliffe

Toronto — (CP) — A field of [illegible] provided two great finishes in the 5,000 stake race at the Thorncliffe track Saturday.

Blue Again, owned and driven by R. F. Leadbeater of Toronto, split the purse with Royal Man, owned by Eddie Cobb of Washington Court House, O.

Blue Again, winner of the $50,000 California racing state, beat Royal Man by a length in their first heat.

In the second dash of the same race Blue Again grabbed the rail but Royal Man moved up to challenge on the outside. The two horses raced head-and-head for the final half mile. Royal Man just managed to shove his nose in front in the final strides.

Biggest price of the afternoon was paid by Jack Mahlenbacher's Vendome, from Hagersville, Ont. The gelding paid $30.70 as he lowered his lifetime pacing record to 2.12 4-5. Two other horses established new marks — Jimshwyn in 2.18 and Rocket Hanover in 2.12. Jimshwyn is owned by Gordon Knight, of Blenheim, Ont., Rocket Hanover is owned by H. G. Bone, of Port Hope.

Game - weary Peterborough Petes lost one and won one over the weekend but boosted their lead over second-place St. Catharines Athletics to three games. The Petes have played four contests in the last five days and were just about worn out as they bowed 9-5 in an upset loss to Toronto West Yorks last night.

By beating the Petes Toronto clinched its hold on the sixth-place and final play-off position ahead of Fergus Thistles who were wrist-tun- 15-3 by Hamilton Tigers Saturday night. While the Tigers were swamping Fergus, Peterborough outplayed their closest rivals, St. Catharines Athletics, taking a 14-10 victory in another Saturday fixture.

Playing the St. Catharines crew in St. Catharines the Petes took a 3-1 lead in the first quarter, lost it for a few minutes of the second period but came up with a 7-4 lead at half-time.

Harry Dugan scored four for the winners. Bob Thorpe, Ike Hildebrand and Airey Dugan each tallied two apiece. Singles went to Jack Means Russ Sisler, Jerry Fitzgerald and Don Aalbes.

Steve Orleschuk and Max Woolley got two each for Athletics. Tony Damico, Pat Smith, Ted Howe, Yank Yeather, Bill Bradshaw and Ken Croft had one each.

Crowning achievement of years of research and testing in the laboratories . . . it's road-proved and owner-proved, too! Tens of thousands of satisfied drivers are right now enjoying the extra smoothness, the magically effortless driving pleasure at last made possible by this latest, finest and most flexible of all Automatic Transmissions.

The clutch pedal and gear shifting are completely eliminated! This newest Automatic Transmission brings you the most modern, perfected design—combining the smoothness of all-cushioned drive with the flexibility and control of automatic operation. It gives you flashing performance unmatched by any other type of Automatic Transmission.

Until you enjoy a Test-Drive in a Ford or Monarch with Automatic Transmission, you'll never know the biggest thrill of all in truly effortless, truly modern automatic shifting . . . you'll never know the extra acceleration—the extra "passing power"—the extra-safe engine braking downhill—that only this newest and finest Automatic Transmission can give. See your Ford-Monarch Dealer . . . arrange a demonstration . . . and enjoy the driving surprise of your life!

*Automatic Transmission optional at extra cost. Fords and Monarchs are also available with Standard Transmission . . . or with Overdrive . . . giving a choice of three kinds of drive.

NO CLUTCH PEDAL . . . NO GEARS TO SHIFT—Just set the Drive Selector, which is mounted on the steering wheel, then forget about clutching, forget about shifting. Ford and Monarch Automatic Transmission! It's more automatic than most other drives, yet you have complete control with far greater flexibility. And it can't be touched by most systems for its efficiency of operation.

Instant Acceleration—You can drive all day and never move the Selector from Drive position. With Ford and Monarch Automatic Shifting the right drive ratio is selected automatically to meet every driving situation . . . at just the right instant to give you best gas economy. For quick pick-up in passing or climbing steep hills, you simply press down on the accelerator and the closed throttle "downshift" takes you out of high into intermediate automatically, requiring no effort on the part of the driver.

Flashing Getaway—Leave it to Ford and Monarch to perfect "no-lag" pickup in Automatic Shifting! You start off smooth and sure with no need for racing your engine. That's because you have a torque converter (an automatic transmission in itself—the equivalent of a countless number of gear ratios) PLUS a fully automatic gear transmission. With Selector in Drive (D2) position you automatically advance to "high" as you pick up speed.

Easier "rocking" in snow or mud—Stuck in the mud? Simply move the Selector to Low for extra traction. Want to "rock" your car out of snow or a rut? Just move the Selector back and forth from Reverse to Drive. And if on some rare occasion you ever need a push in order to start, it's safer with this Automatic Transmission . . . the engine will start while the car is being pushed at safe, low speeds.

Permits use of engine for braking safety—You're safer on hills or on slippery roads, too, because with the new Ford and Monarch Automatic Shifting, the engine actually helps to slow the car down. You can flip the Selector to Low at any speed with complete safety when extra engine braking is needed. This advancement in design gives safety and convenience not found in most other automatic drives, regardless of price.

HOSPITAL HOLIDAY!

Thanks to a quirk of fate, an unknown quantity of bees and mosquitos retain their freedom; four million frustrated mosquitoes round the temple ring miles north of Marmora searching for man-flesh; the family pocket-book gets an even break, more or less; nurses in the Belleville General Hospital glimpsed a strange personality and we wrote off the 1951 vacation as "defaulted because of inability to field a team."

* * *

The proposed holiday started off fine. We found ourselves in an isolated cottage on the shore of a forest-girt lake where the I. S. O. M. E. M. C. (International Brotherhood of Monster Man-Eating Mosquitoes) was in convention, with their families and relatives.

These winged Shylocks (each demanded and got his pound of flesh with each nip) perched on tree – branches like spring sparrows on a telephone line. Three of 'em on one two-inch limb would cause it to break under their weight.

* * *

The air was filled with the whirring of myriads of wings. Anti-mosquito fields. Phooey! Them descendants of Dracula's bats would take a snort of it and flit away in disgust. "They're not satisfied with ruining the whisky; two of 'em were heard to complain, "They're even diluting OUR poison."

* * *

Two of them entered our private bedroom – that first night – how they got in, nobody knows, but a hole neatly cut in a verandah screen and a pair of wire cutters on the floor which were not there in the afternoon, still remain a mystery), and perched on the foot of the cot.

* * *

Casius, the smaller of the two, who had a "lean and hungry look", nudged his buddy.

"Wuddya say, Mo...Mo...Mo?" he gumsle him here or take him outside and barbecue him?"

The larger one wiped slavering drill-pointed jowls. "Naw," he buzzed. "Remember what happened in Jersey City? Let's make him sweat. If we drag him outside those big fellows will put on the smatch and we'll be out some fresh if tough meat".

* * *

Came the morning and the 8 to 4 shift came on. Some of 'em carried salt-shakers. They could afford to at the price they were paying for fresh meat.

By 10 a. m. the distaff side looked as if she had been target for the day for Mickey (Across the Tracks) McGuire and his slingshot gang. The south side of junior's torso had more ridges and bumps than his grandmammy's washboard.

That night they infiltrated the cottage. While millions flapped frustrated wings outside the screens, two diamond – drill experts sabotaged the refrigeration system, (a coal oil-operated gadget). Heavy sweat seeped through the building filling eyes, ears, noses and throats.

* * *

Next day came the heat. The mercurel went on a bender. The mile got stiff. The 220 yard stank was higher than its price, and after Peter dropped a half-dozen egrs outside the door, two full-grown skunks picketed the joint bearing cards that read, "This cottage unfair to U. S. K. B. A. (Striped Kitties Benevolent Association) Local No. 201.

* * *

Then the nervous system decided to stage a pyrotechnic display of its own and this accompanied by an ominous rumbling in the cardiac region found us waking one morning between clean cool sheets with a 1951 version of Florence Nightingale saying: "Open your mouth" (as if that were necessary), and placing cool fingers on a pounding pulse. -

* * *

Followed eleven days hospitalization, the first since a trigger-happy Heinie gouged a chunk out of our cranium with a 9mm Master Race Special in the Ardennes, and chasing the Krauts around the sunken road near Courcelette on the Somme.

* * *

Eleven days in the hospital. A run-of-the-mill patient, balding, slightly bow-legged, with distinct evidence of embonpoint, and as lunch sex appeal as a cement-mixer. But that made no difference to those unheralded, unsung, toolittle publicized gals of the nobbled profession on earth, the nurses.

Like misty wraiths, their crisp, starched uniforms scarcely rustling, they entered and left our private cubicle, bearing meals, pills, and back-rub ingredients.

* * *

Ah, those spinal massages. When we make that first million, we're going to engage four professional back-rubbers and use 'em until we have to get spare parts for the spine. But don't rush with the applications for the job. Remember that newspaperman that died the other day and left an estate of $100,000? When his will was probated, it was revealed that a week previous to his demise he had become the heir to a legacy of 99,999 bucks.

* * *

During our many years here as a newspaperman we have heard many stories about the Belleville General Hospital. Some of them were not flattering. However from our point of view and especially after the recent experiences, it would seem that one needs be a patient to fully realize, recognize and appreciate what goes on in one of the city's largest institutions.

It must be distinctly understood that we were, as was said before, a mill-run patient. We knew none of the nurses or officials personally, apart from the family doctor. And we say in all sincerity that we could not have had better treatment, service and attention in any hospital in Canada, than we received in our own city institution.

* * *

Our special gratitude goes to Nurse Jessie Fox, who wears modestly a "proficiency medal" and we soon discovered why. To senior student nurse Audrey Ritz (she was mush pill-gal, who dropped in with three smiles for each pellet). To nurse Ruth Meades (the 3 to 11 stint), a winsome lass who's getting hitched in November, and no wonder!). To Supervisor Jessie Finlay, kind, considerate and friendly, and to Director of Nursing Dorothy Potts, who finds time from her terrific responsibilities to take a personal interest in the patients. Swell gals all, who take a pride in their work and who, like their counterparts in other divisions of the hospital, are carrying on in a noble manner all the traditions handed down to them since the days when Florence Nightingale brought succour from pain to British tommies in the Russian Crimea. The hospital in particular and the city in general should be proud of the fine type of Canadian womanhood that is doing such a fine job in holding high the proud banner of Canadian nursedom.

* * *

Our grateful appreciation too, to President Don Lee and the boys of the Commercial Softball League for their thoughtful gift of frailc ditte to them grand stand-lyers, the staff of this newspaper; the same to Pat Wilson and the boys of the Redmen Baseball Club for the gift of fare; and to a good neighbor, Gerry Dolan, for those nurse-locating phone calls to the many friends who sent cards. To the city morticians, we add, better luck maybe, next time.

Today we are back at the mill, and, we trust, another year of effort along the sports rialtos.

New York, Cleveland, Boston Locked in First-Place Tie; Chisox Trail by 2½ Games

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Cleveland and Boston today are locked in a virtual first-place tie in the American League's gripping pennant race with Chicago's weary White Sox in fourth place, 2½ games behind the leaders.

Percentage-wise, the defending champions lead the league. Yesterday's sweep of two games from St. Louis 6-0 and 7-1, boosted them into first place by .002 percentage points over the deadlocked Indians and Red Sox.

The Indians made it 22 victories in their last 29 games and eighth of nine, vanquishing Philadelphia Athletics twice 6-4 and 3-1. The Red Sox stubbornly kept pace with a 10-9 triumph over the Detroit Tigers in 10 innings.

The Picture

This is the picture as the American League clubs enjoy a day of rest today:

Team	W	L	Pct.	Games Behind
N. Y.	53	34	.609	—
Cleve.	54	35	.607	—
Boston	52	35	.607	—
Chicago	53	49	.576	2½

The triple tie (in game won and lost) should be untangled tomorrow when the Yankees open a 17-game home stand with the Indians at their opponents. The Yankees have whipped the tribe 11 straight times at Yankee Stadium over the season span. The Red Sox also return home tomorrow for a 12-game stand starting with a night affair against the White Sox.

The skidding White Sox suffered two stunning defeats by Washington yesterday—7-6 and 11-5—as the Senators concluded a sweep of the four-game series. It marked the longest losing skein of the season for Chicago—four straight—and gave the Sox a record of only four wins and 10 losses in their latest home stay.

"Bums" Increase Lead

Brooklyn Dodgers continued to make a runaway of the All in the National League, trouncing St. Louis Cardinals 9-2 for their ninth straight win over the Redbirds. The Dodgers thus increased their margin to 9½ games over second-place New York.

Cincinnati held the Giants to a split of their doubleheader, dropping a 9-8 decision after winning the opener 7-3. Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia Phillies 8-7 in 14 innings and led 1-0 after seven innings of the second game of a doubleheader. The nightcap was halted by Pennsylvania's Sunday curfew.

Pittsburgh split with Boston, winning the second game 5-4 after the Braves had taken the opener 9-3.

Allie Reynolds surrendered only four hits and registered his 11th victory and sixth shutout for the Yankees in the St. Louis opener. Held hitless for five innings by old Satchel Paige, the Yanks teed off on the fabulous Negro righthander for three runs in the sixth and added five more in the seventh to rout Paige.

Paige was spiked on the foot by Cliff Mapes in a close play at first and was given first aid between innings.

Jack Kramer's standout relief performance saved the Yankees second-game win. He replaced Bob Kuzava in the second inning and held the Browns to three hits the rest of the way.

Vic Raschi and Steve Gromek stymied the Athletics. Lemon limited the A's to seven hits in the opener to register his 12th victory. Gromek also yielded seven hits in besting Alex Kellner in a pitching duel. He allowed but one run in the seventh, that snapped a 1-1 tie.

A two-run double by shortstop Johnny Pesky drove in the winning Red Sox run in the 10th.

Sam Mele's ninth-inning double scored a 6-6 tie and won the opener for Washington. The Nats staked a seven-run second inning against Ken Holcombe and Harry Dorish to win the second from the White Sox. Mele's two-run double featured that rally too.

Carl Erskine racked up his 10th victory over Brooklyn with a seven-hit performance against the Cards. Roy Campanella led the Dodger attack, driving in four runs on a pair of homers.

Redmen-NHL Tilt Nipped in Bud By Jupe Pluvius

The Brodeur National Hockey League All-Stars (That's what it says on their baseball shirts) paid a social visit here Saturday night.

Officially, they were scheduled to go through their baseball calisthenics with the Wilson Wigwammers but Ole Jupe Pluvius turned on the faucets after 1 1-2 innings had been played— and that was that.

Or mayhap, the mythical blokes had controls the atmospheric water supply was weeping copious tears over the manner in which the Redmen started to kick the ball around.

Versatile Leafs

In any event, the versatile hockeyists who are not fussy whether it is baseball, softball, fan-tan, pinochle or a muscle-bulging bout of checkers, racked up five runs, three unearned, in their two sessions at bat, and appeared headed for victory.

They appeared in the field but once and Cal Gardner's shoots were thrown wide without a run and one hit by Tom Buchanan. The outs were infield taps.

Jerry Mowat, who labored for the Redmen was nicked for three hits by Ed. Harrison, Sid Smith and Gus Mortson.

The Stars nabbed two runs in the first and three in the second, two of the latter plating when Pat Gilmour, Reds third baseman, whose throw had Jimmy Thompson beaten by ten feet in his dash for the plate, hit the Leafs' defence star in the back. Jim trotted in as did Gus Mortson who was parked on second.

The Redmen hadn't settled down to serious baseball when the rains came and put what might have been a merciful ending to the shower. The downfall, a fair one, left the Parks Board open-air amphitheatre for the dry comfort of their cars, but after a few minutes Umpires Red Townsend and George Wilson decided Pluvius was serious, and called it a night.

Both of the Stanley Cup winners were on the All-Star Club. Included besides Cal Gardner, Sid Smith and Gus Mortson were Jimmy Thomson, Harry Watson and Jim Morrison.

Others were Ed. Harrison, New York Rangers; Max Quackenbush, Norbert Brabant, Al. Rollwagen, Chicago Black Hawks. Spares were Johnny McCormick, Leafs, and Bill Gadsby.

Where, oh where, was that pubhe address system? Many fans present were disappointed when the hockey stars were not introduced.

Kingston, Royals Win Weekend C.O.B.L. Fixtures

Kingston—Batawa's baseball seniors were humiliated here on Saturday night when the Diner Leafs drubbed them by 13 to 0 in a COBL game that attracted about four fans. At Lenard's men scored eight runs before the game was half completed and then hastily retired the visitors in the top half of the fifth as insurance against a sudden termination of hostilities by the weather.

"Babe" Hilman, who went the route for the Leafs, showed dazzling form in allowing only three hits, one of them being a scratch infield single.

McCormick, first man up in the last half of the first inning, drew a walk, advanced on Clark Cartwright's single and Jack White's sacrifice and scored what proved to be the winning run on an error by John Aquino.

In the other weekend game, Smiths Falls defeated the league-leading Brockville Memos 3-1 to take undisputed possession of second slot in the loop standing.

Canadians Win 225 Class Events At Speedboat Meet

Valleyfield, Que., July 22 (CP) —United States speedboat drivers were a minority group in the Valleyfield regatta yesterday, edging out Canadians 5 to 2 in major events.

It attracted 50,000 lined St. Francis Street on the south shore of the St. Lawrence River, for the two-day series of races sponsored by the Valleyfield Sailing Federation.

Although United States pilots scored in most of the events, Jean Benoit of Lachine, Que., racing on familiar waters, won a clean sweep of heavy hydroplane races.

Benoit's victory in all three heats of the 225 inboard hydro, Division IV, put him well ahead of his Canadian rivals in points for the Lieutenant-Governor's Trophy. The coveted prize is awarded the pilot of the 225 class who amasses the most points in Canadian regattas sponsored by the C.H.P.

Benoit burned up the 2½-mile course in an average time of 85.502 miles an hour. Cole Bill Hodgson of Toronto who placed second in My Bill, and Art Hatch and Ed Pine of Hamilton, Ont, who came in third in Costa Livia.

W. G. Braden of Waterdown, Ont., the only Canadian with a first, took Division I of the same class in Arbo III at an average speed of 74.013 miles an hour. Hatch came in second in Costa Lotia and Benjamin Ferlin of Verdun, Que., third in Leopard.

"Doc" Robinson Wins

In the outboard hydro, Class M, an all-United States event, Don Whitfield of Montclair, N.J., made an average speed of 33.46 miles an hour in 5.232 minutes to defeat Eleanor Shakeshaft of Mont Kisco, N.Y. Frank Cleary of Springfield, Mass., placed third.

Earl Jarrett of Albany, N.Y., paced three laps in the 135 hydro open for an average speed of 86.82 miles an hour, 1.6 miles an hour off the world's record. Tommy Turner of Kenmore, N.Y., was second and William Viets of Schenectady third.

The outboard Class B open race went to Gene Roesch of Kenmore with an average speed of 43.146 miles an hour. Second was Chet Webb of Niagara Falls, Ont., and third, Dick Nelson of Buffalo, N.Y.

In the Canadian I design event, Walter Robinson of Alexandra Bay, piloted Mrs. Dockitt to victory, averaging 49.733 miles an hour. Frank Ramsay of Rideau Ferry, Ont., placed second and Percy Buddell of Waterloo, Ont., third.

Ed Endres of Grand Island, N.Y., won the D and E racing inboard runabouts event at an average speed of 49.113 miles an hour.

His brother Al placed second and John Abbott of Smiths Falls, Ont., third.

Day's 9-0 Shutout Hoists Jewellers Into Second Slot

Behind the four hit firing of "Junior" Day, Avon Jewellers pasted a 9-0 shutout on the lacklustre Cleaners' Comedians at the CNRAA field on Saturday night. The victory put the Avons into a second place tie with Bakelite, each team having six wins and three losses, behind Belleville Motor Car who have won seven and lost three. The Cleaners dropped into a fourth place tie with Stewart-Warner, both having five wins and six defeats.

The Jewellers broke the scoreless tie in the first of the fourth inning pushing across a brace of runs on two hits and an error by manager Art Cruji, playing first base in the absence of "Red" Jones who is away on holidays. They added another pair in the sixth, three in the seventh and dropped fly ball in centre field. They scored another one in the eighth and then really clinched the game with four more in the ninth. After the first two men had been retired, Donovan banged out a hit to centre and went all the way to third as York slipped and fell going after the ball. McTaggart singled to right scoring Donovan and Murray received a life when Graham muffed his ground ball. Hull singled to centre, his third of the night, to load the bases and then banged out a triple to left scoring the base hit but died there as Ford filed high to right field.

Only Two Reach Third

Cleaners' team error seriously threatened the Jewellers, getting only two men past second base. Shortstop Bill Ford was safe on an off of Day in the fourth inning after being a ground ball hop right. James doubled in the sixth going to third on a fielder's choice. He was retired at the plate a play later on Graham's ground ball to second that Murray fired to Doran in time for the double-out.

Young's single in the seventh and a double by Cruji in the eighth completed the offense for Combines.

"Junior" Day fired steady ball to win his second victory as against three losses. He struck out five while issuing four free tickets to first base. Holmes, chucking all the way for the losers, did not look up to form as he allowed fifteen hits while walking two and striking out two. Five of the hits were off of his delivery were infield rollers that just eluded the fielders.

Doran with three for four including a triple and Hull with three for five led the Avons at the plate. Murray, McTaggart, Ford and Day collected a hit safely twice in five attempts.

The teams:

Avon Jewellers: Donovan lf; McTaggart rf; Murray 2b; Hull cf; Doran c; Ford ss; McBride 1b; Rogers 3b; Day p. Baldwin playing right field in the ninth.

Cleaner Combines: James c; Graham 2b; York cf; Derushie ss; Young 3b; Morrison lf; Cicolla rf; Cruji 1b; Holmes p.

Detroit 'Cops' Cop Field Title From Canadians

Toronto, July 23—(CP)— The Detroit police force built up a 75-point total to win the team championship of the 65th annual police field day Saturday. Montreal scored 54 points to edge Toronto by three points in a nip-and-tuck battle for second place.

Gordon Crosby, Toronto policeman, took top honors in the individual championship as he outpointed Detroit's Elmer (Buddy) Coleman and Jim Brodie and Montreal's perennial leader, Ian Mackay. Crosby earned 24 points with three firsts, one second and three thirds. Brodie and Coleman tied for second place with 19 points each and Hume was close on their heels with 17 points.

Points were awarded on a basis of five for first, four for second, two for third and one for fourth. Detroit led the field in maintaining its 12-year winning streak against Toronto in the tug-of-war. The Americans won on two straight pulls.

Buffalo Hurler Tosses No-Hitter, Beats Leafs 3-0

By Associated Press

Tom Simpson, rookie righthander of Buffalo Bisons, and Lefty Bob Schultz of Sarnia's Imperials have added their names to the long list of feats turned in by international league pitchers this year.

Simpson pitched the second no-hit no-run game of the season Sunday, defeating Toronto Maple Leafs 3-0 in the second game of a double-header. The Bisons also won the opener 8-6.

Schultz missed a no-hitter by an eyelash, defeating Rochester Red Wings 2-0 in the second half of a twin bill. Don Richmond and final inning to spoil Schultz' opener 4-1.

Simpson walked four and fanned four in the seven inning game. The Leafs also were victims of the season's first-no-hitter, bowing 1-0 to George Bamberger and Ottawa Giants in nine innings June 15.

Rudy Minarcin gained credit for his ninth straight and 12th victory of the season in the opener although he failed to last. The Bisons pounded out 14 hits.

Schultz' feat was the 10th no-hitter in the league this season. Schultz recently obtained from Chicago Cubs, fanned 10. Red Lazetich homered in the seventh to save up the game.

Little Jackie Collum stopped Springfield on four hits in the opener. Richmond and Johnny Blatnik accounted for half of the Sarnia runs in the second game.

Lou Possehl pitched Baltimore Orioles to an 8-1 victory over Syracuse Chiefs. The Orioles collected 16 hits including a home run by Bill Glynn. Hank Foiles homered for the lone Syracuse run.

Ottawa Giants edged Montreal Royals 9-7 in 14 innings. George Metlovich tripled home the winning run and scored the insurance marker on Fred Geerken's fly ball.

Should Have Had 'More Of a Chance' Sighs Frisch

By JOE REICHLER

New Rochelle, N. Y., July 23—(AP)—Frankie Frisch, deposed Chicago manager, said today the Cubs are a first-division club despite their present seventh-place standing and wished he had had "more of a chance."

The famous Fordham Flash, who insisted his resignation Saturday was not prompted by official pressure, promised he would be back in baseball before long. For the present, however, the 52-year-old Hall of Famer intends to "take it easy for a while" at his home in New Rochelle.

"I resigned because I knew I was not going to be back next year," Frisch said.

Was Great Manager

"Frisch is a great manager on winning teams, but the Cubs haven't been winning. I think Frisch hasn't been getting the pick and of the players that you, haps he might. We think that Cavaretta will get his own great spirit into the team and come through for us."

Cavaretta was told, Wrigley said, that he has been assigned as manager for this season only.

Under Frisch, the Cubs rallied last in 1949 and seventh last year. The grey-thatched Frisch, ending a string of 16 years as a big-league pilot following 19 outstanding seasons as an active player, refused to alibi the Cubs' poor showing.

"I harbor no resentment against Mr. Wrigley or any of the other Chicago directors," the Cubs said. "I wish, though, they had given me more of a chance."

Cavaretta made an auspicious debut Sunday, guiding the Cubs to a 14-inning 8-7 victory over Philadelphia.

"It's a real challenge and I'm going to give it everything I've got," said the new skipper, who has been with the Cubs since he joined the team as a kid of 17.

Six-Run Rally Puts Plumbers In Playdowns

Howe and Hagerman's six-run rally in the bottom of the eighth inning broke up a 6-6 tie and gave them a 12-6 decision over Ramsay Paints Saturday night, and a two game sweep of their best-in-three OAHA elimination series. The Plumbers will now meet Glen Roy Athletic Club in a series to determine the Commercial League A representative in the OAHA intermediate A playdowns.

Until the fateful eighth it had been a see-saw ball game with both teams sharing the lead alternately. The Plumbers ran out the siege guns for seven safe hits in the eighth and that was the ball game.

The Plumbers opened the scoring in the second inning with McGregor's single, a steal, a ball around on a sacrifice and an error. They added three more in the third on six singles by Locke, Don Adams and Vern Goyer, the latter's hit being through the centrefielder for a three base error.

A walk, an error, two fielder's choice plays and singles by Scanlan and Lumberg gave Ramsays two runs in the fourth inning.

Fitzpatrick Homers

Dick Fitzpatrick homered in the bottom of the fourth to give the Plumbers a 5-2 lead.

In the top of the seventh frame Scanlan led off with a scratch infield single, Lumberg walked and Carr was safe on an error to load the bases.

Connie Harris then chopped a triple through second base that skipped past Vern Goyer who was playing in close in centrefield in an attempt to cut off any runs at the plate, Glen Young and Jack Whiting went out to the infield and then Carl Wood pounded a home run down the left field line that shrank to a single and was out as he neglected to touch second base on his flight around the bases.

Two singles produced the tieing runs for the Plumbers in the seventh, and they went in front for good in the eighth.

Connie Harris started on the hill for the losers and in seven and two thirds innings he walked three, struck out one, and gave up 15 hits for 12 runs. Bunk Young retired the last man in the eighth. Carson Goes Route

Lum Carson toiled the route for the winners walking two, striking out two, and giving up five hits for six runs.

Fitzpatrick was big man at the plate with two home runs in five appearances. His second circuit clout came in the eighth as he drove in three runs.

Lum Carson was the only member of the Plumber team who did not get a hit and H. Wardhaugh was the only other one not getting the blows.

Lineup:

Ramsay Paints: G. Young c; J. Whiting 2b; C. Woods cf; E. Donnell lf; Leforte ss; Scanlan 3b; Lumberg rf; C. Carr 1b; Harris p, replaced by R. Young in 8th.

Howe and Hagerman: Fitzpatrick 3b; Locke 1b; D. Adams cf; V. Goyer cf; McGregor ss; H. Wardhaugh rf; Renn 2b; A. Adams lf; L. Carson p.

Redmen Ready For Smiths Falls Clash Tonight

Despite that off-balance two-innings bout with the Brodas — less than Saturday night, Coach Pat Wilson feels confident that his Redmen can take the measure of the Smiths Falls Royals in their playoff clash at the Fair Grounds tonight.

The Falls handed a "note" to the haughty loop-leading Brockville Memos over the weekend, handing them a 3-1 setback that marks the Falsiers as one of the top-contending teams of the loop. The lads from Knotty Law's ballpark are now ensconced in second place with our constabularies breathing down their necks in the show position. A win for the Redshirts tonight will enhance their position no end.

Barry Power, the bespectacled lad with the deceptive delivery, has been getting the call of stopping the Royals and the youngster, if he pitches the same brand or ball he did against Belmont recently should give the Royals something to wave at.

Dean Leads Attack

Johnny Dean, who has been the victim of the split-finger jinx the last three or four weeks is expected to be in the action behind the plate. The pepper - pot receiver has been chafing at the bit since his enforced benching and he'll be out there tonight full of fight and vigor in an effort to lead the squad to a needed victory.

Coach Wilson will shake up his infield. He is sending Pat Gilmour back to his familiar infield position and bringing Bob Geen back to the hot corner; Dicky Fitzpatrick will cover the keystone and Tom Buchanan will hold down the initial sack. Neither Red Carson nor Vern Goyer are available tonight but Huck Reeves will do the shortstop job.

Out in the faraway pastures will be Russ Soules, Sammy Mulholland and Pat Gilmour.

It should be a neat and nifty baseball battle. The Falls believers they have struck the stride that zoomed them to the league title last year and the Redmen believe they too, can and will produce the brand of baseball that should call a sudden halt to the surging Fallsers' winning offensive. Game at 8:30.

Parnell Topples Canadian Records At National Meet

Vancouver, July 22—(CP)—Bill Parnell of Vancouver hoarded the spectacular until the last minute of Saturday night and Canada's track and field championships wound up in a blaze of toppling records.

Parnell, the long-limbed Empire Games mile champion, ran the half-mile in one minute, 52.7 seconds on the final day of the two-day meet to set a Canadian native and British Columbia open and native records.

But Parnell's purge didn't end at that.

Three other records fell in the same 800-yard run when Parnell, clocked at the 800-metre markshot across in 1:53 to chalk up a Canadian native and open, and native B.C. records per 800 metres.

No other Canadian records fell during the championships held this year at the University of British Columbia stadium.

No eastern athletes entered the championships. Lyle Garbe, a Calgary youth, led the outsiders Saturday. He established an open B.C. record when he ran the three-mile event in 15 minutes, 7.2 seconds.

Vancouver Olympic Club athletes captured the 4x440 relay Saturday and the club grabbed the top point total with 66, 19 points ahead of the runner-up Victoria Y.M.C.A.

AT THE CAPITOL — Lovely Penny Edwards may be seen starting today at the Capitol Theatre in Republic's exciting melodrama, "Missing Women." The film marks Penny's first appearance in a dramatic role; she started her screen career as Roy Rogers's leading lady. On the same program, "Inside the Walls of Folsom Prison," starring Steve Cochran, David Brian and Dorothy Hart. Both hits are first showings.

AT THE CAPITOL — Steve Cochran leads the jailbreak in Warner Bros.' new drama, "Inside the Walls of Folsom Prison," currently at the Capitol Theatre. David Brian also stars. On the same program "Missing Women", starring Penny Edwards. Both hits are first showings.

East passed. Therefore, south is obligated to pass and let the double remain in effect. But then west bid three clubs in the hope of finding a trump suit that opponents would not double.

If north does not double he is obligated to pass. This is known as an obligatory pass. It is a pass which orders his partner to take some action; either to double or bid.

In this case, north and east passed the three club bid. South doubled and it stayed there. Opponents got a shellacking.

Good bridge has a good communications system.

Three-Year-Old Wins Richest Purse Stakes

Ascot, England, July 23—(Reuters)—A spry three-year-old named Supreme Court came home by three-quarters of a length here Sat. to win the New Festival of Britain Stakes—at £25,372, the richest purse in British turf history.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Good bridge can be played with a brief set of simple rules. In expert play is added a special signal here and there. This makes a system complete and capable of coping with unusual situations.

For instance, we know that a penalty double signals partner that the last opponent bid can be defeated. Therefore, partner should not do any rescuing to permit the opponent to get out of the trap.

The penalty double of a bid under game carries another bit of signal. It says: "If opponents try to rescue themselves, you must not give them a chance to wriggle out of their predicament too cheap."

"On the other hand," the signal insists, "their rescue bid may be in a suit which we cannot afford to double any opponent rescue continue to bid until we have our desired contract."

In other words, from there on each of the partners is required to double any opponent rescue bid or to permit the last partner to double it. And if the last partner is unable to double, he must bid.

We are still discussing this deal:

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, July 24

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—To err is human, but to weep about it is foolish, time-wasting. Get busy doing better. Uncertain aspects may cause irritating situations, be calm, don't let it "get you down." Smile!

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Perhaps an uninteresting day for any endeavors that require leads and encouragement. Exclude non-essentials, talk and action; concentrate on requirements, specific duties.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—More friendly spirit than you suppose. Be on your toes, get all you can from the many benefits available. Industry, traveling, domesticity, religion highly favored. Romance has its turn.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Excellent aspects for work and professional matters within your sphere of achievement. Things should proceed well, should be less strain if you are true to your chart and self.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—No need to become ruffled in work or emergencies or take things overserious. Of course advance, and you can, if cautiously at first. Later you can let go at faster tempo and achieve.

August 24 to September 23—(Virgo)—Best to keep things sensibly under control. Do your best (always) and pray for God's assistance. Personal and artistic interests mildly favored, also heart and social affairs.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Tradesmen, seamen, contractors, builders, engineers mostly; generous aspects for all today. Know clearly your duties, dispense them with dispatch, sincerity. Avoid useless discussions.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—May have to rely on your own resources. Imagination to carry on brightly now. Little offered from planetary outlook, but that does not mean no achieving. Resisting resistance is an art. . November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Some uncertain spots; be the smart diplomat. Use charm, refuse things with a smile. Don't overprotect your ideas, they may stagnate on you. Go forward with progress.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Day on which the energetic willing worker and thinker will make fine headway. The usual and unexpected can progress, bring returns if properly managed. Respect others' ideas.

January 22 to February 22—(Aquarius)— Touchiness a likely tendency. Do some thinking before you act or speak. Good intentions mean nothing without good effort. Heed this and avoid mistakes, and profit.

February 23 to March 20 — (Pisces)—Open field to work without fuss. Plenty of opportunity but you will need study, hard work and maybe some assistance. Things should shape up well for you clever, industrious, honest folks.

YOU BORN TODAY: Power and action are foremost. You can do almost anything you try if you apply that good-natured smile plus a conscientious mind. A natural leader in business or social affairs, so education and religion should ever be your aids. Use your magnetic forces rightly and reach the top quicker. Be always ready to listen and learn; don't rush into things. Don't spend all you earn either.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

THIS IS FUN

The human race can be a mighty bewildering subject, as nobody can deny, and often there is no more than the well-known hairline between sanity and clear lunacy. I am thinking for the moment of mountain climbers. Now there is no loony a class as anything outside a padded cell.

Hardly a week goes by that some mountain doesn't succumb to the latest saga of the helluva-headed alpinist, a narrative often written in the first person (by the survivor) and invariably rife with suffering, torture, complete exhaustion, amputations, and tender memories of old Eric or Sven or Derek, the one who disappeared with a stoic smile into the 8000-foot crevasse or was swept away by the customary avalanche.

The latest of these — and cut to the now familiar pattern — is James Ramsey Ullman's account of some French goofballs who climbed Annapurna, a 26,496-foot hump in the Himalayas and who had the usual swell time (snow-blindness, 30 assorted toes and fingers left behind, disaster all the way.)

A trip like this just isn't a success. It would seem unless it has a lot of nice, readable agony and, as any student of mountain climbing stories knows, the blow-by-blow description will contain certain predictable situations.

At some point in the expedition we will encounter the party locked in each other's arms and quietly turning blue under a tent the size of a Band-Aide, "pinned down by the elements." There will surely be a time when one or more of the party (partly) became addicted to a blizzard and will be found by a miracle with no more damage than a missing matched set of ears and a touch of madness. Inevitably there will be some weird overnight which will bring catastrophe.

One of these Frenchmen, for example, lost his gloves at just the very top of Annapurna and, as a result, must now dictate his memoirs or type them with his toes. How can this be? I, myself, have a pair of gloves I've worn for three winters. Never lost them for three here is a guy whose very life depends on his mittens and they disappear. It could only happen to a mountain climber.

Against Nature

Every time I read one of these stories I find myself speculating on what sort of loose screws make an alpinist.

You and I, looking at a handsome hunk of rock and ice like Annapurna, would be content to feel a decent sense of awe at the wonders of nature. The Nepalese tribes who live in the shadow of the big bird may simply feel that the gods and demons live up there and they have no wish to disturb them. This is a very sensible view, indeed, a modest attitude.

The mountain climber, on the other hand, just can't bear the thought of looking at a peak unless he's looking down on it. He lusts to make a monkey out of nature, even if it means padding around on the rest of his life. And to me nothing more dramatically illustrates man's foolish vanity than the familiar figure of a lone, pitiful figure on a wall of ice, trying to prove the impossible. You can almost hear the ribald laughter of old lady nature.

I suspect a giant, throbbing ego behind all this, very much the same kind or thing that produces flagpole sitters or Channel swimmers or any kind of off-the-beam breed that looks for glory in a spectacular abuse of the human body.

Mountaineers are traditional introverted, withdrawn men, but a surprising number of them seem to spend their time in telling the world about their exploits. A man is hardly down from the peak and finished with the surgeons before he is into the book or the magazine piece or touring the lecture circuits in his wheel chair.

It is worth noting that when two or more men decide to assault a peak their first requirement is a good photographer and these modest, unassuming men always manage to rush the first hot prints to the nearest rotogravure. Indeed, the photographer is just as much standard equipment as the doctor and his scalpel and these two seem to be the busiest men on the climb. Snap the lens, cut that toe, busy, busy, busy.

Nothing There

Ullman doesn't attempt to say what the Frenchmen got out of the ordeal. "If nothing else," he suggests lamely, "it demonstrates that there are still among us those who are willing to struggle greatly and suffer greatly for wholly ideal ends."

Ideal, shmideal! What benefits except the climber's idiot self-esteem when he tops the last rise? It is just as idealistic to go over Niagara Falls in a barrel or (as a friend of mine, Jim Moran, once did) to look for a needle in a haystack. Where is the idealism when any thing of conquest is a commodity with a ready market?

Humanity gains not a single benefit from the conquerors of the world's highest slopes. After all, what's up there? A cure for baldness or the common cold? A well-guarded secret of the universe? Hell, no. There's nothing there but ice and a lonely wind and maybe a view of the next, higher mountain waiting for some silly little man to thumb his nose at it.

Sure, there's some remarkable, unexplored kind of human spirit about these men and few of us could come out alive from that kind of ordeal. This I concede, but this is a voluntary, a self-inflicted ordeal, and I am strangely unmoved when the mountain wins, as it invariably does.

RAWDON

Carmel Folk Fete Mrs. D. Charlesworth

Rawdon — On Friday evening, a large number of Carmel folk and other friends gathered at the Baptist Hall in honor of Mrs. David Charlesworth (the former Madeline Woods) and Mr. Charlesworth.

Mrs. Arthur Pyear delighted with piano music while the guests gathered, as this is a rural community and farmers work from dawn through to sunset and then attend the showers after their day's work is completed.

At 10 p.m., Mr. Russell Pyear presided and paid tribute to the bride speaking of her valued assistance in helping with the play, the proceeds of which were used for the renovation of the Jubilee Hall.

Messrs. Sherwood Reid and Arthur Woods contributed a couple of musical numbers, piano and harmonica; they delighted with several selections during the serving of refreshments.

Readings were given by Mrs. Ray Hagerman and Mrs. Percy MacMullen. Master Garry Wilkinson gave a piano solo and Miss Verna Brown sang "The Sunshine of Your Smile."

Address Read

Mrs. Helen Neal read an address of appreciation to the newlyweds which was signed by Messrs Russell Pyear, Sherwood Reid and Harvey Couch.

Madeline and David unwrapped the large array of gifts which included tablecloths, china, glassware, linen, a dozen pairs of tow-

Hall of Fame Wins by Neck In Turf Classic

Chicago, July 23 — (AP)—The thoroughbred traffic chasing the 1951 three-year-old championship was heavier than ever today after Hall of Fame's win by a neck over Battlefield in Saturday's Arlington Classic.

Hall of Fame, now the top three-year-old money winner in the United States with $121,355, jumped squarely into title contention with Battlefield, Bold Count 'Turf, Counterpoint and possibly Rough 'N' Tumble.

Perhaps Battlefield did not lose too much lustre Saturday, but Hall of Fame certainly gained stature with his fourth win in 10 events as a three-year-old.

Hall of Fame, ridden by Toronto-born Ted Atkinson, uncorked a withering stretch drive to nip Battlefield, piloted by Eddie Arcaro, just as the wire was reached in the $31,200 event.

Rough 'N' Tumble wound up a well-whipped sixth in the 1 1-4-mile event which paid Hall of Fame also $63,000. Spur On finished third.

Hall of Fame's 2:03 1-5 time did not quite match the 2:01 2-5 clocking made by his daddy, Shut Out, in winning the 1943 classic, but that happens to be the classic record, originally set by Omaha in 1935.

The Greentree Stable runner will have a chance to prove Saturday's win was no fluke in his next start against Battlefield in the American Derby Aug. 18 at Washington Park.

Polio Suspect Second Found On Navy Ship

London, Ont., July 21—(CP)—A second polio suspect was taken to Victoria Hospital Friday night from H.M.C.S. Prevost's Fairmile in Riverside Drive after the vessel docked.

Petty Officer (engine room artificer) K. H. Astles of St. Thomas is the second man of the 11-man crew to be brought to hospital for a check-up. He is listed as a suspect and his condition is not serious.

Cdr. James J. Dempsey, 18, of Hurdmans Bridge, near Ottawa, is being treated as a positive polio patient. His condition was described as "satisfactory."

Dr. D. G. Smith, medical officer of health for Kent county and formerly in the navy, has been called back to service to handle this special case on the Fairmile.

He lifted the quarantine on the ship, Friday but the crew must remain at Erieau. Training cruises will be carried out alone on Lake Erie and the vessel will not rejoin its flotilla.

The vessel and its sailors will be under the surveillance of Dr. Smith until July 26. More suspects may change this deadline.

els, kitchen articles and silverware.

The recipients tendered their grateful thanks for the gifts and program and the Carmel ladies served refreshments.

The newlyweds are residing in Belleville where the bride is a member of the telephone staff and the groom is stationed at Trenton R.C.A.F.

Several relatives of the bride and groom were in attendance at the party.

Permit Railway Stop Service

Ottawa, July 21 (CP)—The Board of Transport Commissioners today authorized the New York Central Railroad to discontinue its passenger service between Ottawa and Helena, N.Y., for six months of each year.

The service may be shut down November to April, inclusive each year. It must operate the rest of the year.

The company, arguing that it was bearing a substantial loss on the service, asked permission to discontinue the service entirely in a hearing before the Board at Cornwall last month.

The present service is two trains daily, one leaving Helena and the other leaving Ottawa. The traffic is purely local between Helena and Ottawa, with no connecting links beyond those two points. In 1938, when the railway was authorized to reduce the service, there were two passenger trains daily each way.

Today's order does not affect the railways' freight service.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

That night Lucilla told her friend that Sniffles had distemper. "I knew how he feels," Arthur said somberly. Hoopy wanted to rush over to the Dog Hospital at once with Sniffles, but Lucilla wouldn't go to sleep until Lucilla had phoned the hospital about visiting hours (Saturday and Sundays from 2 to 4) and had been told the patient was resting quietly.

"As if we bucks a day, he'd better," Arthur said.

Sometime in the night, she dreamed she was walking in a corridor and that Derek Marlowe jumped out of her hanging a lamp. "Boo!" he shouted, "Boo."

She dream left so strong an impression that when she unexpectedly ran into Mr. Marlowe near the Bel-Beauty bar, the following noon, her first emotion was a apprehension. Derek didn't say "Boo!" he said hello as if he'd been searching the byways of Beautiful-You for her all week.

They stood staring at the foot of a stairway. She had come down to elevator and was waiting for Paris and Mrs. Colpe. "I wanted to ask you more about Sniffles' temperature," she said, "is he really a Commie?" Lucilla's flustered manner, as she murmured, "Oh, I should never have mentioned—I mean, I don't really know—" only whetted his suspicions. He said, "But I'm sure nobody in Hollywood would ever guess." He broke off; several Sulkies, including Miss Thumbold, had come down the stairs and were gaping at the twosome. Lucilla felt as nervous as a girl in boarding school who is plotting an elopement with the riding master. Derek said loudly, "Yes, I'm planning to show movie in class next week." Lucilla still stood dumbly. The Sulkies went on down the hallway. Paris and Mrs. Colpe appeared on the landing. "I'd better go," Lucilla murmured. Yet there was a delicious sense of shared peril, as she and Derek exchanged a glance. "How about meeting me after class next Monday?" he asked softly, "so we can talk without 50 females in our hair."

"I—I'd like to."

"Now Weldon Bar Monday at 4:30", he whispered. She gave a scared nod.

• • •

Lucilla had timed herself to be exactly seven minutes late for the rendezvous with Derek, and on the way over, she practiced a face-firmer exercise recommended by Miss Dorbie: gritting the teeth to lift the jaw-line and produce an expression of happy expectancy. This vanished as soon as she got inside and discovered she had arrived first.

Belatedly, she recalled a booklet Miss Willit had given them—"How to Enter a Room"—which started out: "Have you ever observed a high-bred Arabian mare pause in a doorway, look over the occupants with serene awareness, and then, moving slowly and just slowly enough, make its way to a place of vantage with purposeful grace. Copy this cat!"

Unfortunately, the booklet hadn't gone on to say what a highbred cat does when its date is late getting to a bar.

A bald man at the bar leaned over and said something to Lucilla. "Pardon me, but isn't that man back there motioning to you?"

"Where?" Lucilla asked desperately, raising herself on tiptoes as if to improve her vision. "Now he's standing by waving. See?"

Lucilla was still proceeding blindly when Derek's checkbonne loomed out of the fog dead ahead. "I've been waiting at you for hours," he said crossly. "I'd sworn you were looking right at me."

She realized it had been ridiculous not to put on her glasses.

"Now that you're here, you might as well sit down." The chair was too close to the tiny table, so that she had to jump and squeeze into a seat, instead of sinking gracefully. She had pictured the meeting so many times; in one version, Derek had taken her hand and held it so long that she'd been forced to withdraw it, murmuring, "People will think you're glad to see me," and his lapish lover reply, "Well, they're right."

"What will you have to drink?" he asked. She wanted a Manhattan, but said "Martini" because she thought it sounded smarter, although she really didn't like the taste of gin. Derek hailed a passing waiter. "One Martini, very dry, and one Pernod."

"What was the last again?" the waitress asked. She was young and un-pretty.

"Pernod," he said, with exaggerated clearness.

"How do you spell it?"

He spelled it, meanwhile quirking an eyebrow at Lucilla, indicating, "Well, really, of all the idiots."

The waitress stuck her pencil back into a side-bun covering her ear. "I'll ask the bartender if we got any." She went away.

"Can you imagine a bar without Pernod?" Derek asked Lucilla, who made a move of, Heavens, no, it's too utterly fantastic." Now that she and Derek were aligned together—for Pernod and against the waitress—the atmosphere between them was cozier.

"A friend who's been living in France brought me back a few bottles," he said. "I've become devoted to it as an aperitif." Lucilla smiled, a wordless smile, linking herself with Derek and other members of the International set.

"I must bring my husband here sometime." She sat very straight, with her chin up, to show what a respectable married woman she was. "It would amuse him."

Derek swung around and leaned closer, widening his eyes, giving her their large, illuminated brilliance, full strength. "Would it amuse your husband to know you're here with me right now?"

"He certainly wouldn't mind my having a drink with a casual acquaintance," Lucilla replied.

"A casual acquaintance! That sounds so cold and clipped."

"What would you suggest?" She was beginning to feel heavily coquettish. If she'd had a fan, she'd have tapped him on the wrist.

"How about simpatico?"

Lucilla, with her neck cocked prettily, pretended to consider this. Once more, small tinky phrases seemed about to peal from the top of he rhead, but Derek went on, "After all, you member how we both feel about television."

They exchanged tender smiles, pledging their eternal scorn, and then Derek described several programs he'd seen. For a man who despised television, Derek seemed to have been subjecting himself to rather a lot of it, although undoubtedly just to confirm his fear that the programs were getting worse all the time.

The waitress interrupted this simpatico hate-fest by bringing the drinks. She set down the Pernod, a tall glass one-third full of a pale-yellow liquid. Lucilla regarded this with interest; it looked like old demonade, cloudy from standing too long. Derek raised his glass; his eyes projected a meaningful glance over the rim at he said, "Here's to — us."

It was definitely a toast with nuances, especially the pause before "us." Arthur never said anything but "cheers" or "skoal." She sipped her Manhattan and felt awfully warm, either from the unaccustomed taste of gin, or the even more unaccustomed taste of intrigue.

"It's funny, our meeting the way we did." The actor's voice strummed the words softly. "I can tell you what a relief it was to see one person like you in that class of oversatisfied matrons."

Perversely, she had to remind him that he'd looked more at Paris Green.

"That show-girl moron. You don't think she's my dish!"

• • •

It was the reassurance she wanted, but she couldn't help remembering how Paris had squelched him. Derek imitated Paris, wriggling his shoulders and saying through his nose, "Ain't okay."

She giggled, feeling a little guilty.

"And you've certainly been holding out on me about Rodney Mool," he continued. "Come on, give. I'm dying to know."

"Know what?" She was simpatient to get back to the talk about inhibitions and her emigmatic smile. As Derek went on asking questions about Mool—"If he was an active Commie, how did he keep it so quiet?"—she began to be uneasy. "I never said he was a Communist. He may even be a rabid Republican by now."

"You can trust me." Derek said coaxingly. "I won't tell a soul."

She looked at him and said, "I was thinking the other day—you remind me of Rodney. You even look a little alike."

"The poor, poor man!" He tightened the knot of his tie, smilingly. "You must introduce us sometime when he's in town. Is it true he's going to do L Married a Borgia in Rome?"

Lucilla looked blank; she was bracing herself to explain that she never saw Rodney any more, when Derek' said they must have another drink. She started to say, "No, really,.I have to go," but he signaled over her head to the waitress. It was only 3:30; Hoopy would still be at Linda's. "My child is mad about television," she said. "She's 8 and——"

"You only imagine you have an 8-year-old daughter. You aren't really that old."

Even though she knew it was nonsense, she couldn't help simpering. She started to give what she thought was an amusing account of Hoopy and the rest of the audience at Little Red Riding Hood. Derek interrupted to explain how atrociously amateurish those productions were. He informed her at some length. She made another effort to tel lsbout the children. This time, she got through three consecutive sentences before he exclaimed, "What little fiends we breed in America."

Lucilla thought he was being much too violent, and already some instinct warned her it was better not to contradict him.

LANDLORDS GIVEN RIGHT TO PASS ON HIGHER TAXES

Move Is to Encourage Two-Year Leases

Toronto, July 24 (CP)—The Ontario legislature rent committee Monday approved a proposal allowing landlords to pass higher taxes and redecorating costs on to tenants.

Landlords who spend at least five per cent of their property assessment on redecorating would be permitted to apply for higher rents. At present the landlords must spend at least 10 per cent of his assessment before he is eligible to ask for increased rents.

In the case of increased municipal taxes, the landlord would have the right to add one-twelfth of the increase to each month's rental.

Idea of the moves would be to encourage landlords and tenants to enter into two-year leases, a situation which, it is hoped, would help stabilize the housing problems of the province.

Committee recommendations will go before the Ontario cabinet for final approval.

FORMER CHIEF FORECASTER DIES, NOTED SCIENTIST

F. O'Donnell Received M.B. E. for Service

Toronto, July 24—(CP)—Frank O'Donnell, whose career is the story of the development of weather forecasting in Canada, died yesterday.

He entered the meteorological division as a clerk 51 years ago and retired in 1946 from the post of chief weather forecaster for Canada. On his retirement he received the M.B.E. for outstanding service.

Many of the advances in Canadian weather forecasting were the result of Mr. O'Donnell's work. Possibly his most outstanding contribution was the introduction of the system of high and low temperature estimates.

Born and educated at Bradford, Ont., 56 miles north of Toronto, he joined the meteorological division in 1900 when it was headed by Sir Frederick Stupart. Twenty-four years later he was appointed chief forecaster, a position he held for 21 years.

Saw Service Extended

He saw the service grow from a limited service of stations with none farther north in Ontario than Parry Sound and Port Arthur to an all-inclusive system with reports reaching the Bloor Street office here from one coast to the other and from stations ringing the Arctic.

He said his staff was responsible for all reports, going out in advance to newspapers, radio stations, airlines and steamship lines.

Mr. O'Connell once said that his consultations were annually 88 to 90 per cent accurate on "probs" and were within 3.5 of correctness over 36-hour periods.

It was his contention that weather forecasting was "entirely a mathematical problem." After measuring air pressure, temperature, wind velocity and humidity from these figures computing the speed of air masses, judging their size—up in the ascending periods and estimating "whether it is cloudy or clear, the weather expert then must approach the solution to his daily problem "as a human being."

Fairly Accurate

He must get out "the temperatures and the probs and though he sometimes goes astray it does not happen often. It is remarkable that the casually observant public like Mr. O'Donnell said on his retirement.

To him the outstanding event of his career was the unexpected television of weather reports for the flight of the British Airship R-100 from Montreal to Ottawa and back.

Many times he received thanks from Canadian and United States shipping lines for his "accurate" reports on Great Lakes weather. Once, in 1921, he was the only forecaster to predict a bad storm on Lake Erie. Though his warning was many hours late it died because some ignored his prediction.

One of his few wrong estimations came early in his career. He was in charge of the weather office on Lake Ostario and it was only by accident—a paddling that they reached shore before a storm struck. She forgave him his forecast and later married him.

UK Agrees to Buy 113 Million Bu. Wheat Says Howe

Price of $1.80 as Set By IWC Likely To be Paid

Ottawa, July 24 (CP)—The United Kingdom will purchase 95,000,000 bushels of wheat from Canada under terms of the International Wheat Agreement in 1951-52, Trade Minister Howe announced today.

In addition, he said, Britain will take 300,000 tons of Canadian flour, equivalent to 18,000,000 additional bushels of wheat.

The minister said Britain also has expressed "interest" in purchasing further quantities of wheat from Canada on a Class II basis if additional quantities are available.

May Buy More

It has been agreed that the two countries will consider next Sept. 30 a further purchase and sale of 200,000 long tons—8,900,000 bushels—of wheat on a Class II basis.

The 1951-52 crop year agreement was reached in discussions between the British Food Ministry and the Canadian Wheat Board following a meeting of the International Wheat Council in London.

Mr. Howe said the Anglo-Canadian discussion covered also the signing of a memorandum of agreement for the sale and purchase of wheat and flour as well as covering a number of technical matters pertaining to the wheat trade of the two countries, including general shipping arrangements for the crop year 1951-52.

The price Britain will pay in the next crop year will be set by the International Wheat Agreement. Under the agreement, the minimum price is $1.80 (U.S.) a bushel for No. 1 northern. The floor drops 10 cents a bushel to $1.30 (U.S.) from $1.40.

High World Demand

However, with the world demand for wheat relatively high, the International Wheat Agreement at the maximum level and it is anticipated here that it will likely be the top price for the next crop year.

Still unsettled is the question of whether Britain will pay the six-cent-a-bushel carrying charge on wheat imported recently and covering all exports of wheat.

Payment for the payment of the extra charge on the basis of the price established by the multi-nation wheat pact, Britain has requested that the matter be considered by the pact's directing council.

Th council will met in London on July 30 when a final decision will be made.

Altogether, the 95,000,000 bushels of wheat, including 18,000,000 shels in flour, making a total of 113,000,000 bushels, would be slightly higher than Canada's commitments to Britain in the current International Wheat pact.

Frost Damaged Supply

Britain had intended taking in the current crop year between 100,000,000 and 120,000,000 bushels, but a frost-damaged prairie crop failed to provide sufficient quality wheat to meet all of Canada's export requirements. While the amount Britain has received in the current crop is still secret, it is believed to be less than 100,000,000 bushels.

Class II wheat is wheat sold outside the terms of the four-year international agreement which began in 1953. There is no fixed price for this class and it usually runs higher than the agreement price.

A Rake, Friend, Beats a Worm

Hudson Bay, Sask., July 24—(CP)—A local fisherman lent his rest to a friend Monday.

But on the first cast the rest flew out of his friend's hands into 10 feet of water.

The host decided to fish it out with a rake.

As he did, a night watchman at a nearby mill was an interested spectator.

"What you doing?" asked the watchman.

"Fishing," said the angler.

"They bite on that?" asked the watchman, eyeing the rake.

"They bite at anything," said the angler.

The watchman shook his head and walked away.

The story spread and now the angler is having trouble convincing his friends he isn't crazy.

Conference Called to Discuss Costs of Defence Materials

Ottawa, July 24. (CP)—Production Minister Howe is planning to fly to Washington to attend a special industrial mobilization conference with United States officials.

He likely will leave either tomorrow evening or early Thursday.

The meeting was called by Charles Wilson, U.S. defence mobilization chief. Both he and Mr. Howe are members of the Canada-United States joint industrial mobilization committee, responsible for designing the bilateral economic pact signed last October 26.

Under this pact, an extention of the wartime Hyde Park agreement, Canada and the U.S. agreed to pool their resources as a defence against aggression.

Reason for the conference was not known, but it is believed to have developed from U.S. concern over mounting costs for defence materials.

Inflation, and the problems of coping with it, sparked a meeting recently between Mr. Howe and Eric Johnston, U.S. economic stabilizer.

Mr Johnston came away from that meeting satisfied with Canada's attempts to hold the price line.. However, he expressed concern over the $10-a-ton increase in the price of Canadian newsprint which went into effect July first.

It appeared likely that the conference in Washington, to open Thursday, will enquire into problems of prices and means of controlling them.

It also likely will deal with a desire by Canada that the U.S. place more defence orders in this country. Canada has placed about $350,000,000 worth of defence contracts in the U.S. American orders for military equipment in Canada amount to about $100,000,000 over the last year.

New Charge Faces Millionaire In Red Bail Probe

New York, July 24 (AP) — Millionaire Frederick Vanderbilt Field, jailed "angel" of left-wing causes, was handed a fresh federal court today under a new attempt threat in the government's probe of communist bail jumping.

Vanderbilt and four other persons were accused yesterday of "contemptuous" conduct before a federal grand jury.

All five are connected with the Civil Rights Congress bail fund which posted, and forfeited, $80,000 in bonds for four fugitive top communists. The jury is investigating the quartet's flight.

Field, a trustee for the fund is already serving a 90-day contempt sentence for refusing to tell who contributed to the fund.

U. S. Attorney Irving Ham Saypol said Field, in effect, wanted his lawyer in the Grand Jury room, a practice forbidden by law.

Northern Lights and Rocket Trips To Moon Discussed by Scientists

London, Ont., July 24. (CP)— Scientists from nine countries, concerned mostly with things out of this world ,met here yesterday and talked about such things as rocket flights to the moon and the mysteries of the Northern Lights.

The 75 surveal physicists who opened a four-day convention at the University of Western Ontario seldom got any closer to the earth than 60 miles.

Their interests were chiefly with the aurora, the upper atmosphere where light is produced by the passage of particles which originate in the sun.

Conclusions understandable to the layman were far from numerous. The physicists, from such countries as France, Norway, England, Germany, Sweden, India, Ireland, the United States and Canada, agreed that the Northern Lights, for one thing, are still more to be admired than understood.

Specifically, these men are trying to ascertain the nature of the particles which come from the sun, and the properties of the upper atmosphere. Most of the light generated occurs 60 miles from the earth, but it has occurred at a height of 1,000 miles.

While working to satisfy their own curiosity the physicists may eventually pave the way for the first rocket flight to the moon or beyond. In addition they may be able to help weather forecasters make accurate long-range predictions.

Professor D. R. Bates, well-known astronomical expert from Queen's University, Belfast, had something to say about what a rocket trip to the moon would be like.

The temperature of the atmosphere 40 miles above the earth is far below zero, he said, but at a height of 120 miles it is 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit above zero—or roughly the temperature of red hot iron.

However, despite the heat, Dr. Bates said, the rocket ships would safely penetrate this hot belt. The atmosphere, he explained, is so rare and the molecules so few that there is almost a vacuum with the result that space-travelers wouldn't feel the heat.

The conference is sponsored jointly by the University of Western Ontario and the Geophysical Research Division of the U.S. Air Force.

Police Suspect Kidnap Attempt

Montreal, July 24—(CP)—Provincial police said today they are investigating the "possible kidnapping" of a three-year-old boy from the foundling home of the Soeur Maternelle de la Nativite last Sunday.

Inspector General Norbert Labbe said the police are attempting to classify the case as kidnapping. He said they are trying the identification of a woman who visited north-end Ville St. Michel Institution Sunday on the grounds with the child.

The boy was identified as Maurice Roberts, who speaks only French.

Inspector Labbe said police were not discounting a possibility the child's disappearance was caused by a misunderstanding. The unidentified woman had visited the child's father previously and was allowed in the yard to see the boy Sunday.

It was only after she had left the grounds that the child was reported missing.

Atomic Scientist Seeks Legal Advice

London, July 24—(Reuters) — Dr. Eric Henry Burhop, Australian atomic scientist whose return passport was confiscated two days before he was due to visit Moscow, said Monday he is seeking legal advice. His passport was cancelled Thursday by order of the Foreign Office.

Burhop, a physics lecturer at London University, was to have left Saturday with a "goodwill delegation" for Moscow.

U.N. Finally Hold Initiative In Korean Cease-Fire Talks

U.N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 24—(AP) —It has been a long slow pull but the United Nations finally hold the initiative in the Korean cease-fire talks.

When the two sides first met at Kaesong July 8, the reds held both a physical and a psychological advantage.

They made it appear that the allies were coming to the reds, hat in hand. They guarded the Kaesong talks with their soldiers.

The allied succesful demand that the reds neutralize Kaesong reduced the red advantage.

But it was not until Saturday that the allies seized the initiative.

That day, Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief U.N. delegate, told the reds the two sides had a sufficient agenda for talks. Without stating it in so many words, Joy told the communists to stop demanding inclusion of the subject of foreign troop withdrawals from Korea.

The reds, on the defensive for the first time, called a recess to consider his ultimatum.

Tomorrow they must say if they will bow to the U.N. suggestion that the troop withdrawal topic be passed for the present.

If they do, a quick cease-fire in Korea might be accomplished.

If the reds continue to press demands for discussion of the controversial issue, some allied sources believe the talks might settle down to daily wrangling and finally die out.

The reds find themselves faced with the responsibility of saying whether it's to be peace or war in Korea.

Bell Given 5-Year Contract To Provide Television Network

Ottawa, July 24— (CP)— The CBC today announced that the Bell Telephone Company has been awarded a five-year contract for the provision of television network service in Canada.

The network will link Buffalo, N.Y., Toronto and Montreal at a starting date for, the contract has not been set.

The telephone company will receive $225,564 a year for the network service.

At the same time, the CBC announced the awarding of a five year contract to the Canadian National Railways and the Canadian Pacific Railway, jointly, for the provision of network wireless services for sound broadcasting.

The railway companies will supply network wireless services for the Trans-Canada, Dominion and French networks of the CBC the circuit between Montreal and Sackville, N.B., for the transmission of international television programs abroad, and intercity teletype service linking Toronto, Ottawa and Montreal.

An order-in-council recently was passed authorizing the publicly-owned CBC to conclude the contracts.

Over 234,000 Jap War Prisoners Die in Red Camps

Tokyo, July 24 — (CP) — The Foreign Office said today more than 234,000 Japanese captured in the Second World War have died in prisoner-of-war camps in communist territory.

It added in a white paper that 28,797 others are missing.

The document said 77,637 Japanese P.O.W.'s are alive in communist Siberia, South Sakhalin Island and the Kuriles, North Korea, Manchuria and Kwangtung province in China.

Reds May Stand Firm on Demand For Withdrawal

Tokyo, July 25 — (Wednesday) —(AP) — The Moscow radio in the evening carried a report indicating the communist negotiators at Kaesong may stand firm on their insistence on withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

The broadcast, monitored by the United States Army in Tokyo, was the Russian version of a report by the Korean Central News Agency. It said in part:

"Interests of security and independence of our country and the interests of world peace demand withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea. . . . Representatives in Kaesong resolutely insist on the final solution of this question."

The recessed armistice talks were to resume at 11 a.m. today (9 p.m. EDT Tuesday.)

Millions of Dollars Loss Caused By Most Freakish Weather in Decade

(By The Canadian Press)

In the last six weeks, Canadians have had their share of weather, and some of the most freakish weather of the decade.

Rainfall in Ontario and parts of western Quebec has been 30 per cent above normal—causing hay spoilage and loss of winter wheat, tobacco and other crops running into millions of dollars.

Through most of British Columbia west of the Rockies not a drop of rain has fallen in the last 40 days.

And at Cowley, Alta., 5.6 inches of snow fell on June 26.

Weather officials say that in Ontario, three months' average of 7.7 inches—has fallen in the last two months. This was accompanied by at least two sets of severe electrical storms.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday a series of electrical storms, accompanied by hail and lightning struck southern Ontario, destroying crops, uprooting trees and setting fires.

Weather officials explain the dry spell west of the Rockies by a change in prevailing wind directions.

Normally, they say, British Columbia is watered by westerly winds which lose their moisture in the Rockies.

This month they have veered and are now passing up the coast and over the mountains so there is no obstacle to cause them to lose the rain they contain.

Vacation Bible Schools Held

The third annual Vacation Bible School in the Bayside and Churchill Heights area was held from July 3rd to 13th and exceeded the attendance of the previous two years.

At the Sunday evening service at Fairway Avenue some of the children presented some of the lessons by giving a flannelgraph talk, repeating some of their Scripture verses and singing choruses.

Enjoyed and appreciated by the children, and realized by the parents, these courses will be more valued as the lessons are put into daily practice.

For the first time a vacation Bible school was held at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church with 50 children enrolled, meeting from 2nd to 13th.

A planned series of Bible studies, memory verses, songs, and handicraft describing the means of learning of God's Word was conducted by Mrs. E. M. Lush, Mrs. Todd, Mrs. Strickland, Miss I. Peters and Mrs. W. Davidson with their helpers.

This work among the girls and boys of various ages was not only of lasting value to them but was also much appreciated by their parents and should be the foundation of similar work in future years.

Municipal Assessments Are Based On 1939 Cost Values Rotary Told

Mr. John P. Coombe, municipal affairs consultant and assessment adjustment advisor, was guest speaker at the weekly Rotary luncheon in the Quinte Hotel on Monday. Mr. Coombe based his address on municipal affairs. Born in England, Mr. Coombe was educated in Toronto and became a member of the Association of Municipal Affairs in 1937. He left the organization in 1947 to take up his present occupation.

"Assessment was carried on as far back as the stone ages," stated the speaker, "when each person in the family was assessed a certain number of bundles of wood as their contribution to group upkeep." Through the history of the Greeks, the Old and New Testament, assessment had grown by leaps and bounds to its present day status.

"It is not my purpose to increase the assessment in any municipality but to equalize it. There are three main groups into which a building may be categorized. That is, industrial, commercial and residential. Unless these three are assessed on a uniform the assessment would be unjust. The democratic way of life is formed on equity."

Assessment in the past has been a hidden mystery, even at times an under the table topic.

Use 1939 Values as Base

Owners were not informed as to just how their property's assessment was broken down or arrived at. To have equality in assessment, the assessment is methodical and systematic."

Mr. Coombe stated assessment is based on the replacement cost method less depreciation on the building construction cost of 1939-40. Building values of today are not considered. For this reason, we use the 1939 values as a base."

As an example of this, the speaker pointed out that in private days a bricklayer worked for 60c an hour and set an average of 1,000-1,600 bricks a day, whereas the present day counterpart is paid at the rate of $2.60 per hour and lays from four to six hundred bricks a day. In many cases neither the workmanship, nor the brick, nor the mortar is as good as it was at that time, according to Mr. Coombe.

"How do you assess? Each building is grouped on its own classification according to physical condition, location, use factor, and keeping of an index material used in the building."

Mr. Coombe dealt at length on the Parkwood Heights area, discussing the assessment problem there in relation to the rest of the city. He stated that it was not the assessment that was at fault, but the taxation level. "In three decades', stated Mr. Coombe, "the taxes levied in the city have risen from $342,000 to the present level of $1,045,000.

"The purpose of taxes is to equalize the cost of services given to the individual taxpayer by the city. If one of the three groups is out of line, the others are unjustly assessed.

The speaker stated that in his frank opinion, the assessment staff of the city was insufficient. One cannot scrutinize a building from the outside and municipal governments should pay taxes the same as anyone else. In this way, all are treated equally.

In conclusion, the speaker said that he believed citizens were not enough people interested in municipal affairs. He would like to see more taxpayers come into the office to find out just how and why they are assessed.

Mr. Coombe was introduced by Rotarian Mac Haig and thanked by Rotarian Norman Bonney.

Rotarian Harold Mott, Rotary convenor for the inter-service golf match between the two clubs, asked for enough entries from the club for two teams.

Guests and visitors were present from Rochester, N.Y.; Sackville, New Brunswick; Sask.; Ft. Pierce, Fla.; Peterborough, Picton, Toronto, and Stirling.

IN MEMORIAM

STUART — In loving memory of my dear wife, Ada Ward, Trenton, who passed away seven years ago today.
Time's little hand has driven tonight,
An angel with golden hair,
To take this wife of sorrow's blue,
His soul so pure and fair.
God saw she had suffered a short sweet time
To me it seemed but a day.
But heaven must have been very sad
The little while he was away.
—Sadly missed and always remembered by her mother. J24

TORONTO STOCKS

Industrial advances ranged from fractions to more than a point. Papers and steels led the board upward and utilities, construction, foods, textiles, refining oils, manufacturing companies and retail stores followed. Agriculturres and banks were mixed.

A handful of lower priced issues gained pennies to feature the base metal section. Mackeno was extremely active as it climbed 12 cents. Estelia, Golden Manitou, Steep Rock, United Asbestos, Osisko, Aunor, Yukeno advanced. Consolidated Smelters went against the trend and eased 1/4.

Golds continued Monday's late upswing in early trading and then became steady. Senior producers added fractions and secondary golds were up pennies.

Seek Compromise In Oil Discussions

Tehran, July 24 — (CP) — Negotiations between President Truman's special envoy W. Averell Harriman and Iranian officials were reported to have hit a snag today over details for ending the bitter Anglo-Iranian feud over nationaling of oil.

The snag was not described as a deadlock. Both Harriman and members of the Iranian government's oil nationalization board still expressed "satisfaction" with progress made in the talks so far.

But after 10 hours of discussion yesterday in the bedroom of ailing Premier Mozadegh, the Iranian cabinet still had not reached agreement on the basis for resuming formal negotiations with Britain.

Both Harriman and the Iranians were understood to have submitted proposals "along the same general lines," a source close to the negotiations said.

These would call for British acceptance of Iranian government ownership of the country's rich oil resources, including the installations of the British-owned Anglo-Iranian Oil Company. But an operating company controlled by the customers who buy Iranian oil would be set up.

The source said that Harriman proposed that this operating company would distribute and market the oil, and manage the wells and the refinery at Abadan — the world's largest.

The Iranians, however, were reported to have proposed that the operating company buy Iranian oil'at the Persian Gulf jetties, distribute and sell it, but that the nationalized Iranian company would manage and direct the actual production.

Both sides are trying to find a compromise.

Eight Bradley Basketballers Admit Bribes

New York, July 24. (AP) — District-Attorney Frank Hogan announced today that eight Bradley University basketball players, including an All-American athlete, had admitted accepting bribes to fix basketball games.

Bradley, which is in Peoria, Ill., had had top-ranking teams during the last few years.

Hogan named four of the eight players, who are all under questioning by the state's attorney in Peoria as Eugene Melchiorri, 23, the All-American athlete; William Mann, 24; Aaron Preece, 24; and Charles Grover, 22.

Peoria, Ill., (AP)—State's Attorney Michael A. Shore ordered a grand jury investigation of reports the scores of two Bradley University basketball games were manipulated at the instruction of gamblers.

Shore said the games were between Bradley and Washington State, played in Peoria Dec. 31, 1949, which Bradley won 67-59, and between Bradley and Oregon State, played in Peoria Dec. 7, 1950, which Bradley won 77-74. He said he had heard reports the score manipulation consisted in "shaving" Bradley's score to less than it would have normally been.

Soviets Claim Life Found 5 Miles Down

Moscow, July 24 — (AP) — A Soviet scientific expedition claims it has discovered life nearly five miles below the sea's surface.

The announcement said the expedition — using conical nets — hauled up from a depth of 8,000 metres a black fish with big eyes and a head about 35 inches long. The scientists also fished up a collection of worms the announcement said.

(The report did not specify where the catch was made.)

Thelmaway was away flying from her number one post position and never was caught although she was chased over the winning line by Bar Hanover driving Duke Volo and M. C. Rose.

Thelmaway was used as a show horse before her owner decided to send her to the races a year ago. It was her first win of the season.

SHERMAN, PETAIN AND KING ABDULLAH

The United States, and the western nations as a whole, will suffer through the untimely death of Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, U.S. Chief of Naval Operations. Admiral Sherman first came into the spotlight of world attention in 1949, when he took over as chief after Admiral Louis Denfeld left the post. It was not an easy job that faced Sherman, because it was a position that guaranteed little security of tenure. Admiral Denfeld had not fared well in the bitter fight that accompanied unification of all the services of the United States, and there was no indication that his successor would find the going any easier.

Forrest P. Sherman was vaulted over the heads of nine officers his senior to become the youngest Naval Chief of Operations in United States history. He was more than a military man, and he had more than a military mind. This fact was recognized in statements made following his death, by Secretary of State Dean Acheson, who described him as a "statesman who saw beyond the military problems to the objectives of our national policy." Testimony on behalf of that fact was given in Sherman's trip to Spain in the past weeks, where he had discussed the use of Spanish sites for American naval and air bases.

Admiral Sherman was 54 years old. In that short time, he gave more than a lifetime of service to his country. Like many others, he stood in the shadow of other "greats" during his life with quiet efficiency. Unlike some others, he did not step into a contentious position, and once there, proceeded to prove that his moves up the ladder had not been without just reason. His service will not easily be forgotten.

At the same time, the hero of Verdun of the First World War died dying in a villa set aside for him by the French government. Marshal Henri Philippe Petain, a onetime hero whose name fell into disrepute during the Second World War because he collaborated with the Nazi Vichy regime, died without being taken back to the bosom of his country. Death came to him on the bleak Ile D'Yeu, where he had spent five years of his later life after being convicted of treason.

Petain was a soldier's soldier even when he authored "They shall not pass," and stood with his troops in a battle that will always be a hallowed memory for free nations. His words boomed around the world, and backs were a little straighter, more determined as he was chief of staff and fought as free men have done for centuries. But his honor faded in 1940, when he was called back to head his failing country. It was his lot to surrender France to the advancing German armies, and following that, in 1945, he was the first Frenchman to be charged with treason since 1793. A court of justice found him guilty of intelligence with the enemy, and sentenced him to death. The sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, but he was stripped of his national dignity, and banished to a tiny island off the Atlantic coast.

There Marshal Petain died, convinced to the last that he had done well for his country at all times, and that his station in life was justified. Among the elders of nations, his name will be linked with First World War nostalgia, and among later generations, with the black shadow of treason.

The eastern nations, where there is a characteristic lack of peace, a radical eruption brought about the death of Abdulah, King of Jordan, and staunch fried of Britain. His death will do no little harm to already strained relations between that country and Britain. Abdullah was a far more mature man than many of the leaders of the Arab states. His maturity was evinced time and again, when he asked for a permanent peace treaty for the states torn apart by a holy war. In the meantime, he had effected a compromise, a temporary arrangement, with Israel, and was fostering as much good will as was possible under the circumstances.

Abdullah, while not outspoken, was without doubt Britain's greatest ally in the Middle East, and may have been her only certain ally. His power over his subjects was traced not only to his high birth, but also to his character as a leader and a thinker. As a descendant of Mohammed and head of the Hashemite dynasty, he wielded great religious influence.

Thus we of the western world can look objectively at three deaths. One may have resulted from overwork in the service of a country. Another was the result of old age and its many complications. The third was a murder, plain and simple. In the first, honor was maintained; in the second, it was tarnished; and in the third, it was bright again. More men will fill the slots left open by these deaths, but the names of Sherman, Petain and King Abdullah of Jordan will occupy small crannies of memory for a long time.

FISHERMAN LUCK

A bite! And his worries were ended!
The thrill of a tug at his line!
The world for that second was splendid.
Of trouble there wasn't a sign.
He was done with all doubting and fearing.
He hadn't a pain he could feel.
The sweetest of tunes he was hearing:
The musical click of the reel.

A worker he was in the office,
A fisherman out on the stream.
A biter! And he needed no pity.
His cup had a glorious gleam.

In the making perhaps was a story.
Come winter, with pride to relate.
He was living a moment of glory!
A big one had struck at his bait!

Whenever I see men go fishing,
That luck will go with them I pray.
I must stay on the shore, but I'm wishing
They'll find they are biting that day.
May their rods in the struggle bend double;
May a bass run away with their cares,
And freed from all heartache and trouble
May minutes of rapture be theirs.

Van Doos Going To Get Their Cannon Back

Ottawa, July 24 — (CP)—The Van Doos are coming to get their cannon.

The paratroop officers of the famed Royal 22nd Regiment led by their commanding officer, Col. L. Fremont Trudeau, will drop from a transport over Rockcliffe air base this evening.

Their objective: a historic bronze cannon spirited out of their base at Quebec City's Citadel last week by officers of No. 412 Transport Squadron, RCAF.

Chances are the "recapture" will be made without a struggle For it was to entice a visit to the Air Force base that the Royal 22nd officers that the Air Force boys sneaked the cannon from the Citadel in a truck and flew it to Ottawa.

The cannon, first captured by the British at Bunker Hill in 1776, will go back to Quebec Wednesday. Along with the Van Doo officers, it will be aboard one of three RCAF transports which fly to Quebec to engage in paratroop exercises with the army.

When Col. Trudeau first discovered what had happened to the cannon, he said it was "une mauvaise Farce" — a bad joke.

Air force officers said they were glad the good colonel now was "going along with the gag."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

Within recent months, there seems to be an increase of that infuriating business of getting a switchboard clerk and then receiving a smart click in the ear and then, nothing.

You wait and wait. You jiggle the receiver hook. All you do is cut yourself off; and you dial the number again. And again. A quick click, efficient voice answers you. You ask for your party. There is an instantaneous click. And then silence.

Personally, I have had this trouble lately with department stores, government offices and large organizations where they have internal switchboards. The girls in these spots are mere robots. They are drilled and trained to be slick, swift and efficient. They are apparently discouraged by personal management from taking any personal attitude towards their job. No time must be wasted. And with efficient managers comes, so many times a week, to stand in the switchboard room, shrewdly observing the operators. No doubt he gets little forms daily, little forms he worked out himself, that indicate exactly how efficiently the switchboard staff works, number of calls in, number of calls out, number of complaints, nature of complaints, and so forth.

If you take the trouble to complain directly to the management, they break down completely, and ask you if you have any idea how hard it is these days to get good help?

Well, some businesses are able to get decent help on the switchboard.

Everyone of us knows them. The friendly, pleasant voice answers your call by naming the firm. There is no sensational effect of speed and fury about her. She does not slap you in the face with her clicker. You ask for your party, and if his line is busy, she tells you so, sympathetically, and asks if you care to hold the line, or will call you a little later.

The fact is, these operators last for years and years in a business where they very well treated by management. For management realizes that the front, the first impression and the best possible advertisement of the business.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

YOUR FRONTIER

The present moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., Dr. Harrison Ray Anderson, of Chicago, descends from a long line of frontier preachers. He himself started out as an engineer and later switched to the ministry. He has always been present with the exception of one son, Nelson, who is unable to be here The daughters are Mrs. Allen Tracy and Mrs. Manley Austin of Theodore, Sask., Mrs. F. L. Brown, Bracebridge and Mrs. Charles Cole of Blessington, and a son, Mr. W. E. Reed of Flint, Mich. This is the first gathering of the family in eighteen years.

But one day an inescapable call came from a Chicago church, one of the largest in his denomination. His colleagues everywhere urged him to accept it. But he was quite evidently the right man for this great responsibility.

He accepted the call, but still his heart was on the frontier. One Saturday evening he and his wife arrived in Chicago and were unpacking their suitcases in a large downtown hotel. Dr. Anderson was sad, and for just one reason—that he was leaving the frontier.

Suddenly a fusillade of shots rang out. Their hotel was being held up by gangsters. And his wife with a wry smile whispered to him, "Here is your frontier."

Frontiers change, but one time definitely tied up with geography. Now the frontier is people. The frontier is any line that has to be crossed in the march to progress and discovery. Your frontier may be in a laboratory, in an office, in a schoolroom—or even in the kitchen. Whatever the hand of destiny appears to be beckoning you to greater service, you are standing at the edge of a frontier, no matter where it happens to be.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

TOO many of us, I fear, live superficial lives, not living deep enough. And what I mean by "deep" is that we get down to essential things from day to day that really matter.

There's a verse in his reason for building his crude cabin, on the edge of the world and at this desire there, that he "wished to live deliberately, to front only the essential facts of life, and see if I could not learn what it had to teach Again he said: "I wanted to live deep."

The older we grow the more we realize the importance of things that we rarely thought about in youth, and how much it means for us to develop that inner life that is the greatest gift anyone can give. We learn the small place that mere money takes, and of the larger place that character takes, and of service. No matter where or how performed.

We ought to be most of all concerned with living things that bring joy and happiness to others. We learn, can give of ourself in a number of ways and that this is the greatest gift anyone can give. We learn the small place that mere money takes, and of the larger place that character takes, and of service. No matter where or how performed.

Polygamy Cruel Novelist Says

New York, July 23—(CP)—An American grandmother who spent 2½ weeks as a guest of the Fon of Bikon, said today polygamy in West Africa is fine for the male but frustrating for his string of wives.

Mrs. Rebecca Hourwich Reyher, a novelist, returned on the liner Washington after a 30-month expedition in Africa. She was gathering material for a new book.

She said that the fon—ruler of 20,000 natives—was low in spirits when she arrived at the top of Likom Mountain in the British Cameroons. Fifty-seven of his harem—at one time said to number 104 wives—had run away.

Mrs. Reyher said she talked with four of the deserting wives and heard a "story of heartbreak, frustration and loneliness" from them.

"Polygamy is a cruel business," she said.

Mrs. Reyher said she and the fon "got along fine" because he liked her nail polish.

"It was the first time in my life I was glad of my age. The natives do not like women over 40."

Hippo Bites Seaman, Freighter Returns

Monbasa, Kenya, July 24—(AP)—The African Star returned to port in the Tanganyika freighter yesterday because a hippopotamus bit one of the seamen.

The seaman, Robert RaWlings, had volunteered to play nursemaid for the hippo, consigned to New York. But the animal turned on him and bit his hand. Rawlings lost a finger and may lose his whole hand.

The hippopotamus was put ashore because another crew member would volunteer to take care of it on the trip.

PEP TALK BY HIGH SCHOOL FOOTBALL COACH

A high school football coach says he has been highly incensed at my persistent condemnation of sports, especially Football (the coach capitalizes it), as purely social activities. Ordinarily he passes my observations or advice off as Paddy-Daddy frailties (the coach is fond of capitals). Then he goes on to say that in many years of coaching of boys 13 to 16 years old, he has never had a serious injury (the coach means of course, none of the boys has had a serious injury). But he has seen several boys leave school with one leg, shattered arms or shaky nervous systems from scooter crashes or gun mishaps —the scooters or the guns in each instance having been furnished by fond Moms who wouldn't consider letting their boys play football.

"Yes, Doctor, the 'Moms' will concern your opinion, but I don't know as much about boys as I do you'd find that boys of that age will play football, whether they have the urge regardless of whether or not they have parental permission.

If that is the situation perhaps the best remedy would be for the parents, doctors and others concerned about the well being of growing boys to use the facilities of Education to exclude this grown man's game altogether. Slow do boys 14 or 15 years old get the urge which makes them defy the wishes and demands of parents? They get it from the coach, obviously.

And how does the coach get away with his characterization of medicine who have the sense and assurance to veto the plan of coach to take the "sissy" in hand?

The coach informs me that he feels he owes no degrees to quality him as health teacher or coach. In his teaching he has always praised the medical profession. He says about Doctor Brady and the teaching or coaching profession?

Well, briefly explain D-u-d-d-y D-u-d-d-y I just prate away about one thing or another without much concern about where the chips fall.

But the record I hereby praise all recognized professions—at the same time reserve the right to condemn, disapprove, deplore or criticize anybody or anything in any profession if I believe that it is in any way detrimental to personal health.

I believe Interscholastic football is detrimental to the health of growing children.

Horsemeat Sa'es Higher

Most Canadians Would Rather Ride a Horse Than Eat Him

(By The Canadian Press)

The horse, largely replaced as a useful animal by machines, is making something of a comeback through the dining room.

Most Canadians would rather ride the equine than eat him, even when beef is so high, but a Canadian Press survey uncovered five horsemeat stores in the Dominion—all in the west.

Vancouver boasts two, one of which opened June 26 to such a wave of customers that six butchers were rushed off their feet. Roast and hamburger were the most popular items.

Said one woman who bought a five-pound sirloin roast, filet mignon and stewing meat for only $8.30: "Horsemeat is here to stay!"

The Pony Market sells horse in Edmonton. There is another horsemeat market in Calgary and one in Winnipeg.

In Montreal and Quebec City the sale of horsemeat for human consumption is forbidden by city by-laws and it hasn't caught on in Ontario or in the Maritimes.

Applications from stores in New Westminster, B.C., were turned down when Alderman Elizabeth Wood, farm born, told council: "The horse is next to humans in intelligence. I would no more eat horsemeat than human flesh.

The butchers report most customers are Europeans accustomed to eating the meat before they migrated to Canada, but William Antonis, owner of the Stampede Market in Winnipeg, says many of his orders come from that city's more exclusive districts.

Others buy out of curiosity and because of the big difference in price. Most customers return for more and say the meat tastes almost like beef.

Prices range from 48 cents for tenderloin steak in Calgary to 60 cents for the same cut in Winnipeg. Compared to $1.35-$1.40 for beef tenderloin, this gives some idea of the economic factor involved.

The sale of horsemeat across the Dominion is governed in the same way as the sale of any other kind of meat.

Horses must be slaughtered in separate slaughter houses. They must be gvvrnment-inspected before they can be killed and their meat must be sold in separate shops, plainly marked.

The meat can be sold in restaurants in most areas, too, but only when sold as such. It turned up in hamburgers at last year at the Ottawa exhibition and the sellers were prosecuted.

The only plant in Western Canada that slaughters the animals for human consumption is at Swift Current, Sask., where several ranches raise horses for the purpose.

Wild horses rounded up on the plains of Saskatchewan and Alberta also are used.

WHITE'S DISTRICT

White's District—Miss Carolyn Ritz spent the past week with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffrey.

Mr. J. C. White spent a few days last week in Toronto.

Messrs. D. Bowers, S. Bowers, B. Westover, also Donald Bowers, Mervyn Bowers and Mr. Everett Bowers, of Belleville, were recent visitors north of Tweed returning with a good quota of huckleberries.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery and Mr. and Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson spent last weekend in the Kingston district and visited Fort Henry and Abbey Dawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, of Toronto, were visitors for a few days recently of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. James Howe of New Toronto, were last week visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Jones.

Mr. and Mrs. Colton and two boys, of Toronto, were Thursday guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Betham.

Mr. Floyd Sandercock had the misfortune to lose a valuable cow during the severe electrical storm which passed over this district last Monday. During the same storm the electric power was cut off for several hours. This same electrical storm paid freak visits to the homes of Mr. A. A. Stickle, Mr. L. Wilson, and Mr. Shannon in the vicinity of Trenton, but no serious damage was caused. All were relieved when the storm finally ended.

Mrs. Walter Jones, who has spent the past month in Trenton Memorial Hospital is convalescing at her home.

The ladies are busy these days in the raspberry patches. The yield is exceptionally good and of a good quality.

White's W.A.

Mrs. Clayton Stickle and Mrs. Ross Stickle were co-hostesses to White's Women's Association with nine members, one visitor and three children present. The president, Mrs. Floyd Dudley, presided.

The devotional service was taken by Mrs. Leonard Young whose theme was, "How to be Happy" from the text, I Thessalonians 5:18 "In everything give thanks". The service opened by the singing of "Happy the Home When God is There", Mrs. Young read Psalm 19. Mrs. Ernest Curtis read I Thessalonians 5:1-18 and Mrs. Young gave the story of the lesson. The motto of Jesus was "I thank Thee O Father". Paul said, "Give thanks whatever happens." A man told a story of what happened in their home. They were not religious people. When their little son came home from school one day he said, "I have learned a thanks to say at the table, May I say it?" This was a beginning. The parents felt they needed help so they attended a nearby church and soon became members. The father is now a member of the board.

Parsonage Committee

A report of the parsonage committee was given by the convener, Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson. Plans were made for work to be done at the parsonage in the near future.

Mrs. Yatman offered her home for the next meeting with a pot-luck dinner at noon.

A discussion on wildin gnew comers in the community took place. The visiting committee is to be assisted by other ladies who will be chosen at August meeting.

Mrs. Ritchie Ketcheson took charge of the program. Mrs. W. A. Jeffrey gave a reading, "Let not Thy Kindness Fail," and Mrs. W. Yateman read an account of the doings of the "Letter E".

Two contests were enjoyed with the winner Mrs. Casey Ketcheson winning a glass dish. Mrs. Curtis read "Need of Loving" and Mrs. R. Ketcheson gave "Summertime".

Mrs. Young moved a vote of thanks to the hostesses and to the program convener. Little Miss Gwen Stickle took up the collection. Refreshments were served by the hostesses and a social time was enjoyed by all.

Five Valuable Heifers Killed by Poisoning

Oakville, Ont., July 24—(CP)—Poison has been blamed for the recent death of five heifers owned by Mrs. E. J. Meagher, whose farm is near here.

Estimating her loss at $5,000 to $6,000 Mrs. Meagher said the poison had a copper and lead base. The heifers picked it up in a pasture "about 10 days after my orchard was sprayed with the same type of poison," she said.

A farmer near Wiarton, Ont., lost seven head of cattle last week to what he termed deliberate poisoning. Eleven others also were taken ill from the same cause.

WILL TAKE BUS NEXT TIME

Kingston, July 24 — (CP) — Robert Marsden of Aldersville, Ont., says next time he'll take the bus. Last week he started out to hitch a ride from his home near Colbourg to Kingston. The man who picked him up was driving a stolen car. Police sighted the car and arrested both Marsden and the driver. It took some tall explaining by Marsden before police let him go.

BANCROFT

Sawmills, Lumber Are Plentiful, But no Birlers

Bancroft — Although there are 39 sawmills in the area between Madoc and Barry's Bay there are not any log birlers. At least there are not any birlers willing to demonstrate their art before the public.

The call for birlers went out from Bancroft Lions Club who were staging their annual regatta at Baptiste Lake and attractive prizes were offered. But there were no cork-shod entrants.

Lumber, pulpwood, cordwood and slabs still come from places like Maynoot, Hughes Siding, Bancroft, Deloir, Gilmour and Bannockburn by the carload at the rate of a trainload a day and the products of these and other neighboring mills are well known in places like Alliance, Ohio., Buffalo, Waterdown and Tonawanda, New York, and dozens of cities and towns of southwestern Ontario. Hemlock for temporary jobs in Toronto's subway, basswood for the heels in skater's shoes, spruce for the base of fine notepaper, poplar for the butcher's wrapping paper and millions of board feet of hardwood and softwood for interior and exterior building is all handled by people who are brought up with the smell of sawdust in their nostrils.

But — no birlers.

Municipal Lot For Parking Boon to Visitors

Bancroft: With the new municipal lot in operation, finding a parking spot on Bancroft's main street on Saturday night is no longer a problem. The grounds behind the municipal building have been graded and gravelled and lights have been installed. Besides this it is in the centre of the village and free to all motorists.

As this is in the hub of a lumbering and road-construction belt, many families use their trucks as a method of transportation when they come to town for their week end shopping. Local authorities have requested these people to use the lot in order to simplify the parking for the out-of-town tourists. Besides a large number of cars, 24 trucks were counted in the area during the middle of the rush on Saturday night.

In a short time the public rest rooms and lavatories in the municipal building will be ready for use. A crew of carpenters and plumbers are busy on the job and they will be open to the general public before the end of the current month.

Arrest Air Stewardess For Gold Smuggling

Cairo, Egypt, July 24 — (AP) — A police superintendent at Cairo-Farouk airport said today that a Trans World Airlines hostess, Cynthia Blyth, has confessed she smuggled gold from Cairo to Bombay, India. Three other persons were said to have been arrested in the case.

Miss Blyth, identified by authorities as a British subject residing in India, was arrested July 18 on charges of attempting to smuggle $3,000 worth of gold ingots out of Egypt aboard the plane on which she served as hostess.

She was said to be a link in a large international gold-smuggling ring.

Hint Babies May Swim From Yacht in Channel

Paris, July 24 — (AP) — Russell Tongay, father of Florida's "water babies," said today he had given the Minister of Interior a signed statement promising that his children, Bubba, 8, and Kathy, 4, would not try to swim the English Channel from the French "shore."

Tongay repeated, however, that at the end of the week he would board a yacht in the English Channel "off the French shore." Why? "Well, perhaps we'll do a little fishing or swimming."

He said he would board the yacht "south of Cape Gris Nez," traditional departure point for Channel swimmers but wouldn't name the date.

Pearson Visits With Churchill

London, July 24 — (CP) — L. B. Pearson, Canada's External Affairs Minister, called on Conservative leader Winston Churchill today at the House of Commons. The meeting was at Churchill's request.

Canadian officials said there was no special significance to the meeting. Churchill had asked Pearson to dine with him but the Canadian minister was unable to do so.

Earlier today, Pearson had a general discussion on Commonwealth matters with Patrick Gordon-Walker, secretary of state for Commonwealth relations.

The visiting Canadian minister, who has been away from Canada since June 17, plans to spend a few days in the country before returning to Ottawa by air Aug. 1.

RAF Bomber Flies Over North Pole

London, July 24 — (AP) — The air ministry said today a Lincoln Aries — a long range version of the four-engined Lincoln bomber — is flying from Iceland over the North Pole to Fairbanks, Alaska.

A spokesman said no word has been received from the plane but it should have passed over the geographic North Pole about 9 a. m. EDT.

It is scheduled to land at 7 p.m. EDT at the United States Air Force's Eielson Field near Fairbanks, completing a non-stop flight of 3,553 miles in 17 hours.

The flight is one of several Arctic training flights scheduled by the RAF College at Manby.

The plane took off from Keflavik, Iceland, at 2 a. m. EDT, the spokesman said.

It is commanded by Wing Cmdr. R. T. Frogley, senior instructor at the RAF College, and its crew of 10 includes two wing commanders who are students at the school, P. W. Heal and A. H. Humphreys.

The plane is scheduled to leave Eielson Field Thursday on a 5,128-mile non-stop flight back to Manby. The return flight is expected to take 20 hours.

Princess Elizabeth's Canadian Trip Affects Hartnell's Showing

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 24. (CP)—Royal dressmaker Norman Hartnell, torn between his public and his No. 1 customer, admitted today that Princess Elizabeth's Canadian visit has had an impact on his annual autumn collection.

In an interview Hartnell explained:

"My collection is smaller this year because Her Royal Highness has chosen many of the models to wear during her visit to Canada. Naturally, these models had to be withdrawn and replacements had to be made, where possible, at a moment's notice."

Hartnell was summoned to Buckingham Palace early in July, a few days before announcement of the royal tour.

"It was rather difficult," he said, "because most of the gowns in which we specialize take hours of hand-work — intricately woven designs in bead and sequin embroidery."

Several intricately-embroidered dresses were in the present show, and replacing them meant a lot of work."

But the royal dressmaker isn't complaining. Overseas buyers will be coming in their droves to pick out a model that can be labelled: "Similar to that worn by Princess Elizabeth on her tour of Canada, 1951."

Hartnell said he is under strict orders not to say anything about Elizabeth's choice of dresses, but fashion writers can make some shrewd forecasts. The autumn collection, unveiled at a special press preview yesterday, puts a clear emphasis on autumn leaf shades—oatmeal tweeds, browns and metallic, shimmering bronzes.

A new Windsor green, soft and hazy in shade, is also prominent in the collection. Since the Princess has recently shown a fondness for green, this color seems likely to form part of the Canadian wardrobe.

The collection as a whole indicates that Hartnell still favors full-length clothes and picture frocks. Conservative lines and classic simplicity, rather than one dominant "theme" such as French designers often stress, tend to be the keynote of the show.

Splendor of Fall-Fashion Shows Amazes Visitors to London

By BARBARA STEVENSON

London, July 24 (Reuters. — Overseas visitors expecting a reflection of Britain's austerity, are amazed at the Parisian-like splendor of London's fall-fashion shows.

A brilliant collection by Paterson, a young Scots designer, opened the show last week. The Spanish inspiration was visible throughout, particularly pleasing to a woman's eye was a touch of Gipsy in her clothes.

There were such color notes as a bold design in black and white on a vivid red background, forming a remarkable collar to clip in the neckline of a town coat. Bright green and gold pockets were just visible under the sultry black of a hip-drape.

Paterson has a "two-faced" outlook for the fall. His day look is swept forward, having a slim back. As the shadows lengthen, the silhouette moves to the side and front.

The main theme running through the collection is for day and evening is based on a three-quarter wrap.

A Grecian treatment was given one model by column folds of cobweb jersey falling from a minute waist over a dust-brown stain sheath, visible only at one side through the wrap.

Typical of the magnificence in French and British fabrics for the evening scene are deep Spanish stand-alone satin, heavy chantilly lace over stain—this in the same elusive dust-brown shade—and pure silk lamé.

The swatched bosom, the moulded line of the torso and the pencil slimness of most of the models for evening wear produced a yellow gold that set the daring of a British designer ignoring Britain's traditional austere frock.

A buffet luncheon and reception was held at the bride's home, which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers and white wedding bells. A lovely wedding cake centred the bride's table. The bride's mother received the guests, wearing navy blue sheer with corsage of sweetpeas, assisted by the bridegroom's mother who was gowned in blue crepe with corsage of sweetpeas.

Following the reception, the young couple left for Niagara Falls, the bride wearing white linen with navy accessories.

Out-of-town guests were present from Northbrook, Newburgh, Point Anne, Stirling and Belleville.

Women's Activities

RIVER VALLEY W.M.S.

Rawdon — Mrs. Stanley Ivren was recently hostess for the regular meeting of River Valley Woman's Missionary Society. There were 11 members and ten visitors in attendance.

The president, Mrs. Ralph Upman opened the service with "Work For the Night is Coming" as a call to worship.

In the business period, plans were made to hold the August meeting at the home of Mrs. Jennie Donohoe.

During the month, there were five hospital calls and seven home calls made by members. The layette for overseas missions was forwarded to Toronto with extra cash sent to the church treasurer to carry it to its destination.

Talks on Trinidad

Mrs. George Heasman then presided and gave an interesting talk on Trinidad, followed by a questionnaire on the subject. One of George Herbert's poems was read entitled, "Let All the World in Every Corner Sing My God and King." The 63rd Psalm was read responsively based on "Thou Hast Been My Help". The groups joined in the rendition of "A Wonderful Saviour."

Mrs. Harvey Couch gave a reading entitled, "Beautiful Window", Mrs. Cheryl Tilman sang "I Don't Want to Play in Your Garden." Mrs. Ray Bird gave a talk on various phases of missionary work.

Mrs. Alex Bush gave a resume of the author Augustus Monroe Tapley, who was born in 1740 and died in 1778 and the history of one of his famous hymns "Rock of Ages."

Misses Grace and Joanne Heasman gave a vocal selection "Holy Spirit, Hear Us."

Mrs. G. Heasman then read a list of the missionaries who are working in Trinidad. All read in unison as a prayer "Bless Thou the Hands of Life."

After the service refreshments were served.

Fashion Flashes

ONCE AGAIN beaver looms as one of the most important furs on the winter fashion Spears heading the full-length and cold weather models is a good fall number a 30-inch jacket. It is a five-stryper, with a rolled tuxedo front and adjustable double cuffs.

A BOON to the traveller is crinkle cotton. It washes in a jiffy, requires no ironing and is just about as cool as can be. Done in colors and prints, it appears in dresses, two-piecers, playthings and housecoats.

A RADICAL CHANGE in the neckline marks the very newest of suits being developed for fall. After the collarless horseshoe and oval necklines, now we are to have the portrait or stand-away neckline. The cut shows a neckline that stands away at the shoulders, is open to all sides and is finished with a little cuff, rail or flange.

FRESHEN UP simple dark sheers with a large white sailor collar in organdy, pique or nylon, finished with a single bloom or a flower cluster. A matching flower theme pinned to handbag or glove adds a finishing touch.

VERY NEW, because this old favorite hasn't been around for some time, is the good dinner dress of black chiffon. Jet black silk chiffon is used for a dinner dress with a short, swirling skirt, and a bodice that is drawn in draped folds to a deep V decolletage. Armholes are edged with black velvet cording, and velvet is used for the rhinestone-buckled belt.

GETTING BETTER all the time is the storm coat, now treated to high styling and a clever use of color and fine fabric. The trend is to the pyramid or loose coat rather than the usual bell-and-trench coat line. Red, white and blue checked wool tweed makes a handsome stormcoat with a big navy blue mouton collar. Cut on flared lines, the coat has a half belt in back and big patch pockets with flaps.

A CINCH to care for is this season's crop of hot weather clothes, of which the stores still have a very wide selection. Cut on simple, button-front sleeveless shirtwaist lines, but very dressy, is a dress of white linen mesh embroidered all over in white cotton cord in a ribbon and scroll design.

STILL GOING WELL is gray, in various shades. It is used for all types of clothes, from coats to girdles. This is confirmed by mid-season showings in Paris and London and by early fall collections shown here.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

...n she is older

...really matter if a girl ...t less the young man she's likely to marry? Oh, not six months, say. Not even a couple of years. But as much as six—well, seven years, for instance.

One young woman of thirty-odd begins to worry about that question when she found herself falling in love with a chap only twenty-four.

"When he first asked me to go out with him, I told him my age," she writes me, "and he said it made no difference to him."

After taking her out for nearly a year, however, the young man had some second thoughts on the matter.

"He suddenly told me," she goes on to say, "that he had been doing some thinking. He said he loved me very much and wanted to marry me, but he had decided the age difference was too great. I was heartbroken, as I had come to really love him.

All this was some six months ago, and ever since this girl has been brooding over the situation. I have heard from him, but he just bowed himself out of her life and her only contact with him was when he occasionally passed her in his car and merely nodded and waved to her. But now there's a new and blighted development which has rubbed salt into her still-open wound. She has heard from a mutual friend that he is planning to marry another girl.

"How can he marry some other girl when he told me that he loves me?" she cries, tearfully magnificently. "This girl is younger than he is."

Age Difference

So now the bruising question throbs incessantly in her mind again: "Do you really think seven years difference between people's ages is too much?" I'm not so youthful and pettie. He is big and looks older than his age. Having been in the service, he acts older, too. I have been going around in a fog, trying to figure it all out. This is the first time I have ever been in love, and I am completely bollerbin. I have tried going out occasionally with another friend, but I can't get the other boy out of my mind."

Now if this bewildered and heartbroken young woman were to read that last sentence of hers over again, slowly and thoughtfully, she might suddenly see the whole matter in a brand-new light. For it seems to me that there is one word in it whose deep significance no doubt escaped her as she wrote them. That word is the fifth from the end of the sentence.

See its hidden significance? Instinctively, unconsciously, she regards the twenty-four-year-old youth to whom she lost her heart, not as her equal in experience, in maturity, in emotional development, but as a "boy". All unaware, down deep in her mind her own thirty-one-year-old self is trying to tell her that she is an adult and the person who has temporarily intrigued her is not.

Not Advisable

And right there, of course, her subconscious is pointing its shadowy finger straight at the heart of the confusion. The fact to which it is trying to direct her attention is that she actually feels herself to be older in every way than the young man; that his own change of heart grew out of his gradual recognition of her greater maturity and the resulting discomfort because of it; that all this being true, marriage between them would be most inadvisable.

What the young woman needs to realize is that this business of age difference between two people contemplating marriage is a very tricky one, and her question about whether or not seven years is "too much" cannot possibly be answered by either yes or no. Whether a man and a woman are going to be congenial marital companions depends on a great many factors, of which the matter of their ages is only one—and by no means the most important one. A person need only read up a little on divorce statistics to discover that being relatively close to each other in years has very little indeed to do with how husband and wife remaining close to each other as marriage partners.

CONSTIPATION GONE—FEELS FINE!

BEAUTY

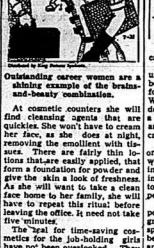
Good looks and the payroll

Intelligence and good appearance seem to be what the Big Boss seeks when young women apply for jobs. Sometimes experience along certain lines is necessary, but not always. He has an idea that if a girl is smart enough to do her work properly, she is smart enough to make herself presentable. Outstanding are women in business and they are shining examples of the brains-and-beauty combination. That beautiful-but-dumb adage died a slow death, but it died nevertheless.

Neatness of person is the first requirement. A slightly soiled blouse will throw the career girl out of form; so, if she doesn't want to pile up laundry bills, she had better select dark colors, though light blouses are tempting in the good old summer time.

If she is wise, she will have short hair that requires little attention. The shoulder-length bob, still beloved by some pretty dollies, is all right for the office, but scarcely the proper selection for the lassie who is bringing home the weekly check. It cannot very well be kept neat, and it just doesn't suit the commercial picture.

The office is no place in which to lay on the war paint. Let the chic secretary keep her cosmetic props in a case in her desk; retire to the rest room with the luncheon time, chances are that her face is pretty precisely clean; also the lipstick may need renewal.



Sketched by King Features Syndicate

Outstanding career women are a shining example of the brains-and-beauty combination.

At cosmetic counters she will find cleansing agents that are quickies. She won't have to cream her face, as she does at night, removing the emollient with tissues. There are fairly thin lotions that are easily applied, that form a foundation for powder and give the skin a look of freshness. As she will want to take a clean face home to her family, she will have to repeat this ritual before leaving the office. It need not take five minutes.

The best for time-saving cosmetics for the job-holding girl have not been overlooked. They seem to have inspired the compounding of many glamor-giving products now on the market.

Indelible rouge with a creamy base will stick by one for hours, while the fluff from the compact pad frequently does a disappearing act soon after it has been applied.

While looking over toiletries, the career girl might glance at cosmetic sets. They are portable, compact and convenient—including everything that is necessary for a speedy facial and new coloring. Every item is in tabloid form, cute as can be.

Seven Days of Good Grooming

As part of your "beauty week" program, survey all good groomingequipment. If your hair brush looks all tired out, blow yourself to a new one and use it. Beauticians lament over the fact that women depend too entirely upon professional services for hair health, sidestep home care.

With the idea of giving your digestive motors a rest, possibly nipping an inch or so off the waistline, eat simple, nourishing food. Start the day with a full glass of orange juice; it is good for your complexion. Once a day have a green salad. Put a quart of buttermilk on your daily menu. A Thorough job.

Instead of giving your complexion a thirty-seconds' going over with cream at night, make a more thorough job of it. Spend at least ten minutes by the clock in laying on the fragrant emollient. Do light little circles with your fingertips over the entire facial area. Include your neck.

Your fingernails, except for the professional manicure, probably haven't had any special care. Friction them with cuticle cream. Rub a heavy cream into your knuckles. Cup one elbow in a creamed palm and turn it this way and that until the cream has been absorbed by the flesh. Then treat the other elbow. Get in a little good reading. That's always a good idea.

MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Pea pushing is an honorable calling.

A pea pusher is one who spots unshelled peas on a conveyor belt and pushes them aside before the peas are processed.

Whether the peas are tender is determined by a tenderometer, a small machine which tests the amount of pressure needed to crush a fresh pea.

Peas are a subtle and mild-flavored vegetable which are delicious when mixed with tender chicken in a shortcake. A pinch of sugar in the cooking water will help to retain the natural sweetness of peas.

If you buy fresh peas in the pod, be sure the pods are deep green, crisp and free from dark spots. Quick frozen peas are often better than some fresh peas, and are always dependable.

The amount of cooking time for simmering peas depends on their age and freshness. Use cooked green peas as the garnish in today's recipe.

Chicken and Green Pea Shortcake —Serves 5-6

2 cups sifted all purpose flour
Salt—pepper
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-3 cup shortening
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
3-4 cup milk
2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1 1-2 cups hot milk
1 teaspoon grated onion
1 cup cooked green peas
1 1-2 cups cooked diced chicken

1-4 cup diced canned pimientos
Preheat over at 425 degrees.

Sift together the flour, 1 teaspoon salt and baking powder. Using a pastry blender or two knives, cut in the shortening until particles are the size of rice grains. Add the parsley. Mix well.

Gradually add the milk, stirring with a fork until dough forms into one mass and leaves sides of bowl. Knead gently 15 to 20 strokes very lightly. Roll out to 1-2 inch thickness. Cut with biscuit cutter. Place on an ungreased baking sheet. Bake 10 to 12 minutes or until light brown.

In a saucepan melt the butter. Remove from flame and stir in the flour. Gradually stir in the hot milk. Add the onion and cook 1-2 teaspoon salt and 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Simmer sauce slowly 10 minutes, stirring frequently.

Add the chicken. Cook 10 minutes more. Add the peas and pimientos. Cook only until peas are hot. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Split biscuits in two. Spoon the chicken mixture between biscuit halves. Replace tops. Spoon more chicken mixture over top.

GOOD MANNERS

Some people take all the trouble—others get all the thanks!

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

About two months ago my husband's brother who lives in a very distant city, was married there. My husband's family (his father, grandmother and two sisters) and my husband and I joined together financially on an expensive wedding present. My husband purchased this article (as he was able to get a discount because of his company), wrapped it, and mailed it. Air Mail, Special Delivery, so that it would arrive in good time. Several weeks ago my sister-in-law wrote to us and said that they had received a lovely note from the newlyweds for the gift—and that the note included thanks to us. (My husband's two sisters were bridesmaids, the only ones from the family who went, because of the distance. They said that when the joint present was opened on the wedding day, the couple were very, very delighted.) My sister-in-law said she would "show" us the "thank-you note", but as yet has not mailed it to us.

Now, Mrs. Beeckman, I feel very much hurt and slighted that my husband and I have not received a separate and personal thank-you note. (After all we did receive a separate Invitation!) My husband put so much thought and effort and trouble into the gift, with the gift we enclosed an especially beautiful card on it wrote a message for their happiness. Also I wrote a letter to my husband's brother, before the wedding, sending him our congratulations, telling him how eager we were to meet his bride, and inviting them to come to visit us whenever it was possible that they come our way.

I have not discussed with my husband this not receiving an individual thank-you note, but I am positive he feels hurt and slighted too. Do you think I am just being "silly", or should we write a thank-you note? Have you any suggestions as to what I should do, if anything? (The bride and groom called for me, to each other,) —M.

I agree with you 100 per cent . . . that of course you and your husband should receive an individual personal letter of thanks from the bride. There's nothing "silly" about your point of view! it is just natural.

Since your husband was the one who mailed the package, and so doubtless wrote his name and address on it, it is most important that they should inform your husband that the present arrived, and in good condition, but also thank you both for your goodness and generosity. It's really cruel that so-called "human" beings can be so inhuman as to omit expressing thanks when thanks are very, very much called for.

If I were you, I'd try to do something about it. Write in the most gracious and graceful way possible. Since you haven't had an opportunity to write to the bride, make this the opportunity. Perhaps begin your letter somewhat like this.

Dear Betty,

Tom and I have been speaking so much about your wedding . . . we were so disappointed not to have been there . . . and about you and Ben starting your new home. . . . we wish it were nearer to us. . . . and I decided today I'd write and have a chat with you, saying my 'sisterly' how-do-you-do.

Then after chatting about the news, tell her how particularly interesting you and Tom were to try to think what they would like most for their wedding present, what they would find most useful decided on a ——, consulted with his family about their point of view, and then Tom succeeded in locating one, and sent it Air-mail, special delivery so it would arrive in time. Did it arrive "on time" and in perfect shape, and was it to their liking? You and Tom do so hope it was, and that it will add so much to their happiness.

OPEN EVENINGS

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

...STARS TWINKLE TONIGHT!

Adages go by the board here tonight baseballically speaking, and the Central Ontario twain of East and West meet in the first game of a two-battle all-star series. The matter of the games was decisioned at a round table session of the Quinte executive some weeks ago and met with the instant approval of the master-minds of all squads concerned.

* * *

On paper it would appear that the effete Easterners have no edge on the buccaneers from the western fringe of the county. But that notion is nothing more or less. Look at the de-spised National Baseball League who have been the diamond footballs for the saucy upstarts from the junior American loop with the exception of the last two years.

* * *

Brockville, Smiths Falls - cunning one - two in the league standing will be augmented by stars from the Dingy-Leafs of Kingston and all three squads have won some impressive victories further in the season.

* * *

Belleville Redmen, Bataws Rheemen, Picton Athletics and Napanee Athletics which more or less comprise the core of this horse-and-wagon set-up should not be sold short. There's many a slip twixt the base and the stick and the powerful eastern squad may run into some tought snags tonight. In any event it should be worth a till since it is the first time the players have mingled with each other on the diamond.

* * *

The pitching, from this corner, should play an important role in the game and on performances the hurling squads rate about even. Fielding and hitting is another important feature and we are just being traitorous when we observe that the eastern crew have an edge in these departments.

* * *

However records, past performances go by the board tonight. This is another game and the fans should get an eyeful of the cream of the crop of the County.

* * *

Coach Pal Wilson of the Belleville Redmen will do the masterminding for the western team with Andy Hersbock, fiery mentor of the Brockville Memos doing the brainwork for the eastern crew. Wilson will start the battery of Art Welch, Bataws, and Ken Hayes, Napanee. Walt. Gerow, Napanee, will hold down the initial sack with Dick Fitzpatrick on the pivot bag. Huck Reeves, Redmen, will take care of the shortstopping and Jocko, Napanee, will look after the hot corner. The outer gardens will be Dick Bellgrove, Bataws, Hayden, Picton and Sammy Mulholland, Redmen. Players will be rotated during the game and as many as possible on the selection list will see action. Game gets underway at 8:30.

WELCOME, STRANGER!

Eddie Schreiber, who is rapidly making a name for himself on the umpiring staff of the Viadnct Senior Baseball League down around Tavrawnia way, is in town for two weeks. Eddie has forsaken the environs of Galt, Ont., and from this point in will become a citizen of, as some say, good ole Hogtown with the bread-winning opportunities being afforded by the Rogers-Majestic Radio Corporation.

* * *

Ed dropped into this sanctum yesterday and immediately went into his favorite song-and-dance act, baseball. Loyal to his mammy-and-pappy along of the Viaducters, the future "Ole Arbitrator" was a bit reticent when we tried to draw him out on the subject of the quality of baseball being produced up thataway. But there was a rather mysterious look on the Schreider face — one that we could not fathom.

"Well, that's that" smole Edward, looking like the fabled cat that had just guzzled the family canary. "What did you think of the Walcott-Charles fight?" Cute eh!

* * *

Al. Kelleher, recently of this village, apparently is making good with the Kingsway Lumber entry in the Viaduct League.

"Nearly got the surprise of my life one afternoon", quoth Eddie, "when I looked up and saw 'Joe' approaching, mitt beneath an arm. He introduced him to the Lumberman's master-minds and the lad got a tryout.

Kelleher has changed his batting stance, according to Schreiber and the shift in his plate appearance is paying off. Three for five hits yesterday's games is not a bad hitting slip in any man's league, and that is what Kelleher produced. He is not trying to put the pill into Toronto Harbor but rather, through a leveling-off development in his batting is placing the ball for best effective hits.

* * *

But the erstwhile Belleville junior is ambitious. He lives, breathes, dreams, ate and thinks baseball twenty-four hours of the day.

* * *

He sidled up to Eddie one afternoon during an inning recess and sotto-voiced the inquiry, "S'pose you could get me a chance to practice with the Toronto Maple Leafs, Ed?" he asked.

"Now, just a minute, Joe", came back the surprised Schreider, "Who do you think I am, Happy Chandler, Joe Zeigler, or somebody?"

Kelleher smiled that lazy grin. "No", he went on, "just thought you might know some of the big baseball shots up thataway. It's not that I want to inject myself in the league", went on the irrepressible Al, "but I thought mebbe I could get in a few practice licks with them."

"Besides", he added, "yah never can tell when sumpin might happen to Les Fleming", (Toronto first baseman).

* * *

The Redmen failed to come up with some clutch-hitting against the Smiths Falls Royals last night and couldn't overcome that 3-run shaky-start lead they gave the Falsers.

The plate-umpiring had a decided amateurish touch. Mr. O'Brien of Smiths Falls, unless his referees are bad, demonstrated a marked hesitancy at times in calling balls and strikes. We are not arguing his "out" call on Bowers' thrilling plate slide, but the next directly behind the platter it appeared Mr. Brower had washed the dish before the ball reached his ribs.

The story is going the rounds that one of the Redmen turned to His Nibs after two "questionable" strikes had been called and enquired his name.

"O'Brien" see His Nibs.

"How is it spelled?" queried the irate batter.

"O-B-R-I-E-N" obliged the mask and padder.

The batter turned away.

"Just what I thought", he muttered. "Only one I".

Top Four American Leaguers To 'Swing When You Meet' In Red-Hot Top-Slot Series

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

The fellow who made out that American League dream turnstile schedule must be blessed with uncanny foresight or he's plain lucky. How else could he have mapped out a schedule that brings together the four top teams today and right on through the next seven games?

Specifically, the pace-setting New York Yankees and the red-hot Cleveland Indians battle it out for the league lead today, tomorrow and Thursday. At the same time, Boston Red Sox, tied with the Indians for second place, slug it out with the fourth-place Chicago White Sox.

They change partners Friday, Chicago goes to Yankee Stadium for a four-game series while Cleveland travels to Boston for a three-game set at Fenway Park.

All Optimistic

All four managers are optimistic, even Paul Richards of the sagging White Sox who have lost the last four games, their longest losing streak of the season.

Richards is hoping the White Sox luck holds out. Thus far, Chicago has won 56 and lost 43 on enemy soil compared to a mediocre 27-26 regard at Comiskey Park.

Steve O'Neill, Red Sox pilot, is confident his team will win the pennant. Boston starts a 19-game home stand where the Red Sox are almost invincible. They've captured 30 of 40 tilts in Fenway Park this year.

Only one major league game was played Monday, and it was a dilly. Boston Braves edged out National League's last-place Pirates at Pittsburgh 15-14 in a 34-hit slugfest.

The Pirates' Ralph Kiner slugged his 25th home run of the season.

Bunched Like Grapes

Today's card pits New York's Vic Raschi (13-6) against Cleveland's Early Wynn and the Chicago's Howie Judson (6-2) against Boston's Maury McDermott (5-5) and Leo Kialy (2-0). All except the Red Sox hurlers are righthanders. The Yankees-Indians game is an afternoon affair. The Red Sox and White Sox clash under the lights. At present only .002 percentage points separate the Yankees, Indians, the deadlocked Indians and Red Sox. The Yankees are leading .607 ball, the Indians and Red Sox .607.

Cleveland's Al Lopez declined to make any prediction but he is enthusiastic over his club's improved hitting and pitching the last month.

"I have a feeling the hitting will get still better," he said.

Lopez shrugged off Cleveland's poor showing against the Yankees this year. Specially at Yankee Stadium. The Yankees have won all six games against Cleveland at home this season.

The Yankees begin a 17-game home stand in first place.

"This is our big chance to take a good-sized lead," said manager Casey Stengel.

The sixth round was even but Chavez had the nod by himself.

The two slugged toe to toe in the 10th round but San Jose boy having the advantage.

There were no knockdowns but Chavez staggered Amador in the third round with rights to the jaw.

Chavez, 21-year-old Mexican-American, is considered one of the contenders for the world's lightweight crown now held by Jimmy Carter.

Cubs' New Boss Optimistic Over Team's Chances

By JERRY LISKA

Chicago, July 24—(AP)—Apparently Phil Cavarretta hopes to make the Chicago Cubs front office sit its words about his appointment as pilot of the Cubs belong a stop-gap arrangement to round out the season.

Optimism radiated from the successor to resigned Frankie Frisch, even though Cavvy's home managerial baptism today was the opener of a three-game set against the rooming first-place Brooklyn Dodgers.

"We're not too far behind that first division," calculated the new boss of the seventh-place Cubs. "If we can whip up a winning streak, we'll be all right.

"I'll be satisfied with the first division—this year."

Wid Matthews, Cub player personnel director, at the same time emphasized that Cavarretta "understands that he is manager only for the rest of the season."

Old Die-Hard

Cavarretta is not a fellow easily discouraged. In seven years, there was an effort to ease Cavarretta out. First baseman, into a rocking chair. Eddie Waitkus, Pres Ward and then Dee Fondy all tried to take the first baseman's job. Phil's .323 now leads Bruin batting. As Cub chieftain, he could, if his glove gather dust. But he won't.

"I intend to play more than I have been," he said flatly of Cavarretta. "I love to play."

At the moment at least, Cavarretta is batting 1.000 as manager The Cubs won a 14-inning thriller at Philadelphia Sunday in the first day as Frisch's successor, and even the three umpires shook his hand in congratulation.

Sports Roundup

New York, July 24—(AP)—The commissioners of 10 major college football conferences have agreed to "exchange information regarding deferimental activities" in the college draft field—which hardly sounds like anything new. . . . The best way to get the "dirt" on underhanded activities always has been to listen to someone from a rival conference college. . . . Leafs' Ray Shore Checks Chiefs In Relief Role

(By The Associated Press)

Generally, left-handed pitchers are supposed to be wild. But that's not true in the case of Mal Mallette and Chris Van Cuyk of the International League's pace-setting Montreal Royals.

Both Mallette, enjoying one of his finest seasons, and Van Cuyk have been stingy with bases on balls this year. Mallette has walked 44 in 166 innings while Van Cuyk has passed only 22 in 75.

Gets Seventh

Mallette, but night turned in his seventh victory against two defeats as he walked only two in pitching Montreal to an 8-2 triumph over Rochester Red Wings in the first game of a doubleheader. Van Cuyk turned back the Wings 5-3 in the nightcap, walking one and fanning 10.

Al Gionfriddo starred in both games for the Royals, banging out three hits in each.

Springfield Cubs defeated the Bufalo Bisons 7-4. The Cubs got an early lead when Red Lavigne belted a grand-slam home run in the first inning. Jack Wallaesa also homered for the Cubs while Wally Post cracked one for the Bisons. Before the game the Bisons celebrated a game started June 7 with the Bisons winning 9-7.

Fine Relief Hurling

Rgilliant relief pitching by Ray Shore featured Toronto Maple Leafs' 11-5 victory over Syracuse Chiefs. Shore relieved Russ Bauers in the fifth inning, and held the Chiefs hitless the rest of the way.

Baltimore Orioles edged Ottawa Giants 4-3 in 10 innings. Marv Rickerd singled home Johnny Mayo with the winning run. Alex Konikowski started for Ottawa and was charged with the loss. He went the distance of the game in the 10th after he threw ball five over the ground following a play at first. Karl Drews went all the way for the Orioles for his 12th victory.

Red Bats Falter in Clutches, Drop 4-1 Decision to Royals But Hold Grip on Third Slot

By MAURICE REID

Continuing their hot streak that has brought them from sixth place to within a half a game of the league's first division, the Red Bats defeated the Belleville Bearcats by score of 4-1 on Monday night at the Old Fair Grounds.

The game, a battle for second spot in the league standing, left the Royals firmly ensconced behind the league-leading Brockville Millionaires while the Redmen cling to third by a scant four percentage points over Kingston who in turn are but half a game in front of Batawa.

Two extra-base hits sandwiched a walk in the initial inning produced two runs for Smiths Falls, and proved to be enough scoring support, as Ireland out-brought in Levandoski from third base with another counter before the Red Sox could put out.

Air Tight Ball

Both teams played air-tight ball after that until the seventh when the Falls men tallied their fourth, after two men were out, on a walk, error, base on balls and Fortin's single to centre, this time with the only unearned run of the game.

Geary, who incidentally played one of the finest games to date, started a Redmen rally in the bottom of the eighth when he received a life on Seeley's error, the only miscue by the visitors on the night. Following Geary's arrival at the plate, unleashed a terrific drive down the right field line that sent the base runner when Geary crossing the plate. Sam Mulholland grounded out, short to first. Bower tried to score after the put-out but was called out at the ump's close call and rather doubtful to many fans, play at home. Brockwell walked and Shannan singled but Johnny Dean grounded out to third to end the rally.

Sullivan Goes Route

Sullivan went all the way for the Royals and was never in serious trouble outside of the eighth inning. His control was excellent and he issued only two free tickets to first and struck out three in the process.

With the inception of the first inning when he gave up a triple and double, Bower did not allow more than one hit a man, although his unsteadiness kept him constantly in trouble. In only two frames, the second and the fourth, was he able to retire the side in order. He fanned nine bases on balls while striking out four of the opposition.

Desjardin of the Royals led all hitters for the night getting a double and triple in four attempts. Levandoski also tripled for the visitors.

Bower contributed a triple and single in the losing cause while Johnny Dean continued to lead the team regulars in hitting getting a double and single in four trips up.

Three double plays featured the fielding with Fortin, Fitzpatrick and Buchanan getting two of them. Smiths Falls came on an around the horn play from Legris to Desjardin to Seeley. The Redmen had chances for at least two others but over-anxiousness on the part of the infielders lost the opportunities.

Movie Column

By JACK QUIGG

Hollywood, July 24—(AP)—When Ida Lupino announced three years ago that she intended to try her hand at directing movies, some of her best friends advised her she was making a mistake.

Directing was traditionally a man's job. Skeptics argued she would never be able to boss crews, persuade male glamor boys her way was best, or master the technical end of movie making.

Three years have gone by and Miss Lupino has shown the scoffers they didn't know what they were talking about.

Her first three films are in the black. One, "Not Wanted," has grossed nearly $1,000,000. And she has made them for peanuts.

As for getting co-workers to take directions:

"I have the hardest-working crew in the business."

Ida says getting co-operation is a matter of winning respect and has nothing to do with the sex of the boss.

Task Master

The blonde actress said the same workers come back to her for every picture, even though they know they'll be driven hard. Some, she said, have turned down higher-paying jobs to be on her films.

One reason: She gives key personnel a percentage of the profits.

Another: If a man shows particular talent she doesn't hesitate to promote him.

Social Themes

When the actress and her husband, Collier Young, formed their Filmmakers Company, they decided to specialize in social themes. Their subjects were unwed mothers, polio and rape. They then took a cynical behind-the-scenes look at professional tennis and came up with "Hard, Fast and Beautiful." Their latest, "Day Without End," touches on the problems of dolphins.

Now Ida wants to get away from serious problems. "These are prestige times," she said, "and I think it's time we returned to entertainment and love stories."

The Kibitzer

One thing in bridge amazes Elva Tyrone. Only 13 tricks are in any deal. But when her side can take seven tricks or more, she wonders how the opponents can count that many too.

You can see the answer. In fact, it could happen that each of the four players may count 13 tricks in his own hand. Merely give 13 cards of one suit and there you are.

If this is so, how can bidders have confidence in showing the number of tricks in their pair? They know the tricks they count will come in if they finally decide on a trump suit satisfactory to both.

If, meantime, the opponents are bidding, the competition may be to their advantage. If partners can defeat opponents for more than their own bids can make, they may decide to accept this option:

Take your last look at this deal:

NORTH
♠Q 5 3
♥Q 4
♦K 10 9 8 4 2
♣K 8

WEST
♠J 10 2
♥10 3 2
♦A Q 7 6
♣A J 10 6

EAST

♥J 8 6 5
♦J 3
♣Q 9 3 2

SOUTH

The bidding went like this:

South	West	North	East
1 H	2 D	Dbl	Pass
2 S	3 C	Pass	Pass

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in whichly—you can achieve and be happy. your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, July 25

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Day favors mental alertness, keenness in business tactics (honorable, of course), unique ideas and methods to better matters that need them. A pleasant disposition imperative—Moon rays.

April 21 to May 20— (Taurus)—Promising, benefic aspects. Do make the most of all helpful influences. Be hopeful, ambitious, show wise initiative. Difficult matters and the lighter ones all favored in good measure.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Inspiring Mercury and Saturn influences. Day receptive so various worth while activities, good for menial work and laborious trades. Do your best, it will pay.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Though your Moon is not in very auspicious aspect (advising care in temperament, kindly disposition), other planets are most helpful and day can be productive, interesting. You make it so.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Your Sun's position (like the Moon's) warns against unwise moves, inaccuracy in any important undertaking. Forethought and careful sizing up of the situation are needs. Day splendid otherwise.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Peak day for your interests, especial talents. Writers, journalists, teachers, students, all dental work highly sponsored. And labor trades, manufacturing, railroading have new advantages.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Although all personal desires may not be fulfilled today, perhaps it is well, for often we grow smug, too satisfied, when we have (to much. Good day general- or business success. May have unusual talent for law, debating, acting, as manager. or many people.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Should be interesting, responsive day for unusual activities, adding new, improved methods, equipment where they will increase production, save materials, time. Thank God for blessings.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—As with some of us today, every personal wish may not be granted, but the whole day is friendly and should produce benefits for those worthy and working on worthy undertakings. You can advance.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Promising in some new way. Fortunate influences for talents. Hard work, difficult undertakings, and the artistic are under favorable rays. Pray for guidance; be hopeful, happy.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Should be a quick day with your Uranus, Mercury and Saturn all in benefic aspects. You should be keen, eager, ambitious, rarin' to get ahead in business, sports, whatever your day holds.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—You can, by intelligent management of schedule, bring a happy returns. Mostly up to you how much, how speedily you accomplish. Don't overwork; do enjoy free hours at wholesome play.

YOU BORN TODAY are of sunny disposition; bright, interesting in conversation; usually generous and kindly but can, unless careful, fall into gloomy moods and feel too sorry for self. These failings can defeat high objectives you can and wish to achieve. Wholesome, intelligent associates and daily prayer are your sturdy standbys. Keep studying and improving for there is no set limit to personal attainment or business success. May have unusual talent for law, debating, acting, as manager. or many people.

WHY WE SAY

. . . Just a farmer . . .
This word had no evil in it when it began. Villian really meant 'a farmer or one who lived in a villa' (a house). The present meaning is derived from the fact that it was applied to poor people (of low birth) . . . because of their lack of wealth they were thought to be naturally evil by royalty.

Clash of Widows Features Claims In Fields' Estate

Los Angeles, July 24 — (AP)— A witness who said the late W. C. Fields gave temperance lectures under the name of Billy Williams has accented the claim of a Chicago woman to the comic's $771,426 estate. The celebrated tippler died Christmas Day, 1946.

Mrs. Edith Williams, 71, claims she and Fields were married in New York City June 24, 1893, when she was 13 years old. Her petition asserts that she bore him seven children before he deserted her in Chicago in 1910.

She claims a widow's share of the estate. Her claim is opposed by Mrs. Harriet V. Fields, the comic's legally-recognized widow who married him in San Francisco in 1900.

At the hearing yesterday, Fred J. Ardath, one-time vaudeville trouper, said he met Fields in 1896 or 1897 and that he was using the name of Billy Williams at that time. He said Fields gave temperance lectures when theatre jobs were scarce.

Ardath pointed out the now - blind Mrs.

$60 Million Defence Contracts Let by Ottawa

Ottawa, July 23 — (CP)—The defence production department today announced $60,000,000 worth of new defence contracts, biggest of which is a $17,000,000 order to modify and repair Merlin aircraft engines in Montreal.

The big Merlin engine contract went to Canadian Wright Limited. Officials said the money will be used in a four-year modification and overhauling program covering all Rolls-Royce Merlin engines, used principally in North Star aircraft.

Other big contracts included a $12,280,000 contract to General Motors Products Ltd., of Oshawa, Ont., covering passenger cars and trucks for the armed forces, and a $4,800,000 contract to Chrysler Corporation of Canada Ltd. Windsor, Ont., to do automotive repair work and also to produce some new vehicles and parts.

Defence production officials said these automotive orders are not expected to be big enough to overcome the general state of apprehension in the industry, caused by the impact of credit restrictions on passenger car sales.

Other large contracts included a $2,000,000 order to Standard Aero Engine Limited, Winnipeg, for aircraft engine repairs, and $785,000 order to Mercury Mills Limited, Hamilton, for armed forces clothing generally.

The contracts cover the period June 16-30.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

talked. She listened hungrily, thinking this was the sort of intellectual conversation she'd been starved for. By 8 o'clock Lucilla was in so exalted an intellectual flush, what with the Martini and Derek's reciting several wonderfully apt lines from Eliot's "The Cocktail Party" that she almost forgot to put powder her nose while her escort paid the check. He had suggested having a bite to eat at a little restaurant on East 50th Street—the kind only the French go to—and stopping at his apartment afterward so that she could hear a Nigra recording of "Finnegan's Wake."

She retained just enough of her former bourgeois mentality to know she had to get home for dinner. "Perhaps another time," she said, admiring the casually sophisticated sound of the words. "This has been delightful, but I do have to dash along now." It seemed to her only fitting that Derek should lift her gloved hand to his lips, in farewell.

Having spent the cocktail hour on so high a cerebral plane, and having turned down the invitation for an even more cerebral sort of evening, it offended her sensibilities to get home and find Arthur reading Collier's.

She told him she'd gone out for a drink with one of the instructors, and Arthur remarked it must have been quite an orgy. "Did you feel each other's muscles and leap over tables?"

She informed him coldly that they'd discussed plays. "Between deep knee bends?" Arthur inquired. She ignored this crude attempt at humor, smiling an enigmatic smile.

Hoopy stood up on the couch, brandishing a lasso. "Watch me be Three-Gun Pete catching the cattle-wrestlers."

"Rustlers," Arthur said.

"Yipes!" She staggered and fell against Lucilla who was reminded unpleasantly of Derek's comments on American children. She told Hoopy to sit down at once.

All through dinner she kept seeing her child through Derek's eyes, and deciding she was really much too noisy and grubby. "From now on I want you to take your bath before dinner, and you can't eat with us unless you learn not to interrupt."

"But if I didn't interrupt, I'd never get a chance to talk."

Arthur chuckled, and Hoopy put on her most shower-of-ash leer. She balanced a fork on her head, and when this was greeted she demanded: "You want to hear the song Daddy taught me?"

"Not at the table." Lucilla had heard them singing in the other bedroom that morning. Arthur always shaved there now.

Sitting under the dryer a few days later, she was more nervous than eager. Monsieur Jellieu had whacked at her hair in an impersonal frenzy, as if she were a blighted privet hedge. So far as she could make out, the primary idea was that no two hairs should be the same length. To distract herself, she opened a Harper's Bazaar. She never saw the Bazaar or movie magazines except at the hairdresser's and until now, both had held for her the charm of the fantastic, bearing no more relation to her life than the pieces in Sunday supplements—Women on Mars Are Ravishing Three-Legged Beauties, Scientist Asserts. Today, the Bazaar seemed suddenly full of urgent personal messages: "Why don't you snatch a Portuguese fisherman's net for shorts, to set off your pertly legs while you exercise or loll?" If at that moment Lucilla had been within snatching distance of a Portuguese fisherman, he'd have lost his means of livelihood, willy-nilly.

"Voila!" Monsieur gave the gesture of a magician who has just produced a flock of doves, or the flags of all nations, from his sleeve. Lucilla retrieved her glasses and stared at herself.

"You like it, non?"

He gave her a hand-mirror. In place of the neat side rolls, there were sprays of curls cascading to the top. In the back-view, the hurricane had swerved to one side, leaving a smooth open space, with the curls puffing out behind the left ear. The profile was really quite nice, she thought or at least it would be nice on somebody else. She said unthinkingly, "I feel as if I had on a wig."

"A vig!" Monsieur sucked in his diaphragm. A hissing sound escaped from his rigid body.

She carried her hat home in her hand, partly because it looked peculiar on the new hairdo, and partly because, after a day of being told by her schoolmates and instructors how cute she looked, she was inclined to fancy herself a bareheaded school girl.

Arthur was examining the thermostat as Lucilla walked in. He stared at his wife, and his first impression was that she'd been caught in a wind machine and lost her bobby pins.

"How do you like it?" she smoothed down the bangs.

"You mean it's that way on purpose?"

She went into the bedroom and slammed the door. After several minutes, Arthur cautiously himself to go after her. He felt he hadn't been altogether tactful and was determined to do better. Lucilla was sitting at her dressing table, applying elbow-remover with a brooding air. "I'm anxious to see this new hairdo when you've combed it out," Arthur said, with unconvincing joviality.

"It's already combed out," his mate remarked lefly.

"Oh." Arthur's determinedly pleasant expression cracked. So did his voice, as he said, "All that hair stays in your eyes?"

"It's not in my eyes." She looked cross-eyed through the jutting bangs at her husband.

"I should think you'd feel like an Airedale."

"I do not feel like an Airedale, and if you think I look like one—"

"Not at all." Arthur told her hastily. "Not at all." He walked around her like a man surveying the damage after lightning has struck. "The back isn't so bad," he announced, glad to have salvaged something. "At least it's smoother. Maybe you could pin the front part under so it won't look so shaggy."

"Shaggy! People whose judgment I respect—and who really know what's chic—think it's much more becoming than my old haircut."

"Well, I liked you better the old way. You looked more natural."

Gretel, chopping cole-slaw on the drainboard, was so bemused by the Hurricane coiffure that she mistook her own finger for cabbage, and gave it a nasty whack. She acted as if Lucilla's bangs had deliberately cut her, and was in a snuffling martyred mood the rest of the evening.

Of the household, only Hoopy was enchanted with the hairdo, so much so that she stopped dabbling her fingers in the goldfish bowl to rush over and pat and poke the curls, sitting on the arm of her mother's chair where she could get a better clutch. At first, Lucilla was grateful for the attention, but she was too keyed up to stand it for long. "Will you stop mauling me with your wet hands! You're ruining my hair."

Hoopy withdrew obediently when at bedtime, She demanded the presence of a doll named Ermengarde, pretending not to remember that she herself had twisted off Ermengarde's head and abandoned her in the park weeks before.

"Mommy's going to give Snifflies away," Hoopy blubbered. She applying elbow-remover with a brooding air. "I'm anxious to see this new hairdo when you've combed it out," Arthur said, with unconvincing joviality.

"It's already combed out," his mate remarked lefly.

"Oh." Arthur's determinedly pleasant expression cracked. So did his voice, as he said, "All that hair stays in your eyes?"

"It's not in my eyes." She looked cross-eyed through the jutting bangs at her husband.

know you have to get a lot of sleep this week so you'll be able to run as fast as Sniffles when he comes home!"

Hoopy's head popped up. "I can already run faster." She glanced at her mother. "You go in the living room and Daddy can sing me to sleep."

As Lucilla left the room, her stiff back indicating betrayal, she heard Hoopy crooning, "Row with lots of verses, Daddy. What's the longest song you know?"

When Arthur came out, 15 minutes later, Lucilla expected him to look sheepish. Instead, he said "I finally got her calmed down. She seemed really upset tonight."

* * *

During the next week Mr. New You, having started at the top, worked its way down with startling rapidity. The session with Beautiful-You's clothes consultant wrought an especially profound change. Just as the Glamour Guides' exquisite bare legs were a constant reminder that You Too can achieve glorious underpinnings, so Mrs. Tendrilly was the dazzling chic symbol of You Too Can Look This Way With Clothes On. In fact, Mrs. Tendrilly was so fully clothed she looked as if she never took off her hat and gloves, even at bedtime. Over her arm she carried a fur cape, and Lucilla could have sworn it was the same one she'd seen in the after poster.

She listened avidly as Mrs. Tendrilly suggested to her: "I'd strongly advise you to pad, pad, pad, especially the bosom. Don't hesitate to wear falsies." At first, Lucilla was appalled by the idea, and said so. Mrs. Tendrilly remarked briskly, "You don't shrink from wearing shoulder pads, do you? Well, then — Gay Deceivers are exactly the same thing. They simply make your figure look more balanced—make it curve in and out in and out as Nature intended. Doesn't that make sense?"

During the first hours of wearing the cushion-like appurtenances, Lucilla felt as if everybody she passed knew the difference. It wasn't until halfway through the evening that Arthur suddenly caught sight of his wife in profile, and grunted with surprise.

In expressing himself on the subject afterward, his argument that the new chest was too big and artificial-looking was weakened by her counter thrust that he hadn't even noticed anything different for hours. "But a husband doesn't look at you the way another man would." Arthur said, with deplorable candor, Lucilla didn't answer this in so many words, but she gave off vibrations that made him uneasier.

COMPROMISE OFFER REPORTED MADE BY REDS

Mother and Son Leap to Safety In House Fire

Make Second-Storey Jump, Herb Clare Home Gutted

A mother and her twelve-year-old son were forced to leap to safety from a second-storey window early this morning when fire caused approximately $2,000 damage to the frame residence at 41 Baldwin Street.

When her escape down the stairs was cut off, Mrs. Herb Clare threw pillows out the up-stairs window, and waited for her son, Paul, she dropped him first and then jumped after him.

The family was awakened shortly after eight o'clock and had lighted the kerosene stove in the back kitchen before going out into the back yard. A few minutes later, the occupants saw smoke and rolling from the kitchen. He tried to re-enter but was forced back by smoke and flames.

Found Hall Blocked

Lying awake in her bed in a front upstairs bedroom Mrs. Clare smelled smoke and investigating found the upstairs hall blocked with heavy smoke rolling in from a back bedroom.

She returned to her room and awakened her son. Paul tossed pillows and bedclothes through a window to the porch below and pushed her son to safety. She then jumped out after him.

Meanwhile, husband had turned back toward the house and seeing smoke rolling from the back door, re-entered the house by the front door and extinguished the fire department. He then sought to control the fire with a hose.

Suddenly he realized his wife and son were still upstairs and through dense smoke groped for the stairs leading his wife.

Almost Overcome

"I had almost reached the top of the stairs when I heard my wife ask if she was still there," he said. He was almost overcome with smoke and heat before he could reach the top step down the stairs and out of the house.

It was then he discovered that his wife and son had jumped out through the window.

Mr. Clare said the new addition to the back part of the house which was not yet completed and the outside sheathing had not been applied. There was no insurance on the dwelling but contents of the house were insured.

Firemen held the flames to the recently-decorated two-storey addition at the rear of the Clare home, but the residence proper suffered water damage.

When firemen arrived on the scene, a second alarm was immediately turned in, and three lines of hose were laid to control the blaze.

Fire Chief Gerald Vance said the two-storey addition which was gutted by the flames had not yet been completed and with plenty of ventilation the flames got a head start and quickly swept through the structure.

Expensive Beef

Quebec, July 25 — (CP) — City authorities today got a bill for a month's care of a calf.

Police found the calf roaming around Quebec outskirts last month. They cared for it while the city council decided what to do with it.

The councillors have to approve this account:

140 quarts of milk, 64 two-pound bread loaves, four pounds of oat-meal and a newspaper advertisement — $45.00.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 25 (CP) Synopsis: While Ontario enjoyed pleasantly warm weather with comfortable humidity on Tuesday, Manitoba and the north - central United States experienced a heat wave with temperatures in the 90s. Winnipeg had a high of 95 degrees. Light showers and thundershowers occurred throughout northern Ontario while skies were clear in southern sections of the province.

Showers and thunderstorms will spread to central Ontario tonight and may reach the Lake Ontario region Thursday night. Warmer and more humid weather is in store for southern Ontario on Thursday.

Beautiful Day At North Pole Comments Airman

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 25— (AP)—Ten crew members of an R.A.F. Lancaster strolled their air legs today after a casual hop over the top of the world from Iceland to Fairbanks.

It took the four-engined Avro bomber 18 hours and 56 minutes to go over the North Pole to Fairbanks from Keflavik, Iceland, a 2,558-mile jaunt.

"It was a beautiful day at the North Pole' and a "jolly good flight," Wing Cmdr. R. T. Frogley commented after arriving here through "typical English weather" in an instrument landing at 9:24 a.m. (2.24 p. m. EDT) yesterday.

Today the 10-man party, plus a Canadian reporter, Peter Jackson, who joined the expedition the last minute in Iceland, were sightseeing.

Tomorrow at 8 a. m. (2 p. m. EDT) they plan to fly the plane the 4,138 miles back to Manby, England. The return flight will be via the polar route, but not necessarily over the pole again, Frogley said.

He called the trip merely a training flight and passed over question on whether it had military significance.

The Aries bomber has no gun turrets. It is used by the RAF for long-range flying. It is a modified version of the Lincoln. An earlier Lincoln model skipped over the pole to land at Ladd air force base near here in 1944.

Musical Horn Attracts Dogs

Oakville, July 25 (CP)—A musical horn on a Dominion fish truck daily heralds the approach of Mrs. Marjorie Hornsby, an energetic 30-year-old woman, believed to be Ontario's only lady fishmonger. Mrs. Hornsby, who sells 700 pounds of fish on a week, decided to carry on her husband's business when he died in 1949. The only change she made was the musical horn, to say nothing of the fish, is that it attracts dogs, Mrs. Hornsby says.

EXPECT ALLIES OUTNUMBER REDS IN GERMAN AREA

200,000-Man Edge Predicted for 1951

Bonn, Germany, July 25 — (AP) — Allied armies in Germany will outnumber Russian troops now in the east zone by nearly 200,000 men by the end of this year, an informed allied source said today.

The planned allied build-up will put nearly 500,000 men in Germany compared with estimated Russian strength of about 300,000, the source said.

The allied plan provides for the equivalent of 18 divisions and a "considerably increased" British air — American air force.

Opposing allied and Russian forces in Germany now are about equal, the source added.

Intelligence reports show no indication of a Russian build-up at present.

Eight allied countries are contributing to the forces expected to offset Russian strength in Germany for the first time in six years.

They are: United States, British, France, Canada, Belgium, Holland, Denmark and Luxembourg.

Confident of Plan

The French may not complete their program on time, and the Canadians may not all be here before the beginning of January. But allied leaders are confident their plan will be substantially fulfilled.

Troop strength figures are approximate because the sizes of divisions vary from time to time, but the outline plan is this:

United States: Divisions to be increased from the present four to six, which with six force reinforcements, will make about 210,000 men.

British: An armored division is to be added to the present 3 1-3 divisions and the R.A.F. considerably increased. Estimated total about 150,000.

France: Two more divisions are due, making a total of four, and with supporting and supply units, a total manpower of 80,000.

Belgium: Two divisions to be brought up to full strength of more than 30,000.

Canadian Brigade

Canada: A big brigade group of ground troops and air squadrons have been promised.

Norway: Has a brigade of 5,000 men in north Germany which is due for replacement in October.

Denmark: Will have more than 1,000 men in Germany.

Luxembourg: Has two infantry battalions in Germany.

The figures do not include over 100,000 Germans who are doing operational jobs for the allied armies.

Predict Belleville Included As Terminal if Permit Granted To Build Lakeshore Oil Line

Toronto, July 25 (CP)—Trans-Northern Pipe Line Co., Ltd., today announced plans to build a petroleum-products pipe line connecting Montreal with Ottawa, Toronto and Hamilton.

British American Oil Co., Ltd., Shell Oil Co. of Canada, Ltd., and McColl-Frontenac Oil Co., Ltd., are participating in the project, which awaits approval by the Board of Transport Commissioners, and assurance of a sufficient supply of steel.

No estimate of cost is given, but it is believed to be in the neighborhood of $15,000,000.

The main 10-inch line, about 400 miles in length, is expected to traverse the north shore of the St. Lawrence River and Lake Ontario, with terminals at Cornwall, Prescott, Brockville, Kingston, Belleville, Port Hope, Oshawa, Clarkson and Hamilton, all in Ontario.

A six-inch 44-mile line would serve Ottawa from a junction in the vicinity of Cornwall.

The line would have an initial capacity of 40,000 barrels daily and would transport finished products — gasoline, fuel oil, kerosene, etc. — from refineries of the participating companies in Montreal East. Most of the crude oil to feed the refineries is transported to Montreal East from Portland, Me., where it arrives by ocean tanker.

A. N. Keirne, president of Trans-Northern, who made the announcement, was formerly vice-president and general manager of the Trans-Arabian Pipe Line Company. He said he hopes construction will start "as soon as authorization is received from the Board of Transport Commissioners," adding, however, that "it depends on the availability of steel."

Letdown in Defence Efforts Means War or Surrender

Acheson

Detroit, July 25 — (AP)—The United States and its Allies must put forth "several years or very hard effort" to build a shield against 8,000,000 communists under arms, State Secretary Dean Acheson declared last night.

"Whether or not an armistice results from the talks in Korea," he said, "the dedicated job ahead of us will not change."

Warning against a letdown in defence efforts, Acheson said:

"If we shirk the hard course, the alternatives are war or surrender."

"The prospect may be hard and long," he said. "It may mean up to sacrifices for us, more sweat, higher taxes. But there is no easier way. The dangers of today are present."

Acheson spoke at a gay banquet in observance of Detroit's 250th birthday.

He shared the flag-bedecked rostrum with the ambassadors of Canada, Britain and France.

Canadian Ambassador Hume Wrong made a plea for early action by the U.S. Congress on the proposed development of the St. Lawrence seaway.

The main theme of Wrong's address was the long period of friendly relations between the U. S. and Canada.

Sir Oliver Frankis, the British Ambassador, declared: "Our four countries have a great mission in the world today." He added: "We believe we shall win through."

French Ambassador Henri Bonnet also underscored unity. He said France will form this year 12 fully equipped divisions for the North Atlantic defence forces despite the squeeze of the Indo-China fighting.

Acheson and Bonnet both struck a note of optimism in the world's progress toward setting up a single European army to combat communism.

The diplomats referred to a preliminary conference opened in the Paris yesterday to merge land, sea and air power of the six countries into a 2,000,000 - man internationalized force.

The North Atlantic Treaty idea of pooling military strength is a revolutionary peacetime accomplishment, Acheson said.

Acheson gave a breakdown of communist strength.

"What these figures mean for us," he said, "is that we have a big job to do. We cannot let up. We cannot breathe more easily."

Estimating the communists had a total of 9,000,000 under arms, the Secretary of State said:

The Soviet Union has more than 4,000,000 men under arms.

The communist forces exceed 3,500,000 men. The European satellite regimes have nearly 1,000,000.

The allies, Acheson said, "do not begin to match the Soviet armies man for man, or gun for gun, since our mission is to deter, not to attack he added. "But we have a long way to go before we reach a safe deterrent level."

CANADAIR ORDERS FOR U.S. PLANES UNDER DISCUSSION

Rumor Millions Involved In Aircraft Deal—

Montreal, July 25—(CP)—Two small-million dollar production orders which would boost the Canadair Company's aircraft-making plant into the ranks of the world's big producers were understood today to be the subject of negotiations between the Canadian and United States governments.

Canadair officials refused all comment, but it was learned that a Toronto report that the United States air force had placed an order for $100,000,000 worth of training aircraft with Canadair is incorrect.

In Ottawa a defence production department official said: "There is U.S.A.F. may soon place an order for $50,000,000 worth of training aircraft, to be produced at Canadair if the order goes through.

History to Judge Petain's Motives, Bishop Claims

Ile D'Yeu, France, July 25 (CP) — Bishop Auguste Cassaigne, who delivered the funeral oration over the bier of Marshal Henri Philippe Petain today, took his place in the still-raging controversy over the 95-year-old World War I hero's role during the Second World War.

More than 7,000 persons gathered in front of the church of Notre Dame du Port to watch the funeral of the old soldier, who died in exile on this bleak island at the age of 96.

Bishop Cassaigne, who served under Petain in the First World War, said history would be the only pass judgment on the marshal. But he added:

"I don't think that we have the right to suspect the intentions and the sincerity of the man who, at the most tragic moment of national history, gave himself with such abnegation to his land.

Long before the rites started, people crowded into the square to witness the funeral of the man whose heroic stand at Verdun in the first World War had won him a hero's acclaim, and whose collaboration with the Vichy government under the Nazi occupation in the second leg to his sentence to life imprisonment on this island for treason.

Petain's body will be buried near the graves of 12 Canadian airmen shot down during the Second World War. Their graves are the graves of several British commandos washed ashore at Ile D'Yeu.

Withdrawal Will Not be Insisted On Before Truce

Indications Are Proposal Will be Acceptable to U.N.

Washington, July 25 — (AP) — The communists were reported today to have offered a compromise in the Korean cease-fire talks under which withdrawal of foreign troops would not be discussed until after an armistice. Indications are that this proposal will prove acceptable to the United Nations command.

The reds heretofore have insisted that the issue of pulling foreign troops out — U.N. forces and Chinese reds — should be on the program of armistice talks.

Defence Secretary George C. Marshall, laying down the U. N. position, said yesterday the question of withdrawal has played an order for $100,000,000 worth of training aircraft with Canadair is incorrect.

In Ottawa a defence production department official said: "There is U.S.A.F. may soon place an order for $50,000,000 worth of training aircraft, to be produced at Canadair if the order goes through.

Responsible information here is that under the new communist offer the most the U. N. allies would have to undertake is a promise to discuss arrangements under which the whole foreign troops problem would be taken up later.

The probably means that out of the armistice talks, or perhaps parallel with them, some understanding will be reached for negotiations to be held among interested governments on the political issues of a peaceful Korean settlement.

The communist proposition had been described by U. N. spokesmen in Korea as "reasonable in content and terminology" and "sufficiently interesting" for the United Nations to have prepared a long overnight recess for further study.

This was put forth after a four-day suspension of the talks asked by the communists and was reported to Washington by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, U. N. Commander in Korea. Ridgway then said to have relayed the word for information and, it was understood, for instructions on the line he should take in the next round of the talks.

Not Part of Price

The essence of the compromise as understood by authorities here as that the troop withdrawal matter, now considered to be a part of the communist price for a truce. At the same time, the United States and its Allies would commit themselves to eventual discussion of the troops question.

However, even assuming that this understanding clears the way for the Kaesong talks to go forward promptly, at least two other serious issues are said to remain.

These are reported to concern (1) the selection of a demarcation line across the belligerent forces and (2) arrangement of inspection machinery designed to see that the truce, once established, is not broken.

Arrest Youths After Holdups

Toronto, July 25 — (CP) — Two Toronto youths, one with a bullet wound in his abdomen, were arrested today following two west-end hold-ups.

Ronald Patterson, 19, in hospital under police custody, and Alexander Macdonald, 25, are charged with armed robbery. Patterson also will face a charge of automobile theft.

Two men armed only with a spring knife travelled in a taxi to rob two variety stores of about $100.

Gordon Sipos, operator of the second store held up, fired at a taxi as it roared away and struck one of the men.

The men had held a knife in his back while they robbed the till. They used the knife a few minutes earlier to force Mrs. May Blackford into the rear of her store while they emptied the cash register.

Worm-Hungry Robin Killed With Kindness

Montreal, July 25 — (CP) — Hex, the eatingest robin you ever saw, is dead.

He died presumably from worms, a helpful of them.

The boys of Phi Kappa Pi found the robin, then a fuzzy mite, six weeks ago and adopted him as a frat brother.

They dug up fishing cans for worms and Hex thrived. The supply began running low. Appealing for more worms, the Phi Kappa tried Hex on sugar and water.

Then came the worms, all kinds, fat, slim and wriggling, from scores of sympathizers.

Hex was in his element again. He stuffed himself and kept right on stuffing himself.

Hex's passing shocked fraternity yesterday came this letter to a newspaper: "It is with deep regret that we inform you and your readers the Hex passed away suddenly early yesterday (Monday) morning."

Civil Service Protests Ontario Rent Boosts

Toronto, July 25.—(CP) — The provincial executive of the Ontario Civil Service Association today wrote Chairman Louis Cecile of the Ontario Rent Commission protesting against any "across-the-board" increase in rents.

The executive said that any flat increase would "be the straw that broke the camel's back" as far as the Civil Service was concerned.

Increased cost of living and the upped income tax were cited as difficulties facing the service on their present wage scale.

Grain Freighters Idle at Docks Lack of Cargo Costs $1,000 Daily

Montreal, July 25 — (CP) —It's said half its fleet was hauling grain. The real bottleneck, the companies said, was a shortage of cars for trans-shipment from Georgian Bay ports.

The Board of Grain Commissioners for Canada today said shippers are using some of this limited supply of vessels to carry better-paying cargoes, such as defence materials, from the way ports. Port Arthur grain men felt, too.

July Shipments May be Met

The commission also said that although the million bushels per week quota there was no sign the goal for July 31 shipments won't be met. Latest indications from Fort William were that the 50,000,000 - bushel goal will not be reached.

With only a week before the month's end, little more than half that amount, 26,000,000, had been sent up. With between 9,000,000 and 10,000,000 bushels going out weekly, by July 31 the total will be about 10,000,000 bushels short of the mark.

Fort William and Port Arthur elevators still hold 54,000,000 bushels, while 100,000,000 bushels of last year's wheat crop remain in farmers' hands or in country elevators awaiting shipment.

Allow Trade-ins On All Goods After August 1

Ottawa, July 25 (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott announced Tuesday night a series of changes in consumer credit regulations, effective Aug. 1 next.

Most of the changes affect minimum down payments or the maximum period of credit.

However, trade-ins will be allowed as part of the minimum down payment on all types of goods after Aug. 1 to the cash price of the goods being purchased. This marked change, up to now, trade-ins have been allowed only for motor vehicles.

One change affecting goods previously exempted from the regulations is the purchase of a motor vehicle which has been the personal property of the seller for six months. The sale of such a motor vehicle now will be exempt only if it is a private deal between the seller and the buyer with no third party entering for the purpose of financing the transaction.

The changes also will bring contracts for rental of goods under control for the first time.

Efforts to Settle Hollinger Strike End in Failure

Toronto, July 25, (CP) — The prospect of a long strike hung over the Timmins goldfields today as union and management remained deadlocked over union security provisions.

Government attempts to settle the two-week-old strike of 2,500 employees at Hollinger Mines failed yesterday after 12 hours of conciliation with company officials and executives of the Canadian Congress of Labor (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

Labor Minister Daley said after the meeting that the stumbling block to settlement of the strike was the question of union dues check-off.

He said the company had refused a revocable check-off would be instituted in the Hollinger Mine, largest on the continent.

On the question of wages, four cents separates the management and employees. The union wants a 17-cent-an-hour increase. The company has offered benefits which it says total 13 cents an hour.

Slave-Labor in Russia's Uranium Mines Treated With Callousness

Washington, July 25 (AP) — Men in Russia's slave-labor Uranium mines are treated with callousness and brutality, the Voice of America was broadcasting what is called an authoritative account of life in a uranium mine in Russian-ruled east Germany. The account said the mine is in the Erzgebirge area is flown to Leningrad for Russian scientists to study.

But working methods were described as so antiquated that ore is brought to the surface in buckets and even knapsacks.

The "first-hand" account, the voice said, told of pit disasters due to "lack of safety precautions, inadequate fire-fighting installations and even sabotage."

The Voice of America broadcast was reported recently from the uranium mining area outside Zwickau near the east German-Czechoslovak border, with nine workmen reported killed and 15 others injured.

Quoting an unidentified worker "who finally managed to escape to the west," the voice gave this picture of life in a mine in the Frohnau region:

"The pits where we worked are about 150 metres (490 feet) deep. We went down into these shafts on wooden ladders, each one about 30 metres (98 feet) high. Each ladder connects to the shaft, below. These ladders cause many fatal accidents because we often get wet and slippery. During the winter the ladders get icy. This makes it more accidents.

"Last year about 80 miners were killed in each bright 6 (10 men) for each shift is from five to eight buckets of ore, with each bucket holding from 50 to 100 pounds.

"Each day we sacks they must bring up 15 to 20 sacks. Each sack weighs between 20 and 30 pounds. The knapsack carriers must bring up from 25 to 30 kilograms of approximately 50 pounds each.

"Ore shipments go to Freiberg, northeast of Chemnitz, where they are graded by Soviet experts. Especially good ore is flown to Leningrad."

Grain Harvesting Under Way In Quinte Area

Cutting of fall wheat and rye has commenced in the Bay of Quinte area, according to the weekly crop report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. In some instance, however, fields have been so wet that farmers have had to wait a few days before completing the job.

In the Murray district northwest of Trenton some farmers have already commenced cutting oats. Light rolling land in this area enables earlier seeding.

Continued heavy rain has delayed the hay crop with some farmers not yet more than half through their hay harvest.

Tomatoes have made some recovery and many fields are promising but two weeks later than normal. Approximately 90 per cent of the normal tomato yield is expected in Prince Edward county. Chester Hagerman in Prince Edward is slightly up from that of one year ago.

Use of Daylight Illumination Subject of Talk

The use of daylight illumination as a means of raising efficiency in homes, offices, schools and factories, was the subject of an address by John M. Hawkins, architectural representative of the Holophane Company, to the weekly luncheon meeting of the Kiwanis Club held Tuesday noon in Kiwanis Centre.

The speaker pointed out that the design and construction of "windowless factories" for the purpose of producing a controlled environment "neglects the physiological fact that man has developed in daylight and is not adapted to artificial light". He went on to state that with new methods of installation, and suitable types of glass, it is possible to combine the benefits of "controlled environment" and the advantages of daylight illumination.

Quantity and quality of illumination, Mr. Hawkins pointed out that: to make proper use of daylight and artificial illumination it is necessary to control both the quantity and quality of light. Even distribution of light is important as it prevents eye strain and makes for the greater comfort, ease, and understanding of workers.

He then discussed the problems in illumination arising from the location of buildings, the shape of their intended purpose, and their access to daylight. Through a series of slides, he illustrated his remarks about the problems arising in the illumination of buildings.

Remarks on the design and arrangement of factories, and the use of color to complement effective control of daylight illumination were also included in the address.

He was introduced by Sid Ross and the thanks of the club were expressed by Lorne McDougall.

Vic White and Phil Huddleston led the sing-song.

Ancient Wood-Burning Locomotive Passes Through City on Way East

Local residents who yesterday changed to see a certain eastbound freight on the C.N.R. with an ancient wood-burning type locomotive hauling it ignored the freight cars might have rubbed their eyes in disbelief.

But the ancient locomotive was real enough even though it was only contributing anything to the movement of the train. The locomotive was being made to Kingston where early in August it will be on exhibition during a special assignment being sponsored by the Canadian Locomotive Works.

The old locomotive was built by the "Portland Co's. Works" back in 1872, which makes it just 79 years old. Its wide-topped smoke-stack and two large drivers-on each side are in direct contrast to the present-day moguls and modern diesel engines. It carries the number "479" on its sides and on the tender.

With its many brass fittings shined and polished the old locomotive last evening sat on the tracks outside the C.P.R. station house where it waited to be picked up by another locomotive for freight and taken to Kingston.

The old locomotive claims Toronto as its home port, but according to railway officials, "has made the rounds" at exhibitions across the continent. The old engine recently was on show at Chicago.

News of Trenton

Trenton Girl, 7, Drowns In Sailboat Slip

Trenton (Special)—Margaret Rose Brown 7, drowned here last night in a sailboat slip at the mouth of the Trent River.

The child was last seen alive some time after 4 p.m. by her eleven-year-old cousin, Eddie Berry, with whom she was playing in the vicinity of the Canadian Cold Storage Company. Her body was located by Fireman Lewis and Ron Mills, at 9 p.m., using grappling irons in the slip.

When young Berry last saw his cousin, she was leaning over the edge of the dock, running her hands through the water. She apparently missed her footing and fell in. The water is six to seven feet deep where the girl was drowned.

The girl was not missed until around six o'clock, when her mother became alarmed at her absence. She organized search parties, but no trace was found of the child until Berry was questioned. The boy's mother after he finding the approximate last location of the child, Lewis and Mills grappled for her body. Coroner Dr. E. A. McQuade was called, and released the body for burial. A post-mortem will be performed.

The storage plant is located on the west bank of the Trent, at the extreme north end of the city and is surrounded on the south side of the building.

Surviving are her parents, two sisters, Joyce, 14, and Sylvia, 13, and one brother, Charles 11. The father is employed at Benedict-Proctor.

Volunteer Band Beautifies Area Around Hospital

Trenton— (Special) — When Mayor Ken Couch visited town clerk O. W. Larry at the Trenton Memorial Hospital recently he observed that the grounds about the hospital were in deplorable condition. Right there and then His Worship decided to do something about it, and under his leadership a band of volunteers has been organized to landscape and beautify the area immediately surrounding the hospital.

To date, the Mayor and his volunteer have progressed famously, but as Mr. Couch stated, "all this would have been impossible without the help of many local and outside people."

The H. J. McFarland Company of Picton started the ball rolling last year when it donated two yards of earth and established the preliminary grades. It is understood that the Picton contracting company will put down the roadways and parking areas when the volunteers have finished their part of the job. The McFarland Company donated sand and machines for the hospital project.

Largest Turn Out

Last night the largest turn-out of volunteers yet aided by a loader from the Blyth Construction Company and a bulldozer pulled free-of-charge by local tractors brought the landscaping task close to completion. The Mayor said today that his volunteers will take another crack at the job Thursday night when Blyth will move earth with a new 14-ton loader.

Today, the Trenton Funeral Home, as part of their donation, is laying the cement at the ambulance entrance to the hospital. The Vanalstine Company of Trenton supplied an air compressor and operator to run the jackhammer on the property.

Volunteer labor included: Councillors Ross Burtt, Don Sutherland and Charles Allore, Trenton lawyers, bankers, clerks, preachers and business proprietors.

Donators of trucks were: the Allore Company, Tom Sedore, Ross Wilman and the Town of Trenton.

Airquatic Club To Hold Regatta Off Air Station

Trenton. (Special)—Group Captain R. C. Hawley, commodore of the Station Trenton Airquatic Club, announced today that a cruising race under the auspices of the club will be held Saturday. The non-handicap race, open to all cabin class sailboats 24 feet and over, will start at 10 a.m. in front of the Marine hangar. The course is laid out from Murray point, around Indian island just off the Murray Canal in the Bay of Quinte to the Belleville bridge and then return to Marine dock by the air station.

This race is not designed to replace the regatta which was held last summer. The regatta will be repeated this year and will be held some time in August. Group Captain Hawley stated. The interest shown in both the cruising race and the annual regatta has been growing every day. We feel that given a few years with present enthusiasm Air Station Trenton will be one of the largest held in Southern Ontario."

Better Job With Own Gear Say Statosphere Scientists

London, Ont., July 25 — (CP)— A Chicago scientist says there are better ways of solving stratospheric mysteries than with the aid of V-2 rockets loaded with instruments.

Dr. A. B. Meinel of the University of Chicago's Yerkes Observatory expressed belief yesterday that scientists can do a better job with their own equipment and laboratories.

Dr. Meinel is attending a conference of auroral physicists at the University of Western Ontario.

Explaining his views in an interview, he said a rocket can achieve a maximum height of only 100 miles while a scientist on the ground can peer 800 miles into space with considerable accuracy.

Each rocket flight costs about $225,000 — another factor in favor of earthbound observation, he said.

Margin of Error

Dr. Meinel admmitted that in measuring the temperature and pressure of particles from the sun there is a margin of error and room for speculation, but there are error checks to determine accuracy.

Dr. Meinel was responsible last winter for the most significant discovery in auroral physics since 1931, when Karl Jansky and Grote Reber proved with an instrument he made himself that particles of hydrogen ejected from the sun strike the earth's layer at the poles are what terrific forces, causing displays of light such as those commonly known as the northern lights.

Auroral specialists have suspected for some time that hydrogen particles from the sun cause the strange antics in the upper atmosphere, but no one could prove it.

Proves Own Point

Dr. Meinel was able to do it with his spectrograph camera.

After its completion, he waited for a good auroral display. He was able to see the particles and could tell they were hydrogen protons from their color and the way they acted. They struck the earth's atmosphere, from 60 to 600 miles above the ground, at speeds of 8,000,000 miles an hour. Their journey from the sun took 12 hours.

A hydrogen atom is composed of one electron and a proton. The electron, however, was left behind in the terrific speed and only the proton particles from the sun's element when it hit the earth's atmosphere.

"Protons aren't certain that hydrogen comes from the sun but they're reasonably sure to that source. An outburst which can be seen on the sun has been followed within 12 hours by an aurora.

Toronto, July 25—(CP)— Although creameries can get more for butter than they did a year ago they are not producing as much, the Ontario Department of Agriculture said today.

The price during June, 1951, was up 8.6 cents from the same month last year. However, production was only 9,178,700 pounds—6.6 per cent lower than a year ago.

Cheddar cheese output and prices showed a similar trend. Production was down 12.2 per cent to 10,514,500 pounds with the price up 10 cents to 38.

The department's statement of May figures of milk production showed a slight decline in consumption of fluid milk but a substantial increase in consumption of chocolate and cultured milks.

However, over-all milk production during May was one-fifth of one per cent higher than in May, 1950.

Fluid milk production was down 356,700 quarts to 37,098,000. Price was up 1.1 cents to 19.4.

The department said some feed prices were up, some down. Protein supplements and dry and freshening feeds were up $2 to $7 a ton, prices of oats, barley, bran, shorts and oil cake were down, in some cases, $13 a ton.

Sgt. Griggs Fast Worker

London, July 25 (AP)—Two months ago Sgt. William Griggs of the United States Air Force was waiting at London airport for a plane to New York.

When he boarded it four hours later, he was engaged to an English girl he met while waiting.

Next Wednesday in Akron, O., the air-ace romance will be climaxed by his marriage to pretty Winifred Spears, a receptionist for British Overseas Airways Corporation.

"That first time we met, I was busy with a plane load of passengers," Miss Spears told a reporter today. "I had to speak to him between answering other passengers' questions and rushing about with tickets.

"Just before he left to catch his plane he asked: 'Will you marry me and come to live in America?'

"He was very handsome in his uniform and wings, I said yes."

Four days later, she said, Griggs wrote asking if she meant it. She assured him she did.

WITHDRAWAL

The communists have served notice that they intend to insist on a buffer zone between the opposing armies along the 38th Parallel. Ridgway orders are to get a buffer zone along the present battle line, which generally is north of the parallel.

Tentative Acceptance

In the earlier stages of the negotiations on what should be discussed in arranging an armistice, the reds tentatively accepted the idea of close observation and inspection. But authorities here say they actually are committed to nothing and may resist the idea of Unified Nations or other members of an inspection team looking over their forces.

Diplomatic officials say these two issues mean it may still be many days, or even weeks, before an actual armistice is achieved.

Change in Bidding Procedure Forces Increase in Price of White Cheese

Buyers on the Belleville Cheese Exchange were in a quandry last evening over the Ontario Marketing Board's decision to bid for export cheese on the open market in competition with the regular buyers.

The direct result of this decision forced the price of white cheese up 8/16 of a cent a pound over last week's price of 37 cents.

There was a split price on white cheese with Silverwoods buying 287 boxes at 37 9/16 and the Marketing Board taking the remainder of the 1,729 boarded at 37½ cents.

The entire production of 2,719 boxes of colored cheese was sold at 37 3/4 cents a pound.

Of the 93 factories listed last evening, 35 boarded 3,235 boxes of special cheese.

In addition to the Marketing Board's decision to bid on the open market against the regular buyers, their board bid for the white cheese caused considerable discussion. Mr. Heath made a bid of 37½ cents after the buyers had made their selections at 37 7/16. When interviewed this 37 9/16 the Marketing Board asked to withdraw the board bid.

In the ensuing discussion it was pointed out by Mr. W. H. Morton, that in the past if a board bid was made, and then raised so that a few hundred boxes could be taken out, that the offer of the board bid could be withdrawn.

Mr. Ivan McCreary remarked that he thought such a practice was harmful, and expressed the opinion that once a selection was made it was impossible to withdraw. Until a selection had been made, however, it was possible to withdraw the bid.

The upshot of the discussion was that the Marketing Board bought all the white cheese except for the 287 boxes selected by Silverwoods at 1/16 of a cent higher.

CANADAIR

Expect Employee Boost

Meanwhile the Montreal company is continuing to tool up and there is anticipation that the employee roster of some 5,000 men will be boosted in the next few months to 10,000 as a result of new production.

It is understood the Canadair Company will undertake manufacture of the T-33 jet trainer for the R.C.A.F. No figures were available from the company but recent reports from Ottawa have placed the number at 500 of these two-seater trainers at an approximate cost of $200,000 each—a total of $100,000,000.

Canadair has been named by United States authorities as a "prime contractor" for United States Air Force aid on a basis of this rating orders for manufacture of the T-36 piston-engine bomber-trainer are anticipated.

No Figures Available

Again, no figures are available as to the size of this possible order. It could go into the millions of dollars. Meantime contract talks with American authorities are still in progress with hints that American orders could reach a size comparable with the order from the R.C.A.F.

An informed source said "no definite contracts have yet been reached."

The speed of the T-36, an entirely new type of trainer-bomber, is believed to be around 400 miles an hour.

During the height of the Second World War Canadair employed 21,000 men.

THERE IS LITTLE PRIDE OF FAMILY IN THIS

It was only this week that a noted Canadian columnist gave the back of his writing hand to that peculiar species of man that persists in climbing and conquering mountains. The alpinists, he claims, are quite willing to sacrifice their limbs and endanger their lives for the mere satisfaction of saying that they have reached the top of this or that mountain. While hundreds are content to stand at the foot of the mountain to admire its lofty heights and its wonderfully craggy slopes, the alpinists must climb to the top in a foolish endeavor to spoil the view.

Alpinists are merely one subsection in a class of people in this world who insist on doing the extraordinary. They are grouped with the flagpole-sitters, the endurance fliers and the channel swimmers. In the latter category there are dozens who exercise themselves for financial gain. With them, there is little quarrel to be had. Indeed, for most in the category, there is a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, and they are entitled to it.

But what should be done with a man and wife who take their children, aged four and five years, to England, to have them swim the Channel? Granted, Bubbs and Kathy Tongay are as different from other children as black is from white. But they are, after all, wee tots, and their parents should be censured for proposing such a tiring episode for them. They are excellent swimmers — for their age. They are healthy, and well-built, and if reports of their training can be believed, swimming is second nature to them.

Nevertheless, and with wisdom, the British government would not allow Mr. Tongay's children to swim from the English to the French coast. He had to go, it appeared, promising that he would not launch the children, before he was allowed to stay in the country. The next move was obvious, and Mr. Tongay made it. He sailed, with the children, for France, where he hoped the authorities would sympathize with him, and where he would not be met by British reserve.

But the French government took the same view of the Tongay proposal as Mr. Tongay had of the British another statement of promise. His last hope, apparently, is to start the children on their swim from a yacht in the Channel. If nothing else, the man is persistent. Little else can be said for him, because he is trading commercially on the feats, past, present and future, of his children. He doubtless has hopes that there will be financial gain in countless testimonials, after the swim is completed. It is to be hoped that he fails, if only for the sake of his own honor. Pride of family takes many forms, but when it degenerates to exploitation of children, the pride is more than tarnished. It is non-existent.

WHERE HAVE ALL THE BIRLERS GONE?

We read with a certain amount of disappointment that the ancient art of log birling seems to be dead in the northern parts of Hastings county. Our Eastern correspondent, situated at the jump-off spot for Maynooth, Barry's Bay, Whitney, and points north into Algonquin Park, reports that a log-birling class at a regatta in his community drew a meagre crowd.

As our man says, there are at least 39 sawmills between Madoc and Barry's Bay, but no birlers willing to demonstrate their fine balance and agility. While the north slopes for the saw, and the hills and valleys echo to the rumble of trainloads of lumber hauled from many mills, the fine art of birling is apparently being lost.

Perhaps the lack of birling exponents is just another sign of the times. More and more men in the north are turning to the land to make their living, and the forests are no longer so deep that the eye cannot penetrate their growth. Even so, lumber camps do operate through winter months on many sites, and they are busy the year round with their products. Our correspondent notes that Hastings trees have created a demand in places such as Alliance, O.; Buffalo; Watertown and Tonawanda, N.Y., and a number of cities and towns in both Eastern Ontario. But the tradition that used to send huge booms of logs floating down countless lakes is gone from the north.

We are told that a man's agility on a log boom was his trademark at one time. It was also his livelihood, and the water had to be faster than the wind, and rougher than the ocean, to put him off his feet. He could stand for hours on top of a log, spinning it under his feet as naturally as he would walk down the street. His special shoes were his pride and joy.

Birling is going, like so many other fine traditions. Within a few years, they bring raised eyebrows at a mere mention. People will have completely forgotten the birlers and their gay shouts, their defiance of the water and their colorful mannerisms. Make way for the atomic age!

WOMEN

"Women are odd ones," he said, with a sigh.
"You can't understand 'em, however you try.
I've said it before and I say it again
The trouble is womenfolk don't think like men.

"That fetsy of mine has a mind that is strong.
I know I am right, but she knows I am wrong.
I try hard to please her but seldom I can.
The trouble with Betsy can't think like a man.

"I want to have my way; she wants to have hers,
And over that always a wrangle occurs.
If I say it's yellow; says Betsy it's blue.
She thinks like a woman. I think like a man."

"We can't understand 'em," I said with a grin.
"But it's well for us men that they love we can win.
And I'm glad the good Lord
When He started His Plan,
Made sure that no woman would think like a man."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The distinction between reckless driving and criminal negligence is one of those legal refinements that would delight the heart of a Chesterfield fancy dancing by the legal fraternity. Meanwhile, the toll of death and destruction on the highways and city streets goes on at a rate that would give the commander of an army in battle cause for worry.

The charge of criminal negligence carries with it not merely penalties of a much more severe nature than the lesser charge. It has a more opprobrious quality. There are any number of people who feel a certain flattering in a morbid sort of way in being charged with recklessness in any form. But the threat of being charged with criminal negligence, if it were more commonly applied in relation to the traffic problem, might serve to control the careless.

It is reckless to drive at high speed on worn tires. It is also criminal negligence. It is reckless to run in and out of traffic in a car whose engine has been worn to the extent that it has not the necessary pick-up. It is also criminal negligence to drive with the steering action of the machine, and neglect of the safety of other people driving on the highways or streets. This might appear to be an attempt to apply a means test to driving. Should only brand new cars be allowed to travel at the fifty mile an hour and up common to our highway traffic?

There is probably as much reckless driving that could be construed as criminal negligence among brand new cars as there is among the rattling wrecks which are another aspect of criminal negligence. They bought worth pondering is that the majority of the condition of tires and of engine and chassis, including ruling axles, worn or loose bolts and defective brakes is a form of criminal negligence the minute those neglected components place anybody but the driver himself in jeopardy. And that moment arrives when the driver of the neglected car impinges he is a guide as anybody else, and steps on it.

Approves $500,000 For Lamprey Control

Washington, July 24— (AP)— The Senate approved Monday and sent to the White House a bill to authorize $500,000 in 1952 for controlling the lamprey eel in the Great Lakes. The parasite destroys the food fish upon which it feeds.

Congress has been told by fish and wildlife service experts that the lamprey has virtually wiped out trout in Lake Huron and greatly reduced it in Lake Michigan.

They said there is evidence the lamprey is extending its depredations into Lake Superior and also attacking other food fish in areas where there is no more trout.

Experts are experimenting with the use of electric shock to divert the lampreys from their spawning grounds.

OUR TOWN

By JACK SCOTT

SHELTER, GENERAL?

My wife and I went shopping yesterday for a stirrup pump.

We went to a department store which sells nearly everything but pre-fabricated replicas of the Taj Mahal, when we got to the hardware section. Here one may purchase anything from a 24-foot rowboat to a small rod grader.

"A stirrup pump, sir?" the clerk said. He looked at us narrowly. "One moment, sir. I'll see what we have in stock."

Presently he returned, looking faintly embarrassed.

"Well, sir," he said. "We have stirrups for horses. We have pumps for almost anything. But we do not seem to have a stirrup pump."

I said okay, thanks very much, I just wanted to find out if they were on sale.

"Perhaps we could fix you up with a wheelbarrow, something that would do the job," the clerk said. "For what purpose did you wish this — er — stirrup pump?"

"Why," I said, "I wanted it to put out the fire bombs when we are attacked by the Russians."

I also want a long handled shovel or rake for dislodging bombs in rafters or roofs, and a pair or two of goggles and thick gloves for added protection.

"Very kidding, of course," the clerk said, laughing.

"I'm not joking, government," I said. "Don't you read the papers? Haven't you been following the Civil Defence Bulletins? Haven't you been clipping them out and saving them for the day of attack?"

"Well, yes, I've seen those things," the clerk said, "but to tell you the truth I haven't paid much attention to them."

"Brother," I said, "you are not alone."

Wasted Money

This thing has been going on now for weeks without a single voice raised to suggest that it is wild nonsense.

In every daily paper, in every weekly paper, in many an obscure trade journal bulletining "Little Indians' paper, "The Thunderbird"), and in every publication the Government or British Columbia has been shelling out tens of thousands of dollars for a campaign that is nothing more than a pathetic farce.

Presumably this extravagance is the work of one Maj. Gen. C. R. Stein, whose title is "Civil Defence Co-Ordinator." Perhaps a military man to sow the seeds of panic in the public mind with the mildewed advice contained in mouldy pamphlets from an earlier war.

I fancy most of us are hardened to the tensions of these days, but Civil Defence Publications are hardly a contribution to morale or to the calm and reasonable hope for peace that seems to be prevailing the hysteria of earlier days. Remember when Dorothy Thompson, over two years ago predicted World War Three within 90 days?)

Here, for example, in Bulletin No. 4 we find the Civil Defense lenses, please."

ATTENTION!

An essential ingredient in the remedy I suggest to prevent these exciting jitters—and for the pamphlet Examination Jitters in writing and inclose a stamped addressed envelope—is that you clipping—is vitamin B1, otherwise called thiamine; or, natural vitamin B complex.

A medical-text book (Bicknell & Prescott, The Vitamins in Medicine, not available to the laity) describes among the psychological manifestations of B1 deficiency, "intolerance to noise, peculiar sensations in the head, inability to concentrate, inattention to details, memory defects, irritability, 'nervousness', anxiety, depression and insomnia."

This does not mean that a "shot" of vitamin B will restore your life if that life make too much noise or if you don't concentrate or if you don't sleep as well as you should. But if you have most or all of the manifestations mentioned don't resort to stimulants or dope until you have at least improved the nutritional quality of your everyday diet, and perhaps supplemented your inadequate diet with suitable daily rations of the vitamins and minerals which most Americans (and a lot of Canadians) need a lot of refined foods—chief-foods. I will be glad to list in the pamphlet Young Folks and Old Folks) available on the same terms as above, if you write me for them, inclose ten cents.

Be it change in your diet—for instance substituting whole wheat for refined white flour—or supplementing your diet with vitamins and/or minerals your refined foods fail to provide, you must get this simple fact through your head: You can't expect to get rid of your nervous troubles within a month or six weeks. Badly gullible customers who visit their family doctor, pay him to get a "shot" of vitamins and/or minerals, and then expect results overnight "feel like a new man" are the victims of the "miracle" cures that are nothing more than expensive placebos.

For 28 days six subjects followed a diet which provided less than their B1 intake was on most Americans get per day from the refined foods on which they are to be performed as effectively on the chest weight exercises made as before the experiment.

When the daily intake of B1 received by these two subjects was raised to 2 mg. they became strikingly more alert and attentive, their performance on the chest weight exercise machine was more satisfactory than it had been before the experiment.

When their daily intake of B1 was lowered to the level of that of the ordinary "educated" American who tries to live on refined food—particularly white flour and things made of it, instead of fresh ground whole wheat—their alertness and their ability to work again declined to the normal low level.

So there you are, knuckleheads. If you are capable of giving the matter serious attention it might be worth your while to read the pamphlet. Wheat to Eat, available on the terms already mentioned.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

By

Farmers Grow It

Would like to have your pamphlet Wheat to Eat. Where can one get it? Also the proper method. (Mrs. H.)

Answer—For the pamphlet send stamped self-addressed envelope. Farmers everywhere grow wheat. Get it from the farmer, or from feed store, by the bushel, peck or pound. Grind your wheat into flour. Sift flour fresh every morning with a hand sieve such as I mention in the pamphlet.

Birthmarks

What do you think about birthmarks? Young son has big one on his back. Some say it's a blood tumor and if it is removed his blood will... but I don't believe in all that myself. (Mrs. C. E.)

Answer—Send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Cosmetic Blemishes. There is no truth in the fishwife tales about "marking."

Lanolin

Have two jars, one of Anhydrous Lanolin, the other of Wool Fat and Lanolin. Both are too thick to use. Why?

Answer—Lanolin is wool fat, the oil or cream naturally present in or on sheep's wool. As used in pharmacy it contains from 25 to 30 per cent water. In a hundred parts of grease. It is officially known as Adeps Lanae Hydrosus—probably the "anhydrous" on the label is a mistake—that would absorb only a little water without water the stuff would be far too greasy. Mix one or two thirds lanolin and one-third olive oil or almond oil makes a good ointment base or skin oil.

Fewer Unemployed Reported in Canada

Ottawa, July 24 (CP) — The number of unemployed in Canada is continuing to drop despite disclosures caused by some provincial governments, the Labor Department said Monday.

In its bi-monthly report on the employment situation, the department said there were 138,000 persons registered as unemployed at June 14 compared with 181,000 at May 24. On June 15, 1950, there were 220,500 registered unemployed.

The department said there now are shortages of auto mechanics and repairmen, experienced miners, construction workers, and unskilled labor for construction, mining, transportation, communication and public utilities, and woodworking.

GOD OF NATIONS

History is being made round about us everyday, and history is God in action.

The Bible contains a great many books of history, but what is even more important, these histories are not merely those of individual nations but of the whole human race. Dictated of God or the floating of His will brings disaster. Over and over again this is pointed out in the Bible. History is God in action.

Few nations of the world at any time have had their affairs administered by their best citizens.

Usually people come to positions of power either by wresting power from someone else or by courting the favor of a considerable number of groups to get themselves in office. Neither does not need to be unworthy, but it often is. In the international affairs, it is the custom to have the ruler's hand over his hand over huge issues involving the welfare of millions of people as a group of silly gentlemen who get great delight out of playing a chess game with inculcable human values as their pawns.

Yet down the highway of history, God Almighty is walking in every age. The fallacy in realism this is one of the chief causes of the darkness which so often descends upon nations.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE BALM OF SILENCE

Yes, indeed, "silence is golden," as the poet has so well said. In sorrow, disappointment and trouble it is balm. Yes, and it has its own meaning. We do our own thinking in silence. We are incomplete with us when we say nothing.

People who have learned when to speak silent hours are the leaders of the great rules of life. Many of us say too much, and at the wrong time. The nature in prayer during silence is inspiring. Many a city person has taken the silent cure, for a few days in the forest. If you will out where the forest is full of medicine for both mind and body.

Great nature writers like Thoreau, W. H. Hudson, and Wordsworth, never spoke before shut up from the silence of the out-of-doors. It is there that their personal message is spoken, even though in silence. Silence has often proved more eloquent than words.

It was this balm of silence that apparently appealed to Robert Herrick when he wrote that beautiful story "The Master of the Inn".

Some Cuts Expected In Farm Produce Prices

Guelph, July 25—(CP)—Some reduction in farm produce prices although not necessarily meat prices—was forecast Tuesday by H. H. Hannam, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture.

Dr. Hannam was addressing the annual joint meeting of the American Farm Economic Association and the Canadian Agricultural Economics Society.

He said the carryover of feed grains and the likelihood of a large crop this year would result in cuts in produce prices. However, meat prices would only be slightly affected since their present high level resulted from export to the United States at U.S. prices.

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The July meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's Church, Stirling, was held at the home of Mrs. Vernon Mathews last Tuesday evening.

The devotional part of the meeting was presided over by Mrs. Rodgers. Mrs. Kyle Ray read the Scripture Lesson taken from the book of Joshua, Mrs. L. Rodgers led the meeting in prayer. Mrs. E. Foster spoke regarding the sale, urging all members to be on hand and in their donations as promptly as possible so that she might forward the parcels of quilts this is a most important part of the church work.

Miss Carol Fargey gave a splendid reading entitled "Jackie's First Meeting". Mrs. R. Williams played a piano solo. Mrs. Charles Fargey gave the topic stating that "we sometimes feel that in the face of so great a task we as a Presbyterian church in Canada, and as a Woman's Missionary Society in that church, seem to have few missionaries serving in very many lands. One great advantage would be for us to make it possible to have more. "One way by which we can hope to reach to the uttermost part of the world is to aid in supplying Christian literature. The printed page has ever had a prominent place in the spread of Christianity. Among the many things which Apostle Paul wrote to Timothy, is this 'Give attention to reading.' May we to whom had been entrusted this word of life, be always ready to give to the millions on earth this written word of life in ever falling supply.

"At the beginning of his address on the foreign missions conference, in 1950, on the subject "Literacy and Evangelism", Dr. Frank Laubach said, "I feel such a responsibility to God and to the world that I tremble. It is our responsibility too."

After the singing of a hymn, Rev. W. H. V. Walker closed the meeting.

Mrs. Charles Fargey assisted the hostess in serving refreshments, and after a time of goodwill, Mrs. Roy Eggleton expressed the thanks of the society to Mrs. Mathews and her helpers for this fine meeting.

Fashion Flashes

DRAMATIC coats appear in every new collection geared for the seasons ahead. A beauty is a huge wrappy greatcoat of tawny beige boucle woolen, with high collar and huge push-up cuffs, lined entirely with ocelot fur.

TWO TONES, especially in grey, is a plot much beloved by the designers. A particularly handsome affair is a suit of grey worsted, dark grey for the body of the jacket and for cap oversleeves—giving a double effect—with light grey for sleeves and skirt. Lining is a tiny red and white checked taffeta, with matching hankie tucked in the jacket pocket.

EASY TO WEAR, ditto to look at, is a short, full-skirted dinner dress of dark silver-grey cotton serge. The low-cut sweetheart neckline is prettily embroidered with grey paillettes and matching beads. Grouped, inverted pleats give the skirt its flaring fullness.

COOL AND comfortable tennis costumes add to the pleasure of the game. White piqué is used for a three-piece design that is different. The side-buttoned top bares one shoulder, and the side buttoned skirt is worn over diaper-like panties.

IT'S A PLEASURE to come home to the charming house togs shown this season. Silk organza, cool and floaty, in a metallic print on white, makes a cool, comfortable and pretty negligee with huge, winged cape sleeves, self belt and buttons. It has a deep, pointed collar in front, but is collarless in back.

SNOOTY, downright snooty, is a group of lapin coats—from Paris, no less—due to hit the stores later on. A handsome three-quarter length model is a beaver brown lapin, a reversible coat, lined with brown and white checked woollen.

Mrs. Rose, on behalf of all present, moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mrs. Rollins.

Women's Institute

CHAPMAN W.I.

Tweed—The regular meeting of Chapman W.I. was held recently at the home of Mrs. Thos. Lynn with 19 members and four visitors present.

An interesting item on the program was the comprehensive paper given by Mrs. Percy Ray of Philipston-Zion W.I., on her visit to the Guelph Convention as Community Activities and Public Relations delegate.

Under Standing Committees, Mrs. Albert Martin reported on Agriculture and Canadian Industries in a reading, "A Forward Looking President". For Historical Research Current Events, Mrs. John Rannie suggested that a good leather covered loose-leaf book be purchased for the budding Tweedsmuir history. This met with the approval of the members.

For Home Economics and Health Mrs. William Boothe told that an inverted saucer under a salad will prevent it from becoming soggy. For Community Activities and Public Relations Mrs. T. C. Lynn read the list of requirements for the coming short course—"Your Food and Your Figure", to be held on August 3 at 8 p.m., in the township hall in Tweed. This is completely free and all ladies in the district are cordially invited to attend.

Mrs. Harry Coulter mentioned the need for a more home-like atmosphere in the Old People's Homes throughout the province, and that this is being done in many centres by donations from various organizations. It was decided that $25 be donated to be used in busy home furnishings for the Belleville home.

The pictures taken at the birthday and grandmothers' meetings for the Tweedsmuir History were on display and much enjoyed by all. These wishing copies should contact Mrs. John Rannie.

The roll call "What's Your Best" brought several suggestions including. Start the meetings on time; draw names for exchange of Christmas gifts, and have either a demonstration or an exhibit at each meeting.

The program, under the leadership of Mrs. Burton Coulter, was on Home Economics. The first item, "Etiquette", given by Mrs. Burton Coulter, gave many helpful hints. "A polite lie to be remembered were the "how" rather than the "what" we do is most important; and tolerance helps us to live agreeably with others."

Mardella Wheeler played a piano selection, "Londonderry Air". Mrs. Brian Edwards gave a reading "Good Manners" which was amusing as well as educational "one fine point being —consideration of others is most essential. Doreen Lynn gave a reading, "Manners as laid down by George Washington", most of which were in accordance with good manners of today. Community singing with Mrs. Harry Foster at the piano, included "The Institute Rally Song" and "The Damper Song".

The hostess, Mrs. Brian Edwards, Mrs. George Baldrick, Mrs. William Boothe, Mrs. William A. Countryman and Mrs. Thomas Lynn served refreshments while all enjoyed a social half hour.

MARIO . . . in his distinctive feature about FOOD . . . What's Cooking?

Chinese gardeners didn't hesitate to give mother nature a hand.

For many years it was their custom to stretch growing cucumbers. By tying weights to the vegetables the hot humid they were able to make the cucumbers grow long and straight.

The best cucumbers are firm with round ends that are not spongy. A cool light summer dish is made by combining crab meat and cucumbers in a piquant gelatin salad. Such salads or aspics should be removed from the refrigerator just before serving or they tend to melt at summer temperatures. Ordinarily a tablespoon of gelatin is used to jell about a pint of liquid. If you want the salad to be firmer you can add more gelatin without affecting the taste, although you should avoid using so much gelatin that the aspic becomes rubbery and tough.

A very small amount of glycerin or salad oil rubbed on the inside of the salad mold will help to unmold it easily.

Jellied Crab Meat and Cucumber Salad—Serves 4-5.

5 ounces can of crab meat
1 cup diced cucumber
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
1-4 cup cold water
1-2 cup boiling water
1 can undiluted consomme
1-4 cup sugar
1-4 cup vinegar
1-2 cup diced celery
1 teaspoon grated onion
Salt—pepper
1-4 cup heavy cream
1-2 cup mayonnaise
2 teaspoons horseradish
Separate crab meat into flakes and remove any pieces of bone or cartilage. Cut off cucumber peel. Cut cucumbers into dice.

Put gelatin in the cold water to soften. Add the boiling water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add the consomme, sugar and vinegar. Put the liquid ingredients in a bowl in the refrigerator. When mixture begins to jell, add the crab meat, cucumbers, celery and grated onion. Mix well. Add salt and pepper to taste. Turn mixture into a large mold or individual molds, rinsed in cold water and not dried. Return to refrigerator to jell completely. When ready to serve, unmold on to serving platter or plates lined with lettuce leaves.

Beat cream until thick. Fold into mayonnaise. Fold in horseradish. Pass dressing separately at table.

BEAUTY

Correct posture; snappy figure

You may note home a lot of pulchritude from the cosmetic counter—notable eyelashes, commercial blushes, tints to make the finger nails look like tiny red roses, etc. But some things you can't buy; you have to work for them. And among these qualities of beauty is essential the neat, graceful silhouette.

Normal lines and proportions are not enough. Carriage must be right. There must be no reeling of the spinal column, nor must the chest be allowed to flatten. Good posture is the foundation of a smart appearance. Without it the costliest and most beautiful frock ever stitched together will be a flop, a sartorial washout.

The stout woman who carries herself well need not be overweight and awkward.

Faulty posture may be the result of fatigue or lack of muscle balance. More often it is brought about by pure laziness or lack of self-appreciation. It is not necessary to have the body rigidly erect at all times; it should have softness and ease. But persistent stooping and slouching will create injuries to the parts that are not easily overcome.

Stooping shoulders prevent the normal development of the chest, that is why young girls should avoid the bad habit of carrying their arms forward. They also interfere with full, deep breathing and cause a lack of glowing color in the complexion. In extreme cases, poor posture may bring undue pressure on the heart and large blood vessels.

In the upright position the circumference of the body is reduced. Get out your tape measure. Double up in a chair—head down, muscle relaxed—and measure your waist line. Then stand tall, head balanced, tummy pulled inward and upward. You will be considerably smaller at the equator than when you let the spinal column assume its own natural position.

The stoutish woman who holds herself well need not look overweight and awkward. It is the slouching posture that is responsible, lacking in grace and snap. The well-set-up woman, even if she is a bit of a crush on the bathroom scales, has a firm, springy breast—a light step that makes her figure appear vibrant and attractive.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

His girl is fickle—can he ever believe her?

So many letters from young men these days have to do with romance gone awry because the young men had to go into service and leave their girls behind them.

From a service man, comes a letter with a problem he would probably have had, even though he had stayed home. It has to do with his girl's fickleness, and his resulting lack of confidence in the love she insists, periodically, that she has for him.

"I have been going with this girl for three years," writes the boy, who is 19, "and I joined the service so that I would have a steady income and could marry her. Things never did work out the way I thought they would, though. The first thing I knew, she jilted me for another fellow. Then, later on, she asked me to take her back, and I did. But after a while, she started the other fellow anyhow. Now she tells me she is getting divorced and wants me back again. She says she knows she made a big mistake and is sorry for it.

"What I want to know is, is there any way of knowing if she is telling me the truth when she says she really loves me, or is she just lying to me as she has done in the past? If I should take her back once more, I'll break a lot of people's hearts, and then again, if she is telling me the truth, and I don't take her back, I'll be sorry for the rest of my life. I have tried to forget her twice, once for as long as six months, but haven't been able to do it. I saw her when I was home last, and had all I could do to keep away from her.

No Confidence

"Do you think if I asked her to wait until I got out of service, I would find out if she really loves me? On the other hand, if she does love me, would it be right to ask her to wait for me?"

It seems to me that this chap has arrived at a very useful way of handling his problem when he suggests that to ask her to wait for him might settle, once and for all, his doubts about her true feelings for him. If she really loves him, she will wait for him. It's as simple as that. Certainly, I think he would be extremely foolish to marry her so soon as she gets her divorce from her present husband. His experiences with her to date have given him no reason whatever to have any confidence that she knows her own mind, or even that she has the good sense to delay action until she is able to make it up.

Quite frankly, I would be inclined to suggest that he give her up for good, as I have serious doubts about her stability. The probability, as I see it, would be that if he did marry her, the marriage would be short-lived. She has tired of him twice, and twice wanted him back when she tired of someone else. This sort of "blow hot and blow cold" scarcely recommends her as a loyal and devoted wife.

Two Alternatives

What it boils down to is that the boy has just two advisable alternatives. One would be to make up his mind, and keep it made up, that he would put her out of his life. What he says about trying to forget her twice, and not having been able to do so is not a reason for him to believe that he never can get over her. I am quite sure that what kept him from getting over her sooner was that he never really gave up hoping that someday she would be his wife, if he would make such a decision and hold to it, he would, like everyone else who has had a more or less similar experience, in time find that he cared less and less about her. When a person says that he "can't forget" about a girl, he is using the words as synonyms. What he really means is that he thinks he can't stop loving her. If this were true, it would reverse all human experience.

The other alternative is the one he suggests himself which we have already discussed and, I strongly suspect, is the one he will choose. If so, his only possible hope is to stick to what he says about waiting until he is out of the service to be married, for only such a waiting period will tell him what he wants to know about the girl's sincerity. He may, of course, lose her during that period, but if he allows her to rush him into marriage as quickly as possible, he is almost certain to lose her eventually anyway.

When should a family borrow ?

A family should borrow only when a loan is the best solution to a money problem. For example, to pay off debts, to buy necessities, to meet a fuel, education, car or home repairs. Loans for these reasons are most economical for the money is not used to buy goods in short supply or for speculation.

SOLVING MONEY PROBLEMS

At HFC—Household Finance—we believe a family should borrow only when, by careful planning, the money problem can be resolved, and the loan repaid in an orderly manner. When a family borrows under these circumstances, it is simply "renting" money on terms it can afford. At HFC you may borrow $50, $250, $500 or more on your signature, without bank-like security.

HE'S A CUT-UP!

If Turk Broda shows a decided list to port next winter if and when he appears between the hockey pipes either in a Maple Leaf uniform or Gotham garb, don't be surprised. The portly custodian of the cubicle was operated on a short time ago and had a bevy of gallstones removed from their hiding place shaft the liver.

* * *

Not only that, but curious medicos probing the cavernous depths of the Brodian innards discovered a cerfuse, if small, appendage to the apendix. It was rocket-shaped. Being loyal Maple Leaf fans they decided to remove the hated symbol and did so forthwith. As the Turk's gun-pardon —appendix rose to the surface, the appendage emitted a faint "Canadiens Sont Le" and expired.

The Smythian sports ambassadors of goodwill, as they are termed, are no great shakes as diamond experts either as softball or baseball. Down Kingston way the other gloaming they suffered two defeats while the Kingston Saints took them by the odd run in thirteen.

No great wonder then, that Sid Smith, who does the catching for the Maple Leaf brilliants executed a reasonable facsimile of a Sioux war-dance when his team shoved its third run across the Kingston batter and shouted, "Hell, amigos, THIS is the game we should be playing."

They did not get much chance to show their baseball wares here the other night since Pluvius put an effective quietus on the proceedings. But they'll be back, it says here. And you fans who are holding rain-checks had better hang on to the stubs. They'll be good for admission to the MIHL All-Star game. Which should be along sometime within the next three or four weeks.

WRITE WINGS AWAY!

From the enthusiasm displayed by the various skippers and the racing committee at last Sunday's yacht races, and from the yowling public interest in the 14 square miles that yacht racing on the Bay of Quinte is coming back from a nine or ten-year lay-off. Competition for the W. C. Mikel Trophy is not going to be allowed to lag either because one race is scheduled every week-end challenge for the cup is entered. When J. J. Morch finished in front in the first race three weeks ago he was greeted on the dock with hearty congratulations and a challenge in the trophy last Sunday. When the veteran sailor tied up at the government dock Sunday afternoon after a thrilling race, it was given ten minutes grace and then challenged again.

* * *

This third race of the first racing season in a decade will be held Sunday, August 11, over the same course from the government dock to Proche Point, to the bay bridge and back to dock, with two laps constituting a race. The reason for the three-week holdover is that Group Captain Hawtrey, winner of Sunday's race, has invited all local skippers to participate in a 32-mile cruising race which is being staged in the Trenton end of the bay next Saturday. Most of the local skippers have already signified their intentions of entering.

* * *

It is almost a certainty that the next contest will see Maurice Callaghan out in his "After You". Sunday he was aboard Harold Seldon's "Halcyon" because he had not had time to varnish the bottom of the "After You", a deficiency that will be remedied in the weeks time. It is expected that Art Young and Art Cruji, who missed the runabout race last Sunday will be out to compete at the next race. Dinghys and snipe class boats will round out the field as boat racing makes its bid for a top position in the summer sporting calendar of the Quinte district.

RACING CARS HERE SATURDAY

Helmeted heliers, crouching low over the wheels of screaming racing cars, will feature the special automobile racing meet being staged at Speedway Parkland, near Marysville on Saturday afternoon. Promoter Dick Burrowes, has several of those famous drivers coming from all parts of the country to compete in the first race of its kind ever held in this part of Ontario. The cars, are the lightweight type, slightly smaller than the famous "500's" that hit the dirt at the Indianapolis speedway and larger than the popular midget racers. Tubbs kick up dust at nearly 80 m. p. h. on the straightaway and race enthusiasts will get the thrill of their lives as these dare-devils roar around the track. Then too, will be the stock-car races that will include well-known local and Toronto drivers. So it looks like a lot of thrills and, chills at the Speedway come Saturday afternoon.

FIGHT PICTURES

Amiable Tommy Mascaro, manager of the Capitol Theatre took time out today and stole a few minutes from his reels and screen, and the Detroit Tigers to wax enthusiastic over the fight game. Seems as though Tommy, like the rest of us was astounded when Randy Turpin belted the middleweight crown off the kinky noggin of Ole Sugar Ray Robinson while thousands of victory-crazy Britishers bowled their approval. Now Tommy has the pictures of that memorable fight speed coming to the Capitol tomorrow, Friday and Saturday in which all the highlights of the scrap are shown in vivid clarity. It's a "must" for fight fans. Don't miss it — but leave one seat.

'There Is No Place Like Home' Chant Winning Yanks, Red Sox, Dodgers Claw Cubs 6-3 In 10

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox, so-so performers on the road, once again are showing fine form before the home folks.

Both the Yanks and Red Sox, virtually tied for the lead, emerged with flying colors the third brush yesterday with the contending Cleveland Indians and Chicago White Sox in the nip-and-tuck American League pennant race.

The Yanks, who top the Red Sox by three percentage points, opened a 19-game home stand by turning back the Indians 3-2. The loss dumped the Indians out of a second-place tie with the Red Sox into third place, one game behind the Yanks.

Chicago Back 3½ Games

Boston launched a 21-game home stand by thrashing the slipping Chicago White Sox 11-3. The defeat dropped the fourth-place White Sox 3½ games back of New York.

In the other American League game Detroit Tigers nicked Washington Senators 4-3.

Brooklyn, meanwhile, stayed 2½ games in front in the National League. The Dodgers defeated Chicago Cubs 6-3 in 10 innings. The runner-up New York Giants edged Pittsburg Pirates 4-3 in 10 innings while in other games Boston Braves defeated Cincinnati Reds 6-1 and St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Philadelphia Phils 9-5.

That old Yankee formula, air-tight pitching and clutch hitting, brought the Bombers back into a tie for first place with their 28th in 37 games at the Stadium. The victory also was their 12th straight over the Indians in New York. Vic Raschi pitched a strong eight-hitter to record his 14th victory for the Yanks.

Leo Kiely, rookie lefthander up from Kansas City, stymied the sagging White Sox to four hits as he turned in his second victory without a loss for the Red Sox. Kiely blanked Chicago until the eighth inning when Don Lenhardt followed two walks with his 10th homer of the season.

Sox Win in First

The Red Sox, who now have won 31 and dropped 10 at Fenway Park, gained the game away in the first inning when they scored five runs against Howie Judson and Harry Dorish on three hits and five bases on balls. Ted Williams pounded out his 19th homer in the second.

Marlin Stuart turned in his second straight six-hit victory as the Tigers nipped the Senators. Stuart lost his shutout when Clyde Kluttz singled home Sam Mele from second base with two out in the ninth.

Roy Campanella featured the Dodgers' victory over the Cubs. Campy socked a three-run homer to feature a four run, 10th-inning rally. The blow was his 15th and came off Paul Minner, Gil Hodges sent the game into overtime for the Dodgers with his 29th homer in the eighth. Clyde King, third Dodger pitcher, picked up his seventh victory.

Sal Maglie became the National's first 16-game winner as the Giants beat the Braves. Willie Mays ravaged home Al Dark from second with the deciding run in the 10th. Maglie allowed only four hits as none after the seventh inning, and fanned 10.

The third-place St. Louis Cardinals, led by Stan Musial and Wally Westlake, pounded out 14 hits in beating the Phils. Musial drove in two runs on a homer, triple and double. Westlake batted three times for a three-bagger and two singles.

Comes a Blanket

In the fourth inning players almost came to blows following a decision at second base. Umpire Al Gore called Ed Pellagrini safe at second when Red Schoendienst of the Cards dropped a throw. However umpire Jocko Conlan reversed the ruling. Later Phil Cavarretta, Chicago player, after inflicting, turned to Card pitcher Del Rice and Rie whipped off his mask and players poured from the dugouts. The umpires restored order apparently without a blow being struck.

Lefty Warren Spahn posted his 11th victory as the Braves broke up a close game at Cincinnati with a four-run rally in the seventh.

Early bombs were balls of baked earth filled with explosives.

'Royal Princess' Dual Winner At Thorncliffe

Toronto, July 25—(CP)—Royal Princess, the fine mare owned by W. C. Topping, of London, resumed her winning ways at Thorncliffe Raceway Tuesday, when she won both divisions of the featured pacing event. She was backed as top favorite in both dashes and won in fairly easy fashion.

She was lucky to escape a serious spill in the first division of her race when driver Hayes Hughson sent her through the pack just as the field turned into the back stretch, as the mare went away from the stragglers in the big field. Exeter Lady went down and four horses and their drivers went over her.

No horse or driver was injured seriously in the spectacular spill.

The spill in the feature was the third accident in a record day of spills at the track.

Judi Teddy and Tom's Girl tumbled in a heap at the first turn in the sixth race. Gay Boy went down in the fourth after being cornered. Both times the stewards had several drivers on the carpet and fined and reprimanded them for reckless driving.

Avons Nip Motors, Share Top Slot In AA Section

Rallying for five runs in the final two frames, Avon Jewellers upset the league-leading Belleville Motor Cars' slowed 5-3 win, night at the Alemite field in a Commercial AA fixture. The game was originally scheduled to be played on Saturday night but was moved up by mutual agreement.

Avons, in winning, moved into a tie with Motors for the Motormen although the latter have a game in hand. Bakelite remain in the third slot, seven points behind and Cleaner Combines and Stewart-Warner bring up the rear.

The Motormen pushed two runs across in the bottom of the first inning on a hit, a walk and an error by second baseman Bellis. From this point on it was a real pitcher's battle between Jack Reid and Baldwin with each bearing down in the clutch.

Tie Game

The game, one of the fastest of the league season, moved along inning by inning with neither side getting many opportunities to do any damage. Then in the eighth, Donovan opened the inning with an infield hit and was sacrificed with a pass. McTaggart drove a hit to left with Donovan holding at base. Donovan stole third and when Garvin's throw went wide of the base, both runners crossed the plate to tie the score.

In the ninth, the Motormen infield fell completely apart committing no less than four errors while, only three of a total of infield hits, gave the Jewellers their winning margin. These proved to be more than enough as the game as Baldwin set the BMC boys down in order striking out the last two.

Donovan and McTaggart led the winers at the plate getting two for five. McTaggart's double was their only extra-base hit. No Motorman hit safely more than once as Baldwin allowed them only five scattered hits. Millers triple was the longest hit ball of the night.

The teams:

Avon Jewellers: Donovan lf; McTaggart rf; Doran c; Hull cf; Reid ss; Murray 1b; Bellis 2b; Rogers 3b; Baldwin p.

Senior Baseball

(By The Canadian Press)

Kitchener Legionnaires suffered their seventh straight loss in the senior intercounty baseball league last night when they were defeated 7-5 by Brantford Red Sox in a game played at Kitchener.

The string of losses has dropped the Legionnaires from fourth to sixth place within a week. Red Sox lead the intercounty pack with a record of 27 victories and seven defeats.

Second-place London Majors made their record 20 wins against 12 losses by whipping Galt Terriers 5-1 at London but they still are six games behind Brantford.

Centrefielder Jerry Wilson led Red Sox to their victory with three hits in four trips to the plate. Richmond's Fred Thomas also batted three for four.

Brantford southpaw Johnny Moore was credited for 13 hits but managed a victory—his seventh of the season against no defeats. Don Fuchner took over for Legionnaires at the end of the fifth inning when Jerry Cleary was yanked for a pinch-hitter.

London's victory was the second in two nights over the Galt club.

The majors were never behind and sewed up the game with a four-run sixth inning. Two hits each were registered by Irish Miskimmens, Don Cooper and Russ Evon.

Extends Strike-out Lead

Bill Slack, 19-year-old London hurler, maintained his lead as the league's strike-out king by fanning seven. Rose Paton relieved Augie Mormino on the mound for Galt in the fifth. Mormino was charged with the loss.

The other senior games played last night in Ontario, Oshawa Merchants of the Vladout Major League scored a 3-2 triumph over Guelph Maple Leafs of the Senior Intercounty in an exhibition game played at Guelph. Welland Stokes defeated North Tonawanda Dodgers 6-5 in a Niagara district senior baseball league game at Welland.

Three games are scheduled for the senior intercounty league tonight: Brantford at Waterloo; Guelph at Galt, and St. Thomas at London.

At Toronto Millen Stadium Peterborough Petes walloped Toronto Crottos 24-2 for their 20th victory in the viadout major league. Every man on the Peterborough team collected at least two hits for a total of 22.

Lacrosse

Toronto, July 25—(CP)—Hamilton's surging Tigers climbed a step closer to the top of the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior race Tuesday night, defeating Toronto West Terks, 7-3 at Riverdale Terrace.

Jack Galr and Barney Welch paced the Tigers' scoring with two goals each while Jack Dorney, Bob Grainger and Merv McGregor also netted the others. Jim McNulty will two goals and Bruce Webster were Yorkers' goal getters.

Elmer Lee, Tiger centre, picked up three minor penalties during the tilt. The league's most penalized player, Lee has spent 61 minutes with the timekeepers to date.

The Prize Men From the East Win 1st COBL All-Star Game, West Misses Win-Chance in 9th

By MAURICE REID

The Eastern All-Stars from the combined teams of Brockville, Smiths Falls and Kingston handed their colleagues from western parts from the western end of the O. & S. L. a 5-3 defeat in the game of a home-and-home all-star annual affair at the Belleville Fair Grounds on Friday night. The Western All-Stars came from Belleville, Batawa, Picton and Napanee to Kingston.

No less than 36 players saw action on the two teams, including nine checkers, in one of the greatest parades of outstanding players ever collected together in this city.

The easterners took a healthy three-run lead in the first inning on a walk, two base hits and a single. They added a single run to the third on Kasepchuk's triple and a single by Seeley. Single tallies in the 6th and 8th helped finished their scoring attack.

Smokey Mixed 'Em

Pat Wilson's men of the west pounced upon the runs in the 9th and another in the third but could do little with the offerings of Smokey Seeley for the remaining stint that he hurled. Belleville's Earl Muhlbland opened the bottom of the ninth with a hard smash off the leg of Weaver, Picton hurler for the visitors. He was followed with a walk and Mac Wilson singled to deep short to load the bases. Mulholland scored on Munroe's smash to short. Weaver was retired at second. Markle walked to load the bases again and Willie Ramkie Jr. singled to right as Bush scored but Munroe was nipped at the plate trying to score from second on a nice throw from Kasepchuk. Reeves was retired on a fly to Hayes to end it all again. The brought up Hayes who had already had one hit and been robbed on another when he was thrown by first-baseman Skodia. A fine job of fielding by the easterners ran out for Hayes went down swinging at as nice a curve ball as any pitcher ever had to see.

Use Five Pitchers

Gord Muffitt started for the eastern squad allowing three runs in the first inning on four hits and was charged with the loss. He was succeeded by Johnny Mowat, Art Night, Harry Weaver and "Lefty" Beauchamp. Eric Rank threw the first three innings for the east being followed by "Smokey" Smith, Hayes and Flanagan. Smith, one of the most effective of the lot, scored and thus will probably be credited with the win.

The all-star game will be played in Brockville on Tuesday, August 7th.

An open hearing in Washington D.C., next Saturday on the 90-day suspension of Dixie Walker, baseball manager, was called Tuesday night by President Geo. W. Trudman of the minor leagues.

Trudman said he has asked Walker, Charles Hurth, president of the Southern Association, Atlanta Club President Earl Mann, and Paul Chervinko, manager of the Mobile Club, to attend.

Walker was suspended July 6 by Hurth on charges of permitting Atlanta players to abuse umpire Paul Rolo in a June 29 game at Mobile.

At Philadelphia, Lionel Joyner, McGill University student from Montreal, and Ross Sleeth of Toronto were tied for first place in the end of the third round Tuesday of the sixth annual United States junior championship for players under 21.

Joyner and the 15-year-old Sleeth each had three victories.

Emile Allais, French skiing ace, said Tuesday he is accepting an offer to train the United States ski team for the 1950 winter Olympics at Colo. Allais currently is at Portillo, a winter resort in the Andes.

The third race will be sailed today.

Ottawa Axe Falls On U.S. Imports

Ottawa, July 25.—(CP)—Coach Clem Green of the Ottawa Rough Riders Tuesday called out loose two United States imports.

Chiefs Outlast Maple Leafs 7-6 In 15 Innings

(By The Associated Press)

Springfield Cubs don't seem to be going anywhere in the International League this year but 15 innings back in last place—but their talented young right-handed pitcher, Frank Marino, is giving Cub fans something to feel good about.

Marino turned back Buffalo 10-5 last night for his fifth straight victory and a season's record of nine triumphs against five losses. Not bad for a hurler whose club has a 40-60 won-lost mark.

He got help from two unexpected sources last night as catcher Ray Cash and first baseman Ronnie George clouted their first homers of the season. Cash had himself a pair of round-trippers good for four runs batted in. George also had four R.B.I.'s.

Royals Extend Wins

League-leading Montreal, meanwhile, continued its merry way with a 6-4 victory over Rochester at the Red Birds' field.

Young Hampton Coleman and Bobby Hofman combined with their talents to boost the Royals' lead over second-spot Buffalo to 4½ games. Coleman pitched four-hit ball in a 6 1-3-inning relief job after Hofman banged four hits in five times at bat.

Syracuse drew within a half-game of Buffalo by defeating the Toronto Maple Leafs, 7-6, in a 15-inning struggle at Syracuse. Loren Babe's single scored Sam Jethroe with the winning runs and sent the 4,000 fans home after Toronto had pushed over a run in the top of the inning. The struggle lasted three hours and 49 minutes.

All-Star Game:
Tuesday, 7th August in Brockville at 6:00 p.m.

Handsome Mike Sharpe, the Golden Boy of wrestledom will toss his near-perfect torso against the striped horror of the Zebra come Friday evening at Memorial Arena. Michael, egad, is one of those superby-built human machines that towers above the best four shows sea-level and fears nothing that wears trunks, armor or racial camouflage. The "Zebe", however, who hasn't as yet mixed any story of popularity here with his stripes, has a fancy bag of tricks at his disposal and he is not averse to using anything or method to achieve victory. It should be a Beauty and the Beast affair. Brother Ben who is pictured above rates but little below the illustrious Michael and he appears in the semi-final against Tommy O'Toole, a broth of a bhoy from Erin, b'japers. Pat Flanagan and Lou Sjoberg, two popular speedsters, open the show.

Argonauts Not Passing the Bucks, So Dekdebrun Won't Pass the Ball

Toronto, July 25—(CP)—The Canadian champion Toronto Argonauts and their brilliant quarterback, Frank "Fritz" Al Dekdebrun, parted company last night.

The 160-pound offensive and defensive star quit because he was dissatisfied with salary arrangements, although he had signed a contract three months ago guaranteeing him the biggest sum ever paid to an Argo player.

Apparent cause of Dekdebrun's dissatisfaction was the size of salaries reported being offered to other United States imports.

Although he left the team and returned to his home in Buffalo, N. Y. last night, there was still a chance he would be back. Argonaut officials said he would be given a chance to reconsider, but he'll have to make up his mind within the next week.

Substantial Increase

Bob Moran, Argonaut president, rejected Dekdebrun's demand for more money. He said he had already given Dekdebrun at a "substantial increase" over last year.

"At the present time," said Moran, "he is the highest paid player in the history of the Argonaut club. If we met his new demands he would be making more money than coach Frank Clair."

Moran said Dekdebrun called on him yesterday and said he didn't think he could be happy under his existing contract.

"I told him we didn't want players on our team who were unhappy and if he felt that way we didn't care to have him around. I believe he got to thinking his salary wasn't fancy enough after reading what George Ratterman and some of the Eastern writers were supposed to be getting."

Would Be a Big Blow

Loss of Dekdebrun would be a big blow to the Argos in their retaining the Grey Cup they won last season in the Dominion final with Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

His daring calling of plays and artistic ball handling were among the chief reasons for the team's success. His fine defensive play was another asset.

Just whom Argos will get to replace Dekdebrun if he doesn't decide to come back is a question the team might try for other imports or might decide to go ahead with the group of bright prospects on hand now.

They include Gerry Tuttle, a passing expert who acted as playing coach of Toronto Balmy Beach last season; Doug Armit, quarterback of University of Western Ontario; centre linebacker Norm Nick Volpe, Dekdebrun's understudy, Arnott and Volpe are Canadians. Tuttle came to Canada from Kent State College where he was a standout.

Savoie T.K.O.'s Charley Lewis

Montreal, July 25. (CP)—Charles Cabot Lewis, 128 1-2, of Brooklyn, N.Y., was down to the end last night but lost by an eight round technical knockout to Montreal's Armand Savoie, 136, in a scheduled 10-rounder here.

Lewis went down for an eight count in the first round and again in the sixth, but came back to fight it out two more rounds using only one arm.

In the eighth, the referee stopped the bout and a doctor found that Lewis' left arm had been broken, apparently when he was dropped to the canvas in the sixth.

Henley Regatta Attracts Cream US, Canuck Crews

By CECIL SMITH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Fort Dalhousie, Ont., July 25 (CP)—Britain's Queen and Canadian rowing crews began arriving at tree-lined old Welland canal today for the opening of the 1951 Royal Canadian Henley regatta—90th in the history of Canadian rowing.

The four-day classic continues Thursday and Friday with winding up events slated for Saturday.

No soonest had many of the crews arrived when the competitors began loosening up for the big events later in the day.

Among the first crews was the St. Catharines Rowing Club, defending champions of the "point total" in the regatta. The club won top honors for the last two years.

Starts 5 p.m.

The meet gets under way at 5:00 p.m. EDT, with the first and second heats of the 145-pound quarter-mile singles dash, followed by the first, second and third heats in the 145-pound fours.

Other events scheduled for opening day are the high school singles, first and second heats in the junior fours, first and second heats in the junior 155-pound fours, and the first, second and third heats in the junior singles. Rounding out the day's events is the mile dash, 145-pound single final.

After getting some practice, although they will not compete until the final days, the St. Catharines Collegiate Institute's crew of eight, winners of the last two years at the Royal Henley, Catharines Collegiate Institute's crew of eight, winners of the last two years at the Royal Henley Memorial Cup.

The new $5,000 Omar Khayyam jug, which formerly belonged to Empress Eugenie—wife of Napoleon III—is awarded the best high school eight in the regatta. It was donated by the late W. B. Cleland in memory of his son who was killed in the second World War.

The St. Catharines Collegiate Institute crew will cup against crews from Ecorse, Mich., and the De La Salle high school, Detroit.

Also causing much speculation is the championship singles on Saturday. Jack Guest of Toronto Dons will meet Bob Williams, secretary of the Royal Henley Association of amateur oarsmen's singles championship at Worcester, Mass.

Williams, of Hamilton Leander, is the only Henley to have who competed in the Diamond sculls at the Royal Henley in England and lost out to the European champion.

Betting Scandal Envelops Another U.S. College

By JERRY LISKA

Peoria, Ill., July 25—(AP)—The college basketball betting scandal that has smeared New York and this cage-proud town today was expected to spread to another school.

Even as authorities sought to swell the list to five Bradley University players who took $5,500 in bribes it was reported that District Attorney Frank Hogan of New York was prepared to drag a new school into the mushrooming cage scandal.

Vincent A. G. O'Connor, assistant New York district attorney, who has been assisting in unearthing the bribery at Bradley, one of the top cage schools in the United States, refused to reveal the next school under suspicion.

Five Members in Custody

Meanwhile, five members of Bradley University basketball team were in technical custody for accepting bribes from gamblers.

They were all-American Gene Melchiorre, 23; William Mann, 24; AArron Ezra Scott, 24; Eric (Bud) Coleman, 22; and Jim Kelley, 21, who has still another year of competition at Bradley. The other four are out of school.

O'Connor said that two more Bradley players would be questioned, "but it was believed neither would be seriously implicated in the "fixes" which involved Bradley's 67-59 win over Washington U. of St. Louis and Bradley's 67-59 triumph over Oregon last December. The "fix" was on a point-spread basis.

At New York, it was announced Nicholas (Nat) Holman, coach and his brother, Anthony, both of Brooklyn were under arrest for conspiring to fix two Bradley games. One involved a Bradley-Wyoming contest played in Madison Square Garden in New York in the 1948-49 season, and a Bradley-St. Joseph game at Philadelphia in 1950. Neither game was under fire in the investigation here.

Swimmers, Divers Open Four-Day Dominion Meet

Vancouver, July 25 — (CP) — More than 100 swimmers and divers representing all parts of Canada were ready for the opening splash today in the four-day Canadian swimming and diving championships at suburban North Vancouver.

Hot and clear was the weather outlook with the first heats due to get under way about 1:30 p.m. EDT. Rain or shine, the open pool, where 1,000 bleacher seats have been set up.

Defending women's events were thrown wide open at the last minute when Irene Strong of Vancouver, holder of breaststroke, 200-yard breaststroke and 100-yard free-style champion, announced she has retired "for a season at least."

Here's Reason

"I'm having the summer to myself," she said. "Every year since 1946 at 5 I've had no time for other things."

The Vancouver mermaid is co-holder with Phyllis Dunlop of Victoria, B.C., of the Beatrice Lumsden trophy, for Canada's outstanding woman swimmer in 1950.

Among defending champions here defending their titles are Ross pf Los Angeles, 200-yard breaststroke title-holder; Doreen Stowell of Vancouver, junior women's 100-yard and 200-yard free-style champion; Evelyn Brooks of Vancouver, three-metre diving champion; Leo Vigeant of Montreal, men's three-metre diving champion; Ken Mather of Montreal, junior 100-yard backstroke champion; and Gerry Mc-Namee of Vancouver, junior 100-yard and 200-yard free-style champion.

Nine events will be run off today, Thursday and Friday, and eight today.

Golfers Card Low In Warm-Up For Amateur Open

London, Ont., July 25. (CP)—Several of Ontario's top golfers took a practice turn over the London Hunt Club course yesterday in preparation for the Ontario Amateur Tournament opening today.

Jack Nash of the London Hunt Club and Phil Farley of Toronto Scarboro each turned in a 70. Nash was winner of the Ontario amateur title the last time the event was held at the Hunt Club in 1946.

Emerson Creed of the Hunt Club carded a 69. Another London, Jim Currie, had a 74. Jack Amell of Toronto Lambton also had a 74. Nick Wojcick of Windsor, last year's winner, toured the course but didn't turn in a card.

Harold Banks, president of the Ontario Golf Association, said it was hard to pick a winner in the tournament but that he listed the chances of George Kluck of Windsor Lakeview.

Kluck went to the finals in the Ontario amateur in 1949 before losing to Ken Kessling of Kitchener. Kessling, winner of the London Hunt invitation, was not on hand today.

Woolen kept right in there with an 11-7 win over Frankford Merchants in Wooler, Stirling's double loss dropped them into a tie for last place in the league. McComb, making his debut with the Merchants pitched good ball, but two costly errors spelled defeat for the Frankfordites.

Walker's, Bellvue Win Minor Tilts

Houston Lumber, league-leading bantam team, suffered a jolt to their pride when they were defeated 11-3 by Walker Hardware's pee-wees team in an exhibition joust on McCoy night. Walker's are recent leaders in their loop, riding an undefeated streak.

Lynch pitched for the bantam representatives, and was opposed on the mound by Ryan, who struck out 15 batsmen in the five-inning affair.

Houston Lumber: Shangue, Black, Charlton, Fox, Cruji, Root, Grindrod, Lynch.

Walkers: Dall, Ryan, Ryan, Kuardo, Young, Bennett, Brennan, Cook, Morrison.

On Tuesday evening, Bellvue Finance pee-wees overpowered the Color Centre representatives by a score of 10-7 in a regularly scheduled loop fixture.

Kingston fired good ball for the winners as he bested Garry who also threw well in a losing cause.

Bellvue Fin: McDonald, Kingston Vanalstyne, Dafoe, Dolan, Keller, Musgrove, Wilson, Rushlow, McGuire.

Color Centre: Kennedy, Garry, Breer, Green, Downs, Brown, Fox, Sears, Allestine.

HAD CONSIDERABLE CASH

Barrie, July 25—(CP)—Provincial Police said last night that two of the five men drowned Sunday in Lake Simcoe when their motorboat sank were carrying large sums of money. Wesley Fletcher, 68, Wellington county farmer, was believed to have had $1,000 in his possession while his son, Lorne, had $500. None of the bodies had been recovered by nightfall last night.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

No telling what problem the next Horse Sense will pose for a player. The most innocent looking hand may need astute handling. As was the case in the tournament deal shown here:

NORTH
♠K Q 3
♥K 4
♦K Q J 10 8 5 4
♣A 4

WEST
♠A 9 5
♥Q 7 6
♦7
♣Q 9 7 5 2

EAST
♠10 2
♥10 9 8 3 2
♦Q J 9 2
♣K 10

SOUTH
♠J 8 7 6 4
♥A 3
♦6 3
♣8 6 3

The bidding that fitted best went like this:

North	East	South	West
1 D	Pass	1 S	Dbl.
2 D	2 H	Pass	3 H
3 S	Pass	4 S	All Pass

In answer to the west takeout double, east had a correct reply in his bid of two hearts. And west had a heart raise to three.

Many players will not agree with the rule bid of two diamonds by north. In their judgment an assist in spades is more likely to produce a game. In any close decision, I prefer rule.

The second round pass by south was correct. The bidding is open for partner. So, there is no need to lie. When north assists spades, south has the full needs for a raise to four.

Opening lead from west was a heart. South took it with the ace. A trump was grabbed by west spade ace. He promptly cashed a heart trick and then led the singleton diamond.

Only one more trick is all declarer dare lose. Dummy diamonds must be established and entries to them preserved. So, suspecting the west diamond to be a singleton, what should be done?

Dummy wins the first diamond with king, pulls a trump round with spade king, then leads a small diamond. East wins and returns a diamond for west to ruff, but south ruffs high with spade jack.

A trump is lead to dummy queen. A small diamond ruffed by south. King of clubs cashed. A club to the ace enters dummy. Dummy diamonds are good for the rest. From holdings thus played the champions made.

Remember When

(By The Canadian Press)

Timmins Dome Mines won the Eastern Canada soccer title 12 years ago today by defeating Toronto Ulster United 4-2 in a turbulent match marked by the banishment of Ulster centre-half Bob McNayney for striking the referee. Dome later bowed to Vancouver North Shore United in a hard-fought five-game Dominion final series.

Movie Column

By FRANKLIN ARTHUR

Hollywood, July 25 (AP)—Some days the news is new and old, hot and cold. For example:

New to Hollywood is an Italian gal who will dance the hula in her first movie role.

If that sounds incongruous, so does her English. It's good, but it frequently lapses into such phrases as "hot stuff" and that's the keel."

All this can be traced to the influence of the U.S. army when it went into Franca Faldini's native Rome. She learned a lot of U.S. slang. Later she went to a school of English, with the result that she also speaks the polished variety.

Polished Tongue

It was sufficiently polished, in fact, to win her a job as interpreter when Gregory Ratoff brought an American cast to Italy in 1946 to make "Black Magic." Ratoff gave her a minor part in the picture.

She studied to be a teacher, came to this country on a vacation this summer. Her path led to Hollywood for a visit with some of the folks she met on the Ratoff picture. She'd been in town a few days when a talented scout proposed a screen test.

Today's note on the old Hollywood comes via Sendai, Japan, near where the U.S. Army's 40th Division is training. Seems that in their spare time, the men go to the local movies.

Complained one soldier: "I stood in line for two hours and when I got inside what was playing? The Dead End Kids."

EVERYTHING STOPS

During the Azan, Mohammedan call to prayer, passers in the street must stand still, all work must cease and even the sick must sit up in bed.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Thursday, July 26

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Planetary outlook best during midday for the important matters. This does not preclude your moving forward during other periods of the day. Some hard earnest work will win.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—You keen ones, don't lay back on laurels or on others' kind words. Get into things quickly and profit. Aspects made to order for the active, for energy with a meaning, so why wait?

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Stars conjunctions suspicious for finances, conferences, bids for future orders, general activities, vacationing. Opportune for action toward future expansion. Romance, marriage sponsored.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Good time to take stock of tasks and resources (get after this early). Combine talents with enthusiasm and right determination —this results will ensue. Have confidence in you!

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Vibrations better than you at first will suppose, especially for domestic matters. Stimulating for immediate issues, home, civic, business affairs. Constructive measure gain support.

August 24 to September 22—(Virgo)—Slow in spots. Some things precarious to try. Use your senses, tactics. Mental and laborious work get more benefic aspects later. Note changes. Some recreation needed for better results.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Sort of day in which one can astutely mix business with social and sports affairs. Friendly period for well understood propositions. Romance, family, healthy fun rate high. Be happy.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Benefic aspects all day for you keen natives. Don't let little things spell an otherwise fine score. Accuracy will greatly speed achievement, be on the beam.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Some slightly unfriendly influences for investments, making deals involving long-term contracts. Take caution in any ventures where there might be large losses, setbacks.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Manage to get your work and other obligations tended to early. After that don't start to force things. Sane vigor and effort will help clear days' slate properly.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—Be emphasizing the essentials rightly in your work, following through to full finish, your day should bear sweet fruit. A major must is consistently with quality.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Watch for the unusual, the unexpected in early hours. Be considerate of your health. Don't worry about things or about personal feelings. Do your best with faith.

BUT BORN TODAY: You Leoites are born leaders; ready for anything that presents wide interests, action. You will take chances (do this more cautiously). And dont' spend earnings freely. Able executives, bankers, explorers, when rightly educated and truly know right from wrong. Seldom selfish with money—but likely so in matters of opinion. Avoid hurried decisions. Have fun, reasonably. Very congenial combination in Aquarius, Gemini, Sagittarius, Aries.

Birthdate: George Clinton, American lawyer and statesman.

Hit by Unusual Egg Scarcity Canada Now Big Importer

Ottawa, July 28 (CP)—Hit by an unusual egg scarcity, Canada, for the first time in her history, is importing thousands of cases of eggs from foreign countries.

More than 2,000,000 dozens have been shipped to this country from the United States and Holland during the last few months. More are expected.

"At no time have we ever witnessed a situation like this," an agriculture department official said today. "Usually Canada produces enough eggs to export. This year we're importing and we're taking all we can get."

Egg production in Canada is running at about 14,000 cases or about 2,520,000 dozens a week. Her normal needs run to about 20,000 cases or 3,700,000 dozens. The shortage, the official said, likely will continue until next October or November.

"By that time, Canada should be able to produce all the eggs to meet all of her needs—and even some left over for export. But I doubt very much whether we'll be doing any exporting. Canada likely will store all she doesn't use immediately."

The current egg scarcity developed out of the sudden drop in the export market more than a year ago, the official explained.

In foreign ports, Canada produced about 10 per cent more eggs than she could use. Most of the surplus was taken up by Britain.

In 1940 Britain announced that because of a dollar shortage, she would stop buying eggs from Canada. Canadian poultrymen were stunned.

Many began cutting flocks. Others left the business altogether. For a while the egg market sagged. The government was forced to move in with price supports.

The poultrymen's fears proved unwarranted and their flock-cutting proved too deep.

But by next fall, said the agriculture official flocks should be back to almost the 1940 level, producing all the eggs that Canadians can use.

PICTON

Policeman Poses as Farm Laborer, Uncovers Gaming-House Activities

Picton—Following a raid by the anti-gambling squad of the Ontario Provincial Police, from Toronto, a charge of keeping a common gaming house was laid here yesterday against Morley Raynor. The charge is expected to be heard in court here on August 1st. While in town the squad also seized a number of punch boards at three pool rooms and barber shops.

The raid on the Raynor premises climaxed a five-weeks stay in Picton of a member of the squad. Securing work on the farm of Mayor H. J. McFarland, he became a familiar figure around town. When the raid was made on the Raynor premises, this young man was among the men in the alleged gambling room, Raynor, it is alleged, was knocked down a short flight of stairs during the raid. Men in the room started to offer resistance as they believed the plain clothesmen to be hold-up men. All investigation and the raid were carried out from Toronto with great secrecy, and no one was more surprised than the Mayor when he found his farm helper was a policeman.

Flood Pours South To Mexican Gulf No Harm Expected

Cape Girardeau, Mo., July 28—(AP)—The devastating mid-western flood headed for the south today, but minus the punch that caused an estimated $1,000,000,000 damages in Kansas and Missouri.

Army engineers and weather bureau officials don't expect further damage as the Mississippi River flood crest heads for the Gulf of Mexico. High, strong levees keep the river in check the rest of the way.

The officials said it would take a double-barrelled blow from both the upper Mississippi and the Ohio rivers to bring trouble and the Ohio is below flood stage.

Many storekeepers continued to operate here, using pumps and sand bags to keep the water down. Clerks waded around to boats serving customers.

Total damage here was estimated at $1,000,000 much of it in wages lost by 1,500 factory workers when water surrounded their plants.

A stretch of Cape Girardeau two miles long and two blocks wide along the river front was covered by water. The river began rising 30 days ago and began causing damage about a week ago.

Across the river in McClure, Ill., area farmers used a huge pump to get rid of seepage water in a rich farm bottomland.

Upstream in Perry County, Missouri, and on the Illinois side near St. Louis army engineers still expressed concern for some levees despite a fall in the river level. Up to 30,000 acres of farm land would be affected by breaks in the water-soaked barriers.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Although Derek lacked a husband's prerogative of exploring a new frock, he was flatteringly attentive, in that he managed to sit next to her twice at the Red-Beauty bar, and said her new hairdo was enchanting.

In class, as he sifted literature, art and drama through a veil of generalities, to produce a flimsy powder make-up for the brain, Lucilla glances at Lucilla seated to her left apart. When he suggested that the ladies pin a poem above the kitchen sink, "and especially your minds while you're shelling peas or worrying what to feed your family for dinner," Lucilla interpreted his glance at her to mean, "As if you, with your goodness for T. S. Eliot, would have to bother with such nonsense."

Another time, he said, "If your husband reads mysteries and he also's a sports fan, he'll be intrigued to have you tell him at dinner that Sherlock Holmes was the one who introduced skiing into Switzerland."

She thought guiltily that the level of their dinner conversation at home would horrify Derek: Hoopy saying the strap of her skates was too tight; Arthur quoting the janitor's alibi about the garbage being piled out on the front sidewalk. Given the companionship of a man who would prefer a recording of "Finnegan's Wake" instead of hunting on the radio, or who would invite her to opening nights instead of sitting like a lump reading the newspaper... For lipstick and eyeshadow, such students as Derek regard in the six trial shades resembling a child's tin box of watercolor paints. As they wriggled their toushes into the gooey blobs their faces had the absorbed, dedicated look of scientists on the verge of cosmic discoveries. And Dottie decreed that Lucilla's best lipstick color was innocent Bliss. "Some with a very full upper lip, and no indentation whatever," and for eyeshadow, Hothouse Violet. The early applications of eyeshadow made Lucilla look as if she had a black eye, but she was soon able to achieve a delicately dissolute why-was-I-bruised expression.

Each eyelash had to have an individual coating of mascara. "And ladies, if your own eyelashes won't do," Miss Dottie told them, "you can now purchase at our cosmetic counter real live lashes—not false—I repeat, these are real lashes—and you glue them on one by one." The institution of this startled Lucilla. If Beautiful-You had established an eyelash bank, who contributed to it? Did condemned prisoners leave a will saying, "I hereby bequeath my eyelashes to benefit humanity"? Or did indigent colleges students allow their lashes to be yanked out and converted into cash? Either way, it was rather horrid.

Even without gluing on live lashes, the process of making up took about 40 minutes. As their instructor said, "If you do it well, your face will last all day." The truth was that the ingredients made so firm a mask it could even have lasted for months. At bedtime, Lucilla worked almost as hard to get it off as she had to put it on.

She was to meet Derek again for cocktails the following Monday. He had managed to muster the invitation at the Red-Beauty bar, while Paris was grumbling about that day's lunch treat, the Bulgies, a piece of watermelon the size of a finger, sprinkled with mineral oil and rolled in shredded beet-tops. "Go on, taste it," Paris had urged Lucilla generously. "It tastes like gasoline, only worse." In her other ear, Derek was murmuring, "Same time, same place?" Her nod was meant for Derek, but was taken by Paris as assent. Lucilla couldn't help shuddering, as Paris' fork was thrust at her, laden, but the thought of the date ahead stimulated her enough to swallow the ghastly stuff.

The Sunday before this second rendezvous, while Arthur and Hoopy went to the vet's to retrieve Sniffles, Lucilla tacked three white frills together, to make an Elizabethan ruff.

In the midst of this she heard Arthur and Hoopy return, and went out into the foyer to greet Sniffles. She bent down to pat him, and he drew back, growling. "Why, Sniffles!" she exclaimed. At the sound of the familiar voice, the mantel stared unbelievingly. "Sniffles, don't you know me?"

She was a little surprised—but also flattered—at Sniffles' tribute to the New You.

• • •

The early martyrs who merely crawled on their stomachs over broken glass, would have looked with genuine astonishment at Lucilla and her classmates in the final stages of evolution. One set of machines was the electric reducing kneaders known in Beautiful-You parlance as Bump-Wumps.

Under the direction of Miss Willit, the Bulgies embraced these machines for as long as an hour at a time, backing up to sit on the bumpy revolving apparatus. Miss Thumbold, having the firmest fatty tissue, was the No 1 victim of the Bump-Wumps.

When the resignation on her face had proceeded through the stages of exalted suffering to a more placid satisfaction against pain, Miss Willit would exhort her with cries of, "Just five more minutes on the upper thighs, Miss Thumbold. Remember, we must agitate the flesh!"

Mrs. Varney and Mrs. Cleery, whose flesh was more easily agitated, were so encouraged by the day-to-day shrinking that they would run to the torture rack as to a lover, and hug it till they were black and blue.

The machines, plugged in to wall sockets, made a loud, rackety noise in action; but so did Paris. She gave the opinion of the Bump-Wumps candidly, at the top of her lungs, interposing frequent and piteous yells of, "How much longer I gotta take it on the fanny?" Whenever she was quiet for several minutes, Miss Willit, with justifiable suspicion, would investigate, "Miss Green, you aren't even in contact!"

• • •

As soon as Lucilla, who had her own Hoopy's personal manipulation program in one corner of the room, was given an exercise jumping rope, Paris was irresistibly drawn. "Look, you're holding it too low down, and you gotta jump with both feet at once." She would grab the rope and demonstrate so hopefully that her topknot of curls leaped. "Didn't you ever skip rope as a kid?"

It turned out that everybody in the class but Lucilla had been an expert rope-jumper, although the others contented themselves with occasional kibitzing, whereas Paris had the tenacity of a trainer. "There, you didn't trip so bad that time, did you? Now swing it easier, and make like you your feet were tied together." Lucilla naturally resented the good advice, although after being fitting by it until she could jump in consecutive hops without tripping she always expected Paris to praise her.

In describing the Bump-Wump and rope-jumping sessions to Derek, the second time they met in the cocktail lounge, Lucilla managed to make herself appear as an amused bystander to the antics of Paris and her other classmates.

She described how Mrs. Colp had sought vicarious relief from constant hunger by cooking more and more elaborate meals for her husband: "First he blamed her for his indigestion and then he stayed out all night," she told Derek gaily. Taken in context with that dull pain in Mrs. Colp's veins, and the blue pajamas hanging in listless folds on the Bump-Wumped little body, it hadn't seemed funny at the time.

U.N., COMMUNISTS AGREE ON 5-POINT AGENDA

Resolute Action By U.N. In Korea Lauded by Truman

Believes Stand May Have Headed off Another War

Washington, July 26 (AP)—President Truman today expressed belief that the "resolute" United Nations' stand against aggression in Korea may have headed off a world war.

Declaring that the U.N., by its reaction to the communist attack on South Korea, "made clear that an aggressor will not be allowed to isolate and destroy its victims one by one," Truman added:

"There is much to indicate that the resolute resistance of U.N. troops has given pause to those aggressive forces which coldbloodedly brought tragedy to Korea."

Record of Solidarity

These views were contained in a letter the president submitted to Congress with a report on United States participation in the U.N. during 1950.

Truman referred to the report as "a record of decision and action, in a time of danger" and "for the most part a record of solidarity among U.N. members against aggression."

Declaring that "the aggressors and their supporters undoubtedly believed" the U.N. would not rally to the defence of South Korea, Truman said:

"It is probable that one of the purposes of the attack was to break down, at one blow, a failure—any possibility of effective U.N. action against aggression in the future," he added.

"The U.N. elected to act now rather than to drift passively once more down the fatal trail of failure to oppose aggression which leads finally to total war. Thousands of men have therefore sacrificed their lives in Korea to the end that millions may lose their lives in a world war."

No Material Interest

Noting that communist propaganda has sought to represent the United States' part in the Korean war as "imperialism," Truman said:

"Our action. . . was not dictated by any American material interest there. . . Our action in the police action was motivated by our deep conviction of the importance of preventing a breakdown of the international security system of the principles of the (UN) charter."

Covering U.N. developments up to Dec. 31, the report and the president's letter bore no reference to the current efforts to work out an armistice in Korea.

Truman's letter spoke to the fighting men of the U.S. and 15 other countries taking part in the Korea struggle.

Cloud Formations Mistaken For Flares From Plane

Prince Rupert, B.C., July 26 — (CP) — A pilot who made a two-hour search of mountainous terrain north of Prince Rupert Wednesday after flares were reported sighted returned with a theory that nature may have been playing tricks.

Observers said they saw 25 small, black balls rise over the mountains, 15 miles north of here, then break into what looked like smoke clouds.

But pilot Norman Jermyn of Queen Charlotte Air Lines, investigating the possibility of signals from survivors of a missing Queen Airlift DC-3, said the "flares" may have been nothing more than sudden cloud formations in turbulent atmosphere."

A Canadian Pacific Airlines plane with 38 aboard vanished Saturday on a flight from Vancouver to Anchorage, Alaska, first leg of its journey to Tokyo.

U.S. COMMITTEE VOTES AGAINST SEAWAY PROJECT

Long-Debated Proposal Receives Major Setback

Washington, July 26—(CP)—Legislation to authorize the St. Lawrence Seaway and Power Project was killed today by the House of Representatives Public Works Committee.

The action was taken by a 15-to-12 vote of the 27-member committee on a motion by representative Tom Pickett (Dem. Tex.) to table the bill.

Members of the committee said today's vote means the measure cannot again be brought before the committee unless two-thirds of th membership so votes or unless unanimous consent is obtained.

Today, for all practical purposes, the long-debated seaway proposal was buried by congress, another set-back for forces which have sought approval authorization for nearly 20 years.

First Defeated in 1934

The project authorization, in the form of a treaty, was first beaten in the senate in 1934. Again, in 1944, the projected legislation was attached to rivers and harbors bill in the form of a rider and lost, 56 to 25.

The next defeat came in February, 1950, when the senate, by a 57-to-30 vote, returned themeasure to its foreign relations' committee for further study.

Canada approved a measure authorizing participation in a Canada-U. S. Power and Waterway Project in 1941.

It has since said it will go ahead with the $800,000,000 border development itself if the United States fails to join in.

Today's defeat marked the first time the legislation had been voted down by a congressional committee.

Not Dismayed

Representative John Blatnik (Dem., Minn.), a leading supporter of the project, said he is not dismayed by today's action.

"This," he said, "is the first battle in the whole fight. I view it in a moral viewpoint."

Blatnik did not say what future plans supporters of the measure have.

During the committee hearings, Lawrence Burton, a lobbyist for the legislative body on a tour of the St. Lawrence basin, it heard testimony from witnesses favoring the development.

They also recommended top administrative leaders who contended it would provide a safe route to the sea of water-borne shipments of iron ore to American inland steel mills and would provide electricity for the Northeastern States.

Railways and private utilities have opposed the project.

Commenting on today's action, Dr. N. A. M. MacKenzie, vice-president of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Association, accused the railroad, coal and utility lobbies" of stalling the legislation carrots and political sticks."..

U.S. Diplomatic Officials Cautious In Views on Armistice Chances

Washington, July 26. (AP)—Military and diplomatic officials here consider that United Nations negotiators received everything they wanted in the first round of the Korean armistic talks without making any concessions on vital issues.

In fact it was the, communists who gave ground. They abandoned down twice from positions they had taken.

Yet despite these Initial successes, responsible officials here are only mildly optimistic about the chances that the negotiations will actually product an armistice. Many difficult problems remain to be solved in the round new started.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's announcement of the agreement on an agenda noted there are numerous basic points on which there is "presently wide divergence of views" between the reds and the U.N. command. That cautionary note has been fully endorsed here by officials.

Some authorities believe it may be months before the present talks negotiations are concluded, and think it may also be determined how high a price the reds are willing to pay in what Washington considers "real concessions" in order to end the fighting.

The two most serious problems foreseen here are those having to do with the mapping out of a buffer zone between the communist and U.N. armies, and with the arrangements for supervision, or enforcement, of an armistice once it is established.

Canadian Soldiers, Airmen May Go to Europe This Fall

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, July 26 — (CP) — Present indications are that Canadian soldiers and airmen will start to make their appearance in Western Europe's 500,000-man human wall against communism late this fall.

But Korea, the old nemesis, could change that picture.

The cabinet hasn't yet decided when the army's 6,500-man 27th Brigade will sail. A lot will have been in a rush to decide because of Korea. But a decision to send the brigade this fall or wait until the early spring will have to be made fairly soon.

If Korea's fighting flares up again, some men of the 27th may have to go there as reinforcements. They have been made aware of that fact, officials say.

Korea isn't bothering the R.C.A.F., though. It has announced that one jet fighter squadron, No. 410 at Montreal, will go to England this fall and, be followed by two others before next summer. In time they will move to Germany. By 1953 the wing will grow to an 11-squadron air division, from England, the three squadrons will be available for European defence.

No. 410's Sabre jets are going to be taken across the Atlantic by the R.C.N. aircraft carrier Magnificent.

The cabinet and the army and navy Eisenhower's Atlantic Pact headquarters near Paris all would like to have the 27th Brigade go to Germany this fall and it will go there if at all possible.

Reports from Europe are that the allied armies in Germany will be nearly 500,000 strong by the end of the year or 200,000 more than the Russians are believed to have in East zone of Germany.

The Canadian brigade would be a minor fraction of the total and Gen. Eisenhower has been pressing Ottawa to boost the size of Canada's formation.

From a strictly military standpoint, it has been argued that the European powers can field soldiers in Europe much more cheaply than Canada can and, therefore, Canada's greatest help can be in the arms field.

If the Russian menace continues as great and western armament as strong, it can probably be fairly accurately forecast, significantly, has called the brigade Canada's "initial contribution.

U.S. Move to Restrict Cheese Imports Worries Ottawa

Ottawa, July 26—(CP)—Officials of the trade department said today Canada is "concerned" about a Washington move to restrict imports or cheese and other dairy products into the United States.

Canada stands to lose a $1,000,000-a-year business in cheese alone if Congress approves a controversial bill sponsored by representative August H. Andresen (Rep. Minn.). It would ban all imports of dairy products, including cheese, until mid-1953, if their import would impair domestic production.

"We are watching the situation very closely," one trade official said today.

He added that Canadian proposed milk and fats and oils export to the U.S. also are involved, although the annual business is those is much smaller than in cheese, Canada ships about 2,225,000 pounds of cheese, mostly cheddar, to the U.S. annually.

A Washington dispatch last night said the Canadian and Australian ads have expressed their concern to Washington over the restrictive move.

Says U.S. Spurned Efforts to End Sales Criticism

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—O. E. Lennox, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, said yesterday that two attempts to clear up the causes of United States criticism of Ontario stock marketing procedures have been rebuffed by the American Securities Exchange Commission.

Addressing the Ontario Special Legislature Crime Committee, he said that on each occasion he had asked the S.E.C. to extend "short form of registration" privileges to Canada. Arrangements of these privileges would permit them to trade $300,000,000 annually on the United States with a minimum of formality.

In exchange he had offered to end all other forms of solicitation. But, he said, the answer was 'extradition'. And that is a federal matter."

The extradition he referred to the United States demand for authority to extradite Canadians who violated any state security law.

One difficulty recently overcome was the selling of shares in shallow prospects, like oil and oil wells, he told the committee. Companies concerned in these dealings sold their shares fast and left the public with a dead duck," he said. "We have attempted to meet the situation by allowing the brokers to release their shares only as they open new oil wells, with three shallow wells being required as the equivalent of one deep one.

5,000 RENTAL HOUSING UNITS FOR ONTARIO

Federal, Provincial Govt. Agreed on Plan

Ottawa, July 26. (CP)—Representatives of the Federal and Ontario government today reached agreement on plans for the construction of 5,000 rental housing units in Ontario.

"As far as we are concerned the agreements have been completed," said Ontario's Planning Minister William Griesinger. He made the statement in an interview as he left the office of Resources Minister Winters, administrator of Federal Housing legislation.

Mr. Griesinger said a start will be made on the houses as soon as possible. Details still have to be worked out with interested municipalities. Some 14 municipalities have expressed interest in the project.

Under the project, the federal government will pay 75 per cent of the cost and the province the remainder. Ownership of the investment through rents also will be on a 75-25 basis.

Economical Rents

Mr. Griesinger said the houses will be let at as "economical rents". The project will not include subsidized rentals.

Main purpose of the meeting was to discuss an agreement on the housing project. However, Mr. Griesinger said he had reiterated Ontario Government's view that the second mortgage be granted on housing loans until last February, should be revived.

The Ontario government believed such a move would do much to encourage building by private enterprise. Mr. Griesinger declined to interpret the views expressed by Mr. Winters on the matter at the closed meeting.

Mr. Winters said in an interview that he had told the Ontario representatives the federal government would not grant a second-mortgage provision if it believed that such a move would lead to the construction of more houses.

New Red Roundup Started in U.S.

Washington, July 26—(AP)—The justice department today launched a new roundup of secondary communist party leaders for questioning by authorities in New York City.

The government announced that 11 arrests have been made.

Director J. Edgar Hoover of the Federal Bureau of Investigation said those "arrested have been active in communist party work, chiefly in California."

The new move against party leaders followed the arrests of 17 eastern seaboard communists last month.

All of those taken are accused of conspiracy to teach and advocate the violent overthrow of the United States government.

Before Senate, Millionaire Red Refuses to Admit He Posted Bonds

Washington, July 26—(AP)—Frederick Vanderbilt Field, millionaire "angel" of left-wing causes, refused, today to tell a senate committee whether he posted bonds for communist leaders.

Field was brought before the senators from New York where he is serving a 90-day jail term for contempt of court. That sentence was given him for refusing to tell a federal judge who contributed to bail bonds for 12 Communist party leaders.

The fund totaled $80,000 bond for four communists who skipped after losing an appeal to the Supreme Court from convictions with seven others of plotting to teach the overthrow of the government of violence.

The senate internal security committee is seeking to determine whether there have been subversive influences on American far eastern policy.

Agreement First Step in Efforts To Get Armistice

Two Clauses May Cause Protracted Discussions

U.N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 26 — (AP) — Allied and communist delegates agreed today on the exact limits of Korean armistice negotiations.

United Nations spokesmen said negotiators approved a five-point program and immediately disposed of the first item. A communist spokesman heralded this as a "progressive move toward an armistice."

But U.N. announcement cautioned: (1) delegates are far apart on the remaining four points; (2) nobody knows how long it will take for them to agree, and (3) shooting will continue until an armistice is signed.

Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway's headquarters said negotiators agreed on a five-point agenda (list of subjects to be debated.) It includes:

1. Adoption of the agenda.

2. Establishing a buffer zone between opposing armies.

3. Definite arrangements to end the shooting and supervise the truce.

4. Arrangements for exchanging prisoners of war.

5. "Recommendations to the governments or the countries concerned on both sides" (This presumably is a recommendation for subsequent discussion of withdrawing foreign troops from Korea.)

Negotiators agreed on the agenda in their shortest session, lasting only 58 minutes.

"Preliminary discussions began immediately after the agreement on the agenda," Ridgway's headquarters announced.

Meet Again Friday

The 11th session is scheduled for 10 a.m. tomorrow (8 p.m. EDT Thursday).

The announcement emphasized that agreement on the agenda "is merely the initial step for the final goal of a military armistice in Korea," Against cease-fire."

The second and third points agreed on the agenda offered the biggest hurdles.

The first point, adoption of the agenda, is a routine matter similar to approval of minutes of a previous session.

Setting a buffer zone raises the question of whether it is to be along the present battle lines in North Korea, as the U. N. wishes, or along the 38th parallel as the reds want.

The third point is the most complex.

Officially point 3 was listed as: "Concrete arrangements for the realization of cease-fire and armistice in Korea, including the composition, authority and functioning of a supervising organization for carrying out the terms of a cease-fire and armistice."

"An Absolute Must"

The United Nations wants adequate supervision and actual inspection by some international commission on each side of the cease-fire zone.

Allied spokesmen have identified this as an absolute must to guarantee against possible preparations for a surprise attack or a build-up for new advantages if subsequent truce negotiations breakdown.

The allies have indicated they want both air and ground supervision. Communists have always objected to any type of ground supervision, and in Korea there have always been cries, often for-man basis. The reds have intimated they think all prisoners of war should be sent home.

The U. N. has about 163,000 prisoners compared to about 104,000 allied prisoners held by the reds.

Communist Proposal

The fifth point presumable is the communist-suggested answer to the big stumbling block in the first 10 cease-fire sessions.

That was the red demand that armistice include withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korea.

The U. N. insistd this was a political question that could be taken up only 31 a bigger time after an armistice was actually in effect.

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, chief red delegate, presumably presented the communist answer-day, And it was accepted by the allies today.

"It is much too early," Ridgway's headquarters said, "to predict either the success or the rate of progress to be obtained."

Ten meetings have been held lasting 58 hours. Some 10 sessions they agreed on an agenda.

Four Shoot Doe Out of Season, Will Face Charges

Four hunters who shot a doe recently in the Maynooth area were apprehended by conservation officers and will appear before a magistrate in the near future.

The doe, according to the officers, was suckling one or two fawns at the time it was shot.

Illegal deer-hunting is on the increase, it is stated, most of it being done at night with hunters using jacklights.

Conservation officers, however, are taking a dim view of these activities and poachers, if caught, can expect little leniency.

Ontario to Urge Immediate Start Seaway Project

Toronto, July 26 — (CP) — Premier Frost said today that the Ontario government will urge Ottawa to make an immediate start on the development of the St. Lawrence seaway and power development as a purely Canadian project.

"Now that our good friends to the south in their wisdom have decided that they do not want to come in with us, we ask them now that they have made their decision, to please get out of the way' and let us get on with the job," said the premier, commenting on the action of the Washington congressional committee in rejecting the joint development plan.

"In this day the development of the seaway is essential to the development of Canada and its people," the premier said. "In Ontario the needs of the province are essential to the development of the province.

"In view of the U.S. decision, we are prepared to go ahead alone," said the premier. "We are a great country with great resources and can do the job . . ."

Tension Mounts Over Kashmir

New Delhi, India, July 26— (AP)—Mounting tension between India and Pakistan over control of Kashmir was emphasized by headlines in the New Delhi English-language press today.

"War talk" also continued general among Indian officials, all of whom insisted India is not prepared to attack anybody, but is preparing itself for defense against Pakistan.

The Pakistan government sent a protest to India yesterday, charging that inflammatory articles in the Indian press and speeches by officials had caused 330,000 Moslems to flee India for Pakistan.

The story of the protest was one of six on the situation carried on page one of The Hindustan Times. This newspaper is generally close to Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's government.

"Wild Talk"

The lead headline in the paper said "Pakistan press goes into hysterics—wild talk of holy war and conquest of India."

Other stories told of India coal shipments to Pakistan, the visits of Burma's foreign minister to discuss Indian-Pakistan relations and the arrest of four "foreign spies."

Despite the bitterness between the neighboring governments and people, United Nations mediator Frank Graham was reported to have hopes of breaking the deadlock.

Graham is here for a week's conference with Indian officials following visits to Kashmir and Pakistan.

Red Danger 'No Less Real' Acheson Says

Washington, July 26 — (AP) — State Secretary Dean Acheson said today that regardless of the course of the Korean armistice negotiations, the danger from communist aggression is "no less real than it was a month ago."

"There may be a period of comparative quiet if there is an armistice in Korea," he told senators. "If so, we must not let ourselves be pulled off balance by a shift in tactics.

"If the talks should collapse, we should be ready for a major communist assault on the United Nations forces. The enemy has been building up his forces throughout this period."

Acheson urged approval of the administration's $8,500,000,000 foreign aid program by the Senate foreign relations committee. He termed the proposal "an essential and vital part of our country's defence and foreign policies."

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict Of Negligence

Marmora (Special) — Negligence, both on the part of the driver of the death vehicle, and on the part of the man who was killed, was found Wednesday by a coroner's jury at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of John McCracken of Marmora.

The jury found that McCracken came to his death as the result of multiple injuries received when struck by a half-ton truck driven by Carl Simpson of Marmora. The accident occurred inside the village on No. 7 highway shortly before midnight July 19th.

As a rider to their verdict the jury found that Mr. McCracken was negligent in that he had been walking near the centre of the road, and also that the driver was negligent in driving a truck not mechanically perfect as to brakes and tires.

The inquest was held in the Marmora council chambers before Coroner Dr. S. R. Beatty with Assistant Crown Attorney Gordon S. Robertson, conducting the inquiry. The jury was composed of Floyd R. Loveless, foreman, A. M. Jones, Major Percy Gray, William Shannon and Basil McTaggart.

Witnesses called included Dr. H. Lee Patterson; James B. Driscoll, former O.P.P. photographer; Provincial Constable Gerald and Tom Lemmins and Cpl. Jack Haich; James Gorrie who identified the deceased; Richard Cole, John Oscar Cole and Frank Nihill, the last three of whom were passengers in the Simpson truck.

Dr. E. R. Parkin of Marmora said he had been called to the scene of the accident. He said death was due to multiple injuries and shock.

Constable Lummins said Simpson, driver of the truck, had been drinking but was not drunk enough to be charged with drunken driving.

PEACE PROSPECTS ARE FAR FROM DISCOURAGING

The prospects for peace in Korea, from a United Nations standpoint, are far from discouraging at the present moment. So much has the situation changed since the meetings at talks began, that there is now a definite note of optimism coming from news sources close to both sides negotiating the truce in Kaesong. When the armistice talks were first proposed by the communists, the United Nations was deliberately put at a disadvantage by the reds. For one thing, the site and circumstances of the talks made the peace moves look as if the United Nations were coming to the communists, since Kaesong was in redheld territory.

Much of that was eliminated by the declaration which made Kaesong a neutral area, and which made the soldier guards of the reds almost unimportant to the talks. Immediately after the communists recognized and adhered to the U.N. demand that Kaesong be made a neutral point, the free forces pushed their advantage and told the reds that the inclusion of the subject of foreign troop withdrawals from Korea in the agenda would not be tolerated, since it had no direct bearing on the armistice.

Earlier, the talks had bogged down when the communists refused to allow United Nations press representatives in the area of the talks. When General C. Turner Joy, chief of the United Nations delegation, said that such conditions would not be tolerated, the reds went into a deep thinking session, and finally accepted the demand. This set, coupled with the demand regarding foreign troops, indicated the United Nations take the initiative for the first time since the cease-fire was initially proposed.

After all the stalling, the talks resumed, and the latest information from Kaesong is that the communists are going to agree to the foreign troops issue need not be dealt with at the present time.

It is apparent that the communists have had enough of the bloody fighting, and although they do not wish to appear eager, they are ready to grant certain concessions, in order that the talks may go on. If the foreign troops are not discussed, it is felt that the talks will now hinge on at least two other serious issues. One is the line of demarcation which must be selected by the armies of the two belligerents, and the other is the question of regular inspections to be sure that the truce is not broken, once it is arranged.

Those two problems are liable to provide the negotiators and the world with many hours of hard work yet. It is more likely now, however, that the talks, from a United Nations standpoint, will continue in better style. We have gained certain psychological advantages which may pay off in concrete peace gains.

THE SPEED TRAP

During seven weeks of June and July of this year, a speed trap in a village northwest of Toronto clocked 941 motorists exceeding a 30-mile limit. On one Sunday, 129 summonses had been issued to speeders, most of whom were averaging 45 miles per hour in the zone. Some of them were travelling 75 and 80 miles per hour.

There is no doubt that the speeders should be stopped. But even that does not excuse the presence of a speed trap set up by police in small communities. Traps have become, in recent years, a mere convenience for smaller communities. When the village purse is approaching the lean stage, the trap is set. In other words, the procedure is purely a legal extortion of those travellers unfortunate enough to pass through the community. If this were not so, the reasonable procedure for the community to follow would be to post warning notices that a speed trap was being operated, and that fast driving at any time was dangerous. If the true purpose was to slow down motorists and cut down on traffic accidents, the signs would do the job with efficiency.

We make no excuse for speeders on busy Ontario highways. There are far too many traffic accidents, injuries and deaths on the roads, with the present speed limits, to condone the relaxation of any laws. Every summer weekend is blackened by the accident toll, and Ontario, almost without exception, heads the Canadian parade by provinces. Canadian Press surveys show week after week that this province has the blackest record.

For that reason, it is apparent that no relaxation of speed laws should be considered. But that reason does not justify the existence of speed traps on the highway. Belleville citizens found themselves in the midst of one some few months ago, when sporting events in Kingston attracted them east by the score. Halfway along the route, in a small town, they were clocked, and the summonses flew thick and fast for a few days. The town undoubtedly profited its fine fashion from the speed trap.

In short, few traps are set to catch unwary automobile drivers. They are set for monetary gain, with little thought of contributing to the safety of those driving on the roads. Any community that sees fit to gain revenue in such fashion might be well advised to hush it up. It is nothing to be boasting about.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

One of the boys home wounded from Korea told me a story that has a lot of meat in it for those who go to war, as well as for those who stay home in danger of what is called civil defence.

"I was behind some rocks," he said, "when the Chinese started mass attack, and shelling. The minute the shooting ceased, I decided to find a better hole, and ran like a deer to another pile of rocks about three hundred yards away. I got there just in time to see a mortar shell they dropped on the new location. They could not possibly have seen me, as they were shooting over a hill."

The moral is to stand still, unless you know you personally are the target. Away back in first First World War, which is a lot closer to the Boer War than it is to us today, our regimental sergeant-major, by the name of Jordan, was the most outstanding soldier I ever knew. One day after Passchendaele, he and I were all St. Jean Dump, making a study of the materials our unit required for that night's working party, when a German long range naval gun began shelling the dump. As the first shell crashed and howled —those naval shells sounded first and then screech—I started to run. Jordan stood fast, erect as ever.

"Let's take cover," I shouted.

"Where?" countered Jordan.

"That old cellar," I indicated a deep hole at the far end of the dump.

"We might merely run into the next one," said Jordan, resuming his list-making.

The shells stretched by, as the Germans re-loaded and resumed their Long Tom, ten miles away.

Then it came: fair into the cellar in the rubble heap. Jordan did not even smile at me, and I was his superior officer. But it was the perfect illustration of a principle to bear in mind when shooting or bombing starts: you are as likely to be hit wherever you go as where you are.

FOUND SHOT TO DEATH

Minden, Ont., July 26. (CP)—Glenn Dart, 21, director of the Haliburton Recreation centre, was found shot to death Wednesday in the basement of his home here. A .22-calibre rifle was lying beside him.

Neighbors said Dart appeared to be depressed recently. He spent some time in hospital last winter after he was injured in a hockey game.

Minden is 40 miles north of Lindsay.

Vancouver Men Seek To Fulfill Ship's Destiny

Vancouver, (CP)—Part of a legend left here for Mexican waters last week when the fishing trawler Lady Royal, owned and manned by two Vancouverites, sailed off southern tuna grounds.

The owners, Jack Noble and his wife, are the only Canadians making the long trip this year to Isla Madres and Amecoca Islands in the Albacore runs off San Pedro.

And, in a strange roundabout way, their voyage fulfills prophecy made by a fabulous character who called himself Brother Twelve.

In Victoria's Dominion Express office in 1901, Edward Arthur Wilson was a pale, ascetic-looking clerk. Only his dark, burning eyes hinted at his strange destiny.

Shade Name

Born in India and reputed to have princely blood in his veins, Wilson shed his commonplace name and emerged as Ameel de Valdez, claiming he had surrendered an island near Nanaimo, B.C., where he established his cult, the Great White Brotherhood.

His fervent mysticism took him to Genoa, Italy, where he studied oriental magic with the "Eleven Masters of Wisdom", and graduated as Brother Twelve.

In England later, his hypnotic eyes induced a wealthy woman to give him a 60-foot Fleetham trawler, the Lady Royal.

Lonely Voyage

Then, with only a map, a compass, and the stars, the mystic began the fascinating eyes and digger beard sailed the Lady Royal singlehanded across the Atlantic, through the Panama Canal, up the Pacific Coast and home to his island.

Three years later, 800 persons all over North America were sending money to the Chela of the Great White Circle at the house of mystery on Amiel Island.

Amounts ranged up to $1,000 a week, provincial police reported later. All in all, he took half a million dollars from his followers by no other magic than his silken tongue.

Converts—Including two women with millions, an officer of the United States Secret Police, a lawyer, a chemical engineer, and Roger Pallier, "the fighting king of Florida", flocked to the island. By 1936, Brother Twelve had had slipped to using a whip on his followers and they finally sought police intervention.

Police arrived too late. The madman and his "secretary", a Madame Cox, escaped to sea on a powerful, sea-going tug called the Kheunaten, after an Egyptian god.

Brother Twelve—Edward Arthur Wilson—was never seen here again.

Parting Prophesy

Just before he fled to sea, the madman dynamited and sunk the Lady Royal and in a kind of weird premonition of his future, however sailed the Lady Royal again would find Spanish gold.

His successor-mariners tried unsuccessfully to restore the hulk. Treasure seekers ripped away cabin bunks, dredged along her keel, vainly seeking a fortune in coin reported hidden on one of the fanatic's ships.

Fisherman Noble finally bought and rebuilt her. Then, on June 1st last week, rigged for tuna, the fabled ship began a far more prosaic than her old one.

Still, if all goes well, she'll return with 25 or 30 tons of fish in her hold, and the fish is worth $300 a ton.

And then there'll be gold in her hold at last, just as Brother Twelve predicted on the night he vanished, 30 years ago.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

EYE DIARY

I have known many persons so all seeing and so lively in their talk that their eyes actually made a diary of the things seen. In other words, the minds's eye did the writing though it was written upon the walls of memory.

Everyone sees the same things in a different manner. No two of us catch the same inspiration or indeed see the same object people do though passing with them at the same time. In like manner, two writers would give a different description or see in a different light. But writers' eye is most alert is forever making notes for its memory diary.

We all remember things we saw in our youth but which we made no written note of, yet that eye of ours wrote it down on our memory took care of the rest. How very wonderful! The late Robert (Bob) Service was a diary keeper. You could almost wake him up from a nap and he would give a description of what had just passed him. Once in Hawaii he was doing just this, but caught a casual remark which aroused his curiosity, and he wrote a piece about a tourist being carried away during one of the Hawaiian volcanic eruptions that was a classic.

We would retain more than we do if we acquired the habit of reviewing at the end of each day all that happened during the day, discarding for memory all but that which might be helpful. Then, too, how many of these eye writings have been retained and later given a significant place in conversation, writing or among friends in good life.

Everything we see is written down in our mind somewhere, but only the most impressive is given space on a prominent mind classification. The artist is a trained eye diarist. He makes no boast of being a diarist, but he does seek to interpret the scene that he portrays and to exhibit its soul. So do the literary diarists of the eye. You could almost wake him up from a nap and he would give a description of what had just passed him. Indict Crimesters For Senate Contempt

New York, July 26—(AP) Frank Costello, named by the Senate Crime Investigating Committee as the top man in the United States underworld was indicted by a federal grand jury for contempt of the Senate.

Another one Adonis (Joseph Doto) and confessed bookmaker Anthony Carfano was indicted on the same charge.

The indictments stemmed from their refusal to answer questions at the widely-publicized crime committee hearings in New York last March.

Costello was indicted on nine counts, Adonis on 16, and Erickson on 74. The maximum penalty for each count is a year in prison and a $1,000 fine.

STASIS AND GALLSTONES

Physicians generally consider infection, stasis and a diet including too much cholesterol, the chief cause of gallstones.

As there is nothing you can do about infection except leave it to the judgment of your doctor I will say no more about it here.

July 19 I gave my opinion of the cholesterol theory. Briefly I take no stock in it.

Many yeags of study, eighteen years of practice and twenty-odd years of cogitation on and off the bowling green have led to this conviction: I believe stasis is the chief cause for the formation of gallstones.

Stasis means standing still, a stoppage or slowing of the normal flow or movement of the blood or the bile or the food residues in the digestive tract. Torpid, lazy, stagnant and sluggish are other words for it.

Let no fathead infer that an occasional, frequent or regular daily dose of physic whether "liver pills", "kidney" pills, herbs or whatnot, will either prevent formation of gallstones or cause them to dissolve or remove them through the natural channels. Such a procedure may only relieves stasis.

Neither a dose of oil of any kind, whether it is a laxitive or not dissolve gallstones or facilitate their passage through the natural channels. There is no possible way for oil to get into the gall bladder or bile ducts from the stomach or intestine. This is true despite the fact that you, whether he or she has gallstones or gall bladder trouble or not, will probably notice soapy bumps of various sizes and, if he is very gullible, readily believe that these lumps of soap formed in the bowel from the action of alkaline secretions (like lye) and oil, are gallstones.

There are just two ways to prevent or remedy biliary stasis, that is, get the bile to flow the bile through gall-bladder and bile ducts and evacuation of bile in the gall-bladder longer than the normal time. First, natural massage of liver and gall-bladder, doing regular exercise—general exercise such as walking at least three miles daily, or special exercise such as six calisthenic movements described and illustrated in The 7 Keys to Vitality for the booklet send 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope.

Natural massage is the effect of pressure of the diaphragm on liver, gall-bladder and bile system with each inflation of the belly in the belly breathing exercise, which is also described in the Vitality booklet.

If you are at all curious about this you are the seven keys to vitality—all described in some detail in the booklet:

1. Save your teeth.
2. Temperance.
3. Deep breathing.
4. Nudity—or as nearly as you can achieve it.
5. A suitable daily ration of iodine.
6. Sufficient daily exercise.
7. Rejuvenation diet and vitamin and mineral supplementation of your ordinary refined diet.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

A Sensible Reducing Regimen

In a little less than a year I have reduced weight measurements: my waist, hip measurement five inches, thanks to the fine advice in your booklet. My weight is now 'a' may be 'of interest to other women that my weight has decreased only about seven or ten pounds. But who cares what the scales say, if the boys all whistle. (Mrs. A. B.)

Answer—You have the right idea. Health, not weight, is the trouble. Fat takes up more room but weighs less than muscle. Your 25c and stamped self-addressed envelope for booklet Rules For Reducing And Reducing Diets makes, don't expect to sit on your—spare time and be reduced by magic or medicine, ask the trick massage, $3.50 sweat baths or freak diets. If the fat gets in the way and her trouble is almost-hopeless, fathead.

Not The Perspiration of Thy Face

You seem to consider "perspiration" a sinning affectation. It is a very much used distributive. You use many words of similar kind. "Sweat" is a good English but so is perspiration." (M. L. K.)

Answer—You will not find perspiration in the Bible, nor in literature worth quoting. Winston Churchill didn't say "blood, perspiration and tears." People who use the word "perspiration" betray they mean sweat is usually unmincing or affected.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

TRYING TO BLESS A GROUCH

Many or life's troubles are real, dreadfully real. But it is also true that many of them, and probably an increasing number each year, are due to circumstances around about us but to great conflicting motives and passions within our own hearts.

We hate others not because they do anything to incur our animosity, but because there is something in the nature of these people which riles us immeasurably; or because they make us feel inferior; or because they arouse envy, jealousy or because their phlegmatic natures are a drag to our more animated dispositions; or because their up-and-coming ways exhaust those of us who like to move through life slowly. We get at last that we just cannot endure their presence. The result is that we avoid them, or if we see their presence makes us gnash our teeth and keep a resolute hold on which desire to meet our foe.

Snap out of it, if this is your failing. What's the big idea? Do you think the world was made just for you? Are heaven and earth to bow down to the way you feel? When you get that attitude, the world will prest to your door with gentle words of welcome, but nobody has any time to console a person who is always miserable because he lacks self-control, and whose perverted disposition can twist a grouch into a crusade.

Newest Soviet Propaganda Drive Headed by Master of Cynicism

New York, (AP)—The Kremlin chose one of its most skillful propagandists to launch its newest propaganda drive, an effort to convince the rest that the Soviet Union wants peace and that capitalism and communism can be bedfellows.

The western foreign offices were quick to stamp the drive as a phoney peace offensive. By choosing the brilliant historian, Eugene Tarle, to spearhead it, the Politburo slapped a big, red "danger" label on its sugar-coated weapon.

The latest peace offensive manoeuvre unfolded with Moscow publication of "News", a magazine in the English language, announcing itself to be devoted to the cause of friendship between the Soviet peoples and those of Britain and the United States.

One of those apparently-friendly articles was reprinted in the Soviet government newspaper Izvestia.

The article appeared in "News" a week ago under Tarle's name. Deplored the "highly-strained relations which have arisen between the two great Anglo-Saxon powers and the Soviet Union."

An Expert

Tarle is an expert at this sort of thing. He belongs to that school of the Soviet intelligentsia whose stock in trade is complete cynicism.

Tarle occupies the chair of history in the Soviet Academy of Sciences and is one of the top men in the Leningrad State University.

His writings often have been looked upon as forerunners of shifts in Soviet policy, and he often has devoted himself to attempts to split the alliance between the United States and Britain.

In April, 1947, before the birth of the Marshall Plan, Tarle played on frayed British nerves by insisting that President Truman's program in Greece and Turkey was really aimed against Britain, to end her influence in the Middle East and seize her oil.

At about the same time Tarle was accusing the United States of preparing for a new war.

The printing of Tarle's article in Izvestia may be calculated to soothe the Russian people—to whom the mere mention of war, after what they have been through, is a dreadful thing.

At the same time, the Tarle article in Russian becomes a counter - propaganda barrage against the American government's recent expression of friendship for the Russian people.

WEDDINGS

SIMPSON—LEHTO

On Saturday, July 21st., at 4 p.m., the rectory of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, was the setting for the marriage of Hilda Margaret Lehto, Belleville, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Lehto, of Edmonton, Alberta, to Allan Douglas Simpson, of Belleville, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simpson, Bridgeburg, and Montreal, Que. The Very Reverend L. B. Gervin officiated before a background of gladioli and sweetpeas.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was charming in her ankle-length gown of chantilly lace, featuring a molded bodice, wide, long sheath-like sleeves, and bouffant skirt. Her fingertip veil was held by a halo of flowers and she carried a shower bouquet of white carnations and pink roses with ivy streamers.

Miss Elsie Lehto, of Edmonton, Alberta, attended the bride, gowned in blue nylon net, with headdress of blue daisies and white lily-of-the-valley and carrying a nosegay of summer flowers.

Mr. Charles Nicholls, of Belleville, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were Mr. Harry Lehto and Mr. Ernest Lehto.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. F. Nicholls, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing a beige flowered silk gown with white accessories. She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore blue and white silk with white accessories.

For motoring to New York State and points east, the bride chose a light beige suit of gabardine with straw-colored accessories. Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs. Simpson will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Edmonton and Montreal.

Rubber-Stamp Styles Despised By Designer

New York, July 26. (CP)—For those who aspire to the better-dressed classification, designer Anthony Blotta gives this tip: "Get that assembly line out of your system."

Mr. Blotta contends that modern mass-production methods and art-in-industry streamlining have blunted the average woman's urge to be herself.

"She has not yet accepted rubber-stamp fashion, but she does not demand the variety she once did."

The woman who, in choosing her clothes, thinks only of what "they" are wearing is on the wrong track—she will be lost in the crowd, says Mr. Blotta.

On the other hand, the one who studies the work of fine designers until she finds the one who best engages her own feeling about line, color and taste has found the guide to distinction.

Furthermore, says this designer, it's just as easy to be different as it is to look like the man on next door—and at no greater cost.

Many Gifts Honor Bride, Bridegroom

On Friday evening many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Neal met in Springbrook Hall in honor of the newlyweds. Rev. H. Beare was chairman for the program. Two vocal solos were given by little Geraldine McField; humorous reading by Mrs. George Williams and several selections on harmonica, guitar and piano music by Bob Cosby.

Address Read

The address was read by W. J. Barlow and the bride and bridegroom were presented with a handsome lazy-boy chair and stool and tri-light floor lamp.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal graciously replied and thanked their friends for the presents and all were invited to visit them at their home in Belleville.

They were also given a rousing charivari at the close of the evening.

Says Glamor Appeal Won't Fool Matrons

London, July 26. (CP)—Mrs. Doreen Hall, glamorous grandmother from Montreal, told delegates at an advertising conference here it's about time advertisers started aiming their sales appeal at women of 50.

"Advertisers never mention them," she said. "I'm getting a bit worried about it."

In a smart green hat topped by two red cherries, Mrs. Hall told Day said it was all right for the 30-year-olds to be told that a perfume would give them the allure they had at 20. They would not, however, be sold by advertisements plugging a certain face cream which would give a face lift that would take years off their age.

"The woman of 50," said Mrs. Day, "is not going to be led up the garden path. She knows darned well that her face is right down where it should be when she's 50."

Mrs. Day, advertising executive for a well-known department store chain (T. Eaton Co. Ltd.), warned advertisers to take account of the "sane" things by which women live and of the type of women who buy them. Forget those "cardboard Morons" that no man would dream of marrying anyway, she counselled.

"Don't overstate the case," said Lady Tweedsmuir, wife of the son of a former governor-general of Canada. Women of middle age want to be told that certain goods will make them a "glorious 50," not an adolescent 20.

ON GOOD BEHAVIOR

Ottawa, July 26 — (CP) — Defence headquarters is making efforts to see that Canadian soldiers behave as properly as possible when they go to Europe. In addition to lectures on communism and the United Nations, members of the 27th Brigade are expected to get talks and instructions on the importance of good behavior.

BEAUTY

Perfume will dramatize you

Your nose is the deciding factor.

The enjoyment of perfume is in the wearing of it. Fleeting odors are a luxury, of course, but think what they do for you. They give you an uplift, make you feel rich and beautiful and chic. To gain the full value of them, use enough to be surrounded by fragrance. Too many times a woman will bring home a precious vial and will feel that she must conserve it. She uses a few drops now and then, and suddenly finds that the precious fluid has practically evaporated. It doesn't make sense.

Do you know that the chemistry of a person's skin may slightly change the character of a perfume? So it won't do to be a copycat, to purchase the scent used by your best friend—the one that makes you take a deep breath when you are near her. It may not be the happy choice for you. When deciding what to buy at the perfume counter, test some on the back of your hand. Wait a moment until the alcoholic content has evaporated, then take a long sniff. If it gives you pleasure, it is for you. Your nose is the deciding factor.

If you are going out on a big date and your ringlets are slightly wilted, moisten them with toilet water instead of water. They will dry in double-quick time, and their subtle fragrance will form a halo for you.

One of the most interesting developments along the beauty line during the last two decades has been the tremendous increase in the use of perfumes. Formerly women had read so much, and had heard so much, about the vulgarity of strong scents, that they felt they were not qualified to make a selection, and women were the husbands who declared they didn't like to have the Little Woman walk in an aura of perfume. Well, a lot of water has run under the beauty bridge and over the pulchritude dam since those days. Now a woman feels justified in robbing the household budget so she can have a bottle of crystal bottle on her dressing table.

The use of a fragrant liquid, suggesting old-fashioned gardens, is one way for a woman to express herself, just as she expresses herself in the manner in which she arranges her hair and in the style of clothes she wears. It is a powerful aid in creating personality.

It really isn't necessary to spend money lavishly. Even the delightful toilet waters that are inexpensive and can be used freely. A fricative after the bath will not only make you feel cleaner, but it will tone the skin, and you will carry the enchanting aroma all day long. Sachets are wonderful buys. Place them on dress hangers. In no time at all your entire wardrobe will smell sweet.

GOOD MANNERS

"What a charming voice she has!"

"She has a lovely voice. . . . It's a joy to hear her speak." . . .

At first thing I noticed about her lovely, soft voice. . . . I don't know. I'd like to know that? I hope, I hope, I hope, that such an enthusiastic and admiring comment is made about your voice by your co-vocationists. For a soft, appealing voice . . . "music to the heart" . . . is not only a precious possession to you, but a joyful and refreshing experience to wherever you meet.

True it is that vocation-relaxation has a way of revealing itself in our voices. . . for better or for worse. "For better" when into the vocation-picture come comforting people who naturally have a pleasing voice, or who wisely have made it their pleasant business to acquire a pleasing voice.

But, alas "for worse" when we have to listen to the uncontrolled voices of those who consider that they cannot, simply cannot, have a good time unless they shout. While ordinarily these people might speak in as least a fairly modulated voice, in vacation-time, relaxed-time, they are too apt to shout, to scream. When ordinarily they would laugh, in vacation-time, relaxed-time, they are too apt to shout, to scream. When ordinarily they would laugh, in vacation-time, relaxed-time, they guffaw.

And true it is too that the people who feel that they must scream and guffaw in order to have a good time . . . particularly on a beach . . . are generally the ones who have the dull habit of constantly repeating four or five (or, perhaps even worse, only one or two) of the current, or worn-out slang words or phrases. Apparently they feel that these words and phrases, if repeated enough, form a devastatingly witty background of conversation. This is really no way to make a good impression.

Please take along with you on your vacation a pleasant voice, a pleasing voice, a voice that joyously reveals charming things about you!

Minister of bride's church is one who courteously is asked to "give the bride away"

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When my father gives me in marriage, does he wait until a certain point in the ceremony, or does he take his seat right away?

2. I am having a clergyman from a large city nearby perform the marriage ceremony. Would it be proper for me to have the pastor of the church here (who is a friend of my family) have some part in the ceremony? J. H.

1. At the point in the ceremony when the clergyman asks "Who giveth this woman to be married to this man?" your father steps forward to say "I do," and to follow the procedure directed by the clergyman, (usually) he takes his daughter's right hand and gives it into the clergyman's hand). After he has given you in marriage, he turns and goes back to the first pew on the left of the aisle, where he stands beside your mother during the rest of the ceremony.

2. Yes, it is proper to have the clergyman of the church in which the ceremony is being performed (and very particularly when he is a friend of the bride's family) have some part in the ceremony . . . not only is this proper, but it is the natural and fitting way of showing courtesy to this clergyman. You, or you and your mother should go to see the minister of your church and (a) not only ask his permission to have the other clergyman assist in the ceremony, but (b) also courteously ask him, if he gives his permission, to invite the other clergyman. When there are two clergymen, one performs the first part of the ceremony, often called the "bethrothal service", and the other one performs the last part, the marriage ceremony. (You must decide which is to perform which part.)

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This is too big a problem for a teen-ager

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My problem is parents and boys.

My parents drink quite a bit, and when they do, they just don't seem normal at all. They get into arguments and the arguments sometimes get serious. When boys come to see me, I'm so ashamed of my parents because their language is terrible when they drink. When they don't drink, they are very nice. I have tried everything I can think of to get them to stop, but it hasn't done any good. If a boy comes to see me, his first visit is always the last, and I know that the boys talk among themselves about my parents whenever my name is mentioned.—B.B.

Dear B.B.:

This is a dreadful problem for a teen-age girl, and I think you should go to some older person you know and trust and ask for help in solving it. It is nothing that you can do anything about by yourself, and it should not be allowed to ruin your friendships and your happiness.

Does your friend who has a mother you feel you could talk with? If not, how about the minister of your church, or some teacher you knew and liked in school, who might still be around this summer? If there is a YWCA in your town, I know you would find someone there who would be understanding and try to help you.

I wish you would think over all these possibilities. . . Pick out the one you think would work out best and go to see which ever person you choose. I repeat, the problem is too difficult for you to handle alone, and the sooner you take it to some sympathetic older person, the better.

Her boy friend thinks she's selfish?—Is he right?

Dear Miss Fairfax:

What would you do if the fellow you just broke off with wrote a letter to your mother, and told her that you were selfish and self-centred? . . .

I never thought of myself as selfish, and never did anything to hurt anyone. This boy's reason for calling me selfish might be that after going steady with him for ten months I gave him back his ring. You see, I was going out on dates with other fellows, and I felt guilty about it, so I felt it only fair to tell him.

If I really am what he says, then I would like to change, as I don't like self-centred people, and don't wish to be one myself. I would appreciate it very much if you could give me a few hints on how to change—B.N.

Dear B.N.:

I certainly can't see that your being honest with this boy is any indication that you are selfish. On the contrary, it seems to me that you did just the right thing to be perfectly frank about going out with other boys. If you were doing this at the same time that you were letting him think he was the only one you went out with, he would have had something to complain about, but I can't see that he has now.

Since the boy has written to your mother, why don't you ask her what she thinks about the whole thing? There may, of course be other reasons why this boy thinks you are a selfish person, and if you are, your mother would certainly be the one who would know it. On the basis of what you tell me alone, however, all I can think is that he was angry because you didn't want to go steady with him any more, and is trying to get your mother on his side in the hope that she might persuade you to go back with him. You'll get along much better, though, if you stick to province for an intensive training school, who might still re around what you really want to do.

C.N.R. Employees Study Hard On 681 Rules in New Book

Montreal, July 26 — (CP) — Going to school these summer days are 28,000 Canadian National Railways employees.

And they had better know the answers when it comes to what may be regarded as writing 28,-000 individual books.

The reason for this mass examination — writing is the issuance of a new book of standard rules. The rules will come into effect Aug. 26.

Right now the Canadian National people who have to do with train operation, as headquarters-in stations, dispatchers' offices, out on the tracks and bridges — in the signal department and engine cabs, freight cabooses and passenger trains — are studying the new rule book.

There are competent instructors. Classes are held at various points across the system and an instruction car is touring the lines.

After all this study and instruction each employee will be given a book — an A, B, C or D book, depending upon his employment.

681 New Rules

Then he will write the answers to a long list of questions bearing on the 681 rules in the proper manual.

He can crib a little from the back of his memory fails, but after the written test comes a still more examination. How he answers these questions will depend his future as a railroader.

No individual can be expected to recite word for word the 681 rules, many of them with sub-sections and illustrative diagrams.

But by the time the instructors through with the examination he will know whether his "equity" understands the import of the rules and is qualified to fill a position of responsibility.

Brand New Manual

The present rule book for the operating man has been in service since 1929 on the Canadian National. Since then new rules or alterations have been issued periodically, because of changing conditions. All changes now are included in the new book.

A number of lines deals with centralized traffic control. This comparatively new and somewhat amazing device provides for the operation of trains from a central control point. It is all switches and signals can be operated over long stretches of line from one cases exceeding 100 miles.

Another section of the new book deals with "uniform code of operating rules."

All Roads Affected

Beginning Aug. 26 the rules will be uniform not only on all the Canadian National system is concerned but will apply wherever a train is all enforced in Canada. They all had a part making the new book.

The importance of this is emphasized when it is realized that nearly all Canadian lines, and United States lines running into Canada, use each other's tracks to some extent.

In the past the "owning" company's rules have governed operations of trains with "running rights" over the owning company's lines. Now the rules will be the same for all, with lessening of complications.

There is one subject on which the new rules are special and emphatic. Under the heading "General Notice," appear these words:

"Safety is of the first importance in the discharge of duty."

Picture Disgusts Korean Newsman

Kaesong, Korea, July 26 (AP) —A young north Korean correspondent today tore up and threw on the ground a picture showing a United Nations navy photographer handing candy to a little Korean girl and her mother in Kaesong.

The act broke up an amiable hour-long pow-wow between U.N. and communist correspondents near the Kaesong cease-fire house.

The picture was handed to the Korean after the reds had expressed disgust at the American practice of handing candy to Korean children.

As the U.N. advance party entered Kaesong today, they drove past groups of smiling, waving children who remembered the candy given them last week.

Harriman Hopes 'Friendly' Talks Solve Problem

Tehran, Iran, July 26—(Reuters)—Averell Harriman, President Truman's envoy, said today he hopes new Iranian proposals will form the basis for reopening talks with Britain "in a friendly atmosphere."

Iranian sources expect London to reply within the next 48 hours to the still-secret offer.

Ali Shayegan, member of the Iranian Oil Commission, said today the suggestions were in general terms and were "a statement of the principles on which we stand."

Nothing concrete had been proposed, he said. It was merely a general offer to reopen discussion with a delegation from the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

Sir Francis Shepherd, British Ambassador, is trying to get clarification of certain points on the plan to be put before the cabinet by tonight.

Clings to Rock Woman Rescued In Niagara River

Niagara Falls, Ont., July 26 — (CP) — A Buffalo woman, identified as Miss Marie Murphy, 33, clung for nearly two minutes by the side of a rock in the swirling water 50 feet above the Horseshoe Falls in the upper Niagara River Wednesday night before two unidentified men waded into the stream to bring her to safety.

She told police she had become fascinated by the water and waded out into the river 200 feet above the cataracts. The swift current caught her and carried her to the rock. She said she had come to Niagara Falls on a sightseeing tour.

With Miners, Minutes Make The Difference

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 26 (CP)—It's the first two minutes after the alarm clock goes off that makes all the difference to a miner, says a man who knows them well.

Arthur Lewis Horner, genial general secretary of The National Union of Mine Workers, told a conference of miners that the problem of getting miners out of the pits is closely tied up with that awful moment when the clock signals the start of a new day.

"At five o'clock in the morning" said Horner, "a man's got to make a hard decision and he has only a couple of minutes to do it.

"Whether he stays in bed or goes out into the bleak world of the pit often depends on a sharp nudge from the missus."

Griffiths Agrees

Horner has been No. 1 man in British biggest miners' union since 1946. He is a communist, but seldom uses the familiar vocabulary of communism. His reference to the problem of absenteeism came at a conference in Blackpool, Lancashire.

His comments drew a reminiscent nod from James Griffiths, now Colonial Secretary and former leader of the miners in South Wales. Griffiths, one of 10 children of a village blacksmith, worked underground a long time.

After the conference, Horner elaborated his remarks for the benefit of British reporters.

"The minute the big alarm clock goes off are decisive," he told Harold Hutchinson of the Daily Mirror. "If the missus wants to buy something, she gives him a kick to get him out to earn his pay.

"But if she doesn't, she feels pity for the poor devil, put a protective arm round him and lets him go to sleep at two minutes past five."

Bonus Shift

Delegates to the miner's conference were discussing the five-day week agreement. Under it, a man working five shifts a week gets paid for six. Five days of this "bonus" shift. But if he misses one day, except through sickness or injury, he is paid for only four days. Thus, in practice, one day's work lost may mean two day's pay deducted.

As a result the miners suggest that a man who loses a day through illness in the family or to attend the funeral of a relative, should lose only a part of the bonus shift instead of all of it.

The National Coal Board, which runs the nationalized industry, is expected to be sympathetic. Absenteeism is one of its greatest problems. There is a slow drift from the mines, only partly offset by the recent decision to recruit Italian workers, and government officials expect a hint of a possible coal crisis next winter. One possibility is that some miners' lodges may resume voluntary Saturday morning shifts before autumn.

BIT OF ENGLAND

Berlin — (CP) — Garden is to be planted here with trees and flowers brought from Britain. The garden will be for the use of the German community in West Berlin and Commandatura Reuter has welcomed the gift as "a living memorial to Anglo - German friendship."

Beset by National, World Troubles, Attlee Enters Seventh Year as P.M.

London, July 26 — (AP)—Clement R. Attlee today entered his seventh year as Britain's prime minister — the longest one - man run in that office in the last four decades.

The political fortunes of the mild-mannered, 68-year-old Labor party leader could well make the seventh year his last. World and domestic issues certainly make it appear it will be the hottest.

Iran and Egypt are giving Britain a bad time. The national economy is feeling the pinch of big-scale rearmament. Aneurin Bevan, the silver-tongued idol of Wales, is challenging Attlee's leadership of the party. Britain's international rests gap is widening.

This is vastly different from the optimistic days of 1945, when Attlee first swept into power.

Germany was quickly beaten then, Japan was collapsing and world peace was in sight after six dark years.

Crushing Majority

Labor took over the government with a crushing majority of 193 in the House of Commons. Attlee and his followers set to work confidently on their plan for making Britain the socialist welfare state it has since become.

Now, the effective majority in Commons is down to five. Tempers are rising. The people are grumbling at the prospect of still more taken in roomers, small hotels are jammed, and visitors have overflowed into cabins along the river. Festival of Quebec's rooming houses and hotels, 25 miles away.

Traffic moving to the shrine became so heavy yesterday that Quebec provincial traffic police had to direct it by radio. An estimated 50,000 people are here for the feast.

Traditional celebrations of the feast — a holy day of obligation for the Province of Quebec — began yesterday with the chanted vespers of Saint Ann conducted by Archbishop Maurice Roy of Quebec.

Today, the highlight was an outdoor procession of the host in a jewel-studded gold monstrance through the square in front of the shrine. There the sick waited and prayed.

Bees Help to Raise Yield of Legumes

Guelph, July 26 — (CP) — Specialists in entymology, agriculture and soil chemistry have finally tagged the bee as the solution to a problem that has vexed Ontario farmers since the middle 1930s.

After 2½ years of research the specialists have found why three legumes — alfalfa, alsike and red clover — have failed to produce sufficient quantities of seed.

The three legumes are excellent fodders and green manures. Farmers in Peel county got as much as $200 an acre for alfalfa seed during the late 1920s but seed production dropped 75 per cent a few years later.

The experts claim greater amounts of seed can be obtained if bees are placed in fields sown with the legumes, to ensure better pollination.

Thousands Pay Honor to St. Anne, Pomp, Splendor Mark Celebration

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ste. Anne De Beaupre, Que., July 26 — (CP)—Pilgrims—rich and poor, walking and scuffling to wheel chairs—crowded this St. Lawrence River hillside village today to pray to "La Bonne Sainte Anne."

They have come from near and far for the feast of the mother of the Blessed Virgin. Quebec's greatest event after John the Baptist.

Tradition holds that America's oldest shrine here was built years ago when Breton sailors, saved from shipwreck, built a chapel in honor of Saint Ann.

Their log chapel has given way to a sumptuous temple where hundreds of crutches, limb supports and canes have been left by ailing and crippled pilgrims, mute testimony of the faith of thousands.

Pomp and Splendor

Sixty-five years ago, Pope Leo XIII proclaimed Saint Ann "Queen of Quebec," and now celebration of the feast is surrounded with more splendor and pomp than before.

Pontifical high masses — infrequent events in most northern Catholic churches — have been a daily occurrence for the last nine days in the white stone basilica built with donations from Canadian and United States visitors.

Each day of the novena — nine days of prayer — ceremonies have been conducted in French and there have been evening torchlight processions on the mountainside overlooking the mile-wide St. Lawrence.

Ste. Anne de Beaupre is a village of about 2,000 persons built around a dozen imposing religious buildings.

Financial Fruits Of Illicit Romance Await Daughter

New York, July 26—(AP)—The financial fruits of an illicit romance are awaited in the daughter of a wayward mother.

The money, $2,000, is in the hands of Leon Shanks, 55, of St. Louis, Mo., he brought it to New York with this story:

Fifteen years ago he befriended a couple posing as man and wife in St. Louis. They later told him they were not married but had deserted their families in Brooklyn and were living together.

The woman gave Shanks $50 one day, told him she and her lover had quarrelled and asked him to hold the money against the day "when I leave him."

Later, she added to this initial cache until Shanks was holding $2,000. Eventually the woman disappeared.

Shanks said he considered it a "debt of honor" to get the money to the woman's daughter.

He came to New York and inserted a newspaper ad outlining certain facts about the mother-daughter relationship.

He's hoping the daughter—now about 40 years old—will claim her strange legacy.

Cannot Tolerate Disobedience Of Orders in Bulgaria--Reds

Vienna, July 26—(AP) — The Cominform Journal admits that some communist leaders in Bulgaria have refused to obey orders and says that "such things cannot be tolerated."

The editorial in the official organ of the Moscow-led Cominform bolstered reports reaching here that Bulgaria's communist party is widely split and that the peasants in that Russian satellite are in almost open rebellion.

Western reports say the crisis in Bulgaria resulted from too rapid collectivization of farms. These reports claim many local communists sided with the dispossessed farmers and failed to carry out the party's program.

The editorial in the latest issue of the journal to reach Vienna quotes Bulgarian Premier Vulko Chervenkov as saying "there are still quite a few party leaders who are reluctant" to carry out orders.

It added that "such things cannot be tolerated. Isolation of some leaders from the broad party masses and their attempts to take the part of lagging commands and ignoring criticism and self-criticism must be resolutely condemned."

Reports here say that some dispossessed peasants have hidden out in the mountains and formed groups of armed raiders. Others are reported to have fled to Yugoslavia, but many more have been imprisoned.

Some reports say Premier Chervenkov himself has fallen from power and been replaced by Georgi Chankov, deputy chairman of the council of ministers.

Sammy Hates Ocean Waves

Folkestone, England, July 26 (AP)—Like it or not, an ocean wave is not for Sammy the seal.

Sammy is a baby seal who wandered away from his mother and turned up on the beach at Warren Mundy, barking plaintively.

A policeman turned him over to an S.P.C.A. agent, who put him in a boat and dumped him out in the channel.

Back swam Sammy — this time in Seaborough, 20 miles down the Kent coast from Walmer. Another copper hauled him to the police station. The next day a fishing boat dropped him off again mid-way between England and France.

Yesterday Sammy turned up at Hythe, still trying to make a permanent landing.

The Folkestone S.P.C.A. sighed and decided to rear Sammy with a baby bottle until he got old enough to learn his proper element.

CANNON RETURNED

Quebec, July 26 — (CP) — The small cannon, captured by the British at Bunker Hill in 1775 and taken to Ottawa by RCAF officers last week as a joke, was returned to the Royal 22nd Regiment Wednesday. The museum piece, relic of the American War of Independence, was returned by officers of the Quebec garrison who arrived for regular parachuting exercises with the Royal 22nd's First Battalion.

New Currency Given Trial By Airlines

Montreal, July 26. (CP)— Western world currencies—such as the generally-accepted dollar or pound—may be supplanted by a new, over-all currency known as a kilometer when it comes to settling accounts between Trans-Atlantic airlines, the International Air Transport Association announced today.

The idea was first given a work-out, in an effort to overcome delays in settling accounts in these days of a general dollar shortage, during the first five months of this year when intra-European flights tried the scheme. Its success caused I.A.T.A. to approve a "trial run" of the system on the North Atlantic as well.

Arthur J. Quin-Harkin, manager of the I.A.T.A. clearing house which is conducting the experiment, said that Air France, British Overseas Airways Corporation and Pan American Airways are expected to try the new system.

New Cortisone Supply Comes on Market

New York, July 25 (AP)—A new relief for the shortage of cortisone, the wonder hormone, was announced today by the Schering Corporation, drug manufacturers.

Starting today, it is putting the drug on the market, under the trade name "Cortogen. It is the same cortisone as made by Merck and Company, the pioneers of this hormone, and it is made by a similar process from ox bile.

This puts three large drug manufacturers in the cortisone business. Recently Syrtex, Incorporated, of Mexico City, announced a new method of making the hormone from a Mexican yam. And said that within a year they would be able to double the current world production.

Kesselring Shoots Under-Par 69 To Pace Amateurs

London, Ont., July 26 (CP)—Gerry Kesselring, 22-year-old golfer from Kitchener Westmount Club, shot a one-under-par 69 to lead the field in the opening round of the Ontario amateur golf championship at London Hunt Club yesterday.

Thirty-two Ontario amateurs qualified for the championship flight which tees off at 9:30 a.m. today. First twosome in the elimination series which will cut the field to two golfers by Saturday is made up of Kesselring and Frank Phillips of Sarnia who shot a 73 yesterday.

Kesselring was the only contestant to break par in the qualifying round. He went out in par. On the back nine he shot four birdies and was over par on three holes. He was one over after the 16th but sank long over on the last two holes for birdies which dropped him one under.

Six Tied For Second

Tied for second spot were six golfers with 74s. They were Bruce Castator, Toronto Islington; Emerson Creed, London Hunt; Doug McKellar, Toronto Scarboro; Keith Kirkpatrick, London Highland; Ernie Bentley, Toronto Weston, and Phil Farley, Toronto Scarboro.

Mickie Weslock of Windsor Essex, last year's champion, shot a wobbly 76, sufficient to qualify and also assure him of a place on the Ontario Willingdon Cup team.

Others certain of a place on the four-man team are Kesselring, and Farley. Don Varcy of Brantford who carded a 75 is next in line for a berth providing the current championship is won by either himself or Farley. Kesselring or Weslock. The champion automatically qualifies for the team which will carry Ontario colors in the annual Canadian amateur golf championships.

It took a 75 or better to qualify for the championship flight in yesterday's round.

Ernie Nerlich of Toronto Thornhill and Bud Smith of Guelph shot 72s. Eight other golfers carded 73s, nine had 74 and five came in with 75.

Ontario Golf Honors Sandy Somerville

London, July 26—(CP)—Canada's greatest golfer of the last 30 years, C. (Sandy) Somerville was honored here yesterday when the Ontario Golf Association recognized officially his many years on the golf links. Winner of six Canadian amateur titles and the American open crown, Somerville was presented with a silver coffee pot, suitably engraved.

Dick Young, president of the O.G.A., made the presentation.

Sport in Brief

(By The Canadian Press)

International Canoe Federation rules for the Helsinki Olympic games next July have been amended following a Canadian Canoe Association protest.

The amendment calls for standardization of equipment for the Olympics, eliminating canoe rudders that, C.C.A. officials claimed, helped Europeans with the 1948 events.

Following the Olympics in England, Montreal's Edgar Gilbert, C.C.A. secretary-treasurer and team manager, protested the use of "twisted keels and rudders" by some Europeans.

He claimed that Doug Bennett of nearby St. Lambert, Que., lost the 1,000-metre single blade event to Czechoslovakia's J. Holeck by 11 seconds because Holeck's craft was rudder-equipped.

Bennett was Canada's highest point-getter.

The 1953 Canadian Swimming and Diving Championships will be held at Toronto, the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association announced Wednesday night. They will be held in conjunction with the Olympic trials, probably in the latter part of June.

Cuba's four-man Davis cup team was due to arrive at Montreal Wednesday night from New York by air. The Cubans meet Canada's team in a second round tie, August 3-5.

Canada's squad of Montreal's Henri Rochon and Brendan Macken and Lorne Main of Vancouver are currently playing at Southampton, N.Y., in the Meadow Club's invitation tournament. They are expected to return to Montreal Friday to resume training for the matches.

W. J. (Bill) Harwood of Toronto Wednesday was elected president of the Canadian Amateur Swimming Association, succeeding Ben McNamee of Vancouver.

Mrs. E. North of Toronto is the new honorary secretary-treasurer. All other officers remain unchanged.

At Southampton, N.Y., Tony Trabert, 20-year-old University of Cincinnati student, Wednesday moved into the quarter-final round of the 61st Southampton invitation tennis tournament with a 6-3, 6-2 victory over Lorne Main of Vancouver.

Main, young Canadian Davis Cupper, was the last survivor of three Canadians in the tournament. Henri Rochon and Brendan Macken of Montreal were eliminated Tuesday in the second round.

Macken and Main teamed in the first round of the doubles to defeat Edward Fehlemann and J. Gilbert Hall of New York, 6-1, 6-0.

Rochon paired with W. N. Tully, of New York, to eliminate Tom Clyde and Roger Tuckerman, Southampton, 6-0, 6-1.

Minus their convalescing mentor, Turk Broda, the National Hockey League All-Stars dropped a 4-2 exhibition baseball game to Lindsay Merchants before 1,000 fans Wednesday night at Lindsay. Merchants lead the Lakeshore Intermediate League. Broda is resting up after a gallstone operation.

It was only the second baseball game for the All-Stars who have been spending most of the summer in softball exhibitions.

Seven Finals To be Raced At Henley Today

By CECIL SMITH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Port Dalhousie, Ont., July 26—(CP)—Seven final races will be run off today at the second day of the four-day 69th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta on the old Welland Canal. In addition, 12 heats are on the day's card.

Because of the record number of entries, starting time has been set ahead one hour to 4 p.m. EDT

Hamilton Leanders yesterday grabbed top honors in the final of the 145 pound quarter-mile dash to take the lead in the point total of the annual classic. The race was the only one of the 14 first day races counting towards the point-total.

The winner of the point total receives the Maple Leaf Shield donated by Governor-General Alexander in 1949. St. Catharines are the defending champions, having won on both occasions that the shield was up for competition.

Tom Smith, wife the powerhouse for the Leanders, stroking his shell across the finish line in 1.22.6 to best the efforts of Ken Blue of Detroit Boating Club who was a half-length behind. Fred Tucker of Brockville, Ont., was third, six feet behind Blue.

All three qualified for the final race in heats run off earlier in the day.

Cuba vs Canada In Second Round Davis Cup Series

By VIC MORRIS, JR.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, July 26—(CP)—Non-playing Captain Derek Williams of the Cuban Davis Cup team says that Jose Aguero or Jaz. Weiss will "likely" be his singles players against Canada in the second round tie here Aug. 3-5.

The four-man tennis squad arrived here last night by air from New York and is to start practice at the Mount Royal Lawn Courts today. The team includes the singles players and the youthful brother combination of Reynolds and Orlando Garrido.

Aguero, called "Pepe" by his teammates, is the daddy of the team at 30. He has played on nine Davis Cup teams and has held the Cuban tennis championship eight times.

Weiss, a dentist, is 26 and is ranked as his country's top court performer. The two brothers are students.

Brothers Play

Reynolds is 17 and Orlando 19. Williams said in an interview that the two brothers were "brought along as health insurance," in the event that either Aguero or Weiss suffered injuries in the week-long practice before the match, one of the Garrido would take over a singles spot.

The captain declined to comment on his team's chances, remarking that he thought his boys should "make a good show of it."

Non - playing Captain Gordie MacNeil of the Canadian squad said he will not name his singles players until "shortly before the matches start Aug. 3. But it will likely be the same as last year."

Lorne Main of Vancouver and Brendan Macken of Montreal opposed the Australian squad in the matches here last year. They were beaten by Ken McGregor and Frank Sedgman.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

A GOOD SHOW!

The Central Ontario Baseball League need not bow its head in shame to anybody, after the first East-West All-Star game last night. It was a good brand of the pastime and the individual who emerged bearing the scars of battle was the score-keeper. Our Mr. Maurice Reid has been seeing spots, players, umpires, and base hags in front of his eyes in a dizzy parade since the game was played not to mention a slight touch or mental illness and a decided slowing up of his writing hand.

* * *

Thirty-eight players saw action in this, the original all-star classic of the loop. Nine flingers were used, some good, others not so good. But master-minds Pat Wilson of the West and Joe Herschock of the East believed in variety and in giving as many "stars" as possible the opportunity to show their wares.

* * *

Herschock fashioned a three-platoon system. He toned in as many Smiths Falls lads as he could muster to tee off the game and then switched to Kingston and Brockville. At one time he had the entire Memoes infield, with the exception of one player, on active duty.

* * *

Pat Wilson juggled his troops to good effect and had the baseball gods, especially the Olympus who is the patron saint of batting been in a amiable mood and smiled on the hickory of Herbie Hayes in the ninth, the result might have been different. The West had the bags cluttered with runners, but sixteen-year-old Billy Finnarin, Brockville's boy wonder (according to Herschock) stifled the Gibbardville catcher's bludgeon and he whiffed with a breeze that rocked the dugouts.

* * *

At that the Western shillalaghs out-battered the clubs of the effete Easterners. But they were not pay-dirt blows in the main, and after all, it's runs that win any ball game. The East boasts plenty of potent hitting power in Levandoski, Kapeschuk, Fortin and Steimach and these bludgeoneers blasted the ball when the clouds were money bells.

* * *

There was nothing wrong with the fielding. Although not the errorless variety, both teams, playing with unaccustomed mates came up with a fine brand of defensive baseball, especially the infield. Kapeschuk robbed Ken Watson of a certain triple when he raced to the left field fence and pulled down a towering smash in spite of the protective cordon of bee-stued mosquitoes.

The umpiring left much, if not all, to be desired. Not so much in dollars and cents but if Tuesday's initial game in what is said will be an annual all-star series is a criterion, then the fans can look forward to a yearly treat that should be one of the outstanding baseball attractions of the season.

* * *

There were opening ceremonies, too. President Bob Nesbitt of the OBHL, Kingston, the secretarial man Friday, self-admitted athlete of the year when the Kaiser declared open season on the world, one Harry "Yip" Radley, and Vice President Jack Devine took part. The trio lugged a collective 540 pounds to the infield. The ground sobbed; the "Yip" closed both eyes and prayed the ball would hit the glove, and Devine strained several muscles when he swung like a beer-sign and ticked the pill for a blooper.

* * *

SHARPE IS KEEN!

Michael Sharpe uncoiled his six-feet six of golden - brown physique, let his rippling muscles settle down, stifled a polite yawn and admitted at the crew, hooded Hoidsten of the wrestling fraternity, was a tough but not unbeatable alumnus of the College of Applied Pachyderm. "He dock," admitted the Golden Boy from the Ambitious City, "use tactics at times that are not laid down in the recognized textbooks. In fact he has invented a few of his own, that if used properly could do no end of damage".

"But" went on the amiable Michael, "a fellow meets this type in the course of a few years of wrestling. I have. And if my proposed plan of action succeeds, there will be a public unveiling of the alleged "Hooded Horror" come Friday evening.

* * *

Brother Ben, another handsome member of the Sharpe family will be seen in action Friday night against Tommy O'Toole, said to be a "real-live" article if they ever was", Tommy's Irish blood heats rapidly and he's quicker than a banshee out for a night's fun on the peat-bogs o' Cork. The appetizer should sharpen the hunger of the pitchfut. It brings together Pat Flanagan and popular Lou Sjoberg, the handsome Swede in what should be a flurry of wrestling lightning.

A SAFE TRACK!

Spectator immunity from accident and driver-protection through the proper facilities were the prime essentials when Dick Burrowes, boss of the Speedway Parkland race track, built the oval with racing car and stock car competitions in mind.

The fact there has been no accidents incurring injury at Speedway Parkland is a complimentary reflection on Burrowes' plans for protection to both the public and drivers. True, one or two cars have overturned during heats, but no injury was sustained by the drivers or spectators. This is due to the fact that Burrowes has built the track so that in the event of a car going out of control and crashing it cannot harm spectators. A 600-foot ramp with a protecting barrier of drums ensures that. Out-of-control cars have wide areas at both ends of the track in which to stop without coming in contact with any obstacle, or spectator.

Some serious accidents have occurred in stock car racing but these have happened on tracks with rail fencing. A short time ago a driver was decapitated when a "two-by-four" crashed through his windshield. Another missed death when he ducked in time to see a similar piece of wood pierce his windshield and pass directly over his head. Both accidents occurred on fair-ground tracks where light fencing bordered the raceway.

Well, well, the Redmen found their batting eyes in Batawa last night and came through with a sparkling 11-3 victory over the Shoemen. Willie Fordham was in rare form, the big lefthander hitting the Batawa bludgeons down with six hits while his mates were playing near-flawless ball afield. The win strengthens the Redmen's hold on the third place position and since the Brockville win over Kingston last night kept the Limestone lads in the clean-up slot.

Red Bats, Fordham's Six-Hitter Topple Batawa Shoemen 11-3, Strengthen Hold on 3rd Slot

By MAURICE REID

Willie Fordham went the distance last night giving up six hits as the Belleville Redmen outplayed and outscored the Batawa Shoemen on their own diamond by a score of 11-3.

The victory strengthened their hold on third place in the league standing behind Brockville and Smiths Falls. In losing, the shoemen remained in the fifth position behind the Kingston Diesey Leafs. The Redmen have two opportunities to improve their cause before the end of the week as they are host to Napanee on Friday night and travel to the limestone city for a game with the Diesey on Saturday.

Shoemen Errors Costly

Batawa was very generous to the visitors in the opening inning, kicking in a pair of boots to give the Redmen the initial lead without benefits of a hit. Reeves walked and went all the way to third as Vern Goyer followed Sam Mulholland's ground ball to go through him into the outfield. Johnny Dean followed with a ground ball to Willie Rankin who fired the ball home to home plate with Reeves scoring. Mulholland came on in an infield out before the homsters had retired the side.

The Shoemen got this back in the bottom of the fourth after two men were retired on "Mouse" Rauh's double and Arsenio Cosgrove and Rankin. Muffitt ended the rally by grounding out to short.

Neither team scored again until the fifth when Reeves' double and a single by Mulholland gave the visitors a lead which they never relinquished.

Muffitt To Showers

The Redmen drove starter Johnny Muffitt from the mound in the sixth on a trio of seventh with a four-hit attack. These, combined with two more Batawa errors, put the game on ice for Belleville. Fordham opened with a bunt between Muffitt and Rankin which he beat out for a hit. Reeves got a free ticket to first on the night with Fordham stopping at second. Mulholland forced Willie and third and Johnny Dean filed high to left for the second out.

Then the fun began. Goyer grounded to Rankin who apparently over-anxious on the play and the ball got away from him to load the sacks. Tom Buchanan drove a hard smash directly at short and Mulholland, running from second to third, hesitated directly in front of the shortstop until the ball practically hit him and then streaked for third. The fielder's view had been blocked just long enough for him to lose the flight of the ball and it went on into centre for a base knock, with all three runners crossing the plate. Buchanan reached second on the throw to the plate and came in on Gilmour's hit to right field. Here Don Mahoney replaced Muffitt on the slab and retired the next batter on a fly ball.

Maloney, a left-hander, had trouble with his control in the eighth as he hit Willie Fordham with a pitched ball and walked three more batters to force another run across the plate.

Three more runs in the ninth concluded the scoring for the Redmen as singles by Fitzpatrick, Gilmour and Mulholland along with an error, stolen base and passed ball turned the trick.

Johnny Aquino hit a triple to centre to open the homsters ninth and scored on Mac Watson's fly to left. Fordham struck the next two batters and that was all.

Defensively, the Shoemen had a bad time afield coming up with no less than six errors while the Redmen's only error was a boot by "Paddy" Gilmour on a ground single in his field. Dick Fitzpatrick showed why he was picked on the Redmen's team coming up with five putouts and six assists at second base, some of which were on difficult plays.

Gil and Mac Get Three

Gilmour and Mulholland led the hitters with three base knocks each, the latter hitting a double along with "Mouse" Reeves who had a single as well. Rauh and Cosgrove garnered four of the hits in a losing cause. Both of Rauh's blows were ringing doubles to right field. Rankin and Aquino procured the others.

Willie Fordham on the mound for the Redmen had the game well in hand in all innings except the second. He struck out one and did not issue any bases on balls. Muffitt chucked nice ball until the seventh when his team fell apart and he pulled himself for Maloney who finished. Both Muffitt and Maloney struck out three and walked an equal number.

13-Year-Old Girl Wins Junior Swim Event

Vancouver, July 26 (CP) — A 13-year-old Montreal girl, a small pulp and paper town and the McNamee family of Vancouver tell most of the story of yesterday's start in the three-day Canadian swimming championships here.

Gladys Priestley had spectators seeing Olympic writing on the wall as she drove from third on the final lap to win the junior women's 300-yard freestyle event.

Her time—two minutes, 36.9 seconds—was 1.3 seconds off the Canadian record held by Irene Barr of Hamilton. She zoomed from way back on her unnoticed outside lane to defeat the defending champion, Doreen Stewart of Fergus, Ont., by two feet.

Ocean Falls, B.C., a city pulp and paper town upcoast from Vancouver which has given Canada a fistful of swimming champions, showed that it hasn't stopped producing them.

Wilbur Campbell, a chunk of red-haired dynamite, wore down the opposition slowly and methodically to win the exhausting junior men's 400-yard freestyle.

His opposition came from teammates Jim Bain, who placed second, and Ron Gilchrist, third. Gilchrist is the younger brother of Allan, who holds a dozen Canadian records and who will compete today in senior events.

Brother-Sister Act

Gerry McNamee, just turned 17, won the men's 100-yard freestyle after a heart-pounding battle with Lorne Hingley of Montreal and George Stulac of Toronto.

His sister, Kay, won the women's 200-yard free-style so easily she might just as well have been running on top of the water. She was a half-length ahead of Beryl Lewis of Toronto at the finish and didn't look even winded.

Lenora Fisher gave Ocean Falls another victory when she won the junior women's 100-yard backstroke in one minute, 16.1 seconds, seven off the record time.

Pool records were broken yesterday.

Nine more events will be held today with heats in three of them during the day.

Charge Players In College Betting Scandal

New York, July 25—(AP)—Three players from the University of Toledo's crack basketball team today were charged with rigging the points in a game with Niagara University in Toledo Dec. 14, 1950.

District Attorney Frank D. Hogan charged the three—William Walker of Toledo, Robert McDonald of New York and Carlo Mast of Akron—kept the winning margin to only three points, 73-70. Toledo, unbeaten at the time, won its seventh straight by beating Niagara.

Hogan said that Eli Kaye, New York suspect, who is under $50,000 bail in the alleged bribing of New York College players, sent $1,750 to Walker as a payoff for winning by only three points, although Toledo had a 17-point lead just three minutes before the end of the game.

The district attorney said Walker gave $20 each to Mast and McDonald and kept the remainder.

Two-Run 9th-Inning Rally Gives Yanks Win Over Tribe

Maybe It's Mize for President, Big John's Double Turns Tide; Pale Hose Down Red Sox 6-2

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

If Cleveland wins the American League pennant, they'll never believe it in Yankee Stadium.

The tribal warwhoop is only an empty echo in the Yanks' concrete wigwam on the harlem, where Cleveland has lost 13 straight ball games since July 14, 1950.

They've dropped eight straight in '51 with only three to play.

Big John Mize was the villain in the Indians' latest disaster. His eighth-inning homer won the opener Tuesday, 3-2, and his ninth-inning double punched home both runs of yesterday's 2-1 verdict over Mike Garcia.

Mize's double stopped the five-game losing streak and whipped Boston 6-2 at Fenway Park, the Yankees opened up a full-game lead on the Red Sox. Cleveland is another length back and the White Sox are 3½ off the pace.

National A. Waits

In contrast to the wild struggle, the National remains a Brooklyn waltz with the Dodgers, 6-5 winners over Chicago, now nine games in front of New York which won a June 17 "suspended game" from Pittsburgh 7-6 in 10 innings but lost the regular contest 5-4.

Garcia, pitched a fine game against the Yanks, holding a 1-0 lead over Eddie Lopat going to the ninth. Then Mize did his stuff.

Gil McDougald opened the Yankee ninth with a single. Garcia mowed down Gene Woodling and Joe Dimaggio. Yogi Berra kept the game live by singling. McDougald to third.

Mize ailced a hit into short left that Don Kolloden nearly nabbed. Both McDonald and Berra scored the tying and winning runs.

Ken Holcombe, wary working Chicago righthander, tamed the Red Sox right in Fenway Park with a five-hitter to pull the White Sox out of their tailspin.

Don Lenhardt smashed a three-run homer off Mel Parnell in the sixth to nullify a 1-0 Boston lead. Parnell gave up another run in the seventh and Chicago got to Walt Masterson and Harry Taylor for one each in the last two innings to nail it down.

Garver Wins 13th

Ned Garver won No. 13 for the last place St. Louis Browns. The talented righthander held Philadelphia to seven hits for a 5-4 edge in a night game at Shibe Park.

Washington hopped on Freddie Hutchinson and three successors for 14 hits and a 7-4 decision as Don Johnson survived a rocky first inning to go the route.

Preacher Roe won his 14th by downing Chicago 6-2 for Brooklyn.

Gil Hodges, back on the home run beam with his second in two days after an 18-day slump, slugged Bob Rush for No. 30 in the second inning. The blow put him even with Babe Ruth's record pace for 91 games.

Marchildon Tries Mound Comeback Via Intercounty

(By The Canadian Press)

Phil Marchildon, former hurler for Toronto Maple Leafs in the International League and Philadelphia Athletics in the American League, is making a comeback by way of the senior intercounty baseball circuit.

Marchildon pitched Guelph Maple Leafs to their fifth straight win last night at St. Thomas, defeating Legion 5-2. He hurled four-hit ball to win his fifth game of the season against three losses.

At Waterloo, Galt Terriers defeated fourth-place Tigers 5-3. First place Brantford Red Sox subdued second-place London Nationals 4-2 at Brantford.

Guelph's win at St. Thomas gave the Leafs a .500 percentage with 16 wins against 16 defeats. The victory was made easy by four costly Legion errors. Only one Guelph run was earned. Legion's two runs were both unearned.

The Leafs touched St. Thomas hurler Rog Gordon for 12 hits. Marchildon, Guelph relief hurler and aided his own cause with a pair of singles.

Don Jardine, 19-year-old Fordham University student, gave up only one hit for Galt, He was replaced by Jim Marcelon in the sixth inning when he got himself in a jam by walking four batters in a row. Marcelon and Miller was credited with the win.

Brantford's win streak was the 18th straight triumph on home ground. Red Sox did it the hard way, winning in the 10th. Relief hurler southpaw Russ Allen gave up 13 hits, Majors led off five winnings with double but only got the lead-off hitter home once. Luther Clifford paced the Red Sox with three for four.

In a Central Ontario Baseball League game at Brockville, Memoe defeated Kingston Leafs 10-7. Brockville won despite 10 errors, six of them committed by third baseman George Galen.

Oshawa Merchants of the Victoria Major League made a clean sweep of an exhibition series by defeating St. Catharines Stars of the Niagara district circuit 7-3 at St. Catharines. Merchants won their home game 5-4.

Guelph Maple Leafs visit St. Thomas again today for a game that has been rained out three times previously. In other intercounty action, Kitchener Legionnaires meet London Majors at London.

Hal Newhouser's Pitching Future Said Doubtful

Washington, July 26 (AP)— The pitching future of Prince Hal Newhouser is in doubt.

The veteran Detroit Tiger lefthander has been bothered with a sore arm for six weeks and apparently is getting worse instead of better.

Manager Red Rolfe had Newhouser pitch briefly in batting practice before yesterday's game with Washington Senators.

The result was far from satisfactory.

"When he will pitch again is very indefinite," Rolfe said afterwards.

Hal has pitched only 1 1/3 innings since July 4.

The slight southpaw has been with the Tigers since 1939. Although he had a mediocre 15-13 record last season, he remains one of the game's highest-paid pitchers with an estimated $42,000 salary this season.

Gelding Wins Two Trot Events At Thorncliffe

Toronto, July 26—(CP)—M. C. Rose, the five-year-old gelding owned by Garnet Rowntree of Weston, and driven by Bill Simmons, won both divisions of Wednesday's betting stake at Thorncliffe raceway. M. C. Rose was only one-fifth of a second off his own record as he trotted the first dash of a mile in 2:09 1-5.

The secondary feature was a fast pacing class, won by L. E. M., owned by O. Corbeil of Montreal. Handled faultlessly by Henri Larocheile, he went to the front at once and lasted to hold off Dr. Holmes from Ashtaville. Jim Parker Lock's Atomic Bomb appeared a certain winner as he charged on the outside but he over-paced himself and broke at the 16th pole.

Lacrosse

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Tigers are currently the hottest team in the Ontario Lacrosse Association senior series and no one knows it better than Peterborough Petes.

The league-leading Petes took a 9-3 licking from the Tigers at Hamilton last night and saw their first-place margin cut to four points.

The Hamilton win — ninth in 11 games — boosted the Tigers' sole possession of second place ahead of St. Catharines Athletics who absorbed a 12-7 defeat from Mimico Mountaineers before 2,500 fans at Mimico.

The Mimico game, while dropping St. Catharines into third place, also boosted the Mounties into a tie with the Athletics. Both teams are two points behind Hamilton and six behind Peterborough.

Brilliant goaltending by Doug Favell of Hamilton and Lloyd Wootton of Petes was the feature of that game.

In the scoring department, Jack Dorner led the Tigers with three goals. Jack Gair got two and the others were scored by Blain McDonald, Merv McBride, Elmer Lee and Bobby Grainger.

Curly Cassey got a pair for Peterborough with Arn Dugan, Bobby Thorpe and Ike Hildebrand getting the others.

At Mimico, the Mounties took a 3-0 first-quarter lead but Athletics came back to tie it 5-5 at the half. Mimico moved ahead again, leading 7-6 at the third quarter time.

Denny Peterson and Ken Dixon had three goals each for Mimico. Ted Howe and Max Wooley got two each for Athletics. Doug Smith, D. Frick and Nelson getting the others.

Mimico is at Peterborough and Brampton at Fergus tonight.

Syracuse Routs Maple Leafs 11-1; Cubs Bump Bisons

(By The Associated Press)

Springfield is edging toward the cellar door in the International League. Any day now they're liable to make a break for open air.

The Cubs now only two games behind seventh-place Ottawa, have been raising a little rumpus in the upper strata. They knocked Buffalo out of second place next night with a 7-1 punch. Bill Padgett toyed with the Bisons for his 11th victory. Archie Wilson with his 21st homer and a double and single was the only Bison to bother Padgett.

Syracuse took over second place by routing Toronto 11-1 on 17 hits while Bob Keegan scattered nine hits. Bill Baker hit a three-run homer and Carden Gillenwater had a perfect four-for-four night.

Montreal continued to skimp along with an 11th-game lead on Jim Hughes' four-hit shutout of Rochester, 1-0. It was a fine duel between Hughes and Bob Habenicht until the eighth when Junior Gilliam walked, stole second and scored on Hector Rodrigues' single.

Ottawa ripped into Ed Christante and a pair of relievers for 13 hits to down Baltimore 8-4. Fred Gerken led the Giants with a homer and single to bat in three runs.

Nine Run Inning Speeds Glen Roy To 18-3 Victory

Glen Roy's nine-run first inning was a psychological as well as a statistical setback for Ramsay Paints last evening as they absorbed an 18-3 shellacking in the first game of their home-and-home series in the round robin tournament for the city league title.

The Paintmen never were untracked after the disastrous first frame. They committed several errors of omission later in the game that cost them another four runs at least.

Enthusiasm on both sides understandably was anemic after the first inning with the result that the game was like a silent movie until it finished one hour and ten minutes later.

Bill Spafford's home run to the fence in left field with Rowbotham on in the top of the first inning was only a preview of what was to follow. Tomasa grounded out pitcher to first and then Corbett came all the way to third on a pop fly to left field when Ed Donovan dropped the ball and then threw wide at second trying to cut him off. Hunter, Sword, and Baldwin all dropped singles in front of the outfield who seemed to be under no fear. Wanamaker walked, Halloran and Rowbotham singled and Spafford doubled. Tomasa singled and Corbett struck out to retire the side.

More and More

Glen Roy added three more in the fourth on two walks, a single, an error, and a double, and ran in two more in the fifth on three singles and a double. They wound it up in the seventh counting four runs on two doubles, two walks, and two singles.

Highlight of Ramsay's attack was Ed Donovan's home run in the right field fence in the eighth inning with "Bunk" Young aboard.

Connie Harris toiled seven innings for Ramsays walking four, striking out one, and giving up 19 hits for 18 runs. Scanlan worked the final frame setting down the side in order.

Marty Halloran coasted the distance for the winners walking three, striking out four, and surrendering seven hits for three runs.

Hunter led Glen Roy at the plate with two singles and two doubles in four appearances.

Lineup:

Ramsay Paints: B. Young cf; E. Donovan lf; Whiting 3b; C. Woods 2b; C. Carr 1b; G. Young c; Leforte ss; Lundberg p; Harris p, replaced by Scanlan in 8th.

Glen Roy: Rowbotham c; Spafford ss; Tomasa 2b; Corbett 1b; Hunter lf, replaced by Culkin in 8th; Sword 3b; Baldwin rf; Wanamaker cf; Halloran p.

Score by innings:

	R	H	E
Ramsays	000 000 120	3	7
Glen Roy	900 220 04x	18	19

Time 1:10.

WIFE BEATING EPIDEMIC

Atlanta, Ga., July 26. (AP)—Twenty Atlanta husbands have been jailed or threatened with jail in the last two weeks for wife beating. Police blamed hot weather for the hot tempers. Yesterday was the 13th straight day thermometers hit 90 or better.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 26 — (AP) — Bill Veeck raises a squawk about the shortage of colorful players like Dizzy Dean in the big leagues. But you gotta be able to pitch like Diz to get away with being colorful . . . Did you know that Jersey Joe Walcott was refused a licence in New Jersey in 1940 because Commissioner John Hall thought Joe was "too old and might get hurt"? . . . Or that Bob Feller was a pretty good high school basketball player back in Van Meter, Iowa? . . . The Spartanburg, S. C., Peaches of the Sally League, whose attendance was down 25,000 from last year's figures, although they've been in the first division right along, ran an ad in the local papers the other day asking the fans: "What's the matter?" . . .

That's one exhibit that should not be taken in vane.

GIFT EMBARRASSES RED

Rome, July 26. (Reuter)—Italian communist leader Palmiro Togliatti has received a present from the Czechoslovak government said to be causing him great embarrassment—a luxurious bullet-proof car. The gift still is in Rome's customs' office and nobody knows whether Togliatti will claim it.

AT THE McCARTHY — Stephen McNally, right, and Coleen Gray are starred in "Apache Drums," new Universal-International Technicolor Western film which depicts a single battle in the long war waged between the Apache tribes and the frontier settlers. Willard Parker plays an important supporting role in the new film, now playing at the Odeon McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE BELLE — Sweetheart agonized. Mala Powers is racked by fears as her sweetheart, played by Farley Granger, acts strangely after a murder hue-and-cry has been raised. Dana Andrews and Joan Evans are Granger's co-stars in Samuel Goldwyn's dramatic "Edge of Doom," playing for the last times today at the Belle.

Orchid Night At Drive-In

One thousand beautiful "Princess Aloha" orchids, flown here from Hawaii, arrived in the city on Wednesday and were immediately transferred to cold storage to await distribution tonight at the anniversary celebration of the Belleville Drive-In Theatre. Mr. Larry Buck, theatre manager, says that to the best of his knowledge this is the first time that such a method has been used in Belleville to celebrate an anniversary. "I was glad to see them arrive in Belleville," he said, "and I was delighted with the excellent condition in which they were received after their long flight across the Pacific and from the west coast."

Each woman who attends the Drive-In tonight is to be given one of these orchids up to the maximum of the one thousand brought in.

A package will also be given to each child accompanied by parents.

The Kibitzer

The bridge of Ronnie Rath is something like a baths Its pleasure you anticipate a bit, As many others do, But just as soon as you get used to it, you find it's not so new.

Your bridge is not so hot until you are able to handle the many situations involving doubles. You must be able to distinguish between a takeout double and a penalty double.

A takeout double is a signal that asks partner to bid something. That is, he is required to bid something whether he has anything or not.

A penalty double is a signal that says the opponent bid can be defeated. The purpose of the double is to collect higher penalties from opponents. Therefore, it asks partner to pass.

When partner has already bid, any double is intended for penalty. So, if you have any doubt as to when a double is for penalty, it will be when partner has not yet bid.

A double is for takeout if the bid of opponents is not more than three in a suit or more than one no-trump; and providing that the double was made at the first opportunity.

So, when you have not yet bid, use this list as a quick reminder for when your partner's double is for penalty:

(1) When the double was not made at the first opportunity;
(2) When opponent bid is more than three in a suit;
(3) When opponent bid is more than one in no-trump;
(4) When the double was an opening bidder of more than one.

South opens with a heart. Partner in west bids a spade. North says one no-trump. Pat with the east hand you see here:

♠ 8 6 2
♥ K J 7 2
♦ 9 8 3
♣ J 8 6

South bids two clubs and partner in west doubles, It was not a takeout double at the first opportunity. It is for penalty. Consider the source.

Says Loudest Critics Had Biggest Bargain

Toronto, July 26 (CP)—Deputy Postmaster - General Walter Turnbull said yesterday the persons loudest in their condemnation of the post office for recent rates increases "have been those who have been getting the biggest bargain in the past."

Mr. Turnbull said the post office "could immediately cut the first-class mail rate by one cent without in any way curtailing any form of service," if those persons responsible in the past "for our greatest deficits, would, in future, undertake to pay their full way." He did not elaborate.

He told the Toronto Kiwanis Club in an address that the increased rates were necessary because expenditures exceeded income.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Friday, July 27 —

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Most planets show friendly aspects now but Mar's position warns against being grouchy, irritable. We all have our "off moments" remember; add to your morals by being extra kind.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Your Venus and the Moon in benefic positions, augur for a delightful period for artistic and home interests, friendly relations all round. Give your work and other activities skill, finesse.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Splendid outlook now for important business matters, home, family affairs; for vacation activities. Acgomplish something worth while this good day. Thank God, too, for the opportunity.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—You, too, can have benefits. Gain at your special tasks if you stop your insanely cheery and useful self. Essential duties, emergency situations or problems now honored. Do your part.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—One of your most generous planetary days this month. Quickly scan obligations and plan their execution with system and good judgment to attain the ends and earn time for relaxation.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo) — Authors, journalists, critics, bookkeepers, secretaries, you in artistic professions have the green light. Show ingenuity. Grand day for Virgoans at home, in shop, factory, travelling.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)—Very strong rays to encourage planet, wise action, all activities honorable and useful. Good fun is useful, too, for better health and peace of mind. Good day, good going!

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)—Your Saturn and several other planets in most friendly array promise healthy, happy response for the one who does his (or her) best in whatever the day's demands. Keep the peace.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Your Jupiter's aspect today stresses need for economy, wife spending and even winter saving. Otherwise day encourages all honest endeavors, gains at work, fun on vacation.

December 23 to January 21 — (Capricorn)—Very strong, favorable Saturn position. Don't fear to try new method or equipment that has promise. We must keep pace with advancement and you are capable. Good day for your talents.

January 22 to February 20 — (Aquarius) —/Uranus' configuration urges care, prudence, sound judgment in changes, any important matters. No day for needlessness but a period for honest effort, good intentions executed.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—You are in similar shoes to Aquarius now. Avoid pointless changes in matters running smoothly, profitably; of course follow sensible judgment in emergencies. Keep cool on whole.

YOU BORN TODAY have much talent, perhaps dramatic ability. Salesmanship powers abundant. But may not be as consistent in effort or pay as much attention to details as your position requires. Recognize your shortcomings and set about correcting them now, not later. "Later" may be too late. You have the kind of courage and stamina that can make many of your own breaks. Seek help, advice from right sources, and pray always for guidance. Employ your versatility well.

Feels Better Today Than In Years, Since Taking Syntona

Relieved Nervous, Upset Stomach, Gastritis, Acid Indigestion and Backache. Sleeps Better and Has More Energy Now.

MRS. V. FOLSOM

Convincing proof of the grand results to be had by taking Syntona is found in the many splendid reports received daily from grateful men and women who have used this pure herbal compound. These people tell of long years of suffering with stomach disorders, sluggish kidneys or liver, constipation, dizzy spells, backache, headaches and rheumatic pains. Those who quote the experience of Mrs. V. Folsom, 76 Burlington Street West, Hamilton, as reported only a few days ago:

"For years, I suffered with distressing stomach disorders. Food I ate would not digest properly and caused gas, sourness, dizziness, heartburn and constipation. I was subject to backache, my nerves were easily upset and I slept poorly.

"After trying various remedies without any success, I began taking Syntona a few weeks ago, and now I am happy to say I feel better than I did in years previously. Right from the first, I could tell it was helping my stomach and I kept on taking it. My appetite improved and I got relief from all the gas and indigestion. I am not troubled with backache now, my nerves are relaxed, I sleep better and I have more energy."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Belleville at DOLAN THE DRUGGIST.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Regrettably there are moments when a girl can't want to be even where she is going. Suffering the unexpected rookie looks as if it would end in a perfect little spot for a picnic, although it may wind up at a garbage dump. The atmospheric winds had already wafted to Lucilla a hint of something not quite pleasant, but Derek as scenery was still so delightful and inviting to look at that she couldn't bear not to continue around the next curve.

When they strolled down Madison Avenue, after leaving the cocktail bar, her shoulder bumping gallantly against his lean, nonsagging hip, compared very few yards she compared Derek with the male half of a skating couple, and thought smugly no other woman had so handsome an escort. In fact, no other twosome seemed so attractive. It was a shame she had to rush off to collect Hoopy, but it was Ironing day, and if she'd asked Gretel to go to the Cantarella, Gretel might have retaliated by scorching the yellow Elizabethan ruff.

At Fifty-First street he said, "Look, I have a marvelous idea. There's only three blocks from my apartment, so why don't you come over and hear a few records? It wouldn't take a minute." She said she couldn't possibly, because she was already late. Derek became charmingly boyish in his pleading. "Please. You can phone home and say you've bumped into an old friend." It was unthinkable, of course, but her laughing denials of the unthinkable gradually changed into a lingering, "It isn't that I don't want to—you know that."

Even after she hailed a cab and got in, Derek stood with one foot on the running-board, pouting at her desertion. "I hope you have a hideously dull evening, so you'll think of me sitting alone playing 'Tristan's Wake'."

* * *

Mrs. Cantwell met her at the door with the news that Hoopy had hit Linda over the head with a skate. "I had to phone your maid to come and get her. She was really so naughty. Perhaps the children should be separated for a few days. I know Hope loves television, and I don't like to deprive her of coming here, especially now that you seem to be tied up in the afternoons and she must be lonely, but today was just too much."

Lucilla said haughtily she preferred not to have her child see so much television. "It happen to think it's very harmful, and I've been taking her to matinees at the Children's Theatre instead." She also said most definitely the children should be supervised. "Linda is inclined to be excitable—she smashed the glass top of our coffee table recently, you know—and she arouses Hoopy, although when Linda isn't around Hoopy is content to play quietly."

The mothers parted with mutual animosity.

* * *

Lucilla was fiercely maternal for two whole days afterward, even encouraging Hoopy to come roamed away, then returned to whine that she had to see Linda. "You may not see her. You behaved so badly over there that I was humiliated even to bear about it. Hitting Linda over the head with your skate."

"But that was two days ago," Hoopy pointed out. "I don't feel like hitting her now. Besides, she's my best friend."

There was another war of nerves when Hoopy, hanging onto the phone, said Linda begged her to come over. "She wants me so much she's practically crying. She wants me to watch a seal balance a ball on television."

Lucilla eventually retreated into the "well, just this once" routine, which is at least more dignified than gibbering.

Arthur, when he got home, was indignant. "I thought you said you weren't going to allow her to go there for at least a month, after the way Mrs. Cantwell talked."

Lucilla retorted he wasn't the one who had to listen to Hoopy yammer about watching a seal.

"I think we'd better get a television set of our own and put an end to this nonsense."

His wife said she wouldn't have one in the house. "Somebody was one in the house. "Somebody was telling me just this week that the programs are getting worse all the time."

Arthur said he was going over to get Hoopy. "And I'll make her understand she isn't to go to the Cantwells again."

The two returned in beamish spirits, 20 minutes late for dinner, because of having to catch the finish of Kukla, Fran and Ollie. Arthur was enthusiastic about the dragon, and supplemented Hoopy's account to her mother of Ollie's battle with a chewing - gum machine. Lucilla listened politely, thinking she'd never heard anything so silly.

"Mrs. Cantwell told me it was a real relief to have Hoopy there" Arthur said. "Seems Linda brought home some kid yesterday who swung from the curtain rods and nearly tore the place to pieces."

* * *

Derek took to phoning Lucilla in the mornings. The first time, he said, "If anybody else answered, I was going to say wrong number and hang up." The weakness of it bothered her, but there was something so delicious about the conversation; it had been so many years since she had talked on the phone to a man in the cool, in which "It's a nice day" meant at least 10 remarkable things, and the crossing answer of, "Mmmmm, isn't it," acknowledged the reception of all 10, and promised to stand by for important further developments.

Harriman, British Ambassador Fly To London for Talks

Decision Follows Conference Between Envoys in Tehran

Tehran, July 27, (CP)—Averell Harriman, United States special envoy sent here to end the oil conflict between Britain and Iran, will fly to London for talks with the British Cabinet.

British Ambassador Sir Francis Shepherd will accompany Harriman. They will stay in London two days.

The decision to go direct to London followed a conference today between the two envoys.

Earlier, a British Embassy spokesman said a British decision on whether to accept Iran's proposal for re-opening talks in the oil nationalization dispute is expected soon.

The embassy spokesman said a message will be sent to London later today to aid the Cabinet in its decision.

He said Shepherd's round of talks, including a visit yesterday with the Shah, was aimed at determining whether Premier Mohammed Mossadegh genuinely desires to negotiate with a British Government minister.

Conflicting statements have come from both sides on the touchy issues, which stopped oil shipments of the British-controlled Anglo-Iranian Oil Company more than a month ago.

Do Not Agree

The British spokesman told newspaper men the Mossadegh government in full is prepared to resume the talks did not insist specifically on acceptance of the Iranian nine-point nationalization law which would strip the British company of its profits and powers.

On the other hand, Mattin Dafari, Mossadegh's son-in-law and member of the parliamentary oil board, told newspaper men Iran is willing to end the implementation of the nationalization law as a condition for resuming the talks.

Shepherd and Harriman were reported discussing foreign minister Herbert Morrison's brief statement to the House of Commons Thursday that the British ambassador's conversations yesterday with the Shah; and the meeting Wednesday with Senator Nattin Daftari, one of the leading members of the oil commission, and son-in-law of Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh.

SEEK ELDERLY MAN

Ottawa, July 27 — (CP) — Police today began a search for 82-year-old Michael Prytula, missing 12 days from his old home in Gloucester, township since last Tuesday.

Scene of the search is about 10 miles southwest of Ottawa near the Metcalfe highway where the aged pensioner lived with his wife on an isolated farm.

Prytula left on the bush Tuesday after telling his wife he was going to search for a $10 bill he said he had lost.

Strike of Bus Drivers Delays Hull Workers

Hull, Que., July 27—(CP)—Canada's capital, may not get as much work, done in its government offices today as the result of a dispute that is tying up transportation here.

The 79 bus drivers of the Hull City Transport Company struck for higher pay at one minute past midnight last night.

A large part of Hull's 43,000 population works for the government and most of them travel to work by bus. The bus company handles an estimated 15,000 passengers daily.

The Ottawa Transportation Company has one street-car line into Hull but it terminates in the Centre of Hull, a sprawling city.

The taxi-cab trade undoubtedly will boom.

One company official indicated some buses may be in operation.

"We will find drivers somewhere, because the people of Hull must be served," he said.

As each driver finished his last trip early today, general manager Louis Bisson was on hand to relieve the driver of the day's receipts. More than 700 people were on hand also.

"Pay the salary," they roared as each driver turned over his receipts to Mr. Bisson.

The bus line's drivers are represented by the National Catholic Syndicates.

The union called the strike to enforce demands for an hourly wage increase of 35 cents, to bring drivers' average wages to $1 an hour.

Also asked are time and a half for overtime; retroactive pay increases to Feb. 15 and a union shop.

A conciliation board recommended a wage increase of 10 to 15 cents an hour. This was accepted by the Ottawa Valley labor union men, but union officials ruled the action "unwarranted and surreptitious" and rejected the conciliation board recommendation.

Airliner Lands Safely When Gear Fails

New York, July 29—(AP)—A DC-4 airliner carrying 46 persons made a safe tail-down landing at Idlewild Airport last night after skidding 2,000 feet in a shower of sparks and flames.

As the big Northwest airliner came in from Detroit, the pilot, Capt. Arthur Ahlfs, radioed that the panel indicator showed there he might have trouble with his nose gear.

The 43 passengers and two crew members huddled to the rear of the plane, bracing themselves for them, to add weight on the tail.

Despite the sparks and flames, it was determined that the nose gear was functioning normally.

YOUTHS INJURED

Orillia, July 27 — (CP) — Two Peterborough youths were taken to hospital Thursday after their motorcycle skidded and crashed into a truck here.

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 27 (CP) Synopsis: No break in southern Ontario's warm humid weather is foreseen for today or Saturday. Cooler air in central and northern Ontario is expected to move eastward but not any farther south. Along the boundary line of the warm and cooler air, cloudiness and a few showers will occur today and Saturday.

SEAWAY PROBLEM TWO-PHASED FOR CANADA

May Separate Seaway From Hydro Project

Ottawa, July 27—(CP)—Transport Minister Chevrier said today the federal cabinet now may have to consider separating the seaway and power construction phases of the scheme to develop the St. Lawrence.

"I don't like it, but it is one thing that might have to be considered," he told the Canadian Press in a telephone interview from his law office at Cornwall, Ont.

The entire seaway question will have to be reconsidered, he said, as a result of the rejection yesterday by a united States conference committee of a bill to enable the U. S. to join Canada in constructing the giant development scheme.

Long Consideration

The federal cabinet, at its next meeting here Wednesday would have to consider whether something that could not be decided in one day; it would take long consideration.

An alternative would be to separate the two phases. If several governments joining with Ontario and New York state in the development of power phases of the scheme. The power would go into the industrial areas of Ontario and New York.

Mr. Chevrier, long an advocate of the seaway project, both Canada and the U. S., said he was "disappointed but not surprised" at the action of the House of Representatives public works committee in voting 12 to 12 yesterday to shelve the U. S. seaway bill.

Which Costs

He said that in considering to undertake the project alone the federal cabinet will have to weigh the costs and the over-all picture of supplies and materials against the urgency of the need for a deep-sea waterway from the Atlantic ocean up through the Great Lakes chain.

It has been estimated that the power development stage of the scheme would produce 2,200,000 horsepower of electrical energy to be divided equally between Ontario and New York. This development would take place in the international section of the river, in eastern Ontario.

Yesterday in Toronto, statements urging a Canadian start on the seaway project were issued by Premier Frost of Ontario and chairman Robert Saunders of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission, stressed Ontario's need for more power.

BOAT MISSING

Long Beach, Calif., July 27 — (AP)—The coast guard began a search early today for a 40-foot fishing boat reported missing with 26 persons aboard.

The boat was scheduled to return last night, after an all-day fishing trip.

West Plans Big Three Meet To Follow Jap Peace Treaty

Washington, July 27 (AP) — The western allies are tentatively planning a Big-Three meeting in Washington and a session of the North Atlantic Pact council in Ottawa after the Japanese peace conference in September.

Although the planning is well advanced, final decisions to go through with the meetings in the United States and Canada have not yet been reached. Diplomatic informants said today those decisions may be made early next week.

The Big Three nations are the United States, Britain and France. The North Atlantic Council embraces nine other countries.

The most critical problems likely to be discussed if the plans go through are:

1. Western Germany's contribution to the European defence forces being formed under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower;

2. The admission of Greece and Turkey to gain membership in the Atlantic alliance.

The Japanese peace conference is scheduled to open in San Francisco Sept. 4. It is to last about four days.

According to tentative plans a Big-Three foreign ministers session would be held in Washington the following week.

After the Washington talks, the 12-nation North Atlantic Council would meet in Ottawa for about a week.

In Ottawa, external affairs officials said they are proceeding on the assumption the pact council will meet here. They added that no official announcement that the meeting will be here is expected before Monday at the earliest.

It is possible the conference may have to be delayed some months beyond the present tentative September dates. This will depend on whether certain vital matters have crystallized sufficiently to be placed before the meeting.

Joy Presents U.N. Position At Kaesong Cease-Fire Talks

U. N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 27 (AP)—The allies told the communists today where they want to draw the cease-fire line in Korea.

Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief United Nations delegate, explained the allies' position in detail as negotiators got down to the meat of armistice talks in their 11th meeting at Kaesong.

Admiral Joy talked 52 minutes without interruption.

He gave the reds two marked military maps to picture his position.

The five communist generals made no comment, listed questions asked for, and got, an adjournment until 10 a.m. Saturday (8 p.m. EDT Friday).

North Korean Gen. Nam Il, spokesman for the red delegation, presumably then will present the communist proposals.

The general understanding is that the United Nations is pressing for a demilitarized zone roughly along the present battle line. The communists want it along the 38th parallel.

Joy expressed a military viewpoint," said Air Force Brig.-Gen. William Nuckols, allied spokesman who briefed reporters. "This (military view) is the area to which U.N. delegates have frequently stated they will confine themselves."

No Hard Feelings

"There were no hard feelings," Nuckols said later.

Nuckols said the U.N. delegation had "a great deal" of discussion yesterday in its caucus talks. He said he didn't know how much leeway the Chinese and North Korean generals had.

The U.N. wants to settle on the most defensible line, if one is possible. This is generally understood to be approximately along the present lines.

Communists made it clear from the start they want the line to be drawn along the parallel, dividing line between North and South Korea.

Establishment of a three-mile naval neutral zone off the shores of Korea is believed tied to this agenda item.

The U.N. agreed to correct its "inaccurate" red armies' "Mlooc errors in nomenclature" Wednesday, out by Nam, Nuckols said. The proper name for the red Korean force, Nam Il's Korean Army of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

Varied Translations

Description of the Chinese force varies. Translated from the Chinese it is "The Chinese People's Volunteer Army." Translated from Korean it is "Chinese Peoples Volunteers."

The difference in view on the second item on the agenda — the military demarcation line — is sure to make it a slow process.

The negotiators disposed of the first item, selection of the agenda — Thursday.

Nuckols then covers cease-fire details, including international supervision on both sides of the line to make sure that no armistice are obeyed.

Nuckols said this item was phrased in general terms and did not preclude the U.N. from working to recover an estimated 75 U.N. prisoners reported in the Communist hands or captured by the reds at the start of the war.

Then, after telling for recommendations to governments of the agenda, Nuckols covers the red demand for withdrawal of foreign troops from Korea.

ALLIES ACCUSE REDS OF BUILDUP IN KOREAN AREAS

For Peace 'Good Faith' Claim-U.N. Relaxed

Washington, July 27, (AP) — The army claimed today the allies had no communists in sight "hanging on the ropes" last month but held off trying to deal a knockout punch in order to show "good faith" in peace talks.

At the same time, the army officially accused the enemy of carrying out a "tremendous buildup" of troops, supplies, and weapons at the front since the original peace proposal was made June 23.

In contrast, the army said, one U.N. division had been hit hard out of the battle area and sent to Japan. The unit was not identified.

The army's report was given in an unusual on-the-record briefing for newspapermen at the military headquarters here, Ordinarily, briefings of this nature are held to give reporters background information only, but this time the army gave permission for publication.

Last in May, it said, the allies had just beaten off a major Chinese communist drive in the Kumsong area, and since the Chinese entered the war last November.

Chinese Driven Back

The push was driven back "in confusion", the army said, with losses of more than 100,000 men.

The allies were in a good position to follow through but held off from agreeing to enter into peace talks.

The spokesman said that since U.N. forces went on the advance in the light of cease-fire arrangements, the reds have been making a frantic and continuous buildup behind their screening forces.

"Fresh Chinese"

Chinese communist units and thousands of individual replacements have moved in. On the eastern-central flank a greater volume of fire has been received and there have been heavy probing attacks.

Tremendous Buildup

"All evidence points to a tremendous buildup of North Korean forces. A new North Korean army two to three times the two-month force is now subject to maximum-rent and security-tenure regulations.

4. Tenants in possession may not be evicted except in accordance with the regulations.

LIGHTNING KILLS CATTLE

Stratford, July 27 — (CP) — Six cattle were killed by lightning as they stood under a tree during a severe electrical storm in the early hours Thursday on the farm of Wesley Whitney.

The dead cows were discovered by the 12-year-old son of the farmer.

9-Point Summary Of Regulations Issued by Govt.

New Housing Built After Jan. 1, 1947, Not Controlled

Toronto, July 27 (CP) — The Ontario Government today moved to permit increases in house rents in line with rising costs.

Hon. Louis Cecile, chairman of the Legislature Rent Control Committee, made a detailed summary of new regulations approved by the cabinet on the committee's recommendation.

Ontario got into rent control last April when Federal Government Controls, inaugurated during the war, expired. The province froze all rents as of April 17 pending study by the committee.

Today's announcement revokes the freeze, but officials said the practical effect is to remove from rent control new housing built after Jan. 1, 1947. This was not controlled under federal regulations but came under Ontario's freeze order.

Other Rentals Controlled

Other housing rentals remain controlled. However provision is made for increases in the maximum rents in two ways: 1. With approval of rental boards where taxes, water rates or structural changes increase cost of carrying the property 2. by agreement between tenant and landlord in reaching "over-lease agreements" permitted after Aug. 20.

A prepared statement by Mr. Cecile said the announcement was intended as a general statement of the government's intentions. It would not be acted on without careful examination of the regulations themselves which would be published later.

One section prohibits eviction of tenants except as provided by the regulations. This and other regulations dealing with security of tenure apply to all housing — including new construction freed from price-control provisions. Regulations follow:

The general effect of the regulations is:

1. Lease now in force are binding until they expire, except those now under two years. After two years of their term these longer leases go on a month-to-month basis and become subject to the regulations unless the tenant confirms them for the balance of the term.

2. New tenancies of tenants now in possession and all months-to-month tenancies are subject to maximum-rent and security-tenure regulations.

3. Tenants in possession may not be evicted except in accordance with the regulations.

Montreal Aircraft Company Lands Large Contract

Montreal, July 27—(CP)—Canada's booming aircraft manufacturing industry Thursday landed a contract reportedly worth $50,000,000 for production of a new-type trainer-transport plane for the United States Air Force and the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The contract, understood to be for 300 planes, went to Canadair Limited, already producing F-86 Sabre jets for the R.C.A.F. at its 80-acre plant in suburban Cartierville.

The new plane is the T-36, a twin-engine trainer easily convertible to a transport able to carry a pay-load of 4,000 pounds.

An announcement by the company made no mention of the price, nor of the number of planes that each country will get but it said that in addition to those produced for the U.S.A.F. "an undisclosed number" will be produced for the R.C.A.F.

Canadair will be joint producer of the new plane with Beech Aircraft Corporation in the United States.

Draw Last Pay Until Strike Settled

Timmins, Ont., July 27 (CP)—Striking employees of the Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines collected their last pay Thursday until their differences with the company are settled.

The Timmins school board, meanwhile, also felt the effect of the strike, which began July 9 when 1,600 miners walked off the job, asking for higher wages and a union dues check-off.

The board learned that offers of $15,000 at 4% and $25,000 debenture issue to raise money for a new public school had been cancelled.

Youth Admits Causing Fire Fatal to Eight

San Francisco, July 27 (AP) — A youth who paused for a smoke said today he accidentally started a conflagration that killed eight persons.

He was charged with manslaughter.

Keith Skinner, 17, told police he delivered newspapers in the four-story rooming and apartment building near Jones in the lobby, he ignited his cigaret lighter—"for a drag."

There was a flash and the whole thing went poof!

Young Skinner said he was too frightened to sound an alarm, and continued on his paper route.

Fabulous Diamond Claim Owner Concerned About Future of Output

Vancouver, July 27—(CP)—Modest, quick-spoken John Williamson hasn't decided what he's going to do with his diamond pits.

As Canadian who found riches in East Africa, he is now the owner of a six-square-mile diamond claim at Mwadui, Tanganyika.

Millions of dollars worth of diamonds come out of his workings each year and he is under contract to sell them through the Diamond Trading Company, a world monopoly directed by Sir Ernest Oppenheimer.

Reports from London say Dr. Williamson has sold the fabulous tract.

But in an interview here, he merely said: "My contract ends Dec. 31. I have not decided whether I will renew it or not."

The ending of the contract would be shattering news for diamond merchants.

Not Flood Market

There's been a dispute over prices," he added. "I would probably set up my own selling organization if I break with the trading company."

He had a reassuring word for the merchants. He doesn't plan to flood the market and depress prices, a fear held in world diamond centres.

Mechanical-engineer Dr. Williamson, now on a world tour, left here Thursday on a flight to Sidney, Australia, from where he will go to Karachi, India, and back to Nairobi. From there he will fly to Mwadui to see his own plant. He is reticent about his wealth, but admits he has refused $60,000,000 for his claim.

Discovered Mine in 1940

He discovered the fabulous diamond field in 1940 after prowling the African bushland for 10 years toiling for three years, studying geological formation.

It was a lucky strike that brought him wealth and world fame. He kicked his first diamond under a African boabab tree.

Now he lives in a modest, five-room stone house, the centre of a model town he constructed for his thousands of workers.

40 Firemen Victims of Fumes In Toronto Fire

Toronto, July 27 — (CP) — Smoke and fumes from burning plastics knocked out 40 firemen fighting a $100,000 fire in the basement and ground floor of a downtown warehouse early today.

Loss, including damage to upper floors of the four-storey building, was estimated at between $100,000 and $150,000.

The fire, which called 100 firemen and 18 rigs into action, broke out shortly after midnight and by mid-morning was still blazing, but under control.

Two firemen were seriously affected.

League Charges Speed Traps Used 'Unreasonably'

Toronto, July 27—(CP)—The Ontario Motor League charged today that some Ontario towns are operating radar speed traps in a gain revenue rather than to improve safety conditions.

The motor league's league general manager, said the traps are being operated "unreasonably." The league has received many complaints about traps between Toronto and Lake Simcoe.

In many of these, the traps are operated at the edge of towns where 30-m.p.h. limits were not needed, the league said.

Earlier this week it was disclosed 30-odd motorists had received a speed trap in Caledon, 28 miles northwest of Toronto, issued 841 speeding summonses since June 1.

Dead and Buried for Two Years, Man Reappears in Barber Shop

New Orleans, July 27 — (AP) — Leander Easterwood, 26-year-old farmer of Jones, Sam Jones set off a weird Louisiana swampland murder mystery when found alive in a barber's chair.

Jones and relatives identified the decomposed body found in a near-by swamp as that of Jones. Sam admitted the slaying, repudiated new statement and then accused Easterwood and a third man of what he saw him kill Jones.

Easterwood was arrested at a New Orleans filling station with Jones and came under suspicion after Jones disappeared. Sam said he reported missing from a cash register.

Easterwood was indicted on the murder charge largely on the testimony of Sam Jones. The victim freed him, however, and in doing so gave him a $100 gift to start over again.

In Denver, Jones admitted taking the money from the register, but denied that he knew anything about a slaying.

New Orleans police said a murder charge will be filed against Jones, but the name of the victim will not be included in the charge.

Namkoong added that he believes the rug formerly was owned by the late Queen Mio, who had received the fabulous gifts from foreign potentates. The queen was assassinated by the Japanese shortly before Japan annexed Korea.

"We wouldn't want to cause any one trouble, but that is a very odd souvenir for a soldier to send home. We sold it to me said it was worth at least $25,000 and it came from the Chang Duk Palace in Seoul."

Four Suspects Arrested in Bank Branch Robbery

Bradford, Ont., July 27—(CP)—Four suspects have been arrested in connection with the hold-up yesterday of the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch here, No charges have been laid.

Police believe the bandits are members of the same gang that twice help up a bank in Woodbridge, Ont., in recent weeks and that they operate under the direction of a "brain" in Toronto.

A trio of gunmen — each of whom knew his job and how much time he had, as in the previous robberies—escaped with $4,300.

While a companion, waited outside in an automobile, the thugs forced the 11 members of the staff to lie on the floor and looted the cashiers' cages.

They missed several thousand dollars locked in a drawer and were unable to get into the vault.

Constable Reg Wilson heard the bank alarm in his apartment over the bank and surprised the bandits as they left the bank. Their lookout answered Wilson's shots by firing through the bank windows to warn his companions.

They escaped despite the flying bullets and eluded their pursuers in a maze of sideroads. Their bullet-riddled car was found a short time later, abandoned a few miles from here.

Police believe they fled to a hide-out because some of them were wounded.

Bradford, about 25 miles north of Toronto, is a banking centre for about 2,000 market gardeners in the Holland Marsh area.

Wild Speculation Greets U.K. Dividend Freeze

London, July 27 (Reuters) — Announcement by the Chancellor of the Exchequer of a dividend freeze caused great confusion when markets opened today.

Prices of all leading equities domiciled in the United Kingdom were sharply lower—in the case of oils and industrials approximately five shillings—and the few dealings which took place were done on nominal basis. Throughout the day, attempts to rally met only with partial success.

There was wild speculative buying of foreign bonds including Japanese, Germans, Greeks and Peruvians. Dollar stocks, particularly Canadian, were practically unpurchaseable from the start owing to the lack of switching facilities and the small number of shares held in Britain.

Copper shares were mixed. These issues which have recently emigrated were marked sharply higher but later reacted on profit-taking while the balance of the list remained weak.

In the case of tin and rubber shares, many of which have only recently returned to the dividend list, it was impossible to deal as no true assessment as to values could be made.

British government securities showed occasional improvement of 1/16 to 1/8.

Auto Production In U.S. Plants Cut to 40 P.C.

Washington, July 27 (AP)—The defence production administrator today ordered auto production in the October - through - December quarter will be cut to 40 per cent of the level of the six months preceding the Korean invasion. This will mean a production of slightly more than 1,100,000 cars.

If the auto makers need it, they'll be permitted to use some foreign steel so that they can make the 1,100,000 quota, Defence Production Administrator Manly Fleischmann said.

The announcement came as D.P.A. issued steel, copper and aluminum allocations for the final quarter of the year. Except for consumer goods, production levels will be about the same as in this quarter.

Boy, 13, Kills Chum With Dad's Revolver

San Francisco, July 27— (AP)— Police said today 13-year-old Angelo Mantia, 13, obtained his father's revolver, inserted three bullets in the cylinder and gave it a turn.

He aimed at Carl Jones, 14, and pulled the trigger, police said. It just clicked.

He swung toward Dennis Hill, 13, pulled the trigger again. Dennis, hit in the chest, collapsed, dead.

"Please God, I didn't mean to," Angelo told police. He was held for juvenile authorities.

The notice must be filed with the administrator.

An increase may be allowed where the tenant is subletting more than three rooms under two or more separate subleases. SUGGESTIONS —
For Aid in Cases of Drowning

At this time of year there are usually many accidents. Prompt, trained aid, often means the difference between life and death. This applies particularly in cases of drowning or electric shock where there is complete respiratory failure. The use of a resuscitator is recognized as the best possible treatment for cases of this nature and our ambulances are available 24 hours daily to rush our combination resuscitator, inhalator and aspirator to the scene of such emergency.

However, since time, in addition to technique is extremely important in emergency life saving, one should not wait for the resuscitator to be brought to the scene of an emergency before beginning artificial respiration. Begin at once with manual artificial respiration and follow the usual method (Schafer's) with which the majority of people are familiar and which imitates the movements of natural breathing. Have someone call a Doctor and our Ambulance immediately. While artificial respiration is being performed bystanders should remove wet clothing as far as possible and wrap the patient in dry blankets or other clothing. Applying warmth and conserving body heat is extremely important. If natural breathing begins regulate the movements of artificial respiration to correspond with it and promote circulation by rubbing the limbs vigorously towards the heart and by applying warmth.

When the resuscitator is put in use the rate, depth and rhythm of respiration are duplicated in a nearly normal manner. The best manual method of artificial respiration is rarely capable of producing more than 30% exchange of gases within the lungs during each respiration while the resuscitator makes possible about a 60% exchang of gases for each respiration. Thus it more completely ventilates the lungs and administers pure oxygen.

We trust that the above information will be of some help to anyone confronted with such an emergency. Remember, in any emergency, CALL

TRENTON

Dutchman Killed When Hit By T[illegible]n Highway

Trenton—(Special)— Johannes Van Abbema, 77, died instantly last night when he was hit by a truck 100 feet west of the Trenton limits, on No. 2 highway.

Abbema, a Dutchman, had been in Canada only two weeks. He was hit by a vehicle driven by J. L. Webster, R.R. 2, Weston, as he crossed the road after visiting with Rev. and Mrs. C. Witt, York Road. Mr. Witt is the Dutch minister in the community.

Abbema was attempting to cross the road to enter a fr[illegible] car. The man was declared [illegible] almost immediately after [illegible] accident by a Trenton medical man, but eyewitnesses said his body was not removed from the highway for nearly an hour, pending the arrival of a coroner and Ontario Provincial Police from Brighton. Traffic was tied up on both sides of the accident. Trenton town police were present, but could not do anything, since the accident happened in Murray township.

Fifteen Tons Anti-Freeze Get Rough Ride

Trenton. (Special.) — Fifteen tons of highly inflammable anti-freeze got a rough ride early this morning as a tractor trailer smacked into the rear end of another transport east of Smithfield seven miles west of here.

The transport loaded with the anti-freeze careened into the ditch and jack-knifed after the collision. Cans of the liquid were broken open in the crushed trailer. The anti-freeze dripped on to the hot exhaust pipe, and the cab was filled with fumes. The driver, Harold Dodds, of Ottawa, escaped with a scratch on the elbow. Part of the cab of the truck was demolished as the vehicle hit the south ditch.

Both trucks, owned by Smith Transport, were going west on No. 2 highway.

Joseph Valcar, of Silcling, suffered a possible broken nose last night as his car collided with a pile of dirt on King Street East. The dirt is on the road because of an excavation for a storm sewer. Valcar claimed after the accident that he was driving a farther around the dirt pile but no lights were on it.

His car suffered $350 damages.

MACHINIST PERFORMS DARING RESCUE IN TREACHEROUS CREEK

John Andrusek, of Ottawa, dives into spring-swollen creek in Hull, Que., to save drowning 8-year-old boy

1. Johnny Bard and a friend were playing along a concrete retaining wall beside the creek. He was enjoying being so close to danger . . . a danger that was all too real because the creek had claimed the lives of two little girls earlier in the year. Suddenly Johnny lost his balance and tumbled into the fast-moving waters. A non-swimmer, he thrashed helplessly as the current carried him downstream.

2. A machinist at a Hull plant, John Andrusek was on his way home in a friend's car. They had stopped for a traffic light when Andrusek heard the screams of Johnny's playmate. Leaping from the car, he vaulted the railing, tore off his coat and plunged into the creek. In a moment he had grasped the spluttering boy's clothing and, holding his head above water, brought him to shore.

3. Two other men reached down the retaining wall and took the boy from Andrusek's arms. They then helped up the gallant rescuer. Johnny was treated in hospital and soon released. To John Andrusek goes the deserved praise of Canadian citizens everywhere. We are proud to add our tribute through the presentation of The Dow Award.

Britons in Iran Irked by Actions Of Government

Abadan, July 27—(Reuters) — Rarely has a small British community displayed more self-control than Abadan's 1,000-odd British employees of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Co. during the weeks of tension caused by nationalization of the oil industry.

Rarely, too, has the traditional Persian quality of gracious courtesy been less evident than in the dealings of Persian officials with Britons in Abadan.

Two recent examples from a long list may be cited since they touched the Britons at sensitive points—the inviolability of his mail and his freedom of movement.

The action of seizing and delaying distribution of personal letters for AIOC employees and their attempt to impose a special visa on passports and other travel papers of AIOC staff were clear breaches of Persian and international law.

The action which most angered Britons was refusal to supply fresh water, ice and vegetables to the Royal Navy cruiser Mauritius as it lay at anchor in sweltering heat in the river off Abadan. The Persians argued the warship had been sent to intimidate them in carrying out the oil nationalization policy and that therefore its officers and men could go without fresh water.

The Mauritius received supplies from nearby Iraq.

The summer heat is another psychological factor. Daily maximum temperatures in the almost treeless plain of Abadan Island average 170 degrees in the sun and 110 degrees in the shade. There are frequent dust storms.

There are indications that the pin-picking policy is inspired by Russein Makki, Prime Minister Mossadegh's right-hand man in the nationalization campaign. In private conversation, he has said he is ready to sacrifice the oil industry rather than leave it under Britain.

FALLS TO DEATH

Breuil, Italy, July 27—(Reuters) — The Matterhorn, 14,780-foot peak in the Swiss Alps, has claimed its first victim this season. Swiss guide Otto Furer, veteran of at least 200 climbs to its summit, Furrer plunged to his death on the Italian side of the peak yesterday. The rope linking him to a Swiss girl climber was severed on a jagged rock.

BADGLEY—JONES

A quiet but pretty wedding took place Saturday evening, in the parsonage of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Trenton, when Alice M. Jones, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Jones, Orland, became the bride of Daniel Badgley, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Badgley, of Belleville.

Rev. R. C. MacLean officiated.

The bride wearing a blue ballsuit with white and wine accessories and a corsage of red roses, was attended by Mrs. Harold Jones, in a pink crepe dress, white accessories and a corsage of red roses.

The happy couple left for a trip to Bancroft and upon their return will reside in Trenton.

CHRISTOPHER—MILLER

A pretty summer wedding took place at 2 p.m., on Saturday, July 14, at the home of the bride's parents, when Violet Lillian, second daughter, of Mr and Mrs. Albert Miller, 19 Dundas Street, Belleville, became the bride of Edward Charles, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Christopher, R.R. 2, Belleville.

The wedding took place before the fireplace in the living room which was beautifully decorated for the occasion with summer flowers and pink and white wedding bells and streamers. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. F. R. Harback, minister of Tabernacle United Church.

Mrs. Pearl Johnston provided the traditional wedding music.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a street-length frock of turquoise net over taffeta, featuring a square neckline with rolled collar. Her three-quarter length veil was caught with a bandeau of satin roses and lily-of-the-valley. All accessories were in white. Her corsage was of red Rapture roses, maidenhair fern, and baby's breath, tied with silver ribbon.

The bride's only attendant was Miss Helena Shelley, who wore a pink linen suit, with white accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses, maiden hair fern and baby's breath, tied with gold ribbon.

Mr. George Christopher, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

A reception followed the wedding ceremony with a buffet luncheon being served to 32 relatives and friends. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake, surrounding were vases of flowers and wedding bells, with streamers attached to each corner of the table.

She was assisted by the mother of the bridegroom, gowned in a flowered silk dress with matching accessories and a corsage of Talisman roses, maidenhair fern and baby's breath.

The bride's gift to her attendant was a rhinestone necklace with matching earrings, and to the pianist, a china cup and saucer. The groom's gift to his best man was gold cuff links with setin initials.

Immediately following the reception, amid showers of confetti and best wishes, the happy couple left on a short trip to points west and the United States.

Miss Frances Solomon was organist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a gown of Bermuda white French rose lace and net over satin. The fitted lace jacket was fashioned with petal collar, accented by tiny buttons from throat to waist, and long, slim sleeves. The molded lace bodice of the gown was strapless and the full length skirt was highlighted by a rope-like braid of lace over satin. The bouffant skirt of net flared from the hipline and fell in soft graceful folds to a slight sweep. Her tulle fingertip illusion veil was caught by a lace cap and she carried a cascade of red roses.

Mrs. Donald Wadsworth, of Montreal, matron of honor, wore light blue nylon marquisette over taffeta fashioned with a strapless bodice and a stole of the same shades of blue. The other attendants, Miss Norma Smith of Peterborough, and Miss Jean Buchanan of Toronto, were gowned in mauve nylon and carried nosegays of matching carnations.

The groomsman was Mr. Robert Ellery, Mr. Charles Tompkins and Mr. Gerald Barrett, of Toronto, were ushers.

The bride's mother wore dusky rose crepe and a black velvet picture hat. At the reception, held at the Dutch Mill Inn in Trenton, Miss Ellen Mutton, the bride's aunt, in a light blue gown and black accessories, received with the groom's mother in lilac crepe and rose with matching accessories.

For their motor trip to Winnipeg and other western points the bride wore an ensemble of two tones of beige dog-tooth check fleck with pale blue, cameo beige open pumps, beige felt hat and matching accessories.

On their return they will reside in Toronto.

Out-of-town guests were from Toronto, Owen Sound, Belleville, Peterborough, Detroit, Bowmanville and Colborne.

LORD MAYOR AND LADY

When Sir Denys Lowson, Lord Mayor of London, and Lady Lowson visit Canada this fall, Canadians will meet one of England's most photographed and photogenic women. At 32, Scottish-born Lady Lowson has attracted much attention as one of the most attractive women to grace Mansion House, residence of the Lord Mayor, since the post was created in 1192. With Sir Denys, 45, she will fly to Victoria from Honolulu after visiting Australia and New Zealand. The Dominion tour will include Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa. — (CP Photo.)

Beauty of London's Mayor's Wife Keeps Flash Bulbs Popping

By MURIEL NARAWAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, July 27. (CP)—When London's Lady Lowson visits British Columbia and Ontario, Canadians will get their first official look at a woman whose photogenic features keep flash bulbs popping wherever she goes.

In the nine months since her husband became Lord Mayor of London, honey-blonde, 32-year-old Lady Lowson has earned distinction as Britain's most photographed celebrity. Always recognized as an elegant woman, she has brought new sparkle and vivacity to dignified Mansion House, residence of London mayors.

The Lord Mayor's office was created in 1192 and a suitable atmosphere or antiquity still surrounds it. Even the King has to petition a special ritual before he can enter the sacred precincts of the City, the "square mile" of business office in the heart of London.

The name of the present Lord Mayor is appropriately impressive. Under a recent baronetcy, he became Sir Denys Colquhoun Flowerdew Lowson of Westlaw, Perthshire. Young Lady Lowson's classic taste in clothes, regal bearing and genuine Scottish beauty make her a perfect foil for her tall, 45-year-old husband, one of a youngest Lord Mayors in history.

The Canadian tour of the Lord Mayor and Lady Lowson starts August 30 and will take in such cities as Victoria, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Toronto and Ottawa. Lady Lowson—or Lady Patricia as she is sometimes called—said she has already visited the Dominion several times, but is looking forward to going again in her new official capacity.

"I hope to renew acquaintance with many of the friends I met there before," she said.

A proud mother of three children—Guy Anne, 13, Melanie 10 and Ian, 6—Lady Lowson does not plan to take her children with her to Canada. She thinks they should be kept in the background during the pomp and ceremony that go with Britain's No. 1 civic office.

Clothes? Surprisingly enough, no special shopping spree will precede the Canadian tour. Lady Lowson bought an extensive wardrobe last year and hopes it will carry her through even the possible extremes of Canadian climate.

One choice for special functions is a full-skirted gown in stiff silk or satin with a softly-draped winterhalter neckline. For day wear she favors slim, tailored suits in navy, brown and black but her choice of evening colors tends to emerald, royal blue, violet and crimson.

For the first time in her life, she has a lady's maid. "It would be impossible to manage all by myself," she said. "There just is not time and one needs help with the full skirts of the evening gowns"

Salads Add Variety To Meals

(Canadian Press staff Writer)
By KAY REX

This is National Salad Week seven days set aside to point up the value of crisp, colorful uncooked dishes.

Sponsored by the Canadian Horticultural Council, salad week was founded to promote the use of farm and garden products.

The federal Agriculture Department says there are three types of persons—those who eat salads because they like them; those who eat salads to be healthy; those who won't eat salads at all.

For a wife faced with a non-salad-eating husband, the Department suggests a subtle approach.

Does he like cheese? Then try a salad in which cheese is the dominant ingredient. Is salmon a favorite? Stress salmon.

"Many a man . . . has been weaned away from less nutritious food to a liking for salads by such wiles," advises the department. "But don't expect him to ever admit it."

Salad Dressings

Home economists of the department's consumer section have a few tips on dressings which improve valuable to the salad-conscious housewife.

Here is a basic recipe for a French dressing.

Ingredients—One-quarter cup cider vinegar; three-quarters cup salad oil; one teaspoon sugar; dash of pepper; one-half teaspoon salt; one-half teaspoon dry mustard.

Place all ingredients in a jar with a tight-fitting lid. Shake until thick and creamy looking. Store in a cold place. Shake well before using.

For variety—Add two tablespoons chopped parsley, one chopped hard-cooked egg and one-quarter cup chopped cooked beets. Use this dressing with a plain lettuce salad.

Add one-quarter cup tomato catsup and serve on meat salads.

Add one teaspoon of meat sauce and serve with vegetable and egg salads.

Add three tablespoons of peanut butter and use on cabbage or carrot salads.

Add three tablespoons of grated cheese and serve with vegetable salads.

Another Recipe

Carrot salad is a favorite with those who like bright dishes.

Ingredients—One bunch of carrots cooked and diced; one can peas; drained; one teaspoon chopped onion, celery diced in small pieces; dash of lemon juice; salt and pepper to taste two hard-boiled eggs; salad dressing.

Line a salad bowl with lettuce. Fill in centre with salad. Slice eggs and put on top.

Recent tests have proved that most persons like brown sugar with sugar. At the California Foods Research Institute the women tasters were given two paper cups of peas. Of this figure 151 preferred those to which three per cent sugar (by weight) had been added. Thirty-one preferred peas in their natural natural state, without sugar. Four expressed no preference.

'Toboggan Beret' May Prove Popular

Paris, July 27—(Reuters)—The fall and winter fashion parade started Thursday with the introduction of the "toboggan beret"—a hat with a difference.

Prediction is that the big, flat-topped topper will coast into favor this year.

The hat of indecision dips sharply down on one side, changes its mind and snoots up again. It is shown by the Paris House of Pauletta.

She hat comes in jersey, felt and velvet with iron and steel grey as its favorite shades, although it is also seen in reds, shrimp pink and peacock blue. All are without trimming.

Buyers at the Paris fashion openings have discovered that sportswear has reached back into medieval history to the hoods and caps of court jesters for inspiration.

Turtle-neck sweaters with visor hoods are made in one piece. Other hoods have long points edged with bells. Cloche and cap models are made with long scarves which drape around the shoulders.

Tiny pill boxes of satriet are cut into geometrical design around the crown. They are covered with velvet or shown with matching chiffon stoles. Some crowns are high like an Egyptian fez, shown with removable tent scarves.

Stovepipe Hats

Paris—(Reuters) — Stovepipe hats made of African zebra skins were the highlight of a winter collection shown by Suend, a Danish designer, at the opening of his new salon here last night.

Suend, formerly on the staff of the Paris couturier Jacques Fath, made his debut as an independent designer before a big audience.

His principal line is the high crown, in many cases broken or cracked. Brims are cut out of the crown so that it is impossible to tell where one begins and the other ends. Many models feature pointed astrologers' peaks.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Parental domination vs self-assertion

The familiar problem of whether a girl should declare her independence of her family or give up her own life because she feels her family needs her, comes up again in a letter from a girl of twenty.

She tells me that ever since she can remember, she has been afraid of her father because of his strictness.

"There doesn't seem to be anyone who can change his ways of thinking," she writes. "My mother is a wonderful person and looks at things differently, but there isn't much she can do because of her bad heart. It is because of her condition that our family is still together, for there are times when I feel like leaving home, but I just hate to think of what would become of my mother."

She goes on to say that she has four brothers, one of whom is married and this one "has such a hard time with my father over it that he only gave one day's notice that he was going to be married. I also have two sisters, one of whom is 27. She brought a boy to the house for whom she cared a great deal, and lost him because of my father."

Then this girl gets down to her real trouble, which is that she, too, has a boy friend for whom she cares a great deal, but whom she has been seeing secretly because of her father's attitude. She met him two months ago at a school reunion, and they have been seeing each other regularly since then.

"When my father finds out about this boy, will he make trouble for me like he did for my sisters?" she asks. "If I lose this boy, I don't know what I will do. Isn't there some way to get my father to realize that we, too, have our own life?"

Neurotically Unreasonable

Now here is a girl who obviously wants to do the right thing. She has a deep sense of responsibility which, to date, has made it impossible for her to leave home because of her feeling for her mother. I think, however, that neither her mother's condition nor her father's highly neurotic unreasonableness should hold her any longer. I don't mean, of course, that she should simply pack up and leave home without a thought for her sick mother, whose "bad heart" may well be a nervous affliction brought on through years of having lived with a difficult husband.

If this girl feels she can't leave home because her help is needed there, either financially or in caring for her mother, what is there to prevent her from taking a job and helping to provide whatever assistance is needed? I suggest that she talk this whole thing over with her four brothers and her two sisters, and see if they can't get together on this whole problem. Only one of these seven young people has had the strength of character to stand up to his father. No doubt the others would like to do it, too, but have not yet been able to summon up the courage. Certainly seven young people should be able to work out some plan of concerted action through which they could do whatever is necessary for their mother and yet free themselves from a tyrannical father, even though it means giving away from home. There is absolutely no moral law which requires people to submit to either mental or physical abuse.

I would not want this girl, however, to assume that to go out and live her own life means that she should dash off and marry the boy she fancies at once. No matter how fond she may be of him, she has known him only two months, after all, and that is not enough knowledge on him for marriage. Let her take time to become thoroughly acquainted with him; with all his ideas, his standards, his moods and his tastes. Only then will she be able to make an intelligent decision as to whether or not he is the man she really wants for a husband.

An Attractive Neckline Will Enhance the Beauty Picture

Movie Star Peggy Castle can wear a V-neckline with confidence. Can you? She knows her neck is smooth and pretty. Is yours?

By HELEN FOLLETT

OPERATORS in beauty shops who understand all about tissue structure will tell you that, while the facial premises must be massaged with lightness and delicacy, you can use vigorous movements on that isthmus that connects your head with your shoulders. The underlying muscles are large and strong; the common trouble is that the outer covering has weakened, allowing the skin to take on folds.

If your neck is not precisely what it used to be, fair of color and smooth of texture, get out the massage cream. Give it a ten-minute build-up every night. If you do not take this matter in hand in the early stages you may find yourself bothered about fiddle strings. Or those necklace lines that nobody can endure may encircle your once-fair throat.

What Creams Can Do

It is surprising what creams and friction can do to restore youthful appearance. Put a heavy cream on a clean skin surface, starting at the collar bones, smoothing upward. While you are about it you might as well include the facial areas, as they are grateful for cosmetic food.

When the neck requires treatment, there is usually softness of flesh just under the jaws, so place your fingertips together under your chin, sweep along to the ear lobes.

When Chin Droops

It might be well to remind the beauty-seeking sisters that keeping the head balanced is a requirement. To let the chin droop is to let the muscles of the throat relax. Having no work to do, they lose tone. Then trouble begins.

A good head pose gives a woman an "air". It provides a certain splendor, makes her distinguished looking. The girl whose head is always ahead of the rest of her is bound to have poor posture. Her shoulders fall forward. Her nose is awkward and ungainly.

As the head should not be forward, so it should not be tilted back, a habit that imparts the "nose-in-the-air" pose.

about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

Although a bee makes countless thousands of trips during its career it can produce only one-tenth of a pound of honey in the bee lifetime.

There are many advantages to using honey in cake baking. A honey loaf cake is easily sliced, moist and has excellent keeping qualities. It needs no frosting, and can be served alone as a dessert or used in conjunction with other sweets.

The best type of honey for cakes is buckwheat honey. Many old world recipes call for rye flour on honey cakes. You may use white cake flour if you prefer, but the combination of rye and honey gives the cake a sturdy and delightful flavor. Although this type of cake has been known for generations, it is modern in that it requires merely one bowl for mixing.

Bake the cake in a slow rather than a moderate oven, and the top will not crack during baking. The glazed fruit may be omitted, or chopped nuts may be substituted for the fruit if desired.

Honey Loaf Cake

1 cup buckwheat honey
3-4 cup brown sugar, firmly packed
1-2 teaspoon baking soda
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons cocoa
1 cup water
2 eggs
3 cups rye or cake flour
1-2 cup salad oil
1 cup chopped candied fruit

Preheat oven at 325 degrees. Line 2 loaf pans with ungreased paper.

In a mixing bowl put the honey, brown sugar, baking soda, cinnamon and cocoa. Add the water. Mix well until dry ingredients are dissolved. Add the eggs and beat well.

Add the flour and salad oil. Beat well, about 2 minutes, or until batter is smooth and there are no lumps. Add the candied fruit, mixing well.

Pour the batter into the paper-lined loaf pans. They should be no more than two-thirds full. Bake for about 1 hour or until top of cake is firm when lightly touched. If cake cracks on the top, it should be baked until crack shows no moisture.

Remove cake from oven. Let it cool in pan ten minutes. Remove from pan. If cake is to be stored, keep it in a covered container.

GOOD MANNERS

Here's a mother who knows how to be a hostess to her daughter's friends.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Last Spring a classmate of mine in high school (we were both seniors, and she commuted to school from a suburb) mentioned several times that she would like to have me come to the important dance of the summer at the Yacht Club to which they belong, a large dance and quite formal. Of course I said I'd love to come! Last evening she telephoned me about the dance, the date, and so forth, and asked if I would come to visit them for the long week-end. Then she said her mother would like to speak to me, her mother repeated the invitation, told me about the dance and suggested what to bring to wear to it, and told me about other parties for that weekend. She told me the time of the train they would meet on Thursday afternoon, and then told me about "a very good train" I could take back on Tuesday, early-afternoon. After I had thanked her and we had finished talking, she asked to speak to Mother, and repeated all these plans to her. I thought it was strange that she told me about so many "plans" . . . it sounded a bit "arranged" as something her daughter never does. But I was most surprised when she "informed" me when to leave, that mother insists that this is proper thing to do. Do you agree with mother or with me?

Peggy T.

Your mother is completely right, Peggy! Everything your classmate's mother did showed that she "knows her way round" . . . that she is an accustomed hostess . . . that she is a woman of good and sure taste. I wish there were more mothers-of-daughters like this mother! First she had the perfect courtesy to "second" her daughter's invitation . . . she is the hostess of that home, and as hostess, she is the one to extend the direct invitation. Then she had the sure courtesy to assure your mother of her welcome to you, and of her plans. Then she wisely told the definite time you are expected to arrive, the definite time you are expected to depart. And, my dear girl, she didn't tell you the plans for the various entertainments to "brag"—but to give you definite ideas about the appropriate clothes to bring. Very polite, very sensible, very practical . . . for all concerned, and particularly important in your case, since (I judge) it will be your first visit to their home, and since, for school girls, "the mothers" should agree about your arrival-home plans. Your mother must be very pleased and proud that you are going to visit such charming and mannerly people!

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON OF THE WEEK

Alcoholic Is Not the Problem

By ROY L. SMITH

In most of the discussion of alcoholism, it is assumed that the alcoholic—the helpless victim of alcohol—the principle problem. He is a pathetic figure of course, deserving of help, but he is by no means the most serious problem. There are many more numerous, than the confirmed drinker who has so far come under the dominion of alcohol that he is no longer able to meet the facts of life intelligently and with judgment, because he is so much more numerous, is the more common problem.

Self Deceived

It is one of the peculiar psychological results of alcohol in the bloodstream that the drinker loses all ability to criticize his own actions. He laughs uproariously at his own jokes in spite of the fact that they are witless. He offers some comment under the impression that he is speaking words of profound wisdom. He talks loudly because the alcohol has deadened the sensitiveness of his auditory nerves, and he finds it necessary to speak in loud tones in order to make himself heard.

Dangerous Driver

Because he has lost his ability to accurately estimate his own capabilities, he insists upon driving his own car when he is least capable of doing so. He may go either for himself or for the public—he meets upon the highway the alcohol-saturated robbed himself of his power to discern and react quickly, leaves him a helpless wreck. His own befuddled brain and subnerves every other driver to an increased hazard. The man who has lapsed into unconsciousness is apt to be picked up by the police and taken at headquarters, or escorted home (at the taxpayer's expense). He does not drive.

Poor Security Risk

This psychological effect of imbibing has the additional result of loosening the tongue of many a drinker. While unable to exercise his usual good judgment, he voices opinions, states facts, and betrays confidences which he would guard with the utmost fidelity except for the alcohol in his bloodstream. It has happened on many occasions that salesmen, employing their customers with liquor, have given away employers' secrets in a fashion that has resulted disastrously. It is a common practice in certain circles to "get enough liquor into him that he will talk". That means that he is drugged until he betrays himself. The result of this loose talk inside diplomatic circles has sometimes cost entire nations a sad toll.

A Nuisance

It has happened on many occasions that a splendid gentleman—splendid under any other circumstance—has made himself a spectacle and a nuisance in a public place by the sheer reason that he has partaken of intoxicants too freely. Unable to estimate his own behavior he has imposed upon gentil women, embarrassed his friends, and indulged in behaviour he would have held in contempt at any other time. He has been rude, indelicate, and bawdy just when he should have been in every sense the gentleman.

The Uniform Sunday School lesson for July 29: "Christian Social Life" (Temperance), Luke 7:32; Romans 12:1-2; 1 Corinthians 8; I John 2:15-17.

In at least one circumstance a moving picture was made of an excellent individual 'in his cups'. His bleary look, his bawdy manner, and his offensive tactics were all recorded. A few days later, when he was entirely free from alcoholic stimulation, he was allowed to view the picture, alone. From that day to this he has never taken another drop.

Social Responsibility

A sober responsibility rests upon every gentleman to be a gentleman. In a highly organized society such as ours, in which good taste and good breeding exist at a premium, it is at least every person's duty to be as intelligent as his faculties will permit, and as gracious as good decorum demands. The one who tampers with his nervous system and jeopardizes his own gentlemanliness can very easily become something even worse. Any of us will do well to remember that none of us lives alone.

Find Woman's Torso Under French Bridge

Nice, France, July 27. (AP)—Police said today they now are convinced the torso of a woman found in a sack under a bridge near Cannes is that of Madame Morta Smigly-Rydz, widow of the late Polish army marshal.

They said, they said, identified underclothing on the body as some sent the Polish woman by an American friend.

The body, with the head, legs and arms missing, was found 10 days ago at the village of Cros D'Utelle. Mme. Smigly-Rydz, 57, has been missing from her Monte Carlo apartment since July 3.

Marshal Smigly-Rydz disappeared during Poland's defeat by Germany in 1939 and is presumed dead.

Welland Hurler Fling No-Hitter Against St. Kitts

(By the Canadian Press)

[illegible] pitcher hurls two-hit [illegible] loses, there's one [illegible] do—pitch a no-hit [illegible]

Sampson, a righthander for Welland Sixes in the Niagara District Senior League, tried it Thursday night and it worked. The Sixes beat St. Catharines Standard 9-0 at Welland.

Lal Pierce, Thorold pitcher, gave the Staggoly two hits but lost 1-0. He was the searchmaker still on his list, he had the Stags hitless for the full nine-inning route while his mates gave him enough runs for victory and sweet revenge. In both games the opposing pitcher was Ted Coates.

Fred Zapiro

[illegible] races; only 29 batters, going up a walk in the fourth to one another man got on base though a fifth-inning error. He struck out eight and wasn't in trouble at any time.

In another Niagara District game, Niagara Falls scored their hold on a 5-0 victory over Chippewa Dodgers at the Falls. The Birds haven't lost to the Dodgers in six meetings.

In the Intercounty League, Guelph Maple Leafs eked out a 16-15 win over St. Thomas Legion. It was the second meeting between the clubs in two nights and the second victory for the Leafs who hold down third place in the seven-team league.

In the other game, Kitchener Legionnaires broke a 4-4 tie in the eighth inning to beat London Majors 6-4 in London.

Rhubarb at St. Thomas

Don Prudhee, who came in to pitch in the fifth, was the winner. Tommy White went the distance for the losers.

Bugsy Hartner singled to right in the eighth, driving in Gebe Gignac who what turned out to be the victory margin for the ninth-place Legionnaires. The loss dropped London 7½ games behind the league-leading Brantford Red Ice.

At St. Thomas, 1,800 fans made things uncomfortable for plate umpire Langford. Leftfielder Don Butler was tossed out of the game for arguing and the umpire had to have police protection after the game, chiefly because the crowd didn't like one of the calls on a Legio runner coming home.

Intercounty statistics released today, covering games up to last Monday, showed Wilmer Fields of Brantford leading the batting race with a .38 average. Russian of Galt had a .348 average and Don Butler of St. Thomas .345.

Luther Clifford of Brantford was top in runs batted in with 34 and Johny Moore led the pitchers with a 5-0 record although Joe Young of Waterloo had was the most games, nine against three losses.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 27. (AP)—Anybody knew where to find the Steinet Cup or the Detroit Free Press Cup? They're missing . . . in connection with the presentation of the Temple Cup, first "World Series" trophy to baseball's Hall of Fame, historian Emil Lanigan dug up some data about old-time trophies. . . The Steinet Cup was the trophy of the old Eastern League, now the International) and the Free Press Cup was played for by teams in the Western League, which became the American.

Although there was only one major league during the four years—1894-97—the Temple Cup was in competition, there's one right about it being a world championship trophy . . . ten players who competed for it are in the Hall of Fame.

Ned Hanlon, whose Baltimore Orioles were in every series, is the special manager honor roll along with John Montgomery Ward and Frank Selee. . .

Sore Loaves

After sailor Bob Murphy kayoed Joe Shaw in the fifth the other night, a lot of the fans gathered around the ring, not to cheer the winner, but to express disapproval of his hug-and-bit tactics . . . Manager Travis Hatfield was starting to cut loose his gloves when Bob saw them coming and whispered, "Get 'em off fast and get those bottles out of the buckets—the real fight is about to start."

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Batting, Clyde Vollmer, Red Sox—hit three home runs, driving in six runs, in Boston's 13-10 victory over Chicago.

Pitching, Ken Johnson, Phils—blanked old teammates with seven hits as Phils shut out St. Louis for second straight night, 7-0.

STILL WATERS

Because of light rainfall, residents of the Island of Aruba in the Dutch East Indies subsist entirely on distilled sea water.

TO EACH HIS OWN . . . RECORD

Both holders of American League fielding records for shortstops, Phil Rizzuto of the New York Yankees (left) is seen with Chico Carrasquel of the White Sox in Comiskey Park, Chicago, where Chico's streak of errorless ball was recently ended—but not before he broke Rizzuto's shortstop mark of 288 errorless chances by hurdling his string to 297 in 53 games before commmitting a bobble. Rizzuto holds the best errorless game skein at 58.

Errors Costly As Picton A's Drop Napanee 7-5

Picton—Picton Athletics defeated Napanee in a COBL game last night, 7-5. The losers, however, outhit Picton, 11-9 but committed costly errors. Greer went the route for Picton on the mound and Brady for Napanee. Four hundred fans attended.

For Picton, ball homered in the eighth with none on; Hayden got three singles; Desiauriers, a double; MacDonald two singles; Wardbaugh, Zachlo, singles. For Napanee, Jacko led the hitters with a triple and a double; Murphy, a double; Turner, Monroe, each two singles; Dean, Markle, Brady, Hayes singles.

Greer fanned five while Brady whiffed two.

Pacer Pays $45.30 Surprises Self Owner, Bettors

Toronto, July 27 (CP)—Spud Volo, owned by John Pelley and son of Arnprior, Ont., upset a field of pacers, and the wagering public, in winning the eighth dash at Thorncliffe Raceway Thursday.

Spud Volo paid $45.30 for a $2 wager and he clipped nearly 12 seconds from his lifetime record as he skipped the mile in 2.13 3/5. The feature race was won by Majestic Brooke, Stanley Love's good mare from Milton, Ont. She won both heats of her race although she was barred from the wagering in her second trip. Jean Dillon, from the barn of J. J. Smith, Orangeville, was second in both trips and was the wagering-winner in the second dash.

CONDUCTOR'S SON BURNED

Sarnia, July 27 (CP)—Ross A. MacMillan, 27-year-old son of Sir Ernest MacMillan, conductor of the Toronto Symphony orchestra, is in hospital here, with caustic burns received at Dow Chemical of Canada Ltd., where he is employed as a chemical engineer, hospital authorities said Thursday. He will be released "within a few days."

Sport in Brief

Sid Hagopian, secretary of the minor softball association, said at Galt Thursday night the executive has taken action over the assault on Frank Dixon, 15-year-old umpire, last week.

Robert Holmes, acting coach of the Soper Park bantam team, who prevented a spectator from assisting the umpire, has been suspended indefinitely—for at least one year.

Charles Bechtel, manager of the Soper Park team, has been relieved of all duties pertaining to handling any team in the association for a year. The executive said he was unable to exercise the necessary control over the team because he could not give enough time to the job.

Mr. Hagopian said that the umpire's assailants were not members of the Soper Park team which lost a game on the night of the incident. In the attack Dixon suffered cuts and bruises to his face and body and a dislocated shoulder.

Officials blamed the trouble on the lack of capable men to coach teams. In some cases the coach is employed as a team members. There are only ten men in the association to look after 300 boys.

Tony Trabert of Cincinnati flashed a powerful all-round attack Thursday to eliminate Arthur Larsen, United States singles champion, 6-4, 4-6, 6-1, 6-2 in the quarter-finals of the Southampton, N.Y., invitation tennis tournament.

Budge Patty of Los Angeles, 1950 Wimbledon and French champion, defeated Conway Catton of San Francisco in the only other quarter-final match played. The score was 6-0, 6-3, 6-4.

In the men's doubles, Jerry De Witts and Whitney Reed, San Francisco, eliminated Brendan Mackey, Montreal and Lorne Main, Vancouver, in the second round 6-2, 6-2.

Henri Rochon of Montreal, teamed with W. Tulley of New York, moved into the third round with a 6-4, 9-7 victory over Jiro Kumamaru of Japan and Sidney B. Wood, New York.

Welterweight champion Kid Gavilan of Cuba signed Thursday to defend his title against Billy Graham of New York in Madison Square Garden, Aug. 29.

Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, said he considered the bout another step in clearing the way for an undisputed welterweight champion.

Gavilan won National Boxing Association and New York recognition as champion when he defeated Johnny Bratton of Chicago in a 15-rounder in the Garden on May 18. Bratton had won N.B.A. recognition as successor to Ray Robinson when he outpointed Charlie Fusari in Chicago.

Eagan would like the Gavilan-Graham winner to meet the European champion, Charles Humez of France so that an undisputed champion will reign.

The stork, a six-metre yacht piloted by Jerry Castle of the defending champion Rochester Yacht Club, won the opening race in the Silas George Cup races in Lake Ontario Thursday.

The stork was never headed and finished more than four minutes ahead of the Siree, a challenger from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto.

Baltimore fight promoter Benny Trotta Thursday named Jimmy Bivins of Cleveland the opponent for Joe Louis in a scheduled ten-round fight there Wednesday, Aug. 15.

The veteran 31-year-old Bivins has an impressive 12-year-ring record against competition from all levels. He lost a decision to Ezzard Charles in 1948.

SPRING MONTH

April is named from the Latin word aperio, to open, because it is the month in which flowers begin to bloom.

Buffalo Club Leads Field At Henley

By CECIL SMITH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Port Dalhousie, Ont., July 27—(CP)—Nine sculling championships are to be decided today at the third day of the 69th Royal Canadian Henley Regatta on the old Welland Canal.

The day's card, which also will include nine heats to qualify for Saturday's finals, will get under way at 4:00 p.m. EDT.

Buffalo West Sides yesterday racked up a total of 52 points to lead the record field in the team competition, the winner of which is awarded the Maple Leaf shield following the final events Saturday.

Toronto Dons placed second with 38½ points, followed by Fort William, Ont., and the Detroit Boat Club, both tied for third place with 25 points.

St. Catharines, defending team champions who have won the shield since it was first put up for competition in 1949, were in eighth place with six points.

Seven championships were decided in yesterday's 19-race card.

The West Sides picked up a big chunk of their total with championships in the junior 145-pound fours and the junior 135-pound fours.

Toronto Wins Two

Toronto Dons also won two championships—the junior 145-pound doubles and in the junior 155-pound fours.

Other championships went to Fort William, Ont., Detroit and Seattle.

Fort William copped the junior 165-pound fours championship, its crew finished about 10 open lengths ahead of the Detroit rowing Club entry. Wyandotte, Mich., was third, an open shell length behind Detroit.

Winnipeg's Derek Riley won the second heat of the association singles with a three-length margin over Charlie McIntyre of Seattle.

Walter Hoover, the 16-year-old Canadian and United States high school singles champion, won the junior singles under the colors of the Detroit Boat Club, and Seattle's Joe McIntyre won the quarter mile dash championship for his club.

Guest Catches Crab

McIntyre's victory in the quarter mile dash was the most thrilling of the day.

He led the race most of the way. Jack Guest, Jr., of Toronto Dons, favored to take the event, came within striking distance and then upset just as it appeared that he might overtake McIntyre.

Guest, taking long powerful strokes, is believed to have caught a crab which threw him head first into the canal.

Guest was pulled out of the water and taken to shore in the timer's boat.

Championships are to be decided today in the junior 145-pound eights; junior 145-pound singles; junior eights; high school doubles; association singles; junior 155-pound eights; open pair oars; junior doubles final, and the junior 135-pound eights.

HUGE TRAILER BUILT

Woodstock, Ont., July 27 (CP)—A local firm, Truck Engineering Ltd., has just built two trailers, believed the largest built in Canada. The trailers, each designed to hmaul 40 tons of pulpwood, are for Consolidated Paper Corporation on the island of Anticosti, at the mouth of the St. Lawrence River.

Maybe Fiery Jake Can Talk Himself Out of This One

Harrisburg, Pa., July 27—(AP)—Fiery-tongued Jake Mintz has an Aug. 1 date with the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission to decide whether he will be allowed to continue in boxing.

Mintz, manager of former heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles, was placed under immediate suspension at ring-side of last week's title fight after he protested loudly against the naming of an official.

Chairman George Jones, Jr., setting the date for the hearing yesterday, said "the actions of Mr. Mintz took place before all the sports writers and the 23,000 fans attending the bout. They were, in our judgment, detrimental to boxing . . . . . "

Mintz protested the naming of Charley Daggett of Philadelphia as a judge, holding up the fight 10 minutes.

Cat Adopts Rat

Vancouver, July 27—(CP)—Dopey, a black and white warehouse cat, must have been remorseful.

Five baby rats became orphans when she killed a large mother rat prowling the warehouse.

Now, the cat is feding one rat and two litters of kittens. The other four rats are dead.

Dopey is mothering her own litter and a second left by her daughter who died two weeks after their birth.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

TONIGHT THE NAPS!

The good right arm of young Johnny Mowat will be the superstar to watch away for the Bombay Redmen tonight at the Fair Grounds when the Men o' Wilson tangle with Joe Killoran's Napanee Athletics from Gibbardville.

* * *

The Redmen turned in an excellent effort the other night in Batawa against the Shoemen and all departments noted a distinct improvement over the last three or four tilts. The lads had their sights geared properly, for eleven hits boomed off their bludgeons with Sammy Mulholland getting a double and two singles and Pat Gilmour coming through with a trio of singles.

* * *

Willie Fordham found his pitching stride and the big fellow fashioned a fine effort letting the Shoemen down with epic clouts. Coach Wilson, although he will be without the services of Red Carson, Vern Goyer and Tom Buchanan tonight, feels the Reds will come through with a repeat win and erase a notch closer to the second-place Smiths-Falls Royals. Game at 8.30.

* * *

BIG CAR DRIVERS HERE TOMORROW

Lloyd Shaw, crack big-car race driver, who crashed through to a new half-mile record Wednesday night, will show his daredevil driving wares at the Speedway Fairland tomorrow afternoon. The Toronto driving ace roared his racer over the half-mile track in 30.2 seconds and he hopes to topple that mark tomorrow. He drives a Jaguar-motored job that really turns on the steam when on the straightaways. Also here among other well-known Toronto racing car drivers will be Pizzott Gimmy whose "beap" is powered with a brand new GMC motor. Drivers from New York State and Pennsylvania will be here contingent to customs regulations.

* * *

A large entry of district and Toronto stock cars has been assured, said Promoter Dick Summers today. Among the district drivers are Frank Andre and Warren Day, Kingston; the Cook Garage, Shamonville car, driven by Boyce Cook; Bobby Vesterfelt, Millltown; Mac Huddleson, Clarence Johnson and Jerry Ball of Belleville.

There should be plenty of thrills at the meet for it is the first and only time the big-car racers will be seen in action here. These cars are the genuine racing type, smaller than those that operate at the Indianapolis Speedway but larger than the midget racers. Their drivers are well-known in tracks in Canada and the United States and the racing faithful should enjoy one of the most exciting meets of the season. The first race gets under way at 2:30 sharp.

* * *

TWO FINE FELLAS!

This department is in receipt of several letters paying tribute to two of the Redmen baseball team members, Willie Fordham and Johnny Dean, for their outstanding efforts in coaching and looking after two minor baseball teams here.

Willie and Johnnie coach the Littlmer- and Ted Schwab-sponsored teams and are doing a grand job. Their interest in the boys does not stop at mere baseball instruction. The two likeable chaps have made it a point to become personal friends of each member of their respective clubs.

* * *

Needless to say, Johnny and Willie are the apple of the youngsters' eyes. Whenever they appear on the scene of competition all around them, call them by their first name and in miniature conduct a lot of hero worship.

* * *

Dean and Fordham think a lot of their youthful charges and are doing their best not only to impart baseball knowledge to them but to make them fine citizens. They are "just pals" as one youngster puts it. If you don't think Johnny and Willie are popular with their players take a stroll up to the field some night when they are playing and say something detrimental to their coaches. In less time than it'takes a mosquito to sting in fatso into a pulp piece of man-flesh, you'll have two dozen whirling dervishes about your ears and you'll be lucky if you escape with your shirt.

* * *

UNCALLED FOR!

Speaking of Johnny and Willie, there were a few vacuum-headed alleged human beings at the Redmen-Batawa game the other night in Batawa who threw slurring remarks at the Belleville battery. We do not know whence these nitwits came. They could be from here, Batawa, or any part of the district. That does not matter. The grand sportsmen that they are, and probably aware of the mental capacity of the punks that were airing their tonsils, Dean and Fordham paid no attention to the remarks.

This is supposed to be a democratic country. Here all men are equal regarliess of color, race or creed. But, it appears, some who were born with white skins regard those of the colored race as a target for inane, petty remarks and a butt for their self-made jokes. Thank heaven they are greatly in the minority. Their "witticisms" fall generally on the deaf ears of sane - thinking people. Their efforts are enjoyed only by those of the same calibre who, if given a brain, would still only have one.

* * *

And as a matter of warning, when in Picton last summer attending a baseball game, we overheard a smart alec make a slurring remark within hearing of Johnny Dean. When the S. A. came to, he picked up six teeth, peered through the remaining eye and shambled off home.

MIKE AND THE "ZEBE"

Tonight at Memorial Arena handsome Mike Sharpe clashes with the Holstein Hercules, known to the trade as the "Zebra". Whatever those stripes conceal otherwise, it must be said that "Zebe" is quite a hunk of wrestler who cares nothing for the rules and-ears as laid down in the wrizzle-rip textbooks, but only for victory no matter how he achieves it. And he's quite a hand at using a rip-post to emphasize a point; a little unjudicious squeezing of the opposition's jugular, which is an old wheeze; a bit of siring perhaps, or a piece of unemployed steel rafter, if it is within grasp. Mike, however fears these things not the least. He is confident he will rip the facial camouflage off the map of the "Zebe"—and that we must see. Brother Ben meets Tommy O'Toole in the semi-final while Pat Flanagan tangles with Lou Sjoberg in the opener.

JOHNNY MOWAT ... gunning for fifth.

SAM MULHOLLAND ... Good hit, plenty field.

CHUCK REEVES ... shifty shuffler at short.

Yankee Clipper's 'Old Snap' Gone But Joe Feels It's Only On Leave

By JOE REICHLER

New York, July 27 (AP)—Joe DiMaggio sat in front of his locker, stripped of his uniform, puffing absent-mindedly on a cigaret. He was alone except for a close friend.

In other parts of the dressing room, teammates talked about Wednesday's dramatic 3-1 victory over Cleveland Indians.

DiMaggio watched silently for a while, then said: "The boys have been in a hitting slump. Maybe I should talk about myself only. I haven't been doing anything to help the club. I just can't seem to buy a base hit."

(He went hitless in three official times at bat yesterday when Cleveland beat the Yanks 2-1).

A guy asked:

"What's the matter, Joe?"

"I'm not getting the old snap into my swing," he answered.

DiMaggio cocked his wrists and went through an imaginary swing. "Right here," he said, looking at his doubled fists as he finished the swing. "I just don't seem to give it that old follow through.

Swinging Late

"Up around here, too," he continued, drawing his right hand across his chest from one shoulder to the other, "I haven't been able to make the bat come around as quick as I used to."

Someone suggested that maybe he was swinging late and hitting at bad balls.

"Yes, I am swinging late," Joe said. "But it's not because I'm biting at bad balls. Oh, I'll go for a ball one now and then. But most of the time, they're right down the middle. I see them coming and set myself. But when I swing, the ball shoots right up at me."

What did he intend to do about the situation?

"Beat it." Joe answered without hesitation. "I'm going to beat it. I'm going to keep swinging until I get the old snap back. It will come back to me. I know it."

Rhawn Homers But Leafs Lose To Chiefs 10-2

(By The Associated Press)

Bills Donnelly, the Utica baseball artist who used to work for the Cards, Phils and Braves, lost a ball game sitting on the bench last night. Then he went out to pitch a five-hitter for a 6-1 Baltimore victory over Montreal.

The loss came when the clubs finished out a suspended game on June 24 by playing the final inning of a scheduled seven-inning game. Donnelly, who started the game a month ago, was the official loser as Montreal held its 3-1 lead through the final inning.

Donnelly had a platoon in the regular game until Mike Gollat dropped Ruks Kerns' throw on an easy double play chance in the ninth. Bob Alexander was nicked for Baltimore's

Vollmer Blasts Three Homers In Wide-Open Batting Spree; Bob Feller Racks Up 15th Win

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

With Clyde Vollmer, blazing Boston Red Sox chick hitter, it seems to be a home run or nothing.

Vollmer, a powerful six-footer, hit three homers yesterday against Chicago in a 13-10 victory that boosted his club within two percentage points of first place in the American League.

Since Clyde started to find the range about three weeks ago, he has hit 11 home runs in 18 games. During that period he has had a total of 21 hits—so exactly half have been over the wall.

Vollmer may be the difference between also ran and pennant for the Red Sox. Because Cleveland finally won a game at Yankee Stadium, clipping the league-leading New York Yanks 9-4, Vollmer's big bat was a very important factor in the pennant race.

His third of the day came with two on in the sixth and the score tied 10-10. Earlier he hit one with one on in the first and nobody on in the fifth for a total of six runs batted in. He now has 17 for the season.

"Dumo" Marching On

While the American League tightened, the National opened up every time the leaders moved. Only 9½ games in front of idle second-place New York on a 9-1 victory over Chicago.

The Phillies moved within a half game of the three places Cincinnati or St. Louis for the second straight night, 7-0. Ken Johnson did the job with seven hits.

Vollmer's hitting was the big news of the Thursday scores, however, in that wild slugfest at Fenway Park that produced a total of 21 hits.

Ellis Kinder, long a Chicago jinx, pushed his 17th straight over the White Sox with a scoreless relief job for the last 3 1-3 innings. He won the last of four Boston pitchers. Harry Dorish, fourth Chicago thrower, took the loss.

First To Win 12

Bobby Feller became the first major leaguer to win 15 in Cleveland's success at Yankee Stadium but he wasn't around at the finish. Feller gave way for a pinch hitter in the sixth while leading 3-4. Homers by Cliff Mapes, Johnny Mize and Yogi Berra chipped away most of his early lead. Lou Brissie held the fort the rest of the way.

Willie Reynolds was tagged with his sixth loss when Cleveland bolstered its lead with three more in the sixth.

George Kell, Dick Kryhoski and Pat Mullin lit into Washington pitchers for three hits each as Detroit's 6-3 win. The Tigers hopped on reliefer Mickey Harris for three in the eighth to give Dizzy Trout his fourth win.

Mel Batts' two-run homer in the fifth helped St. Louis Browns to a 6-4 edge over Philadelphia A's in a night game. Catcher Sherm Lollar of the Browns was lost for an indefinite period when spiked on the right hand by Eddie Rost trying to score in the third.

Newcombe Wins 14th

Big Don Newcombe won his 14th and ninth in a row over Chicago Cubs as the Dodgers bolstered their lead. Roy Campanella hit his 17th homer with a man on in eighth.

Johnson survived a fit or wildness in the first three innings when he walked five to blank the Cardinals. It was his second win and second shutout.

New York and Pittsburgh were idle but Boston trounced Cincinnati and Brooklyn take over fifth place. Vern Bickford was in control until the ninth when he was replaced by Roy Chipman after two runs were in and two out.

May Bar Umpire From Baseball

Napanee — Hotly - disputed umpiring added to the bitter taste of defeat for the Napanee Athletics here Monday night as the Batawa Shoemen trounced them 13-4 in a Central Baseball League fixture. Players and fans both converged on Umpire-in-Chief Tom Poinier of Batawa, and Base Umpire Roy Mack of Napanee, after the game and Mack was accused of thumbing his nose at the stands after a disputed decision.

One of those witnessing the game, Robert Y. Smith of Napanee, a member of the Ontario Baseball Association executive afterward said that he intends to see that Mack is barred from umpiring in organized baseball in future.

Well, It Was a Good Try

London, Ont., July 27—(CP) Mystery man of Wednesday's opening play at the Ontario Amateur golf championships at the London Hunt and Country Club was an earnest young man who turned up at the first tee, plunked a ball in the river, teed up another and eventually wound up with a 10. He was requested to leave right there.

Identity of the golfer was a puzzle. He apparently named one of the Toronto clubs as his home course. At any rate, he was duly registered and selected.

Eyes in the gallery popped when the quiet young man strolled over to the first tee—overlooking the curving Medway Creek—with a bag containing exactly four clubs. Few tournament players tote less than the allowed maximum of 14.

Venerable Relics

Two of the clubs were hickory-shafted woods—venerable relics of an early era in golf. The other two were steel-shafted irons, also of respectable age. But you don't query a tournament golfer about his equipment. After all, he might have something.

It became apparent from his first practice swing that here was, indeed, an unorthodox golfer. More polite silence followed a wild round-house cut in the air as the gallery pressed closer, hmm, here was something different.

It was. After the horrible fate of his first drive, the stranger hit his second short, but on the fairway. His succeeding shots dribbled the ball toward its objective until he holed out triumphantly for his 10.

Officials were available him at the green with the polite offer of a refund of his entry fee which was courteously declined.

When the day's play ended, the young man was seen trudging along the highway, toting his four clubs.

What Goes On? Deke in Fold Coach Not Fussy

(By The Canadian Press)

Al Dekdebrun, brilliant import quarterback who walked out on the dominion champion Toronto Argonauts Tuesday, may rejoin the team today. It depends on coach Frank Clair.

"I want to be sure I'm doing the right thing," said Clair, "After all, Al did walk out on us and I've got to be sure his absence is good. So I told him I wanted to think the thing over."

Dekdebrun drove from his Buffalo, N. Y., home Thursday and met Clair and club president Bob Moran. He agreed to accept his original contract, signed three months ago.

Fight on Hands

The 27-year-old quarterback, whose daring field play sparked Argos to Grey Cup victory last season split with his team over a salary disagreement.

If he comes back, he will have a fight on his hands to retain no. 1 quarterback spot on the club, Clair said.

"We've acquired a pretty good boy from Miami University (Oxford, Ohio and he'll give Al a good fight for the job." Clair said the newcomer, Norbert (Pinky) Wirkowski, led Miami to the Salad Bowl championship last year.

'Hot' Plug Hooks Record 66-Pound King Salmon

Seattle, July 27 — (AP) — A "hot" plug was credited today with boating of a 66-pound king salmon off Hopp Island in northern Puget Sound.

The 66-pounder was the largest ever recorded for Puget Sound or Washington waters via sports fishing.

The plug, a yellow Rosegard, has belonged to Mrs. Hazel Miller for years. Three weeks ago she handed it to her husband Kingwith it.

Wednesday night her hubband, Maurice Miller of Seattle, trolling with her in their cruiser in the channel off Hope Island, borrowed the fabled plug "under protest."

The lordly king socked it, and 30 minutes later was gaffed.

Fancied Amateurs Remain in Play In Golf Tourney

London, Ont., July 27—(CP)—Most of the pre-tournament choices remained in the running today as eight golfers from five cities teed off in the third round of play for the Ontario Amateur Golf Championship.

Two rounds of 18 holes today will reduce the field to two contestants who will meet Saturday in the finals.

Here it the slate for today's third round:

Gerry Kesselring, Kitchener-Waterloo, vs. Don Varey, Brantford.

Doug McKellar, Toronto Scarboro, vs. Phil Farjey, Toronto Scarboro.

Dick Nash, London Hunt Club, vs. Moe Norman, Kitchener Rockway.

Emerson Creed, London Hunt Club, vs. Nick Weslock, Windsor Essex.

Weslock, defending champion, had the toughest time Thursday when he was extended to the 20th hole before disposing of Hugh Smith of Guelph.

One down at the 18th, Weslock took the hole when Smith's second shot landed in the river. They were even on the 19th and on the 20th Westlock had Smith stymied. The Guelph golfer tried to chip in but just missed. Earlier in the second round with Weslock, Smith had made an impressive comeback, pulling even on the 14th after being five down at one point.

Kesselring, 22-year-old favorite, had little difficulty beating Sonny Varey defeated Ed Nerlick of Toronto summit by the same score, and Norman won three and two over George Kluck of Windsor.

Movie Column

By JACK QUIGG
(For Bob Thomas)

Hollywood, July 27. (AP)—Try to imagine what Paradise is like. That will give you an idea of Navy Island."

Patrice Wymore was describing the tiny isle off Jamaica where she and Errol Flynn, the screen's perpetual Don Juan, make their vacation home.

It has been five months since the blonde actress and Flynn wound up their honeymoon with an eight-week stay on the pleasure spot in the Caribbean. Now she says she "Can't wait to return".

"I couldn't understand Errol's enthusiasm for the place," she said. "But when we arrived I guess I liked it better than he."

She said Navy Island, which Errol bought after the war, is 80 acres. There are groves of coconut and banana palms, and sheep now graze on meadows that were swamps before Flynn had them drained.

Life at Sea?

Miss Wymore said they lived, not ashore, but on Errol's palatial yacht Zaca.

How did they spend their time?

"We did nothing, really," she said, "but we were occupied every minute. We usually packed a lunch and went to our private beach on the far side of the island.

"We fished and swam and sailed a small boat. Several times we rode on a bamboo raft down the rapids of a river on Jamaica.

"Mornings we rode horseback around the island. On Sunday afternoons we would go to port Antonio on Jamaica and rent a horse and buggy."

A Farmer Yet

"Errol," she said, "takes such an interest in doing things. I think it's wonderful. He's starting a game farm—phesant, quail and partridge—so we can have shoots."

He also invovtes a good bit of time to supervising improvements on a 3,200-acre plantation he bought on the nearby Jamaica coast. He is trying to develop a breed of cattle suitable for the tropics.

Talk of doubles is never complete without some reference to a penalty pass. Like cake it seems to lack something until frosting is added. (Or do you bake frosting and add the cake?)

A double may be for penalty. This says it can defeat that final bid named by opponent. Since it advises that opponent bid can be defeated, it asks partner to pass. Obviously.

A double may be for takeout. This asks partner to bid something if next opponent does not intervene with a bid. Since it makes such a request, partner must bid something no matter what he has.

In answer to a takeout double the general idea is that partner must show his longest or best suit. If the hand of doubler's partner is weak, discovery of his best suit may help the doubler defend.

Under such circumstances, the assumption is that partner of the doubler has a hand too weak to help defeat the opponent bid. So, a pass by such partner would permit opponents to make the doubled bid.

It is a rule, therefore, that a doubler's partner must bid if no opponent bid intervenes to relieve him of the responsibility. The "must," however, has a proviso.

"Times are when partner of doubler has enough to help scuttle the opponent bid. If so such partner may pass. Such a pass turns the takeout double into a penalty double.

South made an opening bid of one heart. West doubled. This was a takeout double that asks partner to bid. North passed. And he did cast pass with the hand you see here:

♠9 5 —
♥Q J 9 8 5
♦K 6
♣8 4 3

East knew that he was ordered to bid something. The fact that he did not obey the order said he could defeat one heart. It was a penalty pass of a takeout double. The foe is now surrounded.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

FRIDAY, JULY 27, 1951 (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Saturday, July 28

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—More care needed in most matters pertaining to money, property, business, employment. However, no worrying. Don't shirk tedious tasks, pitch in and show your true mettle.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Some precautions required a.m. mostly in confidential affairs, travelling, shipping, money matters. Don't take things in your own hands without knowing the facts, methods. Avoid disputes.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Balance your day with smiles, cooperation, especially in work and at home. Care in promotions. Be moderate in your demands, but hold to principles. Respect others' rights.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Day offers wide scope for at least some success. The unusual, far-reaching things you've wanted to try are on favored list. Of course check for soundness value of subject.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—Some new benefits in industrial and mechanical matters, new contracts offered, sound investments. But double check. Romance holds an important spot for someone near.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Excellent financial influences for tries within reason of your ability to handle. Can achieve more if you concentrate on essentials first. Direct most energy where it really belongs.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Some sensible aggressive action can put over things which may fail otherwise. You have folks need very little advice, but you must watch trend of your chart, your opportunities.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Concentrate sufficiently on personal, family, civic affairs. In private matters, taxes, investments, planning for tomorrow—get details in order. Moderation, caution urged all day.

November 22 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—More generous for miners, carpenters, painters, agricultural workers than for many others now. Hospitals, helpful organizations correcting errors among firsts. Heart interests? Go easy.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Your planets' rays stir forethought of the aggressive restraint of the untamed. Be sensibly careful working with tools, machines, furnaces, in transportation. Help others where you can.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)— You should enjoy day with its sound restraints and widely slower pace. Time to think study, read! Good for analyzing, research, careful management. Attend to your personal affairs, too.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Today can be difficult if you tend to be irritable, impatient or over-demanding. But you won't. On the serene side, fairness makes problems dissolve, gains come easier.

YOU BORN TODAY: Bright, interesting. Great energy, ability to do things well once you get rightly into the swing. Are good-natured, make good leaders in business, professional life. Have certain gifts for music, art; are original, imaginative. May want your way too often; control this, it only loses friends, makes loved ones unhappy. Remember, the truly great are always humble. Say a prayer for accomplishment, and recognize others' attributes quickly. Steady work and application big aids.

Birthdate: Alexander Dumas, the younger, French novelist. Joe E. Brown, actor, comedian; Rudy Vallee, singer.

DOWNPOUR MAKES U.N., COMMUNIST FORCES WORK TOGETHER

The sudden rain and subsequent floods that prevented allied negotiators from going to Kaesong on July 20 had one good effect. It caused a co-operative effort by communist and U.N. forces to repair a bombed bridge over the Kaesong River so that the U.N. caravan might continue. Left shows the U.N. vehicles after the rain, which caused the river to rise one foot in a few minutes, stranding the vehicles in the middle of the river. U.N. and communist workmen intermingle, right, to render a nearby bridge passable. — (Central Press Canadian.)

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

At the clink of the phone calls and Gretel said, "Some women come out their kids for tea. Kids dumkopfs on the shoulder for half an hour, and then they're worse than the kids." Lucilla got as finished as if she'd been hanged in the Divine Angie; guilt, or rage, flamed equally fast inside her.

Gretel's snuffle had never sounded nastier. She served wiener schnitzel twice in one week, and banana strudel, which she knew very well Lucilla loathed. Lucilla ate even the strudel, but it tasted heavy as a bludgeon, and in a way, it was.

Arthur used no bludgeons, and he didn't actually snuffle, but his sinus got worse, and his mind felt so clogged as his nasal passages. With bafflement over his wife's behavior. The pangs, the expectantly cincoined face, the bright fixed smile—in a way they were all familiar. The Rubdub officer were in the same building as an agency handling photographers' models, and he often saw the glamorous young creatures in the elevator. They had never seemed real to him, in the sense that he never felt any urge toward them, any more than he felt an urge to leap on the stage at a movie to try to catch a celluloid Betty Grable.

One minute he'd be sitting with the glossy new Lucilla wanting to ask her why her undershirts had shrunk in the armholes, but headshot of discussing so mundane a matter with so soignee a wife. The next minute he might be staring at the Lucilla who frightened him even more, walking up the wall, or rolling her head in circles.

Once he found Lucilla standing in her stocking feet with a book on the floor before her, and she was turning the pages with her feet. Moreover, she seemed as engrossed as if she were reading. "Is that an eye exercise?" he remarked.

It had blown all the reasonable words out of his head. "For heaven's sake, what next?"

"Kneecap," Lucilla said, flexing her toes to turn another page. He had retreated with damp palms.

Once he thought he'd come across a sure-fire item to rouse her interest. "I see where that friend of yours—Mool—Rodney Mool—is going to produce 'I Married a Borgia' in Rome." He waited for a spurt of genuine livelihood to cross her mask-face, but all he got was, "Yes, I've heard it for quite a while."

Arthur wasn't a suspicious man, and it was perhaps a sign of his complete trust in his wife that he'd never had to tell himself, "I trust her." But now he found himself saying, "Do you hear from Mool often?" Lucilla looked at him oddly, and said, "I haven't heard from Rodney since he went to Hollywood 13 years ago, before I met you."

She went on in a more natural tone, "If you like, we can ask him down for a drink the next time he's in New York."

Ordinarily Arthur might have said simply, "It's okay by me, I guess," meaning he'd try to endure a couple hours with a Hollywood character who made terrible movies. But since this wasn't ordinary, he said with an almost indecent show of enthusiasm, "Good idea. Let's watch the papers and see when he's coming to town."

Partly because he was being so nice, and also because she remembered that the check she'd made out to Beautiful-You was due on the next bank statement, she came near telling him about the school right then.

Miss Meadows announced that Beautiful-You welcomed husbands, sweethearts and families at the graduation exercises "to see you in a stunning array of triumph." Mrs. Varney let the cat out of the way by announcing that hers was coming. This gave her classmates a stick to wield at home: "If Mrs. Varney's husband is coming, why can't your come too?" One by one, the married contingent reported success.

Miss Thumbold had invited the captain of her college hockey team and an aunt. About the reception for which her New You was to have been delivered ahead of schedule, she was oddly reticent, even after it was over. But Mrs. Colps had found Miss Thumbold crying in the Depilatory Room. "It was the wedding reception for the brother of the captain of her hockey team." Paris and Mrs. Colps figured out that Miss Thumbold had been in love with the brother. "That's why she wanted to be thin for his wedding."

Lucilla, who had made a note of it as a tidbit to feed Derek, said: "What did she expect him to do—slit the bride and run off with her instead?"

She was annoyed when Mrs. Colps said seriously, "No, all she wanted was to look as nice as she could. I kind of admire her for trying so hard."

ABBOTT SURPLUS TEN TIMES ORIGINAL PLANS

Three-Month Total Is $336,445,157

Ottawa, July 28 — (CP) — The federal government, budgeting for a 1951-52 surplus of $30,000,000 piled up a surplus of $336,445,157 in the first three months of the fiscal year, it was disclosed Friday night.

The monthly treasury report, issued by the office of Finance Minister Abbott who is on holidays, states that revenues totalled $886,638,602 and expenditures $330,293,451 in the three-month period.

In 1950-51, Mr. Abbott budgeted for a surplus of $15,000,000 and wound up with one of $203,456,000.

In his budget speech last April 10, Mr. Abbott estimated 1951-52 revenues at $5,000,000,000 and expenditures at $5,700,000,000. When treasury reports for the first and second months of the year indicated that his estimated surplus of $30,000,000 would be greatly exceeded, he sounded a note of caution.

He said expenditures in the latter part of the fiscal year likely would wipe out much of the surplus built up in the early months.

That Was All For Red Rag

Havana, Cuba, July 28. (AP) The Cuban government revealed how "persuasive measures" induced the Russian Embassy to cease publication here of its communist propaganda magazine.

"The embassy was asked," said Interior Minister Lomberto Diaz, "if in Russia, those who opposed the regime there would be permitted to publish a similar magazine.

"The embassy's answer was: "let them try it!"

"We then told the Russian Embassy: "Well, you can try continuing publication of your magazine."

"It hasn't appeared since."

WAR ODDS SHORTENED

New York, July 28 (CP) — Lloyds of London indicated today they believe the odds against war have shortened in the last six months.

Odds against war within the next 20 days were set at 15 to one in an insurance policy issued by the New York antiques fair to cover possible cancellation of the show.

TWO INCHES RAIN

Kitchener, July 28 (CP)—Almost two inches of rain fell here in about an hour Friday, one of the heaviest on record. Exact measurement was 1.97 inches. Flooding was caused at hundreds of intersections throughout Kitchener and Waterloo.

It brought rainfall for July to 7.58 inches, third heaviest month on record.

BRITISH CABINET CALLED FOR OIL DISCUSSIONS

Harriman Hopeful Solution Can be Found

London, July 28 — (AP) — W. Averell Harriman flew in from Tehran today and told reporters he thought the Iranian oil crisis could be solved if Britain agrees to Iran's proposals for reopening negotiations.

"I am hopeful that proposals that the Iranian government have made will form the basis of the two governments getting together," he said. "I am personally quite confident that if negotiations can be re-established, a satisfactory solution would be worked out."

Harriman, President Truman's international "trouble shooter," has been in Tehran trying to bring Iran and Britain together to discuss the dispute over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's properties. Last Tuesday the Iranian government, through Harriman, offered for the first time to negotiate the crisis with the British government. A previous negotiation attempt by directors of the billion - dollar company broke down after one meeting.

Explanations Wanted

"I have come to London," Harriman told reporters, "as there seems to be some questions on which the British government wanted clarification from the Iranian government. I felt it would be easier to personally discuss them than by telegram."

He was accompanied on the flight by Sir Francis Shepherd, British Ambassador to Iran.

Prime Minister Attlee also summoned an emergency meeting of all his ministers for this afternoon and ordered the top men and their advisers to stand by for a round of conferences which may continue through the weekend.

Reds Want 38th Parallel, UN Along Present Front

No Hint That Either Side Prepared to Give Ground

U.N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 28 — (AP) — United Nations and communist cease-fire teams clashed head-on today over the thorny problem of a military buffer zone across the Korean peninsula.

Gen. Nam Il, chief red envoy, stated the red position "with more force and verve than on any previous occasion," an eyewitness said.

But at the end of two hours and 25 minutes, both sides held stubbornly to their earlier positions.

The reds want the buffer line along the 38th parallel. The U. N. insists want it along the present battle lines.

Both Sides Firm

At Tor Pora Belig-Gen. Zillis P. Nuckols, who attended today's three sessions, said there was no indication of an area of agreement.

Both sides refused to budge.

A heavy rain hammered down on the former Kaesong restaurant as the grim negotiators faced each other across the green-topped conference table.

The atmosphere in the room was officially described as "cool military formality."

The phrase was not elaborated, but it recalled a description of the first meeting of Italian officers in the same room July 8.

Col. Andrei J. Klimov said the tone of that first meeting was "military courtesy — a cold way of not being exactly hostile."

Nuckols said the positions of the two sides today were "reasonably clear-cut, but there is a considerable difference between the positions."

Nam Forceful

Concerning Nam, Nuckols said, "I wouldn't say he was belligerent, but he certainly was forceful."

The delegates presumably will return to the knotty question in tomorrow's meeting — the 131th — scheduled to start at 11 a. m. (6 p. m. EDT, Saturday).

There was no hint today that either side was prepared to give ground, or offer a compromise. Such a move usually comes later if talks threaten to break down.

Nuckols stressed that the discussions have been essentially a restatement of points made previously. Little, if any, real progress is being made.

The negotiators may decide to drop the buffer problem for the time being and pass on to other points of the agenda.

But they do, they may find those points just as hard to solve.

Still to be discussed are: (1) truce arrangements to end the shooting, and supervise the truce, (2) arrangements for an exchange of prisoners and (3) recommendations to the governments of countries concerned on both sides.

This last problem would involve

Police Seek Brutal Torturer Of Young Boy

Mount Vernon, O., July 28. (AP) —A nine-year-old boy—his body covered with burns that may have been sadistic torture—was found hanging unconscious head down from a tree Friday.

Dallis Popham, 18, found the lad, his brother, John, about 100 yards from their home six miles north of Mount Vernon.

Deputy sheriffs said they sought a man who drove a car near the spot shortly before John was found.

At hospital a doctor said the burns might have been made by the cigaret lighter. They seared one foot, the forehead and both palms. A shoe was burned through.

TRAPPED IN CAR

Kitchener, July 28 (CP)—John Berwick, 22, sat trapped in his automobile for 30 minutes Friday night while crackling power lines burned from the size of quarters in the hood. Two high-tension wires criss-crossed over Berwick's car after another car crashed into a supporting pole. Berwick was treated at hospital for shock when the power was finally turned off.

clude the red demand for a withdrawal of all foreign troops.

Miles Apart

Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, chief UN. negotiator, gave the Allied stations' position on the buffer zone in a 52-minute speech yesterday.

When Nam presented the communist view today, Nuckols said he was "more obviously emphatic than before."

The two truce teams are miles apart in their view as to the buffer zone.

The present battle lines, where the U.N. wants the line to be drawn, is 35 miles deep into red territory at the west. It averages about 20 miles deep on the central front, and dips south below the parallel only on the east.

In addition to the buffer zone across the Korean peninsula, the envoys also may discuss a three-mile naval neutral zone offshore. United Nations warships have a almost complete control of the seas, particularly on the east coast where they have pounded Wonsan incessantly.

While the negotiators talked behind closed doors, Kaesong and Seoul made no secret of their feelings.

Want Unification

They paraded through the downtown area, carrying placards and shouting slogans demanding an armistice which would unify the country.

The U.N. wants the buffer along the present lines primarily for military purposes. Allied commanders say the present line offers better defensive positions in case the reds use the cease-fire only as a breathing spell in which to build up their forces for another attack.

The reds want the buffer zone along 38 for two reasons: It would force the U.N. allies to withdraw from hard-won ground, and it would again give the reds control of all north Korea.

Holdup Men Streamline Bank Robbery, Walkie-Talkie Used

Bradford, Ont., July 28. (CP) — A well-organized band of hold-up men used a walkie-talkie radio to outwit police in their getaway after robbing the Bank of Commerce of $4,200 here Thursday.

This disclosure was made by police Friday night after they found a wireless telephone set during a house-to-house search for the gang in downtown Toronto.

"We know these men are local thugs," said Inspector John Nimmo of the Provincial Police. They are well organized and have taken to using radio communication in an attempt to outwit police."

While the search shifted to Toronto, 25 miles south of Bradford, Ontario Provincial Police maintained road blocks throughout this area, checking automobiles.

One suspect was picked up in Toronto yesterday and booked on a charge of vagrancy while his alleged abettors were checked.

(The Canadian Press reported erroneously earlier that four suspects had been arrested.)

The bandits escaped from the bank with a sack of bullets after scooping up the money from a teller's cage.

Discovery of the walkie-talkie tipped police to the escape method used by the gang.

First it had been thought only three men took part in the robbery, but it is believed there was a fourth man never seen by the bank employees.

Police believe the fourth man was in a second getaway car parked some distance from the bank. He was probably in position to watch the roads to and from the bank and advise his companions by walkie-talkie of the best escape route.

Place Fire Loss at $500,000 As Lumber Blaze Razes Village

Mount Brydges, Ont., July 28— (CP) — Five companies of firemen, aided by civilian volunteers, fought a desperate, but losing struggle to save this village early today when a fire swept through a lumber yard, levelling a two-storey planing mill, a warehouse, several barns and valuable stocks of lumber.

The fire started in the planing mill of Mount Brydges Lumber Company Ltd., shortly after 7 a.m. and at its peak threatened the entire community.

Firemen, concentrating on confining the flames, poured water on nearby barns, houses and a grist mill. All buildings in the ward, two nearby barns and large stock piles of lumber were reduced to rubble and ashes before the flames were brought under control.

$500,000 Loss

Unofficial sources placed the loss at close to $500,000 which was partly covered by insurance.

The latest hooting of a C.N.R. freight train roused the community to action about 2.15 a.m. The train engineer apparently spotted the fire as the freight sped past the lumber yard.

It alerted Frank Hoover in his home 200 yards from the yard. Hoover relayed the alarm to Mrs. Arley Butler, night operator on the village telephone switchboard, who sounded the fire siren.

When Mount Brydges' volunteer fire brigade arrived, one end of the planing mill was ablaze. Within 15 minutes, flames had a fiery shell and flames had leaped across a 25-foot roofed roadway to the yard and touched off a warehouse and office building opposite.

Burned Like Kindling

Packed with sash pine, and clapboard the warehouse burned like kindling.

Barney Barrowcliffe, assistant chief of the Mount Brydges Brigade, was overcome by the intense heat. He was revived in the office of Dr. V. V. Pardy with oxygen and later returned to the fire.

Firemen from London, Strathroy, Delaware and Glencoe by this time had arrived in response to calls for assistance. At times firemen had to turn hoses on one another as heat scorched their faces and started to melt oilskins.

Fanned by a steady breeze the blaze spread rapidly from the warehouse eastward down the lumber yard to another storage barn and stacks of lumber. Flames were licking the metal walls of a grist mill at the eastern end and had crept within 15 yards of St. Jude's Anglican Church, when the light breeze changed direction, fanning flames back toward their path of destruction.

She was identified as Mrs. Hilda Krianger, 46, of New York.

Earlier reports said the woman broke both legs when she and world-famous Swiss alpinist Otto Furrer fell 200 feet down the Italian side of the mountain. Furrer was killed.

The woman spent Thursday night lying in shallow crevasse in 20-below-zero temperature and howling winds. She was about 13,000 feet up.

Communist Cruelties to Children Part of 'Guesswork' Hospital Care

Vienna, July 28 — (AP) — A little boy convalescing from scarlet fever was found lying on his stomach in his hospital bed, his hands tied behind his back.

The nurse said he was being "disciplined."

The communists admit that such cruelties sometimes go on in their hospitals. Their newspapers also admit starting neglect and carelessness.

The official Hungarian newspaper Szabad Nep, for instance, reported these "grave mistakes" at the Stalin Children's Hospital in Budapest:

"Nurses wake up the infants at 4 a.m. to bathe them or take their temperatures, claiming they cannot tidy up the wards during morning medical visit unless they do so. . . . the statistics showing the development and progress of the children is written in the charts just by guesswork . . . the doctors do not know that the nurses go over from one section for infectious diseases to another, visiting each other.

"The other day, Nurse Agnes Pacnik just ran over from the scarlet fever ward to the diphtheria ward to borrow penicillin . . . ."

In Bulgaria, often you can get an ambulance to take you to a hospital only if you are a communist of know a communist.

Sofia News newspaper Robotnichesko Delo said this happened to a worker named Adonoff, member of a co-operative store:

"Two days after his return to work from an operation, Adonoff got worse. When the hospital was called, the hospital director promised to send an ambulance. But the car did not come.

"When new calls were made to the hospital, there was no reply. Adonoff's wife went to the hospital called. But they said they could not send an ambulance because the patient was not from their district. The district physician at Topolovgrad was called, and he said the patient must help himself.

"Finally, through intervention of the district committee of the communist party, an ambulance was secured elsewhere."

Arrest Nine, Link Dope Ring With Luciano

New York, July 28—(AP)—Federal authorities in early today arrested eight men and a woman described as members of a $3,000,000-a-year French - Italian narcotics ring and dope ring.

Deported Vice King Charles (Lucky) Luciano was named as head of the Italian link of the alleged 19-member smuggling combine.

Seven of the men were arraigned early today after seizure of $600 in money with 15 ounces of $100,000 delivered to an undercover agent last night. Authorities said the bundle of fake 20 and 50 dollar bills, delivered in a cardboard suitcase by two men, was to be exchanged for $25,000 in real currency.

The seven were held in a total of $150,000 bail. A hearing was set for Aug. 10.

U.S. attorney Eugene F. Roth said the ring was receiving its drugs from merchant seamen

Kaesong Conference Room Marked By Quiet Formality of Delegates

(Editor's note: Correspondents are not permitted to attend the cease-fire talks at Kaesong, but information about the talks from sources affords the following Associated Press eye-witness account of the actual conference room scene.)

BY SAM SUMMERLIN

Kaesong, Korea, July 28 (AP) —The three North Korean and two Chinese communist cease-fire delegates always enter the conference room from the left.

The side delegation of five Americans and one South Korean enters from the right.

The middle of the room, 20 by 40 feet, is formed from three separate rooms, made possible by removing sliding doors.

The walls are papered. Overhead, a fan exposed beams.

In the centre of the room's middle section is the conference table. It is four feet wide, 20 feet long. The covering is a green billiard cloth, held down by thumb tacks.

Two small flags rest on brass stands on the table. One is the United Nations flag. The other is the flag of the North Korean reds.

Close by is a pitcher containing a brownish liquid, rumored to be tea. To date, no one has lifted a glass, turned upside down over the pitcher.

Straight-back chairs with slightly-padded seats accommodate the delegates. Facing each red delegate is a triangular brass nameplate bearing the name, engraved in English, of the red delegate opposite him.

Vice Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior U.N. delegate, sits opposite North Korean Gen. Nam Il, head red delegate.

U.N. staff advisers and stenographers sit at two tables in the south section of the room. Communist aides occupy the section to the north.

From the moment the delegates enter, the atmosphere in the room is tense. The delegates are quiet and formal. There is no exchange of pleasantries or passing of cigarets.

The discussions always begin without ceremony. Either Joy or Nam Il just starts talking. Except for interpreters, they do all the talking.

Each speaks only a few sentences at a time. Then there is a pause for translations.

7 Cars Involved In Accidents No One Injured

Seven motor vehicle accidents occurred in the city and district yesterday, according to provincial and city police departments.

Fortunately no one was injured and but little vehicular damage incurred. Slippery wet pavements were attributed to the minor crashes in the majority of cases.

A four-car crash occurred at the junction of the Repair Depot and Highway No. 2, yesterday afternoon. A car driven by E. Godecki, Trenton, turned toward the entrance when it was struck, police say by a car driven by John Sova, York Township, Toronto, who was endeavoring to pass the first vehicle.

Two cars driven by Joseph McCulloch, Toronto and Flight Lieut. Russe Boudrey, Trenton Air Station were involved in the following collision. The Sova car suffered some damage, the others slight. O.P.P. Constable E. L. C. Smith investigated.

In the city minor accidents which incurred fender damage mostly took place at the Bridge-Coleman Streets intersection; near the Belleview Hotel, at Station and Bleecker and Pinnacle and Campbell.

Three cars were involved in a fender denting collision three miles east of Trenton on No. 2 Highway.

All is Not Paint That Glistens Farmer Discovers

Farmers of the district are warned to be on the lookout for a transient, slip artist, who offers to paint barns with his spray-equipment.

According to a complaint registered at the Chamber of Commerce today the painter did a "job" for a district farmer. The barn was painted and the painter received his pay, $150.

Came the rains. When the farmer looked at his freshly painted barn following the storm, he noted with dismay that half the paint had gone with the rain. Another farmer was also rooked by the same method.

The "artist" who said he came from Hamilton had phony references. A check-up revealed that he was not listed in the Hamilton directory.

Chamber of Commerce officials urge farmers to check the background and references of people offering to do such work.

Nazi Daredevil Now Roams Free

Stuttgart, Germany, July 28 — (AP)—Former Nazi storm trooper Otto Skorzeny, who once rescued Benito Mussolini and later spearheaded the 1944 Ardennes counter-offensive, no longer has a wanted man on his head.

He flew in two days ago and apparently is regarded as just a tourist in West Germany today.

Police said they no longer want the scarfaced daredevil for escaping internment camp in 1948. He was scheduled for denazification prosecution as a "major Nazi offender."

Police confirmed a German warrant for Skorzeny's arrest as a fugitive expired six months ago and no action will be taken against him now. An American military court acquitted him of war crimes in 1947 after he spent two years in jail.

FUMES FROM PLASTIC KNOCK OUT 70 FIREMEN

Fighting this $150,000 fire in a downtown Toronto building where sheets of plastic were stored, firemen were overcome with fumes one after another, until 30 were unable to continue and another 40 had to receive oxygen treatment. Tons of water were poured into the building. — Central Press Canadian.

Department Washes Official Label off Officer's Accusation

Washington, July 28 — (AP) — The United...States Defence Department has washed the official label off a briefing officer's virtual accusation that the communists are framing a double-cross in Korea, but has not denied the officer's accusation.

And high authorities at Washington defence headquarters said they were unable to explain another major puzzle that developed yesterday — a statement by their chief, Defence Secretary George Marshall, that the United States plans to have 400,000 American troops in Europe in 1952.

That is nearly twice as many as previously indicated by Marshall who has said six divisions would be the American contribution to Europe's defences. His figure yesterday included 60,000 airmen.

Marshall was testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in support of the administration's $8,500,000,000 foreign economic and military aid program.

About the same time yesterday, an army briefing officer told newspaper men — without identifying the unit — that one good-sized United Nations combat unit in Korea had been withdrawn from the battle area and sent back to Japan. This was the first hint of such a move. All previous reports said that U.N. forces in Korea were organized at full strength for further combat, if necessary.

The officer went on:

"On May 16 the Chinese communists launched a major offensive . . . by May 23 the communist effort was broken and the Eighth Army moved immediately into counter-offensive . . . this was so effective that the Chinese communists were driven into confusion, losing over 100,000 men and suffering 40,000 prisoners. This was their most disastrous defeat . . .

"They were hanging on the ropes . . .

"Acting in good faith, the U. N. (after cease-fire talks were proposed) halted the advance . . . when in position to achieve even greater success.

"The picture since then has been one of constant and continuous (communist) build-up behind increased defences.

"There has been continuous and aggressive action all along the line.

"The enemy has moved south through Korea a far greater quantity of supplies than he needs to support forces during negotiations.

"Fresh Chinese communist units and thousands of individual replacements have moved in...

That stood as entirely official until last night.

Then Clayton Fritchey, information director for the defence department, stepped in with just enough cold water to wash the official label off. Fritchey told reporters:

The briefing officer's on - the - record statement "should not be construed as a defence policy or a change of policy, or a policy by the army chief of staff."

It was, Fritchey said, "simply an officer giving advice" to reporters and should be "judged only as a comment . . ."

But there was nothing in what Fritchey said that denied the accuracy of what the briefing officer said.

Simple Ceremony Marks Creation Of New Division

By BILL BOSS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With Canadians in Korea, July 28, (CP)—With simple ceremony, the First British Commonwealth Division came into being today.

As Brig. John M. Rockingham, commander of Canada's 25th Infantry Brigade, and commanders of the two other Commonwealth brigades which now are welded into a powerful divisional force stood at attention, Lt.-Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Eighth Army commander, and Divisional Chief Maj.-Gen. J. H. Cassell broke out the flags under which the new formation will fight.

They both involve the same shades of blue and white, one the United Nations flag, the other formation's banner using the same colors with "Commonwealth" across it in gold letters.

A senior officer from each division of the unit stood in the spectators' enclosure for a 20-minute ceremony which included addresses by Lt.-Gen. Sir Horace Robertson, Australian commander of the Commonwealth Occupation forces in Japan, Lt.-Gen. James Van Fleet, and Brig. Rockingham.

As the divisional banners were displayed, five masts directly behind were raised with ensigns of the five countries with troops in the Commonwealth division.

The Patricias, first Canadian unit to reach Korea, arrived at Pusan Dec. 19, 1950, four months after Prime Minister St. Laurent announced that Canada would recruit a special brigade of infantry and supporting arms as part of the United Nations force.

They fought as part of the 27th and 28th Commonwealth Brigade groups until the arrival of the remainder of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade group early last May, completing the British Commonwealth Brigade late that month while the other Canadian units completed their training.

In mid-June, the Patricias were united with the 2nd Battalion of the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Royal 22nd Regiment, the 2nd Field Regiment and the Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and the Lord Strathcona's Horse, an armored regiment, to form the Canadian brigade.

Obituary

JONES HODGEN
(Plainfield and Prince Edward)

Jones Hodgen, a former resident of this district, died at Griffin, Sask. on Wednesday last at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ivol Krdugar, with whom he resided.

The late Mr. Hodgen had reached a advanced age, being in his 89th year. He was born in Hunlington township and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Hodgen. The family eventually moved to Plainfield and after residing there for some time he settled in Prince Edward County and farmed there for several years prior to going to western Canada over 40 years ago where he took up land at Griffin, Sask. Here for many years he put much energy and forethought into the cultivation of his land and was very successful in his undertakings. He experienced unfavorable conditions and successive dry spells in his district, but was successful in overcoming to a satisfactory degree the adverse forces with which he had to contend. In the district where he made his home for over 40 years he was held in high regard. He was a member of the United Church, and supported worthy undertakings in the community and church. Old friends in his Parishes of Elzevir and in Prince Edward County will regret to learn of his death.

Surviving him are two sons, Harold Hodgen and Elmer Hodgen both of Halbrite, Sask.; two daughters, Mrs. Vera Price in the United States and Mrs. Ivol Krdugar of Griffin, Sask., one sister, Mrs. Ella Parliament of Belleville, and one brother, Stanley Hodgen of Bethany, Ontario. His wife the former Frances Craig died some years ago.

The funeral will be held at Griffin on Monday next.

Stories of Famous Hymns

Watchman, Tell Us of the Night

Watchman, tell us of the night,
What its signs of promise are;
Trav'ler, o'er yon mountain's height
See that glory beaming star!
Watchman, does its beauteous ray
Aught of hope or joy foretell?
Trav'ler, yes; it brings the day,
Promised day of Israel.

Watchman, tell us of the night;
Higher yet the star ascends;
Trav'ler, blessedness and light,
Peace, and truth, its course portends.

Watchman, will its beams alone
Gild the spot that gave them birth?
Trav'ler, ages are its own.
See, it bursts o'er all the earth.

Watchman, tell us of the night,
For the morning seems to dawn;
Trav'ler, darkness takes its flight;
Doubt and terror are withdrawn;
Watchman, let thy wand'ring cease,
Hie thee to thy quiet home!
Trav'ler, lo, the Prince of Peace,
Lo, the Son of God is come!

One day about a century ago, Sir Owen Bowring, distinguished English scholar and statesman, was travelling in Turkey and happened in on a Christian religious service. A group of missionaries was singing and reading, as he listened, Bowring was aware that the words of their song were those he had written, a decade or so earlier, at home in England.

"Watchman, Tell Us Of The Night" was the song the missionaries were singing and, until he heard it that day in the meeting overseas, Sir John had not realized that his verses had become a popular missionary hymn, which was being widely used, both at home and abroad.

He had published it in 1825 in a collection which included the hymn for which he always will be best remembered, "In The Cross Of Christ I Glory." The title line of the latter hymn was inscribed on his tombstone when he died, in 1873.

"Watchman, Tell Us Of The Night" was inspired by the Bible passage in Isaiah 21:11, Dr. Charles S. Robinson, authority on hymn histories, once wrote. The lows of 'the scene pictured in the hymn:

"The scene is laid in the midst of the Babylonian captivity. A lonely watchman is represented as standing on the ramparts of some tower along the defences of the citadel. He seems to be anxiously looking for the issues of the siege, levelled against it. The time is midnight. Calamity is over the land . . . Suddenly an unknown voice pierces the air, whether in wailing sorrow or in bitter taunt is not evident; but out of the stillness already grown oppressive breaks the questions with repetitious perinacity: 'Watchman, what of the night? Watchman, what of the night?' The sentinel waits tirough a moment of surprised meditation, and then tranquilly answers: 'The morning cometh and also the night: if ye will enquire, enquire ye: return, come.'"

Carry Gospel By Airplane In Far North

Hearst, Ont. — (CP) — Some 300 members of a Toronto church supplied the wings which are carrying religious teaching and aid to Indians and Eskimos in northern Ontario.

In August of last year the members and pastor, Rev. H. J. McAlister, of the Pentecostal Stone Church in Toronto raised $7,000 to purchase an airplane for Rev. John Spillenaar.

Mr. Spillenaar, of this town, a clergyman of the Pentecostal Church in Canada, has been known for many years for his missionary work in the northern part of the province, travelling by car, train and often by foot to outlying districts.

When "the flying minister" learned to fly in 1949 he was advised by Mr. McAlister that the Stone Church would supply him with a plane equipped with pontoons and wheels.

Other Pentecostal Churches in Canada contributed the cost of his flying lessons, purchase of equipment and the construction of a hangar here. Total cost of the project was $10,000.

Several Mercy Flights

So far Mr. Spillenaar's single - engine monoplane, "Wings of the Gospel" has carried him far up the shore of Hudson Bay and across to the coast of Labrador to isolated trading posts and Eskimo and Indian villages. He has made several mercy flights, flying sick Indians to centres where medical help was available.

Mr. Spillenaar tells of a service conducted at Cumming Lake Mine Company post at Eastmain on the east shore of James Bay.

"Eskimos and Indians gathered at the post and held a church service. There were 150 present in all. They knew some of the same hymns I did, so they sang in English, I in English, and portions of the Scripture in English and Sam Crowe — the Eskimo Hudson Bay Company post manager — read in Eskimo and interpreted the message."

"The next day I was off and crossed the mountain range to the coast."

Ask Release Archbishop In Yugoslavia

Belgrade—(AP)—Senator Brien McMahon of Connecticut says he has urged Marshal Tito to release Roman Catholic Archbishop Alojzije Stepinac from a Yugoslav prison.

Senator McMahon, here to investigate Yugoslavia's place in the proposed $2,500,000,000 United States foreign aid program, said he brought up the matter of the Archbishop during a two - hour talk with the Yugoslav chief July 24. The senator flew to the Adriatic coast town of Split with United States Ambassador George Allen for the meeting.

He said he told Marshal Tito that a strong feeling existed in the United States against the conviction and imprisonment of Archbishop Stepinac, leader of the country's estimated 5,000,000 Roman Catholics, who was sentenced in 1946 to 18 years in prison on charges of wartime collaboration with the Axis.

Asks Unity

"I told him very fully," said the senator in a news conference here before leaving for the United States, "that it was important that we have all nations unity against those who seek to commit aggression, and that it was important and these be safeguards of basic human rights in all the world. First is that of freedom of religion and worship."

Senator McMahon refused to say what Marshal Tito had said to him on any of the many subjects discussed during the interview. One foreign correspondent commented: "It was like listening to one side of a telephone conversation."

AGRICULTURE IN ITALY

(Article 30)

St. Gallen, Switzerland — (Special to the Ontario Intelligencer) — In travelling up and down Italy one sees a wide variety of crops, many of which are only prevalent in certain parts of the country. For example, oranges are found in the south, tobacco in the north-central part, rice in the Po Valley and artichokes in the central part.

However there are two which far overshadow the others, both in importance and in extent, and are found in all parts of the country. These are olives and grapes, and together they form the major part of the agricultural crop of Italy.

From olives is obtained the most important of all vegetable oils, and they have been long cultivated for this oil. The olive tree, which probably originated in southwest Asia, is especially adapted to Italy's climate and soil. It is very hardy, and although taking rather long to mature, produces an abundant crop for many years. In addition it requires little or no irrigation, which to the Italian is a blessing, since it enables him to plant the trees on the slopes of the Apennines, the mountain range which stretches the length of Italy.

Handle With Care

The harvest takes place in the late autumn and the fruit must be handled with great care. By far the greatest proportion of the crop is used in making olive oil, but a certain amount is put aside for pickling in brine, while those of inferior quality are used in the manufacture of soap.

The olive has a double importance for the Italian, for not only does it form a large and important part of the export trade, but it is used a great deal for home consumption, and in this respect takes the place of animal fats. In these dry regions the raising of cattle is difficult and as a result butter and lard are relatively scarce.

The fact that Italy has a dense population can be attributed in part to the ability of the people to raise most of their essential foods, such as the olive. The olive trees are scattered in the hundreds of millions, small wonder that Italy is one of the chief exporters of the product in the world.

Grapes Important Too

Of no lesser importance is the raising of grapes. Again there are several products — raisins for instance, or currants, the name, of which is a corruption of the word "Corinth" the port from which the fruit was first shipped.

In Italy, as in other lands where grapes are grown, the main product is wine, one of the oldest and best known beverages in the world. Frequent reference is made to it in the Old Testament, although that was probably due as much to the fact that fresh water was so scarce, as to a genuine liking of it.

Wine Is a Treasure

Today it is regarded as the national drink of Italy as well as of Spain and France, since it is used at meals just as we use water, tea or coffee. A good example of this was a recent complaint of the French soldiers serving in Korea. They complained to their superiors that they did not receive their daily ration of wine and many refused to take coffee. It seems that the boat, carrying the precious cargo put into a port in Indo-China and the French soldiers there, also rather hard up for wine, refused to let it go any farther.

The different brands of wine produced in Italy are almost too numerous to mention. The type is determined by the characteristics of the climate and soil as well as by methods of culture. The difference between some is so slight that it takes an expert to hnlict it. The distinction between dry and sweet wines depends on the fact that dry wines the grape juice is entirely fermented while for the sweet wines the fermentation is stopped when the sugar has only been partly converted into alcohol. Chianti, perhaps the best known of all Italian wines, falls among this latter class.

Vast Vineyards

In general the wines of Italy are not as well known for their quality as are those of France, falling mostly in the medium standard class. Nevertheless the size of the industry in Italy may be gained by the following figures. There are over one billion vines in the country, which cover one-eighth of the total area of the country or one-quarter of all the cultivated land.

In spite of the fact that the wine is produced almost at their front door, the Italians do not use the expensive wines that one reads so much about, except on special occasions. They are too expensive, even in Italy, and the people have to content themselves with the ordinary brands, which can be bought at the store in any sized jug up to five gallons. Most of this wine is red, and is called simply "vino ordinario."

Of course, with such competition from other wine growing countries, such as France, Spain, Portugal or North Africa, the Italians take great care in producing the wine intended for export. It means a living to so many or them, and with their standard of living not as high as it should be, they can ill afford to risk losing their share of the market.

THIS BOARD CAN DO A JOB

The establishment of a review board to judge and pass upon appeals made to the Canadian public for money should do much to eliminate fly-by-night operators who have little at heart but their own gains, and should at the same time make the path of worthwhile organizations a little easier.

Ontario in particular has seen campaigns put on during the past few months that were neither worthy nor well-managed. A few of them raised incredible amounts of money, and in at least one instance, funds raised were not applied to the proper cause. Hence, the review board will be doing a great service to citizens by judging campaigns before they reach the public.

Of the campaigns that fail, many are worthwhile. In some cases, the people behind the scenes feel that their cause is of such merit that they do not need a great deal of promotion to attain their object. For that reason they fail, and are greatly discouraged with the response given them by the public. On the other side of the picture, however, are campaigns known by the sponsors to be unworthy of generous support by the public. It is then that sharp promotion comes into its picture. Coupled with the knowledge that people are generally receptive to appeals for funds, they dangle the lure of income tax exemptions in front of those canvassed. The result? They usually reach the objective.

The review board, which is scheduled to be set up by major Canadian national health and welfare organizations, will stop much of that sort of nonsense if its powers are properly applied. Money is the matter in question, and if the particular purpose for which monies are being raised, and will make sure that no operators of doubtful calibre are allowed to promote campaigns. Full information will be dispersed relative to the nature of the appeal.

The board can do a fine job in the elimination of unworthy appeals. Its messages to the public will make proper solicitations even more honorable, and will discredit those who promote campaigns for their own good.

COURTEOUS, BUT WITH LITTLE PURPOSE

The singing of "God Save the King" at public gatherings is quite proper, but we feel that it is totally unnecessary to sing the national anthem of the United States as well.

Service clubs in this city, especially during the summer months, have adopted the practice of singing the "Star Spangled Banner" at least twice monthly. We do not know whether this is part of the rules and regulations of their clubs or is just a gesture of courtesy, but we feel that the practice is unnecessary.

These clubs also give as prominent a place to the United States flag as they do to the Union Jack. For what purpose? If they wish to have a balanced decorative scheme why not use the Canadian ensign? If they wish to sing, why not sing "O Canada" or "The Maple Leaf"?

We do not think our American friends will be slighted. Rather we believe that they will be astonished by our tribute now. Canadians dwelling in the United States certainly do not expect similar gestures. Canada's lack of a distinctive Canadian flag and anthem make it difficult enough to express one's loyalty to his country without using what few public opportunities we do have by toasting the health of a neighbor.

NOT JACKRABBITS

In a civil suit at London, a plaintiff was awarded something over $4,000 for injuries when struck by a motor car as he tried to cross the street. As a pedestrian, he started off the traffic light in his favor, then the red light came on and the motorist hit him.

Mr. Justice LeBel made comment, probably based on good old English common law and on common sense as well. He declared it was the responsibility, traffic light signals notwithstanding, of the motorist to avoid injuring a pedestrian, that the light in the motorist's favor did not give him the right to hit the plaintiff. He held that pedestrians did not have to be jackrabbits.

There will be a good many people who have been honked at and scared stiff by ill-mannered men and women at the wheel, who will applaud the judgment of Mr. Justice LeBel. A man's life is worth a lot more, a little more of worth than an odd second or two gained by a motorist at a street intersection. — (St. Catharines Standard.)

THE WEDDING LINE

Old customs change, but Mrs. Post,
Who counsels hostess, guest and host
And is the first to give advice
On newer forms of conduct
Holds sacred still the wedding line.
From "two to four" or "seven to nine."

How oft I've crept on burning feet
To get the bride and groom to greet!
How oft, I've steadied ladies' hair,
And led them to a nearby chair!
How oft I've seen men step aside,
"Too late!" they said, "to kiss the bride!"

As Mrs. Post has often told,
The wedding line's a custom old.
Though time has toppled thrones and creeds
And genius bettered countless deeds,
While marriage lasts the line will stay
A "must" for every wedding day.

A pleasant function took place in the officers' quarters at the drill shed last evening when the following staff sergeants of the regiment were each invested with the sword which a staff sergeant is now entitled to wear: Quartermaster Sergt. Peck, Mills, Bugler Major Kerr, Pringle, Paymaster Sergt. Jack Dempsey and Orderly Room Sergt. Hone. The sergeants named were summoned from their own quarters to the officers' quarters and after a speech by Lieut.-Col. W. N. Ponton, the swords were presented.

Albert Martin delivered today to Messrs. W. Black & Son some Yorkshire pigs, five months old, which weighed 1,659 pounds.

A horse owned by Richard Spencer, Lewis Street, was struck by lightning and killed during the storm last night.

Mr. James S. Johnson of Boston, Mass., formerly of Belleville boy, is here to spend a vacation of two weeks.

Explorer Seeks Hidden Secrets Of Lost People in S. Africa

Johannesburg (CP)—An effort ous Bantu people is borne out, to trace history of pre-medieval and even prehistoric South Africa may be made by

F. A. Mitchell-Hedges, noted British explorer and author, is in Johannesburg to begin investigation at the ancient, almost- forgotten Port Alitus, situated 200 miles south of Dar-es-Salaam.

It is believed by such well-known authorities as Abbe Breuil, great French archaeologist and Prof. C. Van Riet Lowe, South Africa's foremost archaeologist, that the same pre-medieval peoples who built Great Zimbabwe, Inkaran bean to the east coast of Africa, came south to the Transvaal and built ancient Zeila.

Dr. Randall MacIver, in 1905, by a Persian Prince told about the same time the great temple and acropolis of Zimbabwe were built by people who were the modern town of Fort Victoria in Southern Rhodesia.

The secret cities of the long-haired people who are believed to have inhabited Zimbabwe in medieval times are still a mystery. Much has been written about this vanished race who have made Zimbabwe the most romantic place in Southern Rhodesia, but much remains to be discovered. Similar ruins to Zimbabwe have been found in South Africa in the Northern Transvaal.

Early Portuguese writers described Zimbabwe as "the great palace of the chief." Today, the name is generally accepted to mean "stone houses."

Swept Away by Banius

For it is what the experts call the "stone complex" of this forgotten tribe, that is meant by the "Zimbabwe culture". No record remains of this race beyond the layers who were probably swept away in the Bantu storm of migration as the Bantuism of migration as the Bantu race moved south. That they were an indigen-

A WOMAN'S BURDEN.

One of the tawdry tricks of the column trade, a rabbit to be lifted from a silk hat when things are dull, is to take some aspect of the Battle of the Sexes and beat the living bejabers out of it.

No one knows this better than the vital Mr. Robert Ruark, the vitamin kid of the calling. Ruark rifts a good many columns by the simple method of putting the spurs to womanhood, a performance at which he is the unquestioned king of the rodeo.

I have been guilty, myself, of this easy device, but as the years seem to be mellowing me or, more likely, I am just getting soft in the head. Whatever it is, the open season on the ladies seems to be less attractive, these months now since I have raised my tiny shrill voice against their nibbles.

Indeed, Robert's latest pugnacious piece, while as energetic as it harrumps, strikes me as something less than reasonable. In the Saturday Evening Post, in Look Magazine, under the title "Ten Trivial Women's Problems" Ruark may be observed gnawing away at the foundations of the North American Female and while this is as readable as a letter from home it is also unconvincing. Ruark observes that a great many women, particularly housewives, have a "persecution complex, self-adjustment, unhappy and "lost". This gives him a severe pain, or so he says, and is a tonator to explode him into some 1200 words.

It is Robert's idea that the North American Doll has everything; equally on the one hand, freedom and privilege on the other; home permanents, quick-frozen vegetables, air conditioning and the luxury of monogamy. "What," asks Robert, "is she howling about? I don't know what ails our girls—but I do know this; I'm very tired of hearing about their operations."

I have perhaps over-simplified Bob's beef—it suffers a bit from the condensation—but there it is and here am I to suggest that it's a mighty ill-considered approach to a serious problem.

Dreary Days

I think it's safe to assume that there is a problem, that wives, as a class, have a difficult time in getting the most out of life.

A physician friend of mine, with whom I occasionally fraternize in column the other night, said something like this: "I'm astonished at the sheer courage of women who come to see me with nothing really wrong with them physically, and nothing I can do for them. I'm usually fit them up with tonics or vitamins. Women have the courage, I suppose, to face trouble, I suspect, is simply that they're just plain bored."

It seems a logical diagnosis. Very few men realize it, but the housewife (or "the homemaker," as she would have it called here) with it; is just as chained to monotony and drudgery as granny was. Unless she's among the lucky few who end-all and be-all of the modern woman and so she finds little of the contentment in it that granny so splendidly had.

Sure, she has it easier than granny, as Ruark points out very properly, but nearly as easy as we men like to think. The average male seems to have the notion that the golden age of the can opener liberated women from the drudgery of the past, but it has clearly did nothing of the kind. Running a house is still a rough, five-year job and it can be the world's dullest.

This is particularly true if there are children. Then there's no escape hatch in sight except old age. I have watched that in my own home and in others. Any man would have a screaming case of claustrophobia as an alphabetical list of neuroses. Show me a man who would trade jobs with his housefrau and you show me a fool.

And so the problem resolves: Women of today has enough imagination to know that her existence is drab. She has been told and told to do something more than a combination of upstairs maid and downstairs girl. But, short of neglecting their job, few women seem able to push that thing called "career" aside.

Women may not think of it in such black and white terms, but that, I suspect, is the root problem. If men like Robert find it tiresome it is merely because it is a problem.

Small Choice

Diagnosing the symptoms, as my doctor friend did, is a simple thing. Finding a prescription is not. The answer to the whole vitamin pill is no cure.

The answer to the housewife has two choices. The easiest and the most satisfactory. I would think, is to develop a sense of "missing something" and try to find her happiness in the home, in the neighborhood, in the city, in a compromise, it's true, but I know women who make a full, crowded life out of just that feeling of emptiness and admit to no regrets.

The second choice is to find interests, to use expression—to enthusiasms, wherever that can be done. That force has driven women have put to work what leisure time they have.

In the booklet How to across a piece of Roffe Thompson that seemed to express this idea very well. He called it "The Cure for Boredom," spiritual asthma that can make life quite a burden" and that is very descriptive way of describing boredom.

How to beat it: "You're your own jailer, no one else," Thompson argues. "Do something, make something, become something, create something, try something you've never done before. Develop fresh interests, new points of view. There are millions or doors out from an enclosed life—and they're not locked. Find the one some of them open. Go on! Just step outside and see!"

I know that this will seem naive and empty advice to a woman who has spent most of this day at a washing tub or riding herd on three small slum bombs. But there it is and, if nothing else, it is a more realistic approach than Ruark's idea that if you ignore it, it may go away.

BUREAU FOR THE NEUTOTIC

The psychiatrist raises a great hue and cry today about the neurotic. This unfortunate victim of heredity and circumstance, the unadjusted human individual, a burden to himself and his generation.

But some of the greatest men in history have been neurotics. Darwin, Pasteur and Wagner among musicians are cases in point. Poor Robert Schumann, musical genius, finally drowns himself in the insane asylum. There have been great artists who were pronounced neurotics. And a certain percentage of psychiatrists would undoubtedly diagnose as signs of profound emotional unbalance, has characterized many successful businessmen, military leaders, high grade scientists, and not a few ministers of religion.

Someone will say that these neurotics are victims of the sins of being neurotics. Maybe that is true; but there is also a tragic instability and the twisting of their personalities contributed in some way by their own inheritance.

A world of perfectly sub-normal individuals would not be heaven at all. The ideal of human life is not a perfect adjustment to environment. Our environment sometimes is of a variety to drive us to distraction or to suicide. The thousand years of the world has full of Roman citizens who, fifty years ahead of the low moral standards of the modern world. But the Christians were not adapted, and they won the day.

If so, the exploration of Kilwa and Port Victoria may reveal traces of settlements long before the Persian civilization.

The illustrations are from Schafer's method favors drainage of water or other fluid from the submerged victim of the passage and how the Red Cross method ceases water drainage which may be the straw that turns the scale against recovery.

Please understand that my criticism of the Red Cross error is neither carping nor just theoretical. It is based on scientific ground and upon experience in resuscitating. It is therefore with complete confidence that I challenge the Red Cross or the organizations, medical or otherwise, that approve the Red Cross method, to show why Schafer's method should not be universally taught.

Husband subject to severe sick headaches. Has a bald head. Does an attack he notices a fluttering or lights at one side . . . (Mrs. A. B.)

Answer — Send stamped self-addressed envelope for my free pamphlet Why Have Headache?

Homogenized

What advantage is pasteurizing and homogenizing on the materials? Is it a benefit to the milk? Is it a benefit to the milk? (C.L.S.)

Answer — Pasteurizing is partial sterilizing the milk or other food enough to kill disease germs but not enough to kill the delightful action of bacteria. The heating destroys some of the vitamin C. Experts differ whether it lowers the availability of calcium and phosphorus or not. Vitamin D, growth-promoting property of milk. Homogenizing is simply breaking up the cream very small holes so that the fat globules are broken up and remain evenly distributed through the milk. Thus no cream rises on pasteurized milk. You have to take the milkman's word that the milk is good. If it makes white plain milk, please — and if I have the price I'll gladly pay a visit to either Grade A Raw from tuberculin tested herd or Grade A Raw from herd not pasteurized. These two grades of milk are always safe and, in my opinion, superior in taste.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON ENJOYING GOD

This whole earth is a museum of the works of our Creator. We need not use eye in any worship without looking upon some thing of wonder or splendor. Every blade of grass or flowers bud and bloom which are not even known to human eye, analyzed and studied would prove to be a picture of God.

I look out of my summer cabin window and see a variety of trees that are with sufficient force in their delicacy of construction and the power of their trunks. Every twig, needle, or leaf is a thing of wonder. The graceful slowly walking in the breeze, and the wind and sway their graceful trunks, remind one of a stately slowly walking in the altar, so solemn and beautiful is the event of each.

Every time you look upon anything in Nature you find a gift of God, and enter into enjoyment of Him. And the more you study, observe and think the more you find God becomes to you and the more enjoyable His companionship. You can walk alone, yet you are not alone, for no matter where you go, or are, God is there to explain things and make you understand. He wants all human beings to be happy, and to have justice and mercy dealt to all.

During this summer season, when the eye is feasting upon new scenes and looking upon many a beautiful picture, I deeply appreciate the fact that we are looking upon God — some manifestation of His wonderful power, His loveliest flower or insect.

All the enjoyment we have in this world is a gift, and ever since we do why don't we always enjoy Him in the full, and acknowledge Him to others?

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

In describing a tourist hotel at which he had stayed last week, a friend of mine said it was the kind of place where you found a room smelled of stuffed owls and looms.

There was a time, not more than twenty-five and certainly not fifty years ago, when this the only opportunity the mass of mankind had of seeing wild creatures was on the walls, shelves and brackets of hotel lobbies and dining rooms. It was the age of train travel. The overwhelming majority of city and town dwellers stayed put in the cities and towns. They went on rare and laborious journeys to the centres of their native place, if they travelled at all, by railway train or steamboat. It was a highly restricted life. The city dweller knew only the life of cities and towns were the railroads. All cities and towns had a pioneer past about them, and were regarded with horror by the citizenry.

Only the farmers and villagers knew about the woods and fields. And when they went to the cities, went travelling, they loved to see the evidences of the romance of the wilderness in the shape of stuffed deer heads on the hotel lobby walls, or a massive stuffed bear clinging to an upright varnished stump in the foyer. Around the glass rails of dining rooms, or rutting stags were stuffed owls, ducks, loons. Great blue herons and other wild birds majestically on the top of cabinets and old fashioned high sideboards. A certain stuffiness pervaded the hostelries of the world in those days, a kind of stuffy world, anyway.

Well, nothing need be stuffed. By motor car, the city and town dweller can penetrate the ends of the earth, getting more harrowed little dirt roads. The outboard motor can penetrate every lake, every meander or ledger-keeper. More and more people are frowning on the use of the rifle and shotgun or an unmounted deer is becoming the rule in the business that it is contributing generously to the conservation organizations and to the motor car that unstuffed this generation, the motor car and its fellow-members or the internal combustion engine family.

CAMPBELLFORD

Huge Cylinder Finally Taken From Canal Site

Campbellford — A solid iron cylinder used as a stone breaker on the Trent Canal thirty-three years ago, and which has rested on the banks of the canal in Campbellford ever since, has at last been loaded onto a truck and carted away to be made into scrap. A Campbellford scrap dealer, Frank Brown, and J. P. Zeggil, a dealer from Montreal supervised the loading of the high hunk of metal onto a mobile-wheeled float normally used to carry a bull-dozer. The truck is operated by Thompson Brothers Construction Company of Campbellford.

Defied Efforts

The huge metal cylinder, 12 feet long and 22 inches in diameter, which has defied the efforts of many men and machines during the past forty years, was left on the bank of the canal, and "donated" to the town in 1918, when a construction engineer named Thomas Brown decided that it was not worth the trouble of moving it. Dynamiting was used to break down large rocks when the canal was under construction in this area. The town did not particularly want the relic, but did not know what to do with it. They offered to sell it to various scrap dealers. Many tried to move it but failed.

One crew arrived from Peterborough and went to work on the cylinder with acetylene torches, attempting to cut it into pieces to make it easier to move. The large diameter was too much for the torches, however, and they soon gave up. Others tried to load the thing up and put rollers under it, but their efforts were rewarded only by broken chains and buckled jacks.

Many tourists, and even some residents thought the thing was a huge cannon resting by the canal bank. Others who had no idea what the object was, were told a number of falsehoods concerning it, ranging from a blockbuster that was dropped during the war, but failed to explode, to a captured German one-man submarine that strayed into the canal, or that it was a shell from a huge cannon the town owned to scare off the Indians when they made their momentous attack.

The breaker was taken to Trenton where it was loaded onto a freight car to be taken to Hamilton, where it will be broken up for scrap.

Detroit, July 28—(CP)—More than 40,000 auto workers here are idle because of production schedule disputes and critical material shortages. More will join the ranks of unemployed Saturday when General Motors Corporation begins a series of staggered shutdowns.

$150,000 Fire Destroys Plant

Simcoe, Ont., July 27. (CP)—Fire today destroyed the Lealand Pickle plant in Simcoe causing damage estimated at $150,000.

The fire started about 11 a.m., with explosion of oxy-acetelyne welding equipment in the mixing and storage section of the plant. Firemen still spured water on the smouldering ruins 2 1-2 hours later.

Arthur Kent, plant manager, gave the $150,000 loss estimate. It covered the building and contents. Included was $50,000 worth of newly-bottled pickles, ready for shipment.

All 75 employees left in safety. The building is on Culvert Street, not far from the downtown section of this busy town some 26 miles south of Brantford.

The 21 members of the Simcoe fire department were joined by 25 volunteers in fighting the blaze.

For a time firemen feared that the boiler might explode. But half an hour after the blaze started its safety valve gave way unnecessary that danger.

Mr. Kent said the loss was covered by insurance.

The child's father, Eugene Wight, is on active service with the Canadian forces in Korea.

SEES DAUGHTER CRUSHED

Malton, Ont., July 28—(CP)—A mother saw her two-year-old daughter crushed to death beneath the wheels of an automobile here Friday. Italian Woodsmen Charged With Looting Airliner

Grenoble, France, July 28 (Reuters)—Six Italian woodsmen were arrested Friday for looting money and religious souvenirs from the wreckage of the airliner Canadian Pilgrim which crashed last November in the Alps killing all 58 aboard.

Police swooped down on their cottages in the mountain village of Cordeac and found $3,000 in cash, religious articles, jewels and a bishop's habit hidden under mattresses and in granaries.

The raid ended an eight-month search which cast a cloud of suspicion over a score of villages. Three other Italians are still being sought.

The Skymaster, carrying 46 Canadian Holy Year pilgims including 13 members of the Roman Catholic clergy and a seven-man Canadian crew, crashed on rocky Colegu peak. Also among the dead was an American and an Italian priest. Most of the Canadians were from Quebec Province.

Guides who brought down the bodies reported that scavengers had been at work. The wreckage showed evidence of persons poking about for loot.

Police investigated. Aided by Maurice Bellonte, chief of the French Air Security Office, they made surprise searches and pulled in suspects for questioning.

Each time they drew a blank—until a few days ago. The clues suddenly pointed to the woodsmen from the Italian side of the border.

No Board Rulings Beyond Review Frost Tells Group

Toronto, July 28—(CP) Premier Frost told a labor delegation Friday that no legislation can be totally insulated against application to the courts.

The delegation from the Ontario Federation of Labor was led by George Burt, president, and Canadian director of the United Auto Workers (C. C. L.). It protested the failure of the government to appeal the recent Gale judgment which overturned a decision of the Ontario Labor Relations Board.

The premier said he did not think labor leaders wanted legislation that was arbitrary and beyond appeal. He reminded them that a decision of the British Columbia Labor Relations Board had been appealed by a labor organization affiliated with the C.C.L.

The delegation asked the premier to bring in legislation at the fall session of the legislature to prevent the check-off of union dues from pay cheques Ontario law, saying failure to agree on the check-off was causing the strictment of the Hollinger gold mine strike in Timmins.

TRACTOR KILLS WOMAN

Caledon, Ont., July 28 (CP) — Mrs. Blake Huff, 30, was killed Friday when the tractor she was driving overturned near here and pinned her beneath it. Her two-year-old daughter, who had been sitting on her knee, was trapped under the tractor, but Mrs. Huff's body saved the girl from serious injury.

BULLETINS FROM BIRDLAND

by WINIFRED M. WILSON

LOST BABY

It was only a baby, yet when I stooped to pick it up from the bottom step, fear made it crouch down in my hand. Cars whizzed past on the highway directly beside me. Certainly this was no place for a very young bird; so carrying it into the garden, I put the little thing beside a bush near the fence, in hopes that an anxious parent would come with food.

There was no great difficulty in determining the species. The lost baby's close resemblance to a young robin showed that it must be some kind of a thrush, and we had become very well acquainted with a veery in the past few weeks. Wilson thrushes are supposed to be shy, but this veery had, for some reason, acquired the habit of coming from its home on the far side of the road to forage near our house. It had regular stands on the way—a poplar log, the gate post, a good sized rock. Early this morning the little family had left the nest, and been guided up the slope to a wooded section some yards back of us. Somehow, one baby had evidently been lost on the way.

Cries Unanswered

But no kind parent answered the appealing cries. After several hours, we tried to feed the poor baby with a raspberry on a needle. Then a house fly. However, that scheme did not work. Not until mid-afternoon did the parents miss a child. Then stealthily, taking a round-about course, a veery came at last and, little by little coaxed it up the hill to join the rest.

We had become so accustomed to the voice of the lost baby that we were able to identify it next day, and for nearly a month could pick it out from its brothers and sisters.

Although we had been confident that the veery's nest lay among hazel bushes near the lake, we were so much afraid of stepping on it that we dared not search during its occupancy. But in September we found it on the ground, at the foot of a small maple. Made of shreds of bark and roots, dead leaves had been woven in, and more were sticking to it on all sides. No wonder it had been hidden from our curious eyes.

Now we tried to picture the four greenish blue eggs that must have rested there in early July, eggs that showed the close relationship between robins and Wilson thrushes. Already the young birds, including the lost baby, must be on the way to South America.

Sections of Manitoba Suffer From Drought

Winnipeg, July 28—(CP)—Anxiety is turning into desperation in southwestern Manitoba as grain crops deteriorate under bright, dry sunshine. Only a heavy rain in this section within the next few days can save the crops, farmers say.

The weather office, however, said 'there is no band of generality rainy weather in prospect as all."

Officials of the Provincial Department of Agriculture said a good deal of oats and barley already have been plowed under or pasture off in the area. In the northern and eastern sections of the province the situation is better but officials said more rainfall is needed there also or crops will deteriorate.

Paper Discontinues Saturday Edition

Quebec, July 28 — (CP) — L'Action Catholique, Quebec daily newspaper, Friday announced that due to increased newspaper costs and postal rates it no longer will publish a Saturday edition for its 50,000 subscribers.

This limited Saturday edition will be distributed by street-sale in Quebec City where delivery boys normally distribute about 20,000 copies of the paper daily.

BRANSCOMBE—SPENCER

On Friday, July 20, at three p.m., Trinity-St. Andrew's United Church, in Brighton, was the scene of the wedding of Miss Edith Spencer, daughter of Mrs. H. G. Spencer and the late Mr. Spencer, and Mr. Wilfred Branscombe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Branscombe, Rochester, N.Y. Rev. Rev. P. J. Hommersen, assisted by the bride's uncle, Rev. R. E. Spencer, of Montreal, performed the ceremony. The church was beautifully decorated with Shasta daisies and greenery. Mrs. John Goodfellow, accompanied at the organ by Miss Frances Hollomby, sang "O Perfect Love" before the bride entered the church, "The Lord's Prayer", during the ceremony and "At Dawning" during the signing of the register.

The bride entered the church on the arm of her grandfather, Mr. George Spencer, who gave her away and was given in marriage by her mother. The bride chose a gown of white slipper satin, fashioned with a scalloped neckline, molded bodice and long fitted sleeves. The full skirt flowed into a graceful train. A matching headdress held her fingertip veil, and she carried a bouquet of orchids, yellow roses and carnations.

Mrs. Roy Spencer, sister-in-law of the bride, was matron of honor, with Miss Marjorie Branscombe, sister of the groom, and Miss Alice Martin as bridesmaids. They were gowned alike in blue nylon, sweetheart over taffeta, with matching headdresses trimmed with daisies and carried bouquets of Shasta daisies and yellow roses. Nora Jane Spencer, sister of the bride, was flower girl and wore apple green organdy over taffeta with matching picture trims, trimmed with daisies. She carried a similar basket bouquet.

Mr. Jack Branscombe was groomsman, while Messrs. Albert Branscombe and Gordon Spencer, ushered.

The reception was held at Fielding House, Brighton, where the bride's mother received in blue crepe with lace and black accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother assisted in soft pink crepe with lace and black accessories and with a white orchid corsage.

For travelling to points west, the bride wore a natural linen suit, with green accessories and a corsage of red roses. On their return they will reside in Brighton.

Out-of-town guests attending were from Montreal, Toronto, Oshawa, Port Hope, Little Britain, Warsaw, Havelock, Marmora, Campbellford and Belleville.

PRIEST—McLEOD

On Saturday, July 14, Selby United Church was the scene of a pretty wedding, when Mary Elizabeth (Betty) McLeod, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Murdoch McLeod, of Vancouver, B.C., was united in marriage to Gordon Colborne Priest, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Priest, of Foxboro. Rev. Robert Wesley, B.A., B.D., assisted by Rev. H. S Cooke, performed the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, W. A. McLeod, was attired in a street-length dress of pale blue lace over taffeta and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Her pale blue veil fell from a headdress of Sweetheart rosebuds.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. Jack Smyth, of Trenton, wore pink lace over taffeta and carried a sheaf of rose carnations.

The best man was Glenn Priest of Toronto, brother of the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Bruce Barnes, of Guelph, and Maurice McLeod, of Kingston.

Before the ceremony, Mr. Ted Wilde, cousin of the bride, sang "I Love You", and during the signing of the register, "I'll Walk Beside You".

Following the wedding, a reception was held at the home of Faith Lowers Hemline; Shirts Voluminous

Paris, July 28.—(AP)—The hemline is down again—to the bottom of the calf.

That was the biggest news revealed by the Jacques Fath collection, which today raised the curtain on Paris' fall and winter fashions. Skirts as voluminous as a grandmother wore, and with just as many petticoats underneath, are Fath's new favorite. He tops them with tiny-waisted bodices, skintight but modestly high-necked.

Dramatic combinations of black and white are the number one color scheme, followed by smoky and dusty roses, browns, and pale pink, yellow and lilac.

Materials are rich, velvets, satins and taffetas. The slope-shouldered wide-skirted silhouette is definitely reminiscent of the new look but shorter, with slightly rippled, irregular hems.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McLeod, where the bride's mother, dressed in navy blue crepe with brown lace, and corsage of Talisman roses, and the bridegroom's mother, in black crepe with red corsage of pink roses, received the guests.

The bride and bridegroom left for Montreal and the Laurentians, the bride wearing a grey gabardine suit with navy and white accessories and a corsage of cymbidium orchids.

On their return, they will reside in Belleville.

Guests were present from Vancouver, B.C., Ottawa, Toronto, Belleville, Trenton, Kingston, Watford and Trenton.

ROUSSELLE—DIAMENT

White calla lillies, blue delphiniums and American Beauty roses formed the attractive setting for the marriage on Saturday, July 14th, in the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, Belleville, at 10 a.m., when Mary Irene Diament, of Belleville, daughter of the late Mr. John Diament, became the bride of George James Rousselle, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Rousselle, of Renfrew. The Rev. Father Healy officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

Sister Mary Silbanus rendered the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her cousin, Mr. Frank Short, the bride was charming in her floor-length bridal gown of ivory satin featuring a bodice of lace and seed pearls made on tight-fitting lines, with long, sheath-like sleeves pointed over the wrists. The bouffant skirt was floor-length, and fell in graceful folds from the waist. A veil of tulle illusion was held by a half-halo of seed pearls, and she carried a lovely bouquet of American Beauty roses.

Miss Aileen Rousselle, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, gowned in blue lace and net over taffeta, with a bell-shaped skirt and carrying a bouquet of red Bettertime roses.

Miss Cynthia Stock, was bridesmaid, wearing white lace over yellow taffeta with headdress of Yellow flowers, and carrying a bouquet of yellow Bettertime roses.

The Misses Vonnie and Beverley Brown, cousins of the bride, were petite flower girls, frocked in floor-length dresses of pink taffeta, and wearing headdresses of pink daisies. They carried nosegays of American Beauty roses, baby's breath and pink and blue bachelor buttons.

Mr. Ronald Rousselle, of Renfrew, brother of the bridegroom, was groomsman; Mr. Stan Holton, of Picton, Mr. Louis Rousselle, brother of the bridegroom, and Mr. Lyle Herbert, cousin of the bride, were ushers.

Following the reception and wedding breakfast, which was held at the home of Mrs. Stanley Brooks, corner of Bridge and Pinnacle, with its pretty decorations of pink and white streamers, and white wedding bells, where the bride's mother received the guests, wearing black flowered crepe with grey accessories and corsage of red roses, assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who wore blue sheer with white accessories and corsage of red roses. The young couple left for Ottawa, Hull and points east, the bride travelling in an ensemble of blue gabardine with white accessories and corsage of American Beauty rose. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

Out-of-town guests were present from Picton, Renfrew and Toronto.

Former Woman Trapper Loves Life, Hard Work in North

Prince Albert, Sask.—(CP)—A red-headed, 100-pound bundle of energy, "Curley" Hanson has been doing a man's work for years.

She has travelled with a circus, trapped for 20 years, helps run a lake resort, works as a guide—and has loved it all.

Now 44, the five-foot three-inch redhead lives at Candle Lake, 60 miles north of Prince Albert, where she and her husband Conn run a trap line and lake resort.

She has been in the bush country since 1929 when she built a cabin and started trapping. For two years she was the only woman at Candle Lake.

Then she heard a rumor that the police intended to bring her out because they felt the situation was too dangerous for a lone woman.

"I'll die if I have to leave here," she told Conn Hanson, a fellow trapper. "Why don't we get married so I can stay?"

Mr. Hanson liked the idea, too, and they were married in 1929.

Conn now is 70 years old and an old-timer in the district.

"But he's plenty tough yet," his wife says.

Curley trapped for 20 years until conservation rules allowed only one member of a family to trap. However, she still travels with her husband, looks after camp and cooks wood while Conn tends the trapline.

Born in Lunenburg, N.S., she was in a missionary girls' school from 13 to 20 years where, she says, she learned everything but how to live."

Starting with a 10-month jaunt with a circus, she's been trying to remedy that ever since.

Though she hates dresses and wears slacks or shorts, Curley gets plenty of women's work to do. She cleans 10 cabins at the resort, and last year canned more than 300 quarts of fruit and vegetables from her garden.

And she loves Candle Lake. "It's the only place I ever want to live," she says.

"I couldn't live away from the trees and water, I'd just die if I was transplanted."

Former Voice in Soap Powder Song Now Big Producer TV Shows

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York — (AP) — Anne Marlowe's most vocal claim to fame is a six-year job she'd rather forget.

She is the possessor of the soprano voice which for six years assaulted the ears of radio listeners with a pean to a soap powder with the recurring refrain: "Happy Little Washday Song."

As such, she undoubtedly was the best-known unidentified radio voice on the air.

As the identifiable producer of "Soconyland Sketches," Television Show" Miss Marlow is much happier. She is one of the handful of women in the new television producers.

Miss Marlowe selects the story, hires writers to work out a dramatization, casts the show, and supervises every detail. She actually handles the productions, She gets a director credit line at the end of each show.

An attractive, energetic blonde, Miss Marlowe has spent most of her life in the theatre.

Even as she was receiving steady employment as a soap-opera heroine and as the anonymous voice of the soap powder, Miss Marlowe was dreaming up program ideas and plotting into the producing field.

She produced and directed her quota of shows, including the popular "Sam Spade" and "The Fat Man," a pair of super-sleuths.

Her career as a TV producer began the night she saw the movie, "Quartet" and decided it would be a good idea for a dramatic Maugham's works as television dramas. She promptly made a deal through hid American agent. Then she went out and sold the "package" to a sponsor.

Now Miss Marlowe is getting festive under the "routine."

She's busy figuring out a presentation for a couple of other shows involving dramatization of the works of Hemingway and F. Scott Fitzgerald.

PREPARATION OF GARDEN SOIL

The necessity of proper fertilization and preparation of soil is most important. In the case of light to medium loam, cow manure is rich in all the plant food elements. Horse manure is better adapted for clay soils as there is usually a larger percentage of litter in it which helps to lighten the soil. Horse manure is also excellent to make liquid manure or for surface mulching. Every gardener should pay attention to the consistency of keeping a compost pile at all times in his garden. By the addition of a chemical known as "Activo," grass sods, leaves and other garden litter, can be reduced to a very fine compost in a space of a few short months.

In the field of artificial fertilizers, all of these are rich in nitrogen and will produce vigorous growth when directions are followed as to the proper quantity to be used. If soil appears to be wet and heavy, frequently, the addition of a small amount of lime, wood ashes and sand will help the consistency of the soil. Nature requires approximately 1,000 years to produce an inch of really fine top soil, thus it becomes essential that every garden lover does everything he can to build up the soil to attain the results which he so fondly expects with his flowers. Recently one of the large agricultural colleges in the United States took a scientist study the root of winter rye grass and he found that a single plant which had spread out over one square foot of surface, had fourteen million roots and fourteen billion root hairs. The total length of the roots was nearly two million feet. The root hairs, if laid end to end, would reach a distance of nearly 6,000 miles. Such a root structure existed in an ideal type of garden loam.

London Stage Brings Recognition To Songstress Broadway Ignored

By MARK BARRON

New York, (AP)—Blonde songstress Dolores Gray, with more sudden curves than Niagara Falls, apparently has tumbled into the gilded chips at last in her co-star role with Bert Lahr in the new Broadway musical revue "Two on the Aisle."

This lass had to go to London to get recognition from Broadway.

She appeared on Broadway twice before, but in minor roles in the unfortunate musicals, "The Seven Lively Arts" and "Are You With It?"

In the new "Two On The Aisle" Miss Gray has unlimited scope for her talents, and makes the most of them.

She sings a variety of laments about love. She doesn't change the subject because apparently, she doesn't want to confuse the audience.

Bert Lahr is in clover with a series of hilarious sketches. Variety of Disguises

He romps on and off stage in a variety of disguises as he plays a baseball coach, captain of a brigade exploring Interplanetary space, a sanitation attendant in a public park, a clown, a tango dancer and a portrayal of Queen Victoria.

The sketches are the inventions of Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

Miss Gray sang "Annie Get Your Gun" for 1,304 performances in London and she was still singing it for the same show in Paris.

When she got the call she was doubtful until Lahr got on the wire.

"Don't worry about this one," assured the comic. "The material is terrific for you. I'm not worrying at all."

If there was the clincher. Miss Gray knew that, like all top comedians, Lahr is a prime worrier and pessimist of stage. So if he wasn't worrying about "Two On The Aisle", why should she?

"Two On The Aisle" isn't worried and neither is anyone else.

HEAD-LAND

How often have you driven on country roads and criticized Mr. Farmer for the ragged edges and corners of his fields? Why don't these farmers neaten up their crops by cultivating closer to the fences and the corners? Farmers have but only one answer to this question. They simply say, "Take old Molly here and try her for yourself," or "Hop up on the tractor and show me what you mean."

By actual test, it doesn't take you many minutes to find out that you can't work a field smooth to the edges and corners, either with a horse or a tractor. You must have "head-land" which is the word farmers use to describe the margins left around the circumference of a field. Usually they leave about 10 feet or so, to turn the horse or the tractor.

Not only does head-land save the farmer time in tilling the field, but it saves him seed too. If the head-land were planted, it would never mature because the seedlings would be ripped up the first time the field was cultivated. Head-land is for turning.

In our personal lives, many of us suffer because we do not leave any head-land, any margin to turn around in. We budget down to the last dollar, and live to the last ten dollars. For no matter how closely you estimate your spending, there is always some forgotten bills, some unexpected purchases. It is perhaps wise to leave a little lee-way in our budgeting that we go into the hole.

The same thing happens when we leave no head-land for time. That extra ten minutes in the morning which should always be left for combing the laces, the scramble for bus fare, the unexpected phone call, the weather to cause flurry, personal strain.

Perhaps part of the reason why the whole world is in such a tense state just now, is because few people leave any time to think things through, to consider the whole question, to look at things from the other point of view. Thinking and consideration take extra time. If all of us could form the habit of leaving more head-land in our lives there would be less confusion and misunderstanding today.

* * *

If it were possible to stretch all of sweet corn.

the socks darned and all the sweaters knitted at the afternoon gatherings of two or more women at our place for the last year, it is not imagination to say they would stretch around our garden fence. Just because we don't knit or darn (much), it seems a big shame we have absolutely nothing to show for our chatty hours at the tea-tables in the evenings.

Rent on putting a stop to this business, we told the girls we were going to paint the garden fence while they rambled on with their knitting. After all, if you can sit in a lawn chair and knit while you talk, why can't it just as easily be applied to sitting down and paint the picket fence while conversing. Painting is as artistic as weaving any day.

First time we tried it, we not only finished half the fence, but a couple of the girls left their knitting to go back at it and the brush which quartered our labors and doubled results. Next time a dozen little pain jobs we've been meaning to get at. Now we're going to settle in on them while chinning with the girls.

Next article will be Hayrpop which needs to be stained. Then, there's the old cherry dresser to be sheilaced and the screen to be edged with white. Goodness, by fall we'll have more than stitches to show for our tea hours.

Uncle Frontenac says he never laughed so much as when his sity cousin found out you pop kernels, not cobs, to get a cup

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Dear New parents to make

Dear L. is 30 years old, the father of two children, a girl nine and a boy four, and very happily married. It is a second marriage for both herself and her husband, but each has been the other's first and only love. It was a teen-age romance but because of parental opposition they eloped and, the romance broke up and each married someone else.

"Eight years passed, and neither of us had either seen or heard from the other in that time, when we met again by chance," Mrs. L. writes. "By that time, we had both been divorced, and both of us knew that we felt as we always had about each other. So we married, still against the wishes of our families."

Mrs. L.'s problem is that now, despite opposition to their daughter's marriage, her folks want to come and live with her and her husband.

"They say," she goes on, "that it will just be for a short time, but I know it will end in months or even years. My husband and I have bought a home of our own —just a small place with four rooms and bath for the four of us—and we really don't have room for my folks and mother and sister. That is one trouble. Another thing is that my mother flies off the handle very quickly and shouts. Then my nerves give way and I cry, and I don't think such an atmosphere would be good for my children.

"I have two brothers and three sisters, but it is always my home my parents want to come to. All last winter, they were here three and four days out of the week, coming at seven in the morning and staying until eight or nine at night. My dad is planning to build a house, but he hasn't even got the foundation started yet and no prospects of doing so. That is why they want to come here.

Try to Run Life

I hate to hurt them by telling them they can't come, but if they move in with us, I know my mother will try to run my life as she always has, and I am afraid it would end in my husband going out to get a room somewhere else. He wouldn't say anything for the world against my folks, because he wouldn't want to hurt me, but I don't think it would be fair either to him or to the children to have them come here. I have talked this over with one of my sisters and she says her husband wouldn't have them in the house."

I don't think Mrs. L. ought to have them in her house either. Even if there were no other objection to the arrangement—and there seems to be plenty of others —four rooms and a bath are barely enough for a family of four. To increase the family to seven in such limited quarters would end in certain catastrophe. If Mrs. L.'s father and mother need help to maintain a place of their own, it seems as though there should be enough brothers and sisters to take care of this, with each chipping in a share of the expense. Why don't they get together on the home-building project, for that matter? Such an arrangement should take care of any responsibility this daughter has for her family, and under no circumstances should she either take them into her home or allow them to spend three or four days out of each week with her. If she could possibly manage it, I think it would be a fine thing for her to move far enough away so that it would be impossible for them to do this.

It is unfair for daughters or sons to accept a fair amount of responsibility for parents. It is not right for them to have their own lives ruined by allowing their families to make martyrs of them.

BEAUTY

Keeping up with the fashions

Dowdy women are disappearing from the face of the land. They have cast off their ugly, dismal dry goods, are stepping along in the style parade. Like the smart ones, they have found that a new set with a perky flower or it does more for one's health and spirits than a bottle of tonic. Well-dressed creates pleasurable exhilaration and self-confidence. The shops offer such a variety of items that there are smart clothes for every type and figure.

Make-up has added its bit. Let us sing the praises of those pioneers of pulchritude who broke down the prejudices against synthetic aids. Not so long ago, rouge was regarded with suspicion. It was believed that it made a woman look like sin. The lipstick? Perfect ladies wouldn't think of using it.

In the time of your great-grandmother, plainness was respectable. Mothers would say, "I am glad Jane is not pretty, because then she will always be a good girl." Brains weren't popular, either. The little wife did not want to outshine the master of the family, so she played dumb. Well, she is standing on her own feet now. She doesn't have to wheedle her husband if she wants gay raiment; she goes out and earns it.

A new hat is better than a tonic.

Women are learning more and more about the influence of line and color on appearance. Though a frock may cost a small fortune, it has little meaning if the wearer is the wrong type for it. If it doesn't flatter, it is a failure. It should serve as a background for her personality, not be forceful, more striking in herself. Some women have so much flair that there is little danger of their being submerged by unusual fashions or strong colors. Others, retiring and unassertive, must avoid the extremes because they reduce them to further insignificance.

The countenance, of course, is the key to the personality of the individual; it should be the center of interest in the picture created by costume and wearer.

GOOD MANNERS

Not proper to give her trousseau tea in fiance's home

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am making plans for my trousseau tea, to take place in the early fall. Quite a few of my friends whom I wish to have come, live out-of-town, and would be able to come only on a Sunday. Would it be proper to have my trousseau tea on Sunday afternoon?

2. Since my own home is not suitable for the large number of guests I plan to invite, would it be proper for me to hold this tea in my fiance's home?—O.M.

1. It is not customary to have a trousseau tea on Sunday afternoon, but if the convenience of many of the guests suggests this time, I see no reason why you shouldn't plan to have it on a Sunday afternoon.

2. No. It would be in the worst possible taste for you to give this tea. . . so personal and so intimate a gathering . . . in your fiance's home. This is a party that should be given in the home of the bride-to-be. . . or not at all (except possibly in every exceptional circumstance when it might conceivably be given in the home of a close relative of the engaged girl).

Reception guests should not be kept waiting

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am having a church wedding in this small town. Is it proper for the bride and groom to wait at the back of the church for congratulations and best wishes? Some guests who will be at the church ceremony will not be at the reception.

2. The reception is to be in a hall where there will be three long tables seating from 12 to 16 guests. Who should sit at the bride's table? (There are to be two bridesmaids.)

3. Would it be well to use our own china and silver at the bride's table? We will have to rent the china, silver and other equipment for the 60 or so guests.

4. We are planning a short program. Should this follow immediately after the luncheon and toasts? Are toasts sometimes given between courses?

H. A.

1. When there is to be a reception or other post-ceremony festivity of any size, it does seem inconsiderate, poor planning, to keep the guests waiting at the reception-hall while the bride and groom receive in the vestibule of the church. The usual procedure is for the bride and groom to go at once after the recessional to the reception-place.

3. It would be just as well to rent all the equipment, making no distinction in this for the bride's table. . . making the difference in the more gala decorations, and featuring the wedding cake placed between the bride and groom.

4. Yes. . . to both these questions.

That is why one should be wise in the use of make-up, choose the most becoming colors in the items of the make-up box and apply them cleverly and with restraint. Fashions in faces change like fashions in dress and hairdos. Taking stock of one's liabilities as well as one's assets is the first step toward becoming as attractive as one can be. That means that one must use one's head, be on close terms with the ever-present lady in the looking glass.

Fashion Flashes

BIG PROMOTIONS are already under way for back-to-college clothes, which, together with the accessories, are smarter and more interesting than ever. A campus delight should be a handbag of blue calf, in a long cylinder shape, with a turtle neck top of red woolknit.

THE VELVET TOUCH is due to be replaced, somewhat, by dull satin, judging from a look at fall collections. This goes for both clothes and accessories. A black, double-woven cotton glove is dressed up with an adjustable cuff of black satin which can be buttoned to reveal the satin after five.

THE SQUARE DANCE is still going strong, as are the clothes developed for this pleasant recreation. White pique makes a full skirt with a tailored black braid belt and lines of the braid toward the hem. With it a dull black jersey top, scooped out at the neckline. There are brief sleeves.

BETTER LOOKING each summer is the word on handbags made to go with the light, pretty clothes we are wearing now. A big bag of natural linen is embroidered in all-over wavy lines in chalk-white beads. There's a zipper under the big flap of this capacious handbag, which has a wide, bead-embroidered handle.

ONE REALLY GOOD blouse is a "must" for the well-rounded wardrobe. A beauty is in pink satin, a short-sleeved model, the low, scooped neckline marked by a broad insert of lace encrusted with tiny rhinestones and pearls. It is a good choice for a theatre suit.

NEVER BETTER is what teensters will be saying when they go shopping for Fall clothes. Gray flannel is used for a sheath with a peg-pocketed skirt. Red flannel facing for the notched scoop neckline. With it is a red flannel stole.

ARE CIVIL SERVANTS

Toronto, July 28 — (CP) — Premier Frost said today that employees of the Ontario Liquor Control Board are civil servants.

His statement followed the refusal of commission chairman Arthur Welsh to meet union officials who sought to represent the employees.

Swim Fashions Practical And Pretty

White sharkskin bathing suit

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

THERE is plenty to crow about when it comes to the current crop of beach and swim togs. Novel fabrics, pretty and graceful designs, clever use of black and color, makes for a brilliant beach pageant. Well suited to the more mature type as well as the younger woman is this dainty, feminine swim suit of white sharkskin printed in a green and blue bubble design. Its built-up shoulders offer a relief from the plethora of strapless models, and there is a bulli-in bra. The bodice closes with little crystal buttons, and the set-in belt ties in front. The suit has a jersey lining and under pants.

Bantams Win Peewees Lose In Minor Ball

Belleville minor baseball teams won and lost in return games with Peterborough pee-wees and bantams at the Fair Grounds on Thursday night.

Peterborough pee-wees reversed the result of the first meeting between the two teams defeating the local lads by a score of 9-5 in an abbreviated three-inning fray. In the nightcap Houston's defeated the Peterborough bantams 7-4 in five innings.

The Houston Lumber team displayed a brand of baseball which was a credit to those who have spent time and effort to promote minor ball in Belleville. The battery of Leo St. Denis and Bill Charlton were particularly outstanding.

Umpiring duties were very capably handled by Pat Wilson, Willie Fordham and Don Dolan.

Speedboat Champ Loafs Along at 140

Seattle—The world's speedboat record holder made it definite Friday:

His news Slo-Mo-Shun V, which has loafed at 140 miles an hour in trial runs this week, will be ready for the Gold Cup races here Aug. 4 "barring accidents."

Some doubt on his new craft's performance had been in the mind of Stanley S. Sayers until Thursday. But it was erased when the boat knifed through the water at 140 M.P.H. with the throttle barley half open.

At Long Last

Rochester, N.Y. — A Toronto yacht, the Circe, swept across the line here Friday to be the first Canadian vessel in 11 years to finish first in the Silas George Cup races on Lake Ontario.

The Circe, piloted by Reg Dixon, hails from the Royal Canadian Yacht Club of Toronto. It navigated the 15-mile course in the second-day event in one hour, 53 minutes and 33 seconds.

PIONEER SWIMMER

First person to swim the Northumberland Strait between Prince Edward Island and the mainland is 23-year-old nurse Evelyn Henry of Keppoch, P.E.I. She made the crossing in eight hours and 40 minutes. Surface distance is about nine miles, but strong tides stretched the swimming distance to about 15 miles. An expert swimmer and horseman, she made the attempt because "I just wanted to see if I could swim that far." (CP Photo.)

'Yanks Luck' Still Holds Good Rain Gets Assist In 3-1 Win; Indians Edge Red Sox 3-2

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

So you think the life of a Major League manager is all peaches and cream? Well, listen to Paul Richard's tale of woe.

Richards, top candidate for manager of the year honors, led his Chicago White Sox into Yankee Stadium last night to battle the league-leading New York Yankees.

The Yankees won, 3-1, by the grace of Lady Fortune to retain their one game lead in the tight American League pennant race while finds the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians tied for second and the White Sox fourth, 4½ games off the pace.

Chicago, trying to climb back in the fight, entered the game nursing six defeats in its last seven games and a tongue-lashing from Richards.

The Yanks led, 3-1, going into the ninth. The Sox scored a run with none out and had two runners on base when a thunderstorm washed play for about 15 minutes. Play was resumed with one out, pinch-hitter Bert Haas socked a two-run single to put the Sox in front, 3-2. Another hit loaded the bases but then the storm broke again.

Score Reverts

Plate umpire Hank Soar waited an hour and two minutes and then called the game. The act wiped out Chicago's lead and the score reverted to the end of eight innings and the Yanks were the victors.

Richards, hopping mad, announced that he would file a protest. "It wasn't unplayable" Richards fumed. "There is no such thing as an unplayable field. All they had to do was take the cover off, and they didn't do that."

Home runs by Gene Woodling and Joe Dimaggio off Billy Pierce accounted for the Yankee lead going into the ninth. Rookie Tom Morgan then lost his stuff and before the rains ended the game five other Yankee Pitchers saw action in the stormy inning.

Yank manager Casey Stengel also got into an argument with the umpires. Stengel protested the banishment of third baseman Gil McDougald by umpire Bill McGowan. McDougald walked over to talk with Morgan when he was pitching to Floyd Baker with two on, none out. McGowan promptly elected McDougald for apparently delaying the game. Baker singled to make it 3-2 and the first storm broke.

Homers Win For Tribe

After play resumed, Don Lenhardt walked, and Hasa and Nelson Fox singled before the second storm brought an end to the game.

The Indians edged the Red Sox 3-2, in Boston to tie the Red Sox for second place. Home runs accounted for all the scoring. Ray Boone belted two for the Indians including a game-winning blow in the ninth off Ellis Kinder. Al Rosen socked the other Indian tally and pinch-hitter Charley Maxiell homered with one on in the seventh off Bob Lemon for Boston.

In other American League games the Washington Senators defeated the St. Louis Browns, 7-0, and the Philadelphia Athletics downed the Detroit Tigers, 10-6.

Con Marrero blanked the Browns on eight hits to post his 10th victory. Mickey Vernon led the Senator attack, driving in two runs on a pair of doubles and a single.

Gus Zernial and Elmer Valo banged out three hits apiece to lead the A's to victory over Detroit.

'Bums' Still Roll

Brooklyn, meanwhile, continued to roll along in the National League. The Dodgers overcame a five-run deficit to post the St. Louis Cardinals, 13-9. Roy Campanella broke it up with a three-run homer in the ninth off Al Brazle. The victory was the Brooks' 10th straight over the Cards and it dumped the red birds out of third into fourth place in favor of the Philadelphia Phillies.

The runner-up New York Giants, 9½ games behind the Dodgers, tamed the Cincinnati Reds, 5-3. The Giants broke a 3-3 tie with two runs in the seventh inning. Don Mueller tripled and scored on Monte Irvin's single. Irvin stole second and scored an insurance run on a one-base hit by Whitey Lockman.

Howie Pollett yielded 12 hits and four home runs yet went all the way as the Pittsburgh Pirates topped the Boston Braves, 8-4. Sid Gordon slammed two homers and Roy Hartsfield and Walker Cooper one each for the Braves.

The Phillies scored their third straight shutout as they beat the Chicago Cubs, 2-0. Bubba Church blanked the Cubs on five hits.

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

REDMEN KNOT HOLE CLUB

Nearly every red-blooded moppet in the city likes to see a baseball game. The most of them like to play the sport. But after they've hung up their junior spikes and gloves and the big red team is slated to play, there's a general invasion of the Pair Grounds.

* * *

A lot of the little tykes have not got the necessary admission fee which is this case is a quarter. And with the Redmen trying to catch up with a flock of postponed games there'll be plenty of diamond pastime at the Exhibition Grounds in the next few weeks. And that means a lot of quarters.

* * *

The Belleville Baseball Club executive at a special meeting the other night decided to alleviate this condition and give the little tykes a break, financially, that is. Knowing that a lot of them will be disappointed through inability to see the game because of the lack of two bits, the exec. decided to form what will be known as the Redmen Knot Hole Club.

* * *

The new kids' organization will be composed of young fellows fifteen years of age and under. The membership fee will be one dollar and this will entitle the holder to each and every game played here for the remainder of the baseball season, and get this, including the playoffs.

* * *

So there you are, fellas, and poppas, too. For one lone simoleon little Joe can see the Redmen t'avort for the rest of the season. Tickets will be available on Monday at Jack McNab's Sports Centre; Bill Cook's Tobacco Emporium; Fred Symons' ditto and likewise Ed. Thomas' shop.

* * *

CAN'T BEAT THIS!

The hottest town since Mrs. O'Leary's cow kicked over the lantern and burned half the hamlet down, Chicago is fairly blazing with heat since its White Sox started a flaming path down the American League trail. And despite recent reverses that dropped the Pale Hose to fourth slot a couple of games or so behind the leaders, the baseball blaze is far from extinguished.

* * *

In fact the Windy City fans are so "het up" with the diamond antics of the Richards Men that they organized a small invasion of Gotham over the weekend where the Chicago clash with the haughty Yankees in a "broncial" three game series. And mucha, mucha depends on the outcome of the three-ply battle.

* * *

The Waiver Waltz from Chi. won't be without some solid support. Besides a flock of experienced Chicagoans who derive their bread-winning pelf from the gorges of Gotham, a flock of sturdy loyal Soxian fans made up a special train and arrived in N'Yawk today. They will leave after Sunday's doubleheader.

* * *

The train that took the whooping Windy citizens over the long trail to Broadway and Yankee Stadium consisted of six coaches, a diner and a club car. And they took along a duplicate of the automobile used to transport pitchers from the bullpen to the mound in Comiskey Park.

* * *

DOTS AND FLASHES...

Members of the Redmen Baseball Club won't be sitting around twiddling their fingers for a while at least . . . Tonight they trek to Kingston. Monday night Kingston is here . . . On Tuesday night they entertain Picton to settle a postponed game and on Wednesday evening they go to the "little Spanish town" in a regular fixture . . . On August 8th the St. Louis Browns Rookies will be here for an exhibition game and the next evening the Peterborough Marines of the Viaduct League will be hosts of the Redshirts in another ex. tilt . . . Doug Free, Redmen hockey player is slated to do his puckchasing for either Port Hope or another lakeshore town next winter, quotes the grapevine . . . Likewise the gossipmongers have it that Jimmy Irvine, last season's Redmen goalie will be wearing a Kingston Nylon uniform come hockey time . . . Arrangements are under way to have a National Hockey League game show its exhibitional wares in Memorial Arena in early October . . . More about that later . . .

Don't be surprised if you see Oshawa and Peterborough looking with longing eyes at the Central Ontario Baseball League come next Spring . . . Two of the most powerful squads in the current Viaduct Loop (in fact one Peterborough wag quipped that the teams were the only senior baseball squads in that league) they're running more or less roughshod over the Toronto opposition . . . What will become of the Ontario Baseball Association if the Intercounty League is suspended? Or has such action taken place . . . Whoever dreamed the cart would shake off the horse? . . .

Tonight the surging Glen Roys take on Howe and Hagerman in a round-robin Section "A" softball fixture . . . Winners of the "AA" section will go into a sudden death series with Kingston in the first round of the OASA playdowns . . . There are only seven or eight "AA" teams in the province . . . Point Anne will find it tougher. There's thirteen squads in their Intermediate "C" zone . . . For all that we're going out on a limb and predicting the Ox Pointers to cop the zone title if not the provincial bauble . . . This department cannot undertake to cover minor softball and baseball games . . . Officials of leagues should see that reports of games are handed in, if they want publication . . . That goes for industrial loops as well . . . Sportswriters are human beings, too, and cannot be everywhere at once . . . And the major teams naturally get priority . . . We are only too glad to publicise all games results but reports must be sent in, if publication is wanted . . .

Bill Hastie, who coached the Gananoque Intermediate hockey team last winter, and who formerly played with the Reliance team here, has moved to Galt, Ont. . . . Aside to all young baseball Joes' pops, "Be a good guy and give the kid a buck so he can join the baseballs Club and thus see all the Redmen games . . . It should be worth a dollar to know where he is, these balmy summer evenings" . . . The racing car heats start at 2.30 this afternoon at Speedway Parkland, near Marysville . . . A thrill a minute . . . The Redmen take on the Kingston Disney Leafs tonight in Kingston and the Limestone lads will play a return visit here Monday night . . . Tonight the Avon Jewellers take on the Belleville Motors in an Intermediate "AA" clash that should be a thriller . . . Both teams are deadlocked for first place and tonight should tell the story . . . Game at 6.45 at C.N.R.

Reds Rally With Two Out To Snatch Game From Fire 'Fitz' Guns Home Winning Run

By MAURICE REED

Wow! What a finish! That old adage about a game not being over until the last man is out was certainly never more true than in the game at the Pair Grounds Friday night.

Dick Fitzpatrick's single, his second of the inning, climaxed a terrific six-run drive by the Belleville Redmen after two men had been retired and pull a win out of the fire by a score of 7-6.

The victory left the standings unchanged although the locals strengthened their hold on third spot while Napanee remained embedded deeply in the cellar.

No Keen Hill Fourth

Neither team hit the score sheet until the fourth inning when an infield single by Monroe and Hayes double to deep left drove a run across for Napanee.

Mowat, playing left field for a short-handed Redmen lineup, received a life in the bottom of the fifth as Turner, the A's second sacker, made terrible handling the greasy ball. He reached second when Fitzpatrick threw a surprise throw to first which Monroe did not know was coming and consequently the ball sailed by, popped out to short but "Huck" Reeves hit a solid drive over second into centre, driving in the tying run.

The Athletics regained the lead in the sixth on singles by Huffman and Hayes and a double by Monroe. They could have had another but a double play by Fitzpatrick and Goyer wiped out the threat.

Four in 9th

Napanee scored four in the top of the ninth. Jocko poled out a drive to left field to open the frame, the ball bouncing over the fence for an automatic triple. Dean grounded out with Jocko scoring when Dean's throw to the plate hit the dirt. Markle followed with a double and Jones missed the third strike. McTaggart received a life when his grounder to Jones was mishandled and went to third on Huffman's fly ball to centre that bounced out of Mulholland's glove. Both Mulholland and Soules went after the ball and apparently got their signals crossed, Mulholland making a last minute dash of the ball only to lose it. Turner banged out a two-bagger driving both men across the platter and the game looked in the bag for the visitors.

Merriwell Finish

Fitzpatrick opened the ninth for the homesters with a bingle to centre and pinch-hitter Bob Gear drove a terrific foul smash down the right field line before connecting with a fair hit to the same field. Strachan filed to left and Reeves grounded to short forcing Geary at second base. Mulholland drove a high smash down to second that Turner let go through his legs into centre, Fitzpatrick scoring on the error and Reeves pulling up at third. Goyer and Dean followed with bingles to left and centre field respectively, Reeves pulling up at third. Goyer and Dean followed with bingles to left and centre field respectively, Reeves pulling up at third. Goyer and Dean followed with bingles to left and centre field bringing "Paddy" Gilmour to the plate with the potential winning run, Gilmour worked the count to three and two and then filled the bases as McTaggart missed the corner with a fast ball.

Russ Soules followed and he drove it right over second base for a solid single bringing in the tying runs and sending Gilmour to third. This brought up Fitzpatrick for until 1851.

THE SECOND TIME IN THE INNING and reliable Richard did not fail. He doubled and a single, and Hayes with a double and single, powered the attack for the luckless Athletics. Two-base hits were also clouted by Markle and Turner while Jocko's only smash was a triple to left field.

Dick Fitzpatrick turned in another sparkling game afield for the winners while the stand-out for Napanee was short-stop Jones. Everything considered, it certainly was Fitzpatrick's night.

Maudeen Volo Wins Two Events At Thorncliffe

Thorncliffe Raceway, Toronto, July 28—(CP) — Maudeen Volo owned and driven by ex-jugglist Harvey Fleet from London, Ont., came from behind to win both divisions of the pacing stake at Thorncliffe Raceway Friday.

She lay behind the pace in the first dash of one mile and came around her field to win handily. In the second heat, at one mile and one-sixteenth, Fleet employed the same tactics and his mare wasn't pressed unduly.

Walter G., owned by F. M. Samis of Goderich, won the first and Johnny Worth, owned by Lockhart and Wood of Collingwood won the second for a daily double at $61.90.

Hugh Proudfoot, member of parliament for Fort Coulogne, won his first race of the meeting when his favored Lady Lee P., took the fourth dash. His mare was driven by Eric Conley.

Wily 'Zebra' Wins Over Sharp, Brother Ben Draws an Assist When Mike is Disqualified

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

Had a wrestling Nero appeared on the scene and tossed "Christian" Referee Bert Clapham well to the lions, the faithful last night he would have received at least a rough reception.

The unpopular arbiter incurred the wrath of the cashtowers when he awarded the main bout to the flooded Eskimo, Mike "Wily Zebra" in the advertising, after he disqualified handsome Mike Sharpe because of an act of brotherly love.

The proceeds rolled for several minutes outside the dressing room entrance yelling "Bring him out, Mike" sat in a ringside corner gnawing his nails in anger and the Zebra stood in the dressing room, a smug smile wrinkling his striped facial camouflage.

The barrel-shaped "Zebra" behood experienced eyes noted that at least six inches beyond his feet, won the bout the easy way.

Mike Wins First

He had dropped the first fall to big Mike after Referee Clapham disqualified his famous "Sharpe Stretcher" and won the second with a flashing display of Sharpian charge and fell atop Mike's prostrate form before he could rise.

The strutting stripper had the better of the third fall, due to the fact that he was gouging eyeballs, using the Sharpe hair trick and hightailing out of tight corners and resorting to some gadget that looked like a cue stick which he had secreted in the top of his capacious trunks.

As a matter of fact he heaved the big golden torso out of the ringside at least a couple times and head-punched Sharpe back into the customary lapa when he tried to re-enter by means of ropes

Movie Column

Hollywood, July 28 (AP)—The child's game of "statuary"—children fall into graceful and other positions and hold them as long as possible—and statuary as it is played in Laguna Beach have little relationship.

In Laguna Beach, famous paintings are reproduced with startling accuracy by serious-minded adults. Plumbers, doctors, housewives and merchants of this sea coast town, an artists colony and resort miles south of Los Angeles, get into the act.

Now the sixteenth annual program, called "The Pageant of the Masters" is underway. As usual, is it drawing capacity audiences (3,000 in the outdoor theatre) for its 16-night run.

Last Supper

The climax of every performance is a reproduction of Da Vinci's "The Last Supper." And a new note lately is a nude—Titian's "Sacred and Profane Love."

Each picture is held for a minute and a half. Even such slight movements as muscle twitches are frowned on by the directors. Voted the most popular picture, year after year, is that of a single picture, "African Sentinel," by Hilbu Vedder. Second in popularity, in one-figure pictures, is Geisseborgh's "Blue Boy."

It requires a staff and cast of 300 to stage the pageant. Prop man, artists, electricians, make-up men and divers are mostly amateurs.

The annual take is about $50,000, enough for props and lights and to pay some full-time workers.

The introductions of an undraped young lady, as per Titian, aroused little or no comment in Laguna. "We're pretty broad-minded here," said one of the actors, "But maybe some of the visitors will object."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Ribitzer

A penalty pass of a takeout double turns the takeout double into a penalty double. If you know what I am talking about, you are out of the diaper class of bridge. You are stepping into fast company.

So, let me repeat. A penalty pass of a takeout double turns the takeout double into a penalty double. Is that good? Is it bad for the player who has them? What can be done about it?

South opens with a heart. West doubled for a takeout. The north hand passes. East passes. This pass by east turns the west takeout double into a penalty double.

The south player must realize he is in some kind of a jam. The takeout double by west shows strength as good as an opening one bid. The pass by east shows help enough to sink one heart.

By his pass east also promises to take four heart tricks if that suit is trump. And north by his pass shows he may have something. In such a spot the defeat of one heart may be but a loss.

Say south has the hand shown here:

♠9
♥K J 7 6
♦K Q 7 2
♣A 8 6 5

South could pass. If he does he still believes he can make one heart or expects to take only a small loss at such a doubled bid. Is he willing to take the risk? If not, he wants out. But how?

An alternative is: If he thinks he can do better or no worse at another bid, he can mention another suit. This may be a better fit with his partner, or partner may be able to show preference.

However, partner may have support for the third suit and not for the first two mentioned, or more cards in one than the other. Which is all south needs to know to minimize his loss.

So, there is another alternative. South can redouble. Such a redouble acts the same as a takeout double. It orders partner to bid something. When you know the ropes it improves your hopes.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Sunday, July 29

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—A letdown from past few days' stimulating, favorable rays. Perhaps it is well, Sunday is the perfect day to take stock of our spiritual self, our soul's needs. Rest, relax, but no moodiness.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Mild indications in your immediate environs. Use your usually reliable common sense as to how to handle day's duties. Spend some time at your church, then with family, friends. Have good fun.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Neither too exciting nor dull outlook. Unless your program requires hard work, close attention to details or military matters, make it a day for useful reflection, prayer, charity work.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—Moon's position says day may tend toward uneasiness. Don't let it "the dumps" use your fine intelligence and sense of humor. First, your church. In free time, good fun.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Do not hunt up unnecessary work or offend. God. Due rest, prayer and pleasant recreation with family or wholesome friends are in order. Military and other urgent interests honored.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Mixed vibrations, some most favoring government interests, matters concerning our armed forces, confidential issues generally. Others warn against worry, doing unnecessary things.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—The wise, evenly balanced Libran will enjoy the quiet and restfulness emanating this Sunday; will fall in line with duty without fanfare or complaint, whatever his (or her) lot. Blessings!

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—Important matters require more than ordinary care and attention against possible unpleasant reaction. Day can be relaxing, gainful for spiritual development, healthy pastimes.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius)—Some aspects stress thoughtful pause if you intend making drastic changes in any situation or business operating successfully. Day urges more earnest prayer at church, good fun at home.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)—Do not let discouragement have any part in your day. Accept restrictions pleasantly, along with the many privileges and blessings we all enjoy; make the most of good things.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—We should not seek favors and exciting activities every day. Some days (and today is one) should be for self-analysis, doing good deeds for those less fortunate, for prayer and rebuilding energy.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Glance through notations to other Zodiacal natives today; from same aspects you can garner helpful advice, save yourself irritating moments. Do go to church; pray for world peace.

YOU BORN TODAY are: Active, alert; a keen memory, magnetic personality, and if true to your better self, an interesting conversationalist. Generous, ambitious, very capable. Ah, yes! You have your faults, too (don't we all?). Correct them before they master you. Egotism, slander, gossip are needless; and being averse to justifiable criticism are on the less attractive list. Banish any that show. You are capable of high success in professionism, trade, business, thals, engineer, builder of the Panama Canal.

"GRANDPA" FRANCO CAUGHT OFF GUARD

Generalissimo Francisco Franco, addressing the first meeting of his reorganized cabinet, which included Monarchists, announced that the friendship with the Western powers and the rearmament of Spain were the top items of his policy. In a lighter moment, General Franco is shown playing with his granddaughter, five-months-old Marie de La Esperanza, held by his daughter, the Marchioness De Villaverde. — Central Press Canadian.

No Wildlife in 100 Years Says Naturalist-Artist

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

New York — (AP) — Wild animals, says famed naturalist-painter Charles E. Knight, will have disappeared from the earth completely in another 100 years. Man himself may not survive another 1,000,000 years.

These are the considered opinions of a man who has spent a lifetime studying and drawing wildlife and prehistoric fossils.

The 77-year-old artist explained the basis for his beliefs:

"Man, the builder, is also the great destroyer of all time. He's the boss killer, and when he appears the animals and trees soon disappear."

He goes to Florida, drains the Everglades and destroys the food and shelter of birds. The birds go elsewhere — and men shoot them for their plumes or just for sport. Stockmen look at the woods and want to put their herds in them. Lumbermen look at the trees and want to cut them. Then the land becomes eroded, between the grazing animals and the lack of trees, and man's source of food and water disappears into the ocean.

Animals Killed Off

Knight, a calm, good-natured man, remarked casually it is fortunate for Americans that our nation was not discovered by Europeans a thousand years or even 500 years — earlier than it was.

"If it had been, the country would be completely decimated by now. The sail would have been ruined, the animals killed off and the country flshed out. Man just can't seem to stand seeing anything alive."

He takes a more detached and scientific view of the probable extinction of the human species.

"Other well-equipped animals have gone, due to changes of climate and changes of food," he explained. "We have come across places where hundreds of fossil animals obviously perished together.

Besides, any animal has a tendency to degenerate in confinement. Just look at our dogs. They can't compete with a wolf. Man is like that, too. The average civilized man today couldn't compete with the old Indian in withstanding the vicissitudes of life." Never a Hunter

The Brooklyn- born artist, whose work is hung in the great natural history museums of the country and who is recognized as the top man in his specialized field, has never hunted in his life.

Most of his work has been in snow — "you can study the animals from a closer range" — and in museums where he has been able to reconstruct with his paint brush animals extinct for thousands of years.

He calls this work "putting skin on fossils." Many times he has dreamed up wild and literally woolly animals on the basis of a few ancient bones, and then had his conception of how the animals looked verified by later discoveries of additional bones.

Knight says that although recent discoveries have pushed the birth of man back to around 1,000,000 years ago, scientists have never found anything "very old" in this country.

Loose Flavor

"Very old" in Knight's calendar means about 250,000 years. After all, the man has eaten marrow from woolly mammoth bone. The 5,000-year-old mammoth was discovered, preserved in ice, several years ago.

"It was horrible," he recalls, "and tasted like rancid grease. Meat will keep all right indefinitely in ice, but it degenerates very rapidly once released. A few years back a bunch of Russian scientists tried to eat some mammoth meat thousands of years old, and they all got deathly sick."

The major value of the deep-freeze mammoth, he said, was not culinary, but established that they were covered with red hair.

SAFER IN CITY

Annual average of deaths from lightning in the United States is 250, of which 90 per cent occur in small towns and rural areas.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is according to the stars.

For Monday, July 30

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Dull in part for untried, experimental measures. Don't take chances or large money losses this year either to conform with ability, nerves and pocket-book. Don't cross opposite sex.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Day that will require a prompt, definite "no" to questionable matters, and as quick a "yes" to sound suggestions. P.M., less of tension or irritating conditions. Watch attitude.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You energetic, often tireless natives may have to exert extra pull to steady things, keep them in line now. Day has problems that can be handled if you take them philosophically, use your wits.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Outlook fine, should be a tonic for you willing, active natives of Cancer's Zodiacal sphere. Step away from routine when possible to enjoy your talents, give new zest to everyday affairs.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Planetary indications excellent: augur for new progress in business, investments, professional affairs. Refresh your mind in current events, be up in what's going on. Be considerate.

August 23 to September 23 — (Virgo)—Generous configurations to incite better efforts, a more productive, useful day. Personal affairs, especially with opposite sex can be very pleasant; also business and social.

September 24 to October 23 — (Libra)—Like so often "no news is good news," so no anxiety means no tension. Day much what you make it. What effort and reason you put behind problems will determine results. Be consistent.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio)— Some adverse situations and influences in finances and business that could result in needless losses if you don't use good sense. Attend to routine cheerfully, also watch health needs.

November 23 to December 22 — (Sagittarius)—He who hesitates long loses opportunity. Start with determination and a plan and you will fare well. Appropriate attitude toward each duty and to people important for achievement.

December 23 to January 21 (Capricorn) — Steady, sensible pace! Do not rush into work or tasks without consideration of likely results and whether you can handle them well. Heart interests need delicacy, always.

January 22 to February 20— (Aquarius)— Unattractive day at first glance? But there are hidden "goodies" that can be of great benefit if you seek hard. Perhaps most advantages from friends, relations, your own cleverness.

February 21 to March 20— (Pisces)— Be careful about decisions with permanent consequences. Wisely protect your career, personal progress. Day needs no heroic effort but common sense and good management.

YOU BORN TODAY have what it takes to succeed in fine measure if you do not allow little things, personalities or hurts to retard your better judgment. Though you are at times changeable and will want to pack up and move self and loved ones to other parts, you are nonetheless industrious and creative. Can make fine headway if you stick to what's best for you. Dramatic and music ability; also good business sense. Can be interesting conversationalist. Don't become oversensitive or worry needlessly.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Lucilla shrugged. "But it's so idiotic."

"Paris said, "What if you had legs like that? You gotta give the poor kid credit. If Harry was getting married I wouldn't catch me takin' a back seat at the church. I'd get drunk and shoot the both of them."

This fascinated Mrs. Colps. "But you'd go to jail."

"All right, so I'd go to jail, but it's better than living. They must pull a fast one."

"But where would you get the gun?" Mrs. Colps asked.

"I'd use Harry's."

After receiving the demerit, a badge for two successful weeks, Paris had been ordered on a Double Day at Atonement diet. This was the first day and she was as snappish as a hungry section.

Her two friends watched tensely as she sat between them at the Eat-Beauty Bar, gulping her mineral oil and shuddering. Her unnatural dilapidation was a little frightening and they were relieved when Paris suddenly looked surprised and cheerful. "You want to know what I was thinking of? I was thinking I'd look good in a mink stole."

Lucilla didn't begrudge this thought until she discovered it was based on a germ of possibility. "Harry told me he'd already shelled out 200 bucks for this course and that could be my birthday present, but told him it was a heck of a thing to give a girl—gangsy—nasty. Be still my own me."

Mrs. Colps was uneasy when Paris didn't turn up for Bridge and Body Building the next morning. Lucilla said she was probably shopping.

"I don't think Harry would let her skip school," Mrs. Colps remarked. "Besides, I doubt if he'd have said yes right away about the mink stole."

Poise that morning was so absorbing Lucilla didn't have time to think about it. Miss Willit was showing them how to leave a social gathering without turning one's back. The trick, Miss Willit demonstrated, using Miss Thumbold for the hostess, was to pivot on the right heel and go out sideways. Lucilla managed it on the second try, but Mrs. Colps fared badly. She forgot to let go of the hostess's hand as she pivoted, and nearly wrenched the poor girl's arm from its socket.

Miss Willit pushed a set of hollow wooden steps to the centre of the room. Each student was to mount the nine steps up, pause, smile as if at an audience and then descend the nine steps on the other side. "Most women don't know how to come downstairs in a lovely, gracious manner," she explained. "Your eyes should be fixed straight ahead, or on the escort at the bottom, but never, never glance at your feet to see where you're going. It must be a continuous, fluid descent."

Lucilla, perhaps because she had become adept at living dangerously, was far and away the best. Miss Willit was unusually expansive: "Class, it might interest you to know that Mrs. Webb was sent here by a dear friend of hers, a Miss Tompkitts, whose walk was really not the best feature. But by saying to herself 'I can if I will' and by practising for two extra hours each day, she became as gliding as a ghost." Mrs. Webb had a terrific example to live up to, and I think even Miss Tompkitts would be thrilled to see Mrs. Webb today."

In Skin, Miss Dotlle was saying they must have at least nine shades of powder. "Because daytime rays vitrate differently on yours skin than electric lights, and the pigment also varies according to weather. Use a bright, ar tint on a gray day, and a cool ivory with a lavender undertone is . . ."

She broke off and goggled toward the doorway. The student who had never before seen the Glamour Guide goggle, turned to discover the cause.

Paris was entering the room. What made her entrance notable was her left eye, which was black, with not too cool undertones of lavender, azure and green. The effect, under the red hair, was as savagely colorful as a sunset sea.

Lucilla, who had expected to see mink, felt a retrieved surge of humanitarian impulses. Both she and Mrs. Colps half rose, to be sure Paris saw them, and pushed their stools together to make room for her in the middle.

Miss Dotlle silenced the buzz of enjoyable horror by saying commandingly, "You may put on your mascara now, class. I'll come around in a few minutes to check, and I do not want to see smears, so work carefully and quietly."

Miss Dotlle got a while bottle out of the supply cabinet, came over to Paris, and said in a conspiratorial voice, "This stuff will cover up most of it. You'd better put some on quick, in case Mrs. Dows pops in. I'll just shook the bottle. We had a Hollywood client taking a private course, and she got a terrible shiner after—uh—anyway, we put on this camouflage base before she went on a television show and you couldn't notice a thing."

"No kidding" Paris said.

"I sure hope it goes away before graduation," Miss Dotlle went on, still in the un-Glamour Guide voice. "Because you're the most photogenic one we've got."

Paris, wide-eyed at the genuine friendliness as she responded to food, was already looking more cheerful. She applied the liquid, which had the consistency of milk of magnesia, to the sponge. "Well, here goes." Lucilla and Mrs. Colps watched as she dabbed her eye socket and lid, and smoothed out the liquid at the edges. Incredulously they glanced at each other, signalling. Shall we tell her what happened? Finally Mrs. Colps, burst out, "Was Harry annoyed— I mean about the mink?"

"I wouldn't let that louse give me a mink if he was the last guy on Broadway," Paris said.

"But wasn't that what made you—oh—!" Mrs. Colps' voice trailed off helplessly, as she looked at the black eye.

"No." Paris said. "I was sore at him." Her friends looked bewildered. "Well, I was sore when I got him."

Lucilla nodded with ladylike restraint, but she listened as eagerly as Mrs. Colps. "First I hadda sit and watch him stuff himself with noodle soup and sauerbraten and cheese cake," Paris said somberly. "Then he orders a cold-pork sandwich with picalilli jelly and he won't even give me a bite. 'Not till you get your diplomas,' he says, and he sticks the sandwich right up in my face and says, 'Smell.' Then I swing at him, and he put up his chin and catches me in the eye."

She added darkly, "You should-da seen him after. I really got gold. There was picalilli all over his shirt."

By noon, of the next day, Harry still hadn't show up, Paris, sitting on the steps outside the Eat-Beauty bar with Lucilla, bit into a dry biscuit and said thickly. "Men! They're all skunks."

Lucilla said rather pontifically, "You can't judge every man by Harry."

"There's worse guys than Harry. Take this Colps. If ever a guy sounded like a louse, it's him."

Lucilla admitted he did. "But why did she marry him in the first place?"

"That's a dumb thing to say." Paris gild her dark glasses down on her nose, to stare reprovingly out, of the camouflaged eye. "Maybe she was crazy about him."

"But now that she knows what he's like—imagine having a husband who stays out all night."

Paris snorted. "You mean yours never did?"

Lucilla said indignantly of course not.

"How come you never talk about him much? I figured you two weren't getting along so good."

Lucilla said quickly that wasn't it at all.

"They why've you been giving the eye to that Peter Harlowe?"

Lucilla was so startled that she blurted out, "Him? Is a jerk." Recovering, she added, "He simply happens to be an intelligent person who's interested in the ballet and theatre, as I am."

"Then he's a jerk, he's a jerk. And watch out for that book stuff. I had one old goat kept me late and gave me to his pupil and see a rare Bible. 'What's rare about a Bible?' I asks him. 'They got one in every hotel room.'"

"There are men who enjoy a woman's intellectual companionship," Lucilla turned from her pulpit of superiority.

"Maybe." Paris appeared dubious. "But if this Derek Mac-lowe starts that schmooze about spending a quiet little evening alone—just the two of you—with his television set . . ."

Lucilla said triumphantly that Derek loathed television. Paris waved this aside, "Maybe his etchings or his record collection." She saw her companion's expression.

With great dignity, and even condescension, Lucilla explained about "Finnegan's Wake." "It's hardly the sort of thing a man would care for, but in fact, I'd been wanting very much to hear it, and Mr. Macdowe was nice enough to say I could stop by his apartment sometime and . . ."

"Stop by!" Paris exclaimed. "That's what they always say. At least Harry isn't the kind of guy who pulls that book-and-record stuff."

Lucilla was resentful of the idea. She was finally engaged to get away, she hurried to class without even glancing, en route, at the fire escape where Derek often stood to have a cigaret.

She didn't see him till the end of the afternoon, in the downstairs corridor. He looked so handsome with his hat on that her pulse lightened with pleasure. Derek glanced over to make sure the elevator operator had withdrawn into her cage and risen, before he said, "What a charming surprise, darling."

Lucilla felt down when Derek Marlowe said he had a staff meeting and that he'd be there hours. Meadows will be there," he explained. "How about stopping by my apartment tomorrow after school?"

Paris' voice squeaked in her head: "Stop by—that's what they all say." She hesitated. "Why don't we just meet at the same place again?"

"The friend who loaned me the records, of Finnegan's Wake, wants it back, Derek explained quickly. "And I wanted you to hear it first, so I asked him if I could keep it till Friday."

She was so touched by this thoughtfulness that the real proof that Paris was wrong, that she said she'd love to come. Naturally men wouldn't behave with delicate restraint toward Paris she thought. Derek was saying he'd expect her at 4:30.

She had barely got inside the foyer at 1.me when Gretel announced in a gloatingly gloomy voice, "Hoopy's school phoned up, and you're to call the teacher right away. The number's on the pad."

"Where's Hoopy?" Lucilla suddenly frightened.

"In her room. Her and Linda. They've got powder messed all over the rug."

To show she wouldn't be railroaded Lucilla went on pricking until Gretel returned to the kitchen. Then she dialed the number and asked for Miss Demstead. After a short wait, the teacher's neatly clipped voice greeted her. It sounded as if she'd been running. "Mrs. Webb, how lucky—I was just leaving the building. I wonder if you could come over tomorrow between 4 and 5, so that we could have a little talk?"

Lucilla felt compelled to murmur something about a doctor's appointment. "Can't you tell me over the phone? It's about the Parent-Teachers Bazaar . . ."

The teacher said it wasn't. "As a matter of fact, I wanted to talk to you about Hope."

Lucilla said she wouldn't have any free days for a while. "I think we can settle this one on the phone," she said, with a brisk politeness.

"Well—it's not exactly—I mean it would have been more satisfactory—but I hate to wait any longer. The fact is we feel little Hope is retrogressing."

"Retrogressing!" Lucilla exclaimed.

The voice hurried on. "She's been hanging on to me too much of the time, hot playing with the other children as she used to—or when she does, she displays an aggressive antagonism."

Lucilla was too taken aback, and too resentful, to speak. Miss Demstead went on: "Forgive me for having to ask this so bluntly, Mrs. Webb, but are you having trouble at home? Is there any special reason you can think of . . ."

"I mean, we often get these symptoms in the children of divorced parents, and I thought if you could confide in me, we'd be in a better position to help Hope adjust . . ."

Lucilla tasted flecks of rage. "I assure you—her voice was too ready; she dug for the lower register and started again—"I assure you there is no trouble between me ever at home."

The teacher said earnestly, "Sometimes a child's psychological fears have only a trivial surface manifestation, and it's easy for an outsider to spot the danger."

As soon as Lucilla heard "psychological fears," conscience needled her into action. She figured hastily what date graduation was. "After the fifth, I could come over any time."

Miss Demstead said Mrs. Webb could phone her week after next. "When you're not so booked up with other engagements." It was an infuriating exit line, implying as it did that Hoopy's mother was some flibbertigibbet society woman who scarcely saw her own child.

Lucilla went to the door of Hoopy's room, and was reassured by the first glimpse of her daughter; Hoopy was bending over the top stove, her back to the door. She had on an old print-cotton skirt of Lucilla's which trailed behind, and a pair of Lucilla's shoes. Now what could be more normal than that? her mother thought. They're playing Make-up. Hoopy turned. Her high forehead was obliterated by a mass of jagged short locks; her face was heavily powdered, her eyelids were green, and, with the chopped-off hair, she looked like a midget gun moll. "Hoopy! What have you done to your hair?"

Linda chattered. "She made me help her cut it, Mrs. Webb. She wanted bangs, and I said, 'Your mother won't like it' but she said you had bangs and you'd like her better if she had bangs."

"We've been putting on a face" Hoopy said shrilly. "Like you do."

Lucilla heard the front door open and hurried out to tell Arthur. She was so intent on what she was about to tell him that she didn't notice his lack of greeting.

"Hoopy and Linda cut off half Hoopy's hair," his wife babbled. "I just wanted to warn you not to make fun of it when you see her. She's already in a state because . . ." She completed the story, making it sound as though she wanted only to beautify her child for Arthur's sake,

"Is that all?"

"Isn't that enough!" Lucilla snapped. "Say something. I suppose you think I'm to blame."

"Yes," he said evenly. "For several things. Is the name of your gym Beautiful-Youth?"

"Why—what?" Her face supplied the answer.

"I got the bank statement today." He pulled a canceled check from his inside wallet pocket. The amount between the sexes declined rapidly.

"I have a friend who's a fabulously successful decorator," Derek was saying. "He's done houses for films and the Fatty Drumms and half of Hollywood. He got me the fabric for the draperies."

Derek went to the black portable bar and Lucilla asked for sherry, thinking it practically the same category of anti-debauchery as tea. Derek mixed himself a Pernod and came over to clink his glass against hers. "To us, darling." She sipped primly.

Derek went to the cabinet that stood in a corner to the left of the zebra-zagged draperies, and got out an album. At first, Lucilla gazed at the machine with the vagueness typical of myopics and new-born kittens.

It was a television screen. "I thought you hated it," she hinted.

"I have a friend who's a fabulously successful decorator," Derek was saying. "He's done houses for films and the Fatty Drumms and half of Hollywood. He got me the fabric for the draperies."

BRITAIN TO SEND CABINET MISSION TO TEHRAN

Police Renew Local Search For Missing Lad

Believe Boy Given Ride Into City in Motorist's Car

Provincial Police of Belleville, Eastern Ontario and Toronto renewed their search today for twelve-year-old Robert Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Anderson, third concession of Thurlow, who has been missing from his home since 9.30 a.m. Friday.

Belief that the boy had left the district was heightened today when a motorist, William Pascoe, stated that he picked up the youth who was hitch-hiking and brought him to Belleville on Friday morning.

Unaware Boy Missing

Pascoe said the boy told him his name and asked to be let off at the corner of Victoria Avenue and Front Street. Pascoe was not aware the lad was missing until he heard a radio report yesterday.

The lad is about four feet eight inches in height, weighs approximately 90 pounds and was dressed in a yellow T-shirt, blue denim trousers and brown shoes. He is deeply tanned.

He was sent to the farm roads side strawberry patch to do weeding job on Friday morning, and that was the last time he was seen by his parents. A neighbor, however, stated she saw him walking along the concession road about 10 o'clock.

Check Trenton Report

A further report from a Trenton resident stated that a boy answering Mr. Anderson's description was seen on Highway No. 2 west of Trenton, heading in a westerly direction. Police are checking.

The lad walks with a slight limp.

The Andersons have relatives in Toronto, Trenton and Whitby, but telephone inquiries revealed the missing lad had not turned up at any of their homes.

Mrs. Anderson, mother of the boy said today she was at a loss to understand his actions. "He was never the adventurous type", she said, "he has never left home before and he told us where he was going."

Army Officers Charged as Spies For U.S, U.K.

London, July 30—(AP)—Warsaw radio announced today four generals and five other Polish army officers will go on trial tomorrow charged with running a spy ring for the United States and Britain.

Among the defendants is Brig.-Gen. Stanislaw Tatar, former chief of operations for the Polish home army.

Others include Col. Marian Ulnik and Col. Stanislaw Nowicki, who served with the army in the London staff of the Polish refugee army in the Second World War.

Ulnik was chief of the Polish purchasing mission in London until last October, when he was recalled to Warsaw.

The Warsaw broadcast said the nine defendants, financed from Washington and London, had sought since 1945 to undermine the Polish state and make ready for a forceful overthrow of the communist regime.

In addition to Tatar, Ulnik and Nowicki the defendants were identified as Brig.-Gen. Franciszek Herman, former deputy chief of the home army's second (intelligence) Bureau; Col. Jerzy Kirchmayer, Maj.-Gen. Stefan Mossor, Col. Marian Jurecki, Maj. Wladyslaw Liwo-Minkiewicz and commander Szczepan Wacek.

Two Killed At Same Spot

Winchester, Ind., July 30 (AP)—Two speedway drivers were killed within a 15-minute period yesterday and both met death from virtually the same spot on a steep banked curve.

At two other speedway tracks —in Illinois and Pennsylvania— accidents killed three persons—a driver and two spectators.

Two well-known drivers — Cecil Green, 32, of Houston, Tex., and Bill Mackey of Indianapolis—were killed when their racers went out of control at the Funk Speedway near Winchester, Ind.

A spokesman for the American Automobile Association said there was an oil slick on the curve and that both drivers apparently were going too fast along the asphalt track to negotiate it.

PRICE OF ICE TUMBLES

Toronto, July 30 (CP) Synopsis: The pleasant summer weather continues in Eastern Ontario. Temperatures are expected to remain warm in all regions today and Tuesday.

Tail flying, the calf made a perfect landing and walked away.

50 Canadian Girls Tour Dockyards Inspect Famed British Vessels

Portsmouth, England, July 30—(CP) — The Royal Navy today played host to a party of 50 Canadian schoolgirls who are touring Britain as guests of Toronto's millionaire industrialist, Garfield Weston.

Conducted by Dr. Muriel Rose, Dean of Women at McGill University, the girls were officially greeted at the dockyards by officers of the fleet and whisked off on a sightseeing tour.

With young sailors as guides they spent more than an hour inspecting historic H. M. S. Victory, Nelson's flagship in the Battle of Trafalgar.

Passing through the dockyards, the visitors had a close-up view of Britain's modern warships and by special invitation were taken aboard the Home Fleet aircraft - carrier Vengeance, just back from a visit to Salisbury and Oxford University.

North Atlantic exercises.

Later, the tourists were entertained at luncheon by members of the Women's Royal Navy Service in Duchess of Kent Barracks, the only native township in Britain in the country.

After the lunch the girls were driven to Portsmouth city council chambers where the Lord Mayor, Alderman Ernest Foster, presented them with keys to the city.

"This is a part of my trip we'll long remember," remarked Ann Carstairs of Courtney, B. C.

"Our tour through H. M. S. Victory was one of the most thrilling we have experienced so far. We've certainly been surprised to find Britain such a delightful country and the people so thoroughly charming."

Tomorrow the girls pay a visit to Salisbury and Oxford University.

WAR CONTINUES AS NEGOTIATORS TALK AT KAESONG

Pyongyang Smashed In U.S. Air Attack

U.N. Advance Headquarters, Korea, July 30—(AP)—Allied and communist negotiators bargained more than three hours in sultry Kaesong today but made no progress toward ending the shooting in Korea.

Instead, they agreed that the war would continue while they talk. As they reached this understanding allied warplanes smashed at the red Korean capital of Pyongyang in one of the most determined air assaults of the war.

The negotiators remained deadlocked on the problem of a buffer zone to separate the opposing armies it and when a cease-fire agreement is reached.

A U.N. spokesman said: "The final solution is hoped for. That doesn't necessarily mean it is in the immediate offing."

They will tackle the same thorny problem when the 15th session opens tomorrow at 11 a.m. (9 p.m. EDT Monday).

Definitely Continue

The United Nations communique said Gen. Nam Il, chief communist delegate, "stated it was also his definite understanding that hostilities would continue during the current armistice sessions."

Nam was replying to an earlier "clarifying" statement by Vice-Admiral C. Turner Joy, senior U.N. delegate.

It was the first official hint of any serious misunderstanding on this point.

Joy gave a detailed analysis of the allied communique—essentials for a military dividing line across Korea.

The reds want a zone 12½ miles wide along the 38th Parallel, prewar political boundary between North and South Korea.

The allies want a 20-mile-wide zone along the present battle lines. Most of these lines are inside red Korea, on the average about 20 miles north of the 38th Parallel.

Stabbed Trying To Protect Young Baby Sitter

Toronto, July 30. (CP)—A 27-year-old man was stabbed to death with a spring knife Saturday night while trying to protect a young baby sitter.

Gerard Guy Ouellette was found fatally injured in an alley with five knife wounds near his home. He died in hospital.

Charged with murder was Ralph Ronan-Boehmer.

Police said the stabbing occurred after Ouellette told Romans-Boehmer to stop bothering the 14-year-old girl.

'Enemy's Build-up' Increases Danger of an All-out War Says Defence Secretary

Washington, July 30—(AP)—Defence secretary George C. Marshall has warned Congress that "the enemy's build-up" is increasing the danger of all-out war.

Marshall left no doubt he was referring to Russia as the enemy and to reported communist buildup of troops and supplies in Korea and elsewhere.

The defence secretary testified before a closed meeting of the House of Representatives appropriations committee which released part of the testimony today but deleted other portions for security reasons. The committee is considering the administration's $60,000,000,000 military budget proposal for the year which started July 1, 1951.

President Truman, in a speech in Detroit Saturday, warned of communist buildup for war "around the world." The president said the free nations must have men and munitions "on hand—ready for any emergency."

Marshall testified last Friday before the senate appropriations committee that the U. S. will have about 400,000 troops in Europe next year. This is about twice the number of previous estimates, some by Marshall himself.

Barrage of Questions

The defence secretary's new estimate drew a barrage of questions. But Marshall stuck to the 400,000 figure. He wrote chairman James Richards (Dem. S. C.) of the house foreign affairs committee Saturday noting that his estimate had been questioned and saying that the 400,000 is correct—340,000 ground forces and 60,000 air force personnel.

Marshall explained in his letter the figure includes supply and supporting troops as well as combat units.

Marshall said he was "deeply concerned" that Russia apparently had trapped the American people into developing an attitude of letdown.

"It is tragic," he said, "that we should be so susceptible to propagands, that a single speech would create a state of mind that can very seriously react to our disadvantage in the world picture."

That is the trap, that is the cleverness, and the ready response to it in America is tragic. We should not change our whole procedure every time the Kremlin decides on some new front. That, to my mind, is distressingly serious, because with so little effort they have accomplished so much to our great disadvantage."

The single speech to which Marshall referred was Soviet deputy Foreign Minister Jacob Malik's bid for Korea truce talks which led to the present negotiations in Kaesong.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, told the senate as armistice or cease-fire in Korea "may lead to our undoing unless we take steps to prevent such undoing."

IT WAS HIS LAST ROUND-UP

An impromptu "roundup" had traffic in a half dozen streets in Williamsburg, N.Y., tied in knots, when a 1,250 pound bull escaped from a slaughterhouse and led nearly 20 police cars and emergency trucks on a dizzy chase until he was cornered in a parking lot and shot. The bull, when lassoed and tied to a truck, thrashed about so furiously that he was seriously injured and had to be shot. — Central Press Canadian.

Twenty Planes Press Search

Juneau, Alaska, July 30. (CP)—Twenty planes pressed a search Sunday for a Korean airlines plane missing since July 21 on the Alaska Coast with 38 aboard.

The greatest activity was south of the point where the pilot made his last report from the Tokyo-bound plane. Searchers were following up a report from the town of Craig that a large plane was heard over that village the night the plane vanished.

The Canadian Pacific Airlines DC-4 took off from Vancouver on the hop to Tokyo via Alaska.

NEW TRAIN FERRY

Dunkerque, France, July 30. (Reuters)—A new train ferry described as the world's largest went into service Sunday on the Dover, England, to Dunkerque route. The 3,400-ton St. Germain, built in Denmark for the French National Railways, has four parallel rail tracks which run the full 140 feet length of ship. She can carry 500 passengers in their railway coaches and 25 autos, as well as freight.

FIVE DROWNED, HAND-OPERATED FERRY OVERTURNS

Swift Action Saves Many Hurled Into Water

Edmundston, N.B., July 30 (CP) —At least five persons lost their lives in a scene of watery panic yesterday when a hand-operated cable ferry overturned and sank on Lake Caron.

Swift, capable action by spectators and oarsmen at the scene saved many lives among the approximately 40 men, women and children hurled into the water.

The dead were identified as: Guy St. Pierre, 18, Armand Nadeau, 20; Robert Levesque, 13; Martin Corbin, 3, all of Edmundston, and Clifford Fournier, 17, of Frenchville, Me.

All persons reported missing earlier have been accounted for, R.C.M.P. said. A search of the small lake, 30 miles from here, was suspended after five bodies were recovered. Police said the search will not be resumed unless others were reported missing.

Some 1,500 spectators were watching when the spill occurred. They had gathered at the ferry sponsored by the Madawaska Fish and Game Club, owners of the lake.

Witnesses quoted one of two ferrymen as saying he warned that too many were getting on the boat. But they disregarded him and some scrambled on to the craft which normally carries between 25 and 30 passengers.

Changed Positions

The ferry was travelling about 200 feet from the island in the lake shore. Witnesses said the passengers were bunching on the cable. Within 15 feet of the shore, some changed their positions in the boat.

This brought it to a halt. Then the cable snapped and the craft capsized. But prompt action by others at the scene saved many lives. Within two minutes an estimated 25 to 30 boats were on hand, with their occupants snatching the victims from the water.

One boy was reported to have rescued a mother and a two-year-old baby, which she held tightly in her arms. At least a dozen men helped in the water, while others aided in successful rescue attempts.

The bodies of those who were drowned were taken to the town of Edmundston, some 120 miles northeast of Fredericton.

ON GOODWILL VISIT

St. Thomas, July 30.(CP)—A party of 25 R.C.A.F. cadets, selected from Corps throughout Canada for the C.J.A.T. station at nearby Aylmer Sunday for Washington on a goodwill visit, that will be taken through the United States.

A party of U.S. cadets is expected to reach the Aylmer Station from Washington later this week. U.S. Cadets will go on a bus and air tour of Ontario and Quebec, returning to Aylmer for the International Air Cadets' Assembly, August 8.

Yugoslavs Charge Bulgar as Spy

Belgrade, July 30. (AP)—The Yugoslav press reported today that Maj.-Gen. Slavco Trinski of Bulgaria, has been arrested secretly in Sofia and executed as a spy.

Without disclosing the source of its information, Borba—the voice of Premier Tito's government—said Trinski was executed in a purge of all Bulgarians opposing Russian domination.

The Borba article further described Trinski as a veteran communist and long-time advocate of Yugoslav - Bulgarian co-operation.

The newspaper claimed only seven of the 24 Bulgarian Republican generals were left in the army.

Politburo are "Russia's men" and that opposition to the regime is increasing.

PAST DISCUSSION STAGE

Kingston, July 30—(CP)—Civil defence in this eastern Ontario city has moved past the discussion stage. M. R. Crowe, city building inspector, has been appointed chief warden and 12 other wardens are to be recruited to serve under him. Recommendation has been made that a part-time civil defence officer on salary be appointed.

Chinese Red Model Worker Needed Glucose Injections to Keep Schedule

Hong Kong, July 30—(AP)—Pity poor Yuan Kai-li, the model Shanghai steel worker inside communist China.

This is how he "deviated," how he "got alienated from the masses" how his work grade fell from "A" to "C". The story is from Yuan himself, in a long, self-pitying mouthpiece just received here.

Yuan was a good technician. He was credited with helping bring production by May, 1950, to double its previous rate.

The communist party glorified him and made him a delegate to national congress of model workers and combat heroes in Peiping. With the ideas he got there, he needed production up some more.

Then he became a member of his labor union's executive committee, production committee, the management committee's propaganda officer for the party and vice-director of the committee for elimination of counter-revolutionary.

All this was inside the factory. Outside, he became the workers' representative at the People's Conference, the representative to a new municipal centre committee, the representative to the municipal executive council of the new municipal centre and the people's representative to his residential district.

He attended an average of 13 meetings a week. These required from 10 hours to 30 hours. In addition he did his 12-hour night shift.

Late winter he complained that his extra curricular duties were taking up "all my own time and even some of my factory time."

"five glucose injections per month to keep me going."

Last December his work grade fell to "C".

At last report, Yuan was in uncertain health, full of glucose, half asleep but still on his feet and carrying on a 22-hour schedule.

Will Discuss Oil Settlement With Government

Mission Will be Led By Lord Privy Seal

London, July 30 — (AP) — Foreign Secretary Herbert Morrison announced today Britain will send a cabinet mission to Tehran to discuss an oil settlement with Iran.

He told the House of Commons the mission will be led by Richard Stokes, Lord Privy Seal, and added; "it is not expedient for me at this moment to say anything further on this matter."

Morrison explained the decision came about as a result of consultations with Averell Harriman, President Truman's envoy now in London.

Some Points to Clear

Morrison said there are still some points to be cleared up before the mission can leave for the Iranian capital.

A United States embassy spokesman announced Harriman intends flying back to Tehran by tonight.

Morrison said the British government and the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company "have been ready at every stage to meet the legitimate aspirations of the Persian (Iranian) people."

"We have every sympathy with the natural desire of the Persian people to control their own mineral resources," he said.

While Britain is ready to accept the principle of nationalization, Morrison explained, she will not accept a one-sided violation of an agreement.

"We are entering a new era in the development of middle eastern oil," Morrison said.

He said much frustration in the Middle East is "due to the failure to satisfy the urge for social and material betterment."

He stressed the importance of oil resources in the future of the area, and said he hoped that development of the Middle East would be toward "an ever closer partnership between the countries possessing the oil and the foreign countries who are contributing capital technical skill and marketing facilities."

Anxious to be Friendly

Morrison also said Britain is anxious to be friendly with Egypt. He invited Egypt to co-operate "as an equal in the common effort to make the world safe."

If war came, he said, Egypt would find herself in the position of having to join the west. He said Egypt and Britain have "a great deal in common on such incidents as the recent seizure by the Egyptians of the British ship Empire Roach.

He was followed in the debate by Conservative leader Winston Churchill, who accused the government of a series of weak and agreeable parade of bland truisms and platitudes." Churchill declared Britain's present position in the Middle East on the war of her Indian Empire.

Husband Shoots Wife and Two Children, Self

New Hamburg, Ont., July 30—(CP)—A triple murder and suicide drew an abrupt end to a long siege of domestic strife Saturday when a 39-year-old farmer fatally shot his wife and two children, then killed himself with the same .32 calibre rifle.

A forced delivery driver making his rural rounds discovered the bodies of Wilbert Gofton, his 36-year-old wife, Clara, a son, Cecil, 7, and a daughter, Dolores, 5, in their home and was attracted by the cries of 11-month-old Elna, lying in her crib a few feet from Gofton's body. Another child, Carl, 2, had been at a nearby farm for six days visiting friends.

The slayings occurred about 7.30 Saturday morning on the Gofton farm about 15 miles south of this village and about 18 miles southwest of Kitchener. The bodies were found eight hours later.

Neighbors said Gofton had often threatened to kill his wife. Police had frequently intervened in domestic quarrels.

The quarrel that preceded the shooting apparently involved Mrs. Gofton's attention to another man. The chores of their farm had been done and she was about to feed the baby and leave.

Killed Outside Home

Police who pieced the story together, said he killed her outside the kitchen door with one bullet.

He dragged her body indoors, then proceeded to a front bedroom, passing the baby in her crib. He shot Cecil and Dolores as they lay sleeping in a double bed. Returning to the kitchen, he shot himself. Only four bullets were used.

Police said they could not understand why he didn't take the life of the baby unless it was that he overlooked the child in his frenzy.

After discovery of the slayings, the baby was taken to a neighbor whose daughter cared for her. Her brother, at the farm of Hans Kondert, was too young to comprehend what had occurred. He was taken for a picnic Sunday afternoon.

An informed source said yesterday Britain, the United States and France have made plans to take Berlin's exports to the west if necessary to by-pass new Soviet restrictions. They are stacking up in West Berlin warehouses.

WAR CONTINUES

Joy asked the reds for comment on the U.N. proposals "so that the final solution to this item may reflect our mutual views."

Brig.-Gen. William P. Nuckols, U.N. briefing officer who attends the sessions, said Nam merely repeated what he has said before, the same words but in different order.

Nuckols said Joy's statement concerning a final solution was "another invitation to the communists to consider the U.N. stand on the buffer zone."

Before today's session started, Nuckols made it clear to newspaper men that the U.N. considers the 38th Parallel "a political boundary and not suitable for a military dividing line.

Nuckols attends the cease-fire sessions and briefs correspondents on what happens.

This morning he told reporters the 38th Parallel was "an arbitrary line picked out of a hat, so to speak." In 1945 for the exchange of Japanese prisoners, the Russians handled those north of 38, he said, and the Americans took care of those to the south.

Thus it has "no military significance," the spokesman added.

List 6,000 Descendants Way Family, Many Expected at Wellington Reunion

Trenton — (Special) — On August 15, descendants of three of Prince Edward County's earliest pioneers, Daniel and John Way, and their cousin Daniel B. Way, will gather for their annual reunion at Wellington Beach. There, while the younger members of the clan enjoy the sand and water, the older ones will untangle further threads of kinship, aided by the family historian, Glenn C. Way, Niagara Falls, N.Y.

Tracing the family tree has been the life-long hobby of Glenn Way, and to date he has listed more than 6,000 descendants of the original three United Empire Loyalists.

The Ways were originally English colonists of Taunton, Mass., but left for what is now part of Brooklyn, N.Y., in 1642 with a Rev. Francis Doughty, who was ordered to leave Massachusetts because of the doctrine he preached.

13,332 Acres

In what was then the Dutch territory of New Netherlands, they were granted 13,332 acres by Governor Sylvester Stuyvesant. Later the group began to doubt their right to this land so they paid the Indians for it and received a deed, still in existence.

The price agreed upon was one shilling per acre, and the record shows that James Way, grandfather of Daniel and John, paid two shillings. Later he purchased more land.

All three of the Way pioneers served in the British forces during the Revolutionary War, Daniel being a private in the same regiment as his lieutenant father Daniel came to Canada, settling in Northport, in 1785. His cousin, Daniel B. Way, came in 1800 and his brother, John, in 1805.

Reunion 29 Years Ago

Originator of the Way family reunion was the late Gideon Way, Trenton, who, 29 years ago, invited the descendants of his grandfather, James, son of Daniel, to a family picnic. The following year, the invitation was extended to all the descendants of the three pioneers and "Ways" in every province in Canada and many of the States have been present at the subsequent annual reunions.

Nighthawk 'Nell' Raises Brood On Gravel Roof

Newspapermen have long had the reputation for being "nighthawks".

Now, along come evidence of a nighthawk, feathered variety, trying to raise its family to be newspaper men or women.

On the warm tar-gravelled roof of the circulation department's newspaper dispensary, a nighthawk "mamma" fashioned a birthplace for twins.

Nature at its best is seen in the perfect camouflage of the mottled grey of the fledglings which merges into practical invisibility with the color of the roof.

Rear of the presses, the incessant clacking of linotype machines, in fact the cacophony of a composing room working at top speed doesn't bother the birdlets or their mother the one lota.

"NELLIE" THE NIGHTHAWK

"Nellie" Nighthawk sits compulsively, either alop her young or a short distance away. She squats like a sitting hen, keeping a watchful eye on the hawklets.

Occasionally she removes them to a different spot on the roof. But always keeping them safe from prying eyes and marauding strangers by trusting to the natural camouflage.

The youngsters are about the size of a baby chick, are well-feathered and apparently well-fed. They seldom move, relying mainly on "mamma" for transportation, food and housing accommodation.

It's a long time since the ordinary newspaper 'nighthawk' did that.

WILL DISCUSS

Dispatch of a mission headed by a Cabinet minister was reported agreed to by Iran as a basis for reopening discussions over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company's $1,400,000,000 properties.

Heretofore the Iranians have said they would deal only with oil company officials and not the British Government.

A splint of optimism prevailed both here and in Tehran that Harriman had brought about an atmosphere in which the explosive Middle Eastern oil crisis could be solved.

At one note, however, was struck by news that the giant refinery at Abadan—the world's largest—was not close enough. An A.I.O.C. spokesman emphasized that the refinery was closing only because storage tanks were full and not in an attempt to put pressure on the Iranians.

Harriman cabled questions from the cabinet to Tehran. The Iranian Cabinet met in emergency session last night to consider them. Iranian government officials said afterward a "spirit of conciliation" prevailed at the meeting.

Details worked out by the Iranian Cabinet then were cabled to London.

Britain has accepted nationalization in principle but has objected to the way Iran proposed to carry it out. Though ready to accept Iranian ownership of the oil installations, Britain wants to retain control of refinery operations.

Unconfirmed reports from Tehran said that Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's Cabinet is willing to discuss "additions" to the nationalization law which would water down some of the drastic features to which Britain objected.

Elderly Man Found Lying In Swampland

Ottawa, July 30 — (CP) — A 100-man search for Michael Prytula came to an end Saturday when the 70-year-old Arnprior farmer, missing since Tuesday, was found lying in a swampland a few miles from his home.

Searchers said they found him with his clothes in tatters, his face covered with insect bites and generally weak from hunger and exposure. He was rushed to hospital where authorities said the aged farmer will live, given time, quickly.

Prytula left his South Gloucester farm early Tuesday to search for a $10 bill which he said he lost in the swamp where he had wandered into that same area more than a month ago.

Police said he apparently had tried to climb a fence, slipped and had fallen to the ground on the other side. He had been too weak to get back on his feet again and had lain there until discovered.

Vincent, a sickly child who had never completely recovered from an accident four years ago, was staying with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith at their home on No. 3 highway, six miles south of here.

Chicago Blonde Jailed in Italy

Milan, Italy, July 30 — (AP)— 20-year-old Chicago blonde who came to Italy determined to marry a handsome Catholic priest in police custody "for reasons of public security," an official of Milan's San Vittore jail said today.

The girl, tall Claire Mary Gertrude Young, figured in the news several weeks ago when her mother came here in an effort to break up the romance with former missionary Mucland Negrini.

The jail official said Miss Young was taken into custody Saturday, on orders from police headquarters.

The 43-year-old Negrini spent many years in China as a missionary.

Miss Young said two weeks ago she came to Italy to marry Negrini and had taken first steps to relinquish her American citizenship.

The couple met in Chicago when Negrini tried unsuccessfully to obtain American citizenship. He then returned to Italy on orders from his superiors and Miss Young followed him here.

"I came to Italy of my own free will because I wanted to marry Luciano Negrini," she said.

The former missionary quickly interjected, "only the Pope could prevent us from marrying."

Then he added: "I am only looking, of course. Clayer perfectly well that as a priest I never could marry a young girl."

THE FIELD IS NOW CLEAR

The ties that bind are no more. Any way the problem is looked at, Canada is now free to do as she likes about the St. Lawrence Seaway without fear of bad feeling from any quarter in the United States. Due to some shortsighted representatives of the people south of the border, the United States will not be taking part in the project. That means, precisely, that the choice is ours.

It is hardly likely that the bill will come before the public works committee of the House of Representatives again. It may be brought up for discussion again if two-thirds of the members of the committee agree. Since the bill was killed by a 15-12 vote, the two-thirds majority is a great deal of time. It will also require a great deal of money, which, despite the disregard governments are showing for it today, is still one of the most precious quantities the taxpayer would like to have.

The problem presents a double approach for the Canadian government. Either the seaway project, incorporating a scheme which would produce 2,200,000 horsepower of electrical energy, will be built, or the hydro plan will be built and developed by itself. The latter would mean that Ontario and New York State would combine to develop the St. Lawrence River in its international section. This has long been a desire of the people of Ontario and, even though the town was at loggerheads over the seaway, many New Yorkers felt that the waterway would at some time make a ghost of their seaport facilities, and consequently were against the project. The hydro, however, is another matter.

There is no doubt that Ontario needs the extra power to keep up with her industrial expansion. Since the end of the war, additional great quantities of power have been made available to the consumers of the province, mostly through developments such as Des Joachims and the establishment of steam plants. It was once thought that such measures could take care of any power shortage. Ontario might ever have, but the expansion of industry has been so great that it is apparent more and more power is needed.

Canada cannot afford to jump feet first into any seaway, half-prepared and ill-equipped to do the work. Many factors will have to be considered before the job can be tackled. But at least now we may go ahead. The delay now will be of our own making, and not brought about by the United States.

THE VANDALS OF A NATION

In what may be one of the world's greatest insults to memory, a fence erected by frenchmen brought about a fight on the tomb of the Unknown Warrior under the Arc de Triomphé recently. The scuffling involved men known to be in sympathy with France's late, unloved Marshal Petain, and were perhaps prompted by their dislike of orders which will deny them the fact that Petain ever lived.

The French government has ordered that the fortress on the Ile d'Yeu, where Petain spent six years as a prisoner because of treason, shall be destroyed, and that everything else connected with his life on the island will be burned. Part of the reason for the orders was that France has completely cast aside her good memories of the old man, with a few exceptions. The orders were also given so that no confirmed Petain collaborators will not attempt to make a shrine of the relics left by the former Vichy leader.

There are those who will condemn the actions, saying that the Marshal is dead, and can do no more harm. And there are those who will have all comment on this and other incidents attached to his life suppressed, believing that if nothing good can be said about a man in death, then nothing should be said at all. Such thinking may be partly right, if only for the fact that Petain himself never considered that he was a traitor to his country. To the last, he believed that he had done well.

But the desecration of the tomb of the Unknown Warrior cannot go uncriticized. These men, who think so little of that which has gone before that they will go to almost any lengths to discredit it, are the vipers of a nation. No country is without them; none can ever be completely rid of them. Fortunately, for the most part, they are not a large enough group to merit any sort of attention. It is only when they commit such an act as this that they rate any comment.

No man should be denied the right to speak his mind, regardless of his political sympathies. But when that man turns to a vandal in his disrespect of national shrines, he must then be controlled. Such acts are unspeakable, and should be pufished, in the lightest sense, by exile.

FREEDOM

The word slips lightly from the tongue
Falls lightly also on the ears.
Yet, what means freedom to the young
Descendants of its pioneers?

I wonder have they learned as yet
More precious freedom is than gold?
All it bestows men died to get
And, threatened, still will die to hold.

This heritage of human rights
The chosen task, the church, the school,
The home, with all its restful nights,
The ballot, naming who shall rule.

These are what freedom means. The lives men gave its joys to gain.
And, should our heritage be lost,
Nothing of value would remain.

OUR TOWN

BY JACK SCOTT

SUMMER AFFAIR

Have you seen a memory being born? Have you seen some vignette, some pleasant scene, suddenly become a memory? Have you seen thirty years from now this will be remembered, this will make a memory"?

That thought loitered in my mind for a week or more during my vacation when some of us at a summer camp were unobtrusive spectators at a love affair. Having memories of one's own, it is no trick to recognize the raw materials, as one recognizes the grape before it is wine.

It was common gossip along our stretch of the beach that they had met only the week before, an accident, really, like the mystic meeting of the queen bee and the fortunate drone. And there was cause for thought there, too, for with most of us love comes as a kind of collision.

The girl was lovely beyond words. She was the latter ladies let it be known, from thin lips, that the poor thing had had no brains in her head, but—oh— she had so much more.

There was a natural grace, almost a dignity, in her movements and her bearing. When she walked down the beach and into the water it was like seeing a young deer in the dawn come to drink from the lake. The mothers with many older women along the sand were speculating sadly on the future of the child.

The boy had a wonderfully homely face, the kind on which a girl can project her dreams, like a pattern or infectious amiability. Warmth of emotion rarely shows in the face of a young man, except when he is angry. On this boy's mobile face it was a glowing thing, shared with everybody.

He had thick brown hair, crew cut, and he was forever in the motor mower, and a long thin, wiry body. He went at everything hard, whether it was mowing the lawn, diving from the board as if he hg had been fired from a cannon. Watching him one day my wife said, "I never knew why they called it a jackknife dive until now."

All of this, of course, was for the girl's benefit. She made pendantic struts and cavorts for the hen. This she would surely know.

The Quiet Types

They spent most of their time in the cool, hot day at the end of a little pier that's ash-grey with age. Even in the morning, girls down. And there was you would see them there, his long, girafte tefs and big feet twisted behind the smooth, slightly toasted legs, his shorn head beside her dark gold hair, each of them with a book held open on the weathered planking.

Once in a cottage nearby had bought the "South Pacific" album for their record player. They thought the gay the voice of Pinza and Mary Martin would come drifting down from that end of the beach and blend into the surroundings.

I had the feeling that sometime far ahead when either of these people heard "Bali Hi" or "There Is Nothing Like a Dame" the memory of this week would stir in life as "Lover Come Back to Me" or "Paradise" stirs the memory of some of us.

They seemed almost old-fashioned in their relationship. There was none of the amorous horse-play of the beach, finding a way to bring together they seemed almost grave at times and this seemed to set them apart, as if the rest of humanity were behind a glass wall. While he played Jamie she lay on her stomach in the grass, following him with her eyes with a grave half-wonder half-contemplation and when he would smash out a point the grin went to her like a gift.

Then, at the end of the little pier must have seemed their minds and that so long as they cherished each other this landscape would be theirs forever. If you like, the shrine for them and sons nights when I would walk the lake, I would see their silhouettes against the summer moon and the tiny flare of their cigarettes.

The Last Day

On their last morning at the camp they joined some of us in an expedition after crabs. When the boy found one he revealed a kind of undersea meadow. In the centre of the flat, sandy seaweed grew in a thick, velvety mass. The campers walk gingerly through this, parting it with their feet, looking for crabs. They are small, rarely more than six inches across the hard, burnished shell, and are delicious.

It was another hot morning and the smell from the canal was the worst of the summer. My wife and with a touch of iodine, yet a clean and bracing aroma.

The boy and girl seemed to be trying to squeeze the last ounce of happiness from their week. Their joy was contagious. We all of us hollered louder than ever when a crab was found, laughed with more delight when someone stepped into a soft spot. When the girl found the first soft shell crab of the morning it seemed as important as she had found, in fact, the Hope Diamond.

When, at last, they left and walked arm-in-arm from the beach, hand in hand, I had this curious feeling of looking ahead into their future. The girl a dozen or more years from now, her memory stirred by a song from the South Pacific" and a snapshot album.

"Remember that morning when we found the biggest crab?" she was saying. "That was the best of all-times, two weeks of sunshine and then everything more wonderful than it ever was before. . ."

It could be. We all have a summer like that to remember.

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

A man watches his family grow up with the normal mixed sentiments of pride and disappointment together with some presentiment of loss as they reach the age to be married or to move away with their own jobs and careers to follow.

But it is at the summer cottage that the father of a grown-up and dispersing family realizes his loss to the full. Who is going to use the boat? Who is going to carry in the stove wood? A family man, by the time his children reach ten years or so, becomes the foreman or supervisor of a very handy gang. He can order things done with a commanding air that few other foremen in the world can any longer adopt. For a period of any where from ten to twenty years, depending on how skinny and delicate children are, a man is in a pretty comfortable situation. Fourteen year olds can jerk and yank the outboard starting cord; carry up the groceries from the wharf; go for the mail on rainy days; and perform a hundred little jobs that are really beneath the dignity of a paterfamilias. When, during outboard refuses to go entirely, as it often does when Dad is operating it, who rows it the mile or two down the lake to the nearest handyman, for repairs? Not father.

This era in all families might be called the Victorian or Golden Age. Then, all of a sudden, the children grow up. Some get married, others get summer jobs. And there is poor old Dad, sitting up the veranda, with a feeling the way Napoleon must have felt on St. Helena. The boat has half a foot of water in it; the wood box is empty; the ice box nearly so. Somebody has to go for groceries, and it looks like rain.

There comes a time in a man's life, just when he thought he was sitting pretty, when he has to back and wait for his grandchildren to become twelve years old.

DON'T TAKE IT SO SERIOUSLY

Earlier I said, "one with gallstones which produce symptoms should give himself or herself the benefit of the doubt when the question of operation arises, that is, say oke and head for the hospital as soon as the doctor can squeeze you in."

Trouble with a lot of you poor geeks is that you are thirty or forty years behind the times in respect to surgery. You still harbor fancies and obsessions that may have had some basis in fact forty years ago but not today.

One of these quaint notions is that an operation, any kind of operation, involves dreadful suffering or pain. Pain my eye. Of course anesthesia, general or local, makes any and all operations absolutely painless today, and my comment, if you try to tell me how painful this or that experience is after operation is just, "Don't make me laugh." I myself have had a number operation, and by gosh it hurt when I had to sit or chuckle before the drainage tube and stitches were removed.

I would take my word for it. Ask any intelligent laymen who has been fortunate enough to undergo a major operation at the hands of a doctor skilled in modern techniques.

Another common notion that hinders or limits recovery in the many instances that the necessary operation is "dangerous." Danger is an element of risk involved in every operation, no matter whether it be a major or a minor operation, infection, septicemia, acute blood poisoning, hemorrhage, shock, cessation of breathing embolism, cessation of heartbeat may occur in the course of or following any surgical procedure. Yep, and despite skill acquired through long practice, I may break my neck turning somersaults tomorrow morning.

But I have no intention of quitting my regular morning roll on the same kind of account. I would be foolish to reject the boon of surgery in the face of the imminent dangers of the uncontrolled disease.

If I believed medical or other conservative treatment for cholelithiasis (gallstones producing symptoms) or for cholecystitis (gallbladder inflammation without gallstones) were applicable to operations I'd say so. I do not hesitate to say that ambulant (office, home) treatment is preferable to hospital operation for hemorrhoids (piles) and for many cases of hernia (breach, rupture), do I?

In the booklet So You Have Indigestion? for which send 15c and stamped self-addressed envelope, I give directions for non-surgical drainage of gallbladder, which numerous readers tell me has given them considerable relief, if they repeat the procedure every two or three months. But it is of no avail if stones larger than rice grains are present in the gallbladder. Nothing but surgery can bring lasting relief if gallstones are present.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Unna's Boot

Please repeat directions for the use of a boot for Mrs. Unna to promote healing of varicose ulcer. (F. O.)

Answer—Instructions are given in pamphlet on Varicose Veins And Varicose Ulcers, for which send stamped self-addressed envelope.

It's a Good Racket

Have been receiving B complex injections three times a week, also taking B complex capsules and phenobarbital daily for the past few months for a nervous condition. (I. W. H.)

Answer—Even if the dope (barbiturate) were not in the "nervous tonic" I'd say some charlatan is exploiting you shamefully. There is no connection between why "shots" should be given when the patient can take the medicine or vitamin in the ordinary way. Perhaps you are addicted to the barbiturate and so you play along with the "shots" in order to get it. Try to get away from the cult and under proper medical care before your "nervous condition" becomes any worse.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THESE BLESSINGS OF OURS

If we would only look about us and take note we would realize how great our blessings are day by day. To us all come sorrows, disappointments, troubles, problems, disappointments, unhappy periods, and yet all these are overshadowed by the countless blessings we have ours in some form or another.

Where was a gospel hymn that used to be sung in my father's church, and I often think of it. The lingering refrain was "count your blessings one by one." If we would do this instead of dwelling on our troubles, lacks, or difficulties, we would be far happier and more helpful to our spirit would rise and delight in the attempting of impossible things that we have set for ourselves. No matter how bad a situation may seem, it is not as bad as it might be! So, count your blessings and name them over in your mind, one by one.

I could write a book that would be a long one about my disappointments, but I could write a bigger—and a more interesting book—about the blessings that have been mine over a long and varied lifetime.

I have been blessed with better than average health over the years, but there have been two long periods when I was housed in a hospital, and it was then more than any other time of my life, that I realized what a multitude of blessings I possessed and had been mine. I would contrast these with my disappointments, unhappy moments, failures and regrets. I would wonder why I ever count my blessings and name them over.

Your Gestures Give You Away

Know how to spot a fourflusher by his handshake? A shrewd diagnosis by the way he smokes? The typical gesture of demagogue and bluffer? Whether you're choosing a lawyer he's got a witness on the spot?

Angelo Patri, educator, tells how gestures reveal your character, in a fascinating condensation from William B. Tiff's popular book, Your Life.

A warm, extroverted person gestures outward; inward gestures betray coldness, inhibition. Read how you can judge character by gestures. Start looking over the people you meet today: 41 articles of lasting interest, condensed from leading magazines, current books.

WATCH YOUR BRAKES

On the desk before me is a pamphlet published by the Division of Motor Vehicles of the State of New Jersey. It is entitled "How Fast Can You Stop?" The folder gives a terrifying picture of what can happen if the brakes of one's automobile are not in good working order.

The picture of a figure being suddenly thrown by split-second deceleration and being tossed several hundred feet as a result, reminds that the brakes with which our individuals are equipped when they purchase a car should have to be kept in good working shape also if we are to avoid trouble. How many real tragedies have occurred because people could not throw on the brake disaster quickly enough to keep back the tornado of words which broke up a marriage or destroyed a friendship or dissolved a business partnership.

Just as there are people who go and come over our heads our attention to the fact that their automobile brakes are getting slack, no one ever heeds when never think of bringing themselves or any other living being back into unkind and belligerent word, the rash act, or that plunge into the pit of passion which sears and frequently consumes.

Watch out for your brakes. They are necessary in operating a car as is a good engine. They are the best sound brakes operating on thought, word, and act. Nothing over individual is trifling with

WEDDINGS

HAMILTON—TUCK

At 2 p.m., on Saturday, July 28, Christ Church, Belleville, was the scene of a pretty wedding when Margaret Marion Tuck, of Belleville, R.R. 2, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tuck was united in marriage to William Glenn Hamilton, of Wooler, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton. Archdeacon Arthur Smith, rector of St. Thomas Anglican Church, officiated before a background of pastel-tinted gladioli.

Professor Ernest Wheatley rendered the traditional wedding music, and Master Jackie Calnan, of Belleville, the soloist, sang before the ceremony, "Because" and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her bridal floor-length gown of white satin fashioned with molded bodice featuring lace front and shoulders, portrait neckline, and long, tight-fitting sleeves ending in lily-points over the wrists. Her bouffant skirt fell in graceful folds. Her three-quarter length veil of tulle illusion was caught by a matching Juliet cap encrusted with seed pearls, and she carried a cascade bouquet of roses centred with a mauve orchid, a single strand of pearls completed her ensemble.

Miss Ruth Hamilton, of Wooler, sister of the bridegroom, attended the bride, wearing a pale green gown of taffeta made on lines similar to those of the bride. She wore a matching floral hat and carried a shower bouquet of yellow roses.

Mr. Ernest Tuck, of Belleville, brother of the bride, attended the bridegroom, and the ushers were, Mr. Albert Tuck, of Belleville, brother of the bride, and Mr. Bruce Hamilton, of Wooler, brother of the bridegroom.

The reception was held at the bride's residence, which was charmingly decorated for the occasion with pink and white streamers, white wedding bells and vari-colored gladioli blooms. The bride's mother, attired in a blue gown trimmed with white, with matching accessories and corsage of red roses, received the guests. The bridegroom's mother, gowned in light flowered mauve with matching accessories and corsage of yellow roses, assisted.

Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton left amid showers of confetti and good wishes for Toronto, Watertown and other points in the States. The bride chose for travelling a light mauve dress topped by a lemon-yellow shortie coat, black and yellow hat, black accessories and wore orchid corsage. Upon their return, they will reside in Belleville.

Her shoulder-length veil was held by a matching white headdress, and she carried a nosegay of white gladioli flowerets, pink sweetpeas, blue bachelor buttons, white roses and white daisies.

Miss Verna Carleton, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid, gowned in pink marquisette, fashioned in ballerina length. She wore a headdress of matching feather roses and carried a nosegay of pink gladioli, white sweetpeas, pink roses, blue bachelor buttons and stephanotis. A rhinestone necklace, the gift of the bride, completed her ensemble.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother, who was gowned in lilac silk with navy accessories, and corsage of carnations.

Those pouring were, Mrs. Earle Bailey, of Stirling, and Mrs. Edna Van Allan, of Peterborough, aunts of the bride. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier wedding cake made by the bride groom's mother, and was cut by the pearl-handled knife used by the bride's grandmother at her wedding. The decorations consisted of sweetpeas, while wedding bells and streamers cascaded to the four corners of the table.

The toast to the bride was proposed by the Rev. A. Campbell, to which the bridegroom replied, the toast to the bridesmaid, was proposed by the bridegroom, and responded to by the groomsman.

BEAUTY

Good eating habits aid good appearance

What the mama puts on the table has much to do with the appearance of the entire family. Diet deficiences can bring a trail of beauty griefs. It should be the ambition of the boss of commissary department to perfect herself in culinary efforts. Cooking is an art—a fascinating pursuit if a women will really get interested in it and strive to produce luscious, appetizing viands. One has to cook. Why not have the satisfaction of doing it well?

It is worth while for the sake of health, to learn something about the benefits of nutrition and the sad results of under-nourishment. One doesn't have to starve to be under-nourished; a lack of vitamins and mineral salts will slow up energy and create pallor. A balanced diet is an insurance against a lot of ills.

Cooking as an art

Every wife and mother desires above everything else to retain youthful appearance as long as possible. Common sense tells us that the human machine must have the right kind of fuel. Food should be properly prepared; it should be dainty; it should appeal to the eye and the palate. Some children will refuse to eat do so because the groceries offered are not properly prepared or because the love of having the same things put before them day after day. It is always because they are stubborn or want to attract attention.

Boys and girls in their early teens, subject to acne, will be likely to escape their distressing trouble if the mother will restrict their intake of fats, cut down on their pastries. An excess of ice cream and chocolate will often excite the sebaceous glands, causing them to pour out oily exudations that enlarge the pores.

We have a wide choice of foods. Our forefathers considered orgenes a luxury; only canned vegetables were available in the winter time. We should be appreciative of our dietary blessings. They have much to do with sound teeth, fair complexions, abundant tresses, and a stable nervous system.

We need protein, a type of food that comprises lean meat, fish, egg white and cheese. We must have carbohydrates, found in starches and sweets. A certain amount of fat is required for energy-building. The proper balance of the three elements in the normal diet is made up of approximately four parts carbohydrates, one part protein, one part fat. The balanced meal consists of one serving of meat, potatoes, one other vegetable, a green salad, one square of butter, a glass of milk and a dessert.

'Jolting Joe's' Homerun Broom Cleansweeps Chicago Series; Dodgers Lead Shaved to Nine

By RALPH RODEN
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York Yankees expect neater sailing in the tight American League pennant race now that "the big guy" is hitting for the distance again.

Joe Dimaggio, hobbled by injuries all season, came to life during the weekend and forced the experts to put his obituary back on the shelf.

The $100,000-a-year outfielder slammed three home runs in as many games to help the Yankees sweep a three-game series from Chicago and knock the White Sox out of the race for the time being.

Dimaggio clinched Friday night's disputed 3-1 victory with a homer and yesterday he enjoyed his greatest day of the season before 70,972 fans, largest crowd of the year at Yankee Stadium.

The Yankee Clipper drove home five runs on a pair of homers to spark the Yanks to an 8-2 victory in the opener. He singled and scored the insurance run in a 3-0 shutout triumph.

Two Games in Front

The sweep enabled the Yankees to pull two games ahead of Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians. The Indians nipped the Red Sox 5-4 to tie Boston for second place. The fourth-place White Sox are lagging 6½ games off the pace.

In other American League games Washington Senators split a double-header with St. Louis, winning the first game 7-2 but losing the second 8-6. Philadelphia Athletics divided with Detroit Tigers.

Brooklyn Dodgers continued to make merry in the National League. The Brooks trounced the St. Louis Cardinals 8-1. The runner-up New York Giants shaved the Dodgers' lead to nine games by taking a pair from Cincinnati Reds 3-1 and 6-4. Chicago Cubs also swept a doubleheader, beating Philadelphia Phillies 5-4 and 8-5. Boston Braves and Pittsburgh Pirates divided, the Pirates winning the opener 6-2 and the Braves the nightcap 5-4.

Raschi Fans 12

Dimaggio's long-ball busting overshadowed a fine pitching performance by Vic Raschi. Raschi fanned 12 batters for victory No. 15, before he was forced to retire in the ninth inning when he was struck by a line drive off the bat of Chico Carrasquel. The blow was not serious.

Bob Kuzava also pitched brilliantly in the nightcap. Kuzava yielded five hits and fanned nine in turning in the Yanks' 16th shutout of the year.

Birdie Tebbetts, a former Red Sox, ruined his old mates at Boston. Tebbetts poled a two-run homer in the fourth and singled to launch the Indians' winning rally in the seventh.

Big Mike Garcia checked the Red Sox on five hits including a three-run homer by Ted Williams. The victory was Garcia's 12th.

The Dodgers, trailing 3-1, scored seven runs in the seventh inning in beating the Reds. Six hits, two errors and a walk figured in the uprising. Preacher Roe received credit for the victory, his 10th

Arlington Stakes Easy for Cochise, Wins In a Walk

Chicago, July 30 — (AP) For a horse that was a doubtful starter 5-year-old Cochise from the east made quite a run-away for the $100,000 top prize in the $143,750 Arlington Handicap.

Buddy Raines, trainer for Donald Ross' Brandywine stable, said that he was contemplating scratching Cochise up until 7:30 Saturday morning — some 10 hours before race time—because of the muddy condition of the track. Jockey Ovie Scurlock, however, prevailed on Raines to start him.

The rich handicap, which closed Arlington's 36-day meeting before 28,192 patrons, had a 'good' track and Cochise scampered the mile and a quarter in 2:05 4-5, beating out favored Oil Capitol owned by Tom Gray, Texas, and Mrs. Harry Trotsek of Louisville, by one length.

Cochise took the lead early and was never headed in paying off $13, $7.20 and $4 at odds of ½ to 1.

Oil Capitol returned $3.40 and $2.40. Third in the eight - horse field, one length back of Oil Capitol, was Rokeby stable's County Delights.

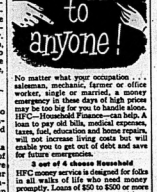
Cochise, a big gray, boosted his year's earnings to $144,455 and his lifetime winnings to $255,615.

Sinks Pair of 'Aces' Same Tee, Same Hole

Baltimore, July 30 (AP)— Frank Gossman, who hadn't shot a hole-in-one in his six years of golf, sank two of them on successive days.

What's more, he potted them from the same tee, on the 125-yard sixth hole at Mount Pleasant course here. Gossman made his first ace Saturday, then followed up with another yesterday.

Irvin Schloss, pro at the club, said chances of shooting two straight holes-in-one on the same green are about a million to one, maybe more.



of the year.

Sal Baglie of the Giants also hung up his 15th win in the opener at Cincinnati. Maglie scattered seven hits.

Player-manager Phil Cavarretta sparked the Cubs in the sweep of Philadelphia. Cavarretta drove home three runs in the opener and clouted a grand-slam circuit blast in the nightcap.

Brother, Sister Win Splash Titles In National Meet

Vancouver, July 30—(CP)—The Canadian swimming championships wound up here Saturday with a blaze of McNamee.

Gerry McNamee, 17, of Vancouver scored swimming's home run when he stroked his way to the 1,500-yard free-style title after winning the 100, 200 and 400-yard events during the first three days of the meet.

His sister, Kay, 20, grabbed all the women's free-style races. She took the 100 Saturday night after pumping to easy victories in the 200 and 400 earlier.

Only one record tumbled during the four days of splashing up and down the 33 1/3-yard pool in Mahon Park in suburban north Vancouver.

Fifteen-year-old Shirley Campbell of Fergus, Ont., Friday posted a time of five-minutes, 13 seconds in the junior women's 400-yard free-style, smashing her own record set three weeks previously by 4.2 seconds.

Handsome Leo Vigeant of Montreal, the bronzed Tarzan of the high board retained his three-metre Canadian diving championship. He executed some dives which no other rivals even attempt.

The Vancouver Amateur Swimming Club won the title event with 113 points; Montreal was second with 83 and Ocean Falls, B. C., third with 70.

Canadians Win In Tennis Tourney

Southampton, N.Y., July 30 — (CP)—Straight Clark and Hamilton Richardson won their quarter-final doubles match Saturday from Henri Rochon of Montreal and William Tully of New York, 6-6, 12-10, 6-1.

The Canadian Press erroneously reported Friday that Rochon and Tully defaulted in the quarter-finals to Clark and Hamilton.

Clark, Pasadena, Calif., and Hamilton, Salon Rouge, La., were eliminated in the semi-finals by Dick Savitt, Orange, N.J., and Tony Trabert, Cincinnati, 6-2, 6-3.

A 'GOOD' WINNER

Fort Erie, Ont., July 30 (CP) — The racetrack crowd here talked today about "the lady in black" who made only two bets last week. But she won $11,000. Two $1,500 bets scored across the board in two races netted her more than $5,000 each.

Malcolm Hanover Smashes Record At Thorncliffe

Toronto, July 30 (CP)—Malcolm Hanover, owned by Ken MacKinnon, of Owen Sound, and driven by Bill Simmons, smashed the track record for 1 1/16 miles at the Thorncliffe Raceway Saturday when he paced the distance in 2.13, clipping 1 1/5 seconds from the mark which was established a year ago by Oro G. Herbert.

Malcolm Hanover's record was the more remarkable in view of the fact that the track had been deaded by eight hours of rain on Friday night.

Although the early races were contested over a heavy track, conditions had improved when Malcolm Hanover took his field by the head in the one-mile heat of the $1,000 pacing stake. Malcolm won handily in 2.06 3/5 in the first division and then dazzled his rivals in the second heat.

His final one-sixteenth of a mile was the fastest paced by a horse in two years of competition at Thorncliffe. Malcolm Hanover has been unbeaten at the track this season.

Peterborough Petes are making a renewed effort to run away with the Ontario Lacrosse Senior race.

The Petes picked up four points in two weekend games and now have a 10-point lead over second-place St. Catharines Athletics and Hamilton Tigers.

St. Catharines, meanwhile, pulled into a tie for second place by defeating Fergus Thistles 10-8 Saturday night.

Mowat Hurls Two-Hitter But Reds Lose to Kingston 3-2

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

THE MAN'S GOT SOMETHING!

"Give me twenty-five good Canadian junior track and field youngsters, the proper training facilities and equipment, and I'll beat anything the world can produce".

Pretty broad statement, eh? But none the less sincere for it comes from a man who knows whereof he speaks.

He is Lloyd Percival, boss-man of the well-known Sports College, high-ranking Canadian track and field authority, one of the best trainers of youngsters in Canada, author of many sport treatises and one of the most unappreciated (in some circles) sportsman in the country.

* * *

Lloyd dropped in this corner's hacienda the other evening for a brief "bull-session" along with Eddie Schreiber. Percival is staying at his cottage on Sloco Lake where he is ditching up with many of his writing efforts. We met him for the first time.

Percival knows track and field from the spikes to the crew-cut. He has trained many Canadian junior stars among them Richie Ferguson, Don McEwen, now a Michigan track ace and others. He has under his coaching wing at the present a galaxy of youngsters some of whom are Olympic material, the most of them potential stars.

* * *

"The Canadian youth is as good as anything the world can produce", Percival said. "Hockey has proven that beyond the shadow of a doubt. Give our youngsters the same opportunity, training facilities, and above all the same national, individual and organization interest in other fields of athletics as they get in hockey and Canada will take a back seat from none of them".

* * *

In secondary schools and universities Canadian track and field-minded youngsters have had two strikes" on them from the start. Meets are confined to intra-mural and a few interscholastic or intercollegiate meets a year. After that, what?

University interest in track and field has been more or less lackadaisical up to the present. But Percival is optimistic over the future. In the upper halls of learning it is quickening and this is due in no small measure to the consistent exodus of promising Canadian university and high school material to colleges across the border.

* * *

American colleges track and field coaches make no bones about scouting the potential stars from Canadian educational sources. This too, is reaching in to the realm of football. Percival said that he had letters from no less than 27, count 'em —27—American colleges with regards to the future of Canadian grid and track products "to further than mere letter-writing. American college scouts buy Canadian cigarettes and "sit in" on Canadian meets and grid battles.

Not good what they think might be promising material, and true that, in the majority of cases, the rest is easy. The lure of bounteous scholarships, the fame and glory that lie at the end of the glittering rainbow of American college sports, looms up. Class champion, college champion, state champion, conference champion, and on up to the fabulous "Ayy-American". A big letter on their chests. Fraternity and school adulation. The hero-worship. And after it is all over the opportunity to get a lucrative job and income on American citizen.

And, get this. Seventy per cent of Canadian university and high school athletes who cross the border to "study" and "fit for Alma Mater" on the track, gridiron or hockey cushion, remain in Uncle Sam's domain.

Getting closer to home, Percival, who has Gary Schreiber under his training wing has high hopes for the former St. Michael's Academy athletic star. Under Percival's personal supervision, Gary is rounding into an outstanding track star, and already has won high honors in this field.

Speaking frankly, Percival said, "I don't think Gary will ever be a sprint champion, although he holds a good mark. But, with more training and development, he will, I believe, be one of Canada's best middle-distance runners, with emphasis on the 880 and half-mile. He has plenty of drive, guts, and stamina. Already he has attracted the attention of college scouts".

Percival related an incident that occurred during a Montreal track and field meet in which Schreider tied for a sprint title with another runner. This chap, apparently alarmed at Schreider's ability to hold him to a dead-heat, tossed it off with "I'll beat him next time, easily. I was not in the proper condition."

Schreider who overheard the remark, walked up to the speaker, lifted his running jersey and showed a bandage-swathed abdomen. "You're not in shape!" he smiled, "What do you think of her".

It was his first race since he underwent a serious operation after his appendix suddenly decided to call it a day.

His sensational play last fall in his first year with St. Michael's College football team drew the attention of university coaches. Johnny Metras of Western and Bob Masterson of Varsity have been asking a lot of questions. The fleet-footed backfielder may yet be seen in the colors of one of these college teams. And he won't stop them, according to Percival. Meanwhile that gentleman is keeping the traditional fingers crossed when speaking of Schreider and football. One slight accident on the gridiron might ruin his track and field future.

A HEART-BREAKER!

One of those heart-breaking episodes that crop up occasionally in baseball was recorded in young Johnny Mowat's personal record book Saturday night. The righthander fashioned a brilliant two-hitting pitching effort against the Kingston Leafs, but "one of those things" robbed the lad of victory. He let the Leafs down with two measly blows, one of them no fault of his own, and in general turned in one of the best Redmen hurling performances of the season.

Pat Gilmour was the victim of a baseball "break". With two Leafs aboard the batter knocked a long fly that headed for the fence in McGaffin Stadium. The young fielder backed up for the ball but the fence "hazard" caused him to misjudge it and it dropped in there for two runs. The second hit off Mowat came in the ninth when Millen poled a single to score a runner parked on second.

But that's baseball. It could have happened in reverse. As it was, the game was one of the best seen in Kingston COBL circles this year, it proved that the Redmen are settling down and producing the brand of baseball they are capable of playing. They erred but once and turned in an overall outstanding performance. They meet the Leafs here tonight when Barry Bower essays the mound chore.

Homester's Clutch-Clouting Factor In Squeeze Victory, Misjudged Fly Proves Costly

By MAURICE H. REID

A scintillating two - hit performance by righthander Johnny Mowat at Megaffin Stadium in Kingston on Saturday night went for nought as the Disney Leafs of that city defeated the Belleville Redmen by a score of 3-2 in a nine-inning thriller.

The outcome of the contest did not change the league standing although the Disneys climbed to within half a game of the third-place Redmen. These two teams hook up at the Fair Grounds tonight in a battle for third place.

Tom Buchanan singled to open the second for the Reds and was safe at second when the short-stop dropped the ball. Then a long toss of Fitzpatrick's ground ball. Soules reached first — and Buchanan advanced to third on the former's ground ball with Fitzpatrick being retired at second. Geary flied out to left with Buchanan scoring after the catch.

Score 2nd in Third

The Redmen scored another unearned run in the third. Sam Mulholland beat out an infield hit to short. Millen walked to second. Gilmour fanned but Johnny Gray hit a double down the left second base and Sammy Rank came all the way home as the ball went into the outfield. Richards retired the side without further incident.

Kingston tallied twice to tie the score in the bottom of the fourth and Homer Millen banged out the first hit off Mowat to score Wilding and Ferguson. White had reached first via a base on balls while Ferguson was safe when Buchanan muffed his ground ball. Nbither of these runs was earned.

A Redmen threat in the sixth fell through when a squeeze play did not materialize. After one was out, Fitzpatrick singled to left and advanced all the way to third when Rank and Milloe threw the ball around. Soules followed with a base on balls. With Geary at the plate, Fitzpatrick broke for home with the pitch but was out by plenty when Geary missed the ball. He then struck out to end the frame.

They threatened again in the ninth as Fitzpatrick took two bases on the shortstop's muff of his ground ball. He advanced to third on a passed ball, at this point the Kingston hurler, youthful Bill Richards, took command of the situation. He threw the third strike by Russ Soules. After walking Geary, he forced Mowat to hit a weak grounder back to the mound. Whirling, he threw the ball to second for the force out and the relay to first was in time for the double play.

Win in Ninth

Rank led off the bottom of the ninth by flying out to centre. Then Ferguson walked and stole second on the second pitched ball. Millen, at the plate, worked the count to three and two and then drove the ball into centre field for his second hit of the night and Ferguson crossed the with the margin of victory.

It was a tough game for Mowat to lose. He issued five bases on balls, two of which figured in the scoring. He struck out four, one less than Richards who passed four.

Milne proved to be the hero of the night for the winners as he collected the only two hits off of Mowat and drove in all the runs. His first was a double, he was the only extra-base knock for either team. Gilmour went back for the ball but slowed up as he neared the fence and just missed getting his hands on the ball.

Mulholland got a pair of infield hits for the Redmen with Buchanan, Fitzpatrick and Mowat each getting one.

Lorne Ferguson, centre fielder for the Disney Leafs, played a brilliant defensive game robbing the visitors on at least two occasions. Dean and Reeves clouted ball that sent him back to the fence.

Gerry Kesselring Defeats Weslock For Second Title

London, Ont., July 30. (CP) — Gerry Kesselring, golfing pride of Kitchener who at 22 plays with the poise of a seasoned veteran, won his second Ontario amateur golf championship Saturday.

Kesselring, who plays out of Kitchener - Westmount course, came from behind in both morning and afternoon rounds to defeat Nick Weslock, veteran from Windsor Essex, one up in 36 holes.

Weslock, the defending champion, started out as if he were going to make a runaway of the final. He was three under par and leading by four holes at the end of the 10th hole in the morning round.

But Kesselring playing with a slick putter and cool determination, rallied to pull even at the end of the first round. He dropped one down on the first hole of the afternoon round, tied it up on the 27th, went one up on the 29th and held on that way to the finish.

Kesselring wound up with a 72 for the par-70 course at the London Hunt Club. Both he and Weslock had sub-par 68s for the morning 18.

Lloyd Mangrum Wins St. Paul Open Disregards Phoned Threat on Life

St. Paul, Minn., July 30. (AP) —Lloyd Mangrum headed for his home course in Chicago today, a $2,250 first-prize cheque in his pocket and his nerves slightly tangled because of a threat on his life if he won the St. Paul Open Golf tournament.

Mangrum set a St. Paul open record yesterday with a 268 for the 72 holes. He disclosed the threat came Saturday night after he set up the record with a 10-under-par 62. It was about 11:30 p.m. when he answered the telephone in his hotel room.

"Don't Win"

A voice told him, he said, "we've got a lot of money bet on the tournament; if you want to get out of St. Paul alive don't win."

He reported the call to authorities and all during yesterday's play uniformed and plainclothes policemen mingled with the large gallery that followed him. They stayed close to Mangrum, who in turn steered clear of spectators and well-wishers alike.

"I didn't sleep very well last night," he said, "and naturally the call unnerved my golfgame. I refused to shake hands with anybody after they would try and twist my hand or wrist."

How much the call upset him was shown by the two-under-par 70 he posted for yesterday's round. It was his lowest score of the four-day tourney over the 6,357-yard Keller Municipal course.

Sets Record

He started out with two rounds of 67, five strokes under par, and then fired his record-breaking 62.

His 268 for the 72 holes clipped two strokes off the mark set by Henry Ransom in winning the 1946 event.

Mangrum's first-prize money boosted him into first place among professional golfers association members making the summer tour, with $18,948. That put him ahead of Ferrier of San Francisco, the previous leader and 1951 Canadian open champion.

AT THE CENTURY, Trenton — Richard Widmark as a crooked wrestling promoter, tries to stop wrestler Mike Mazurki from killing his opponent in the ring. His opponent, the principal wrestling figure in the film, Gregorious the Great, is played by Stanislaus Zbyszko, a former three-time world heavyweight wrestling champion who rose to ring heights by beating such wrestling greats as Jim Londos, Ed "Strangler" Lewis and Frank Godfrey. This suspense-thriller film "Ninth and the City", portrays the story of Harry Fabian, the lout who nearly had a wrestling empire in his grasp. Starring Richard Widmark and Gene Tierney, it portrays the night life of London after dark; excellent wrestling scenes and a turbulent underworld.

Yanks, Canadians Share Star Events At Royal Henley

By CECIL SMITH
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Port Dalhousie, Ont., July 30 — (CP) — A United States rowing club garnered two of the four star events at the 1951 Royal Canadian Henley Regatta which ended Saturday on the old Welland canal.

Buffalo West Sides captured the team championship in the four-day meet to win the Maple Leaf Trophy, and retained their supremacy in the Henley senior eights for the fifth consecutive year to retain the Ned Hanlan Memorial Trophy.

Jack Guest, Jr., of the Dons stroked his slim shell across the finish line first in the championship single sculls over the Henley distance, one mile, 550 yards. His time was 9:18.4.

Guest finished six open lengths of water ahead of his only rival, Murray Williams, 20-year-old Hamilton Leandar sculling star who won the United States National single championship this year.

Guest was beaten out in the first round of the singles at Henley, England, this year but he made no mistake Saturday as he took the lead and never ran into trouble.

St. Catharines Collegiate Institute's crew of eight retained possession of the Calder Cleland Memorial Trophy for the third successive year when their high school eights came home ahead of two U. S. crews, De La Salle High Canadian Tita team, just recently converted from Midget to the Canadian classification after by a score of 2 to 1 the last time they met Trenton and are anxious to prove they are a winning team, able to make a creditable showing in OBA competition.

New Ontario 'Half Miler' Record Set at Speedway Parkland Meet

Lloyd Shaw, Toronto auto racer, drove his Jaguar-powered "half-miler" to a new Ontario record at Dick Burrowes' Speedway Parkland race meet near Marysville, on Saturday. Shaw was clocked in 29 seconds flat over the half-mile track, two-fifths of a second faster than the former record set in Toronto last week.

Shaw also took the "half-miler" feature race defeating Jimmy Rowe, Petrolia; Ed Tardiff, Port Credit; Orm Richardson and Ron Clifford both of Toronto. Shaw took the lead at the fifth lap of the eight-lap four-mile race and was never headed. His time was 4.41.

Norman Babcock of Woodbridge, Ont., won the stock car feature from Jack Judges, Toronto, Bob Scott, Toronto, Bob Vesterfelt, Milltown and Jerry Ball, Belleville.

Jimmy Rowe won the matched race from Ed Tardiff, Orm Richardson and Lloyd Shaw's Jaguar. The time for the two miles was 2.43.

Sensational Driving

Sensational driving featured the feature half-mile race. Shaw's sleek racer trailed Rowe and Tardiff who waged a see-saw battle for the lead for the first four laps. The lead alternated with first Rowe roaring out in front and Tardiff passing him in brilliant bursts of speed on the straightaways.

Shaw took the front pair until the half-way mark was reached. Then with a spectacular effort the powerful Jaguar roared by first Rowe and then Tardiff to take the lead which was never relinquished. Shaw demonstrated uncanny driving ability especially when negotiating the turns.

This was especially evident when the Toronto driving ace broke the Ontario record in a time-trial. His time of 30 seconds flat also established a Speedway Parkland record for half-milers.

Credit to District Drivers

Although failing to win first-place honors, Belleville and district drivers deserve a lot of credit for their performances against the more experienced racers from Toronto. Boyce Cook of Cook's Garage, Shannonville, drove exceptionally fine races especially in the first stock car test when he led the field for two laps and extended the other drivers to the limit to win.

Jerry Ball, Belleville also turned in a fine performance at the throttle of his stock model. Ball drove a fine race in the second heat when he finished second to the speeding Bob Scott of Toronto. Bob Vesterfelt, Milltown, Mac Huddleston, Belleville and other district drivers deserve plenty of plaudits for the fine showing they made.

Crowd Get Thrill

Brilliant weather favored the meet. There were no accidents but Jerry Ball gave the large crowd a thrill in the stock car feature when his car went out of control in front of the judges' stand, spun around twice while the crowd gasped, but straightened away another fine driving by Ball, and withdrew to the pits.

Promoter Dick Burrowes announced that the next meet will be held at the Speedway on Civic Holiday, Monday, August 6th, when Toronto, Western Ontario and district drivers will compete.

The results:

Glen Roy Club Beats Plumbers In Exhibition

Glen Roy Athletic Club evened up their series with Howe and Hagerman somewhat Saturday night when they handed the Plumbers a 7-1 setback at the Athletic Field.

But it won't count. Howe and Hagerman, with several regulars in Kingston with the Redman and others away on holidays, could only muster seven men by starting time. Glen Roy, with a full team and no more, waived the chance to win by forfeit and the two squads decided to play an exhibition game and not disappoint the crowd.

The field, in poor shape due to the late afternoon shower, was put in excellent playing condition with a load of sand that soaked up the puddles around home plate and the mound.

Howe and Hagerman scored the first tally in the fourth with Adams, who walked and took second on a passed ball scoring on Don Locke's single, the first hit of the game.

Four Hits For Plumbers

That was all for the Plumbets as Marty Halloran, Bob Green and Rob Hunter set them down over the whole distance with just four hits.

Glen Roy took the lead in the seventh on Bill Corbett's homer, two errors and a single. They added a single run in the eighth and four more in the ninth on three singles and a double.

Lum Carson did the chucking for Howe and Hagerman and was working on a no-hitter until the sixth. In the last four frames he was nicked for nine hits and seven runs. Errors in the field did not help his cause either.

Lineups:

Glen Roy: Rowbotham c; Rooney, 2b; Baldwin ss; Wenmakmaker cf, replaced by Hunter in 6th; Tomson 2b, replaced by McNiven in 8th; Sword 3b; Culshaw lf; Halloran p, Green, Hunter.

Howe and Hagerman: J. Wardhaugh 3b; Henn 2b; D. Adams c; H. Wardhaugh rf; Locke 1b; A. Adams rf; Doyle ss; Graham lf; Carson p.

Diamond Dust From the Minors

(By V. F.)

Last Saturday at the Alemite Field the Rob-Royals defeated the second place Y's Men Bantams by a score of 6 to 1. In the second game was a very evenly matched affair with the Houston Lumber team just edging the luckless Drive-In's by a score of 3 to 2. This was the second time that the Drive-In team has lost to Houston's by the same score and the fourth game they have lost by one run. While the Drive-In's have not been able to get in the win column they are certainly not outclassed, and will be a team to reckon with every time out. The pitcher for Drive-In's, Hull, had 12 strikeouts while St. Dennis for Houston Co. had 11 in the seven inning affair. Hull gave up three hits and St. Dennis four.

On Saturday, Aug. 4th the leading Rob-Royals meet the Houston Lumber Bantams at 1 o'clock at the Alemite Field. This should be a "do-or-die" affair. The Houston nine must win this one to stay in the fight for first place. Houston's claim the only win over the Rob-Royals by a 6 to 4 score, which was reversed in their next encounter by the same score 6-4.

At three o'clock the Drive-In team will be trying to beat their "one-run-loss" jinx when they tangle with the Y's Men Bantams, while a will for the Y's Men would keep them in a contending position for first place.

The standing of the Bantam teams to date is as follows:

	Won	Lost
Rob-Royals	6	1
Houston Lumber	4	3
Y's Men	4	3
Drive-In	0	6

On Wednesday night at 6.45 at the Park Pavilion the Senior Midgets and Canadian Legion hook up for the second game of a three-of-five series for the "Mac" McCrimmon trophy and the right to represent Belleville in the O.B.A. playdowns. Canadian Legion won the first encounter by a score of 7 to 6 and the Sidney Inn crew are determined to reverse the previous decision. The third game will be played on Friday, Aug. 3rd at 6.45 at the Fair Grounds and the fourth game on Tuesday, Aug. 7th at 6.45 at Fair Grounds. If a fifth game is necessary it will be played Friday, Aug. 10th at 6.45 at the Fair Grounds.

The Canadian Tire Juveniles, who still represent Belleville in the O.B.A. will play an exhibition game on Thursday, Aug. 2nd meeting Dick Bridgman's Trenton "Midget-Juvenile combine" team. The Trenton lads have been playing together for about four years and our Belleville Midgets have benefited greatly from exhibition games with them. We wish them every success and trust these games have proven mutually beneficial. The Canadian Tire team, just recently converted from Midget to the Juvenile classification has by a score of 2 to 1 the last time they met Trenton and are anxious to prove they are a winning team, able to make a creditable showing in OBA competition.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, July 30 (AP)—Carl Schott of the Penn State School of Education and Athletics has been getting a lot of mail since Penn State's Athletic Board ruled that with a proposal to abolish plutoco football and spring practice . . . The writers were almost unanimously in favor of the proposal . . . They mumbled such things as over-emphasis, interference with academic work and with other sports — and the cost.

Gehl one observer: "Colleges simply haven't the money to operate on the present grand scale, and they know it. They think by time the coaches recognize it."

Soft Answer

When Rocky Nelson, Pittsburgh's first baseman, tried to steal home one day with no one out and the Bucs several runs behind, he was out by a mile . . . manager Billy Meyer nearly blew his top.

He demanded: "What were you thinking about . . ." Before he finished, Nelson stopped him with: "That's why they call me Rocky."

Monday Matinee

Clarence Maddern's last three hits for San Diego before he flew east to join the Indians all were home runs . . . Ed Cereghino, signed by the Yanks for $50,000 bonus, was an honor student in high school in San Francisco and could have had an academic (not athletic) scholarship at Sanford . . . Over the protests of Florida State U., the state board of control split the racing schedule's funds with 64 per cent, or $158,246.58, going to the University of Florida, 27 per cent, or $66,760.04, to Florida State and the rest to Florida A & M.

Leafs Divide With Springfield

(By The Associated Press)

Syracuse Chiefs' search for a long-ball hitting outfielder appears is over.

Al Workman, property of New York Yankees, celebrated with a home run Friday, hit another Saturday and yesterday slammed a circuit blow homer to lead the Chiefs to a 9-6 victory over Buffalo Bisons in the first game of a doubleheader.

Ernie Silverman silenced Workman in the nightcap as he pitched the Bisons to a 1-0 seven-bit victory. The Bisons scored the only run of the game with two out in the seventh when Al Stringer singled with the bases loaded.

The league-leading Montreal Royals increased their lead over Buffalo by taking a doubleheader from Baltimore Orioles 7-5 and 9-3.

George Shuba led the Royals to victory in the opener, driving in four runs, three on a bases-loaded double. Hec Rodrigues starred in the nightcap, batting in two runs on a single and triple.

The fourth-place Rochester Red Wings downed Ottawa Giants 6-4. Russ Derry broke up the game with a two-run homer in the 8th. Jay Van Noy also homered for Rochester while Harvey Genicy and Fred Gerken connected for Ottawa off Jack Collum who posted his 10th victory.

Springfield edged Toronto Maple Leafs 4-3 in 15 innings but the Leafs came back to win the night-cap by the same score.

When partnered with Akoslap Expert, sigad, you needed all the stuff in your purse. His doubles are always consistently bad. His redoubles flunk out much worse.

There is a spot in which a redouble takes on the same meaning as a double for takeout. It is known as a takeout redouble of a penalty pass of a takeout double. Quite a mouthful.

South opened with a heart when he held the hand shown here:

♠4
♥A K 7 5
♦9 8 3 2
♣A Q J 8 5

West doubled for takeout, showing a hand as good as an opening one bid. North passed. Softleigh's weakness or lack of some quality for a true reply. The east player also passed.

Ordinarily, east must bid there in answer to a takeout double by west. Therefore the east pass indicates that he can help defeat one heart. This is known as a penalty pass of a takeout double.

From this, south knows that opponent expect to defeat his bid of one heart. East must have a flock of hearts that will make the going tough for south in his side suits as well.

So what can he do about it? He might try to crawl out of the hole by taking himself out with a bid of two clubs or two diamonds. But of which will north have the most cards?

To find out, south must force north to bid something despite the admitted weakness. Have north say in which suit he has the most cards. A three heart, would give south something to count on.

In a spot like this, the signal for such a purpose is a redouble. This redouble is not the kind of redouble that says it can make the bid despite opponent double. It is a takeout redouble.

Such a redouble is a signal for asking partner to takeout; to show his longest or best suit and help decide their best out. It is merely another way of hollering: "Help. Take me out."

Stock Car Races Attract 1,800 To Picton Track

Picton — A crowd of some 1,800 Pictonians enjoyed one of the best stock car tournaments ever put on in these parts, when a newly-organized club of local drivers staged their first meet at the Picton Fair Grounds.

Spectacular driving featured the card that had race-crazy Picton fans cheering at every turn.

The novice race provided one of the biggest thrills of the afternoon with Mad Men Marlow, of Church Motors, actually pushing two cars off the track to gain second position only to find himself in a dead heat for six laps with Yeling Cowen of Picton.

At the car race best, Sherm Kenney of Trenton chased Nick Sargent of Trenton for eight laps with Nick outdueling him in the best exhibition of track hogging seen to date.

Warden Dey, of Kingston, was the star driver of the day, taking second place in the third heat and placing first in the final heat.

Jack Finkle set a track record of 37 seconds with Nicky Sargent doing it in 32 seconds in Col. Church's Jaguar roadster.

There were no serious accidents.

Following the races the drivers held a meeting to elect a slate of officers for the newly - formed club. The officers are: President, Sherm Kenny, Trenton; Vice-president, Vern Burtt; Secretary - treasurer, Armand Duffy, Belleville; Organizer, Nick Sargent, Trenton.

Directors of the new group are Frank Andre, Kingston; Stu McGowan, Trenton, and Jack Finkle and Arnold Duffy of Belleville.

Carry Canada's Hockey Banner At Olympics

Toronto, July 30 — (CP) — The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association announced here Saturday that Edmonton Mercurys will represent Canada in the next Olympic Games scheduled for next year.

Doug Grimston, president of the Association, said Mercurys, who won the world amateur title for Canada two seasons ago, were chosen from six applications.

Mercurys, in the Intermediate loop of the Western Canada Hockey League, won the title March 22, 1950, with a clean sweep of their seven tournament games at Stockholm, Sweden.

The announcement was made during an informal meeting of the C. A. H. A. executive.

The 1952 Olympic Winter games will be held at Oslo, Norway.

Grimston said the C. A. H. A. major series, held for the first time last season, will be continued during 1951-52. However, only two leagues will be entered — the Quebec senior loop and the Maritime senior circuit. The major series previously included four-Ontario teams and four from the Western Canada Senior League.

Grimston also announced tentative play-off dates for Canada's 3 main amateur trophies.

The Alexander Trophy final will start April 16 and will be held in the east since only eastern teams are competing.

The Allan Cup finals for senior clubs is scheduled to start April 19 in the west. Junior clubs competing for the Memorial Cup will fight it out in the east with the final starting about April 22.

Lopez Predicts 'Indians' Massacre Of Lower Clubs

By BILL KING

Boston, July 30 — (AP) — Affable Al Lopez, Cleveland's freshman manager, was as thrilled as a major battle-winning general today as he led his sturdy Indians into Washington. There, he hopes, they will begin a general massacre of the American League's second-division clubs.

"Our plans worked very well here," Al conceded. "We wanted to get two out of three from the Red Sox and we did. Now I don't feel so bad about Saturday's 16-inning game that Clyde Vollmer stole from us with his grand-slam homer."

But as far as Lopez is concerned, the pennant race is still a wide-open affair.

"I won't put my neck out by predicting the pennant winner," Al said. "The top five clubs, the Yanks, Red Sox and my own Indians will be battling until the last week. The White Sox don't figure to win, but they'll be troublesome all the way."

Much of the Lopez confidence stems from the fact his Indians have only five more games to play with the Yankees and four with the Red Sox. They do have 12 more with the White Sox but their other 38 are with second division clubs.

"We've only beaten the White Sox three times in 10 starts to date," Lopez explained. "But we're bound to do much better than that against them."

Terrier Hurler Halts Guelph Winning Streak

(By The Canadian Press)

A curve-ball artist named Jack Barry ended Guelph Maple Leafs seven-game winning streak in the Senior Intercounty Baseball League Saturday.

Barry, showing perfect control and not allowing a walk, led Galt Terriers to a 4-1 victory on home ground but the Leafs came right back Saturday defeating Waterloo Tigers 2-1.

It was the second defeat of the day for the Terriers. They also lost 13-5 to Kitchener Dutchmen. Red Talley yielded nine hits and two runs to the Red Sox before being lifted for a pinch-hitter in the eighth inning.

London Majors kept their second-place standing in the league and gained revenge on southpaw Bill Byham defeating St. Thomas Legion 7-2 at London. Byham, who tossed a no-hitter at the Majors two weeks ago, was knocked off the mound in the fifth after giving up seven hits and three runs.

Oshawa Moves Up

In other Ontario baseball, Oshawa Merchants moved to within one game of the first place Peterborough Petes in the Intermediate Major Baseball League trounced Stafford 20-2 at Toronto Sunday. The Merchants posted a 7-2 triumph over Peterborough Saturday and later added a 2-1 victory over Oakville Oaks, now leading the Halton-Peel intermediate group.

In the same league Kingsway Lumber edged Crafton Sr. at Toronto, Welland Stokes evened a series with the St. Kitts Stags with a 5-3 victory at St. Catharines.

In the Nickel Belt Senior Baseball League games at Sudbury, Garson Greyhounds defeated Frood Tigers 10-4, and then edged tail-end, Sudbury Shamrocks 7-6.

Relief pitcher Cliff Wormington walked the only batter he faced to give Copper Cliff Redmen a 9-8 nod over Frood Tigers. The walk came in the bottom half of the ninth with the bases loaded and the score tied.

A Nickel Belt game at Creighton ended with a 0-0 draw between Creighton Indians and the Coniston Red Sox. The runless deadlock was the first since Frood and Creighton played on the same diamond five years ago.

Kirkland Lake Greyhounds gained a 10-5 victory over Hollinger Bombers in a Timiskaming senior Baseball League game played at Kirkland Lake. Art Hillman took over for the Greyhounds in the fourth inning after T-d Roman had pitched to the first two batters. Hillman struck out seven and aided his own cause with a double and two singles in five visits to the plate.

Three games are scheduled for Intercounty League play today: Kitchener at Waterloo, St. Thomas at Galt and Guelph at Brantford.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Tuesday, July 31

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Perhaps the easiest thing today will be being able to get into useless discussions, arguments with friends, family. Shun this as you would poison ivy, it leaves avoidable hurts.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—The reverse of Aries outlook. But don't be careless! Fine results from good effort, happy relations, pleasant contacts. Be yourself. Point to the top and you will get much for which you strive.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—Some dull spots. Indifferent tendencies; laborius tasks may seem touchy. Property matters useful endeavors can move along profitably with wise handling. Spend with care.

June 22 to July 22—(Cancer)—Lack of appreciation, speaking out of turn, criticising others' assistance will react unhappily. Stars stress you be accurate, on the job, and co-operative to achieve.

July 24 to August 22—(Leo)—Could be a gainful day if you're willing to forget self, personal wishes and work hard, manage schedule properly. Caution advised in business, especially money deals, avoid speculation.

August 23 to September 23—(Virgo)—Turn a deaf ear to questionable advice, comments points down wise moral codes. Some extra activity in your own sphere (studying your immediate business) urged.

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Try not to appear overpractical, fault-finding, temptation now. A little venture might be profitable. Of course, hold to sound principles and don't let little things upset you.

October 24 to November 22—(Scorpio)—No day to recant authority, or good common sense that tells you "no" to what you want to do or say. Survey outlook daily before acting, avoid emotional outbursts, upsets.

November 23 to December 22—(Sagittarius) — Another day as confronts Scorpio. We all have them, and seem to survive, the better when we take them rightly. Meantime build for better tomorrows, that's always important.

December 23 to January 21—(Capricorn)— Some spots uncertain. Better tread easily, know what you are doing. Life, surroundings, government, the world face changes, difficulties. Be alert and aim to be well informed.

January 22 to February 20—(Aquarius)—In time things take on altered outlook. You, too, have changes, and those about you. Look to good character, religion, they never change. Follow your best instincts daily.

February 21 to March 20—(Pisces)—Start this sometimes unfriendly period in moderation for best purposes and safe continuance of action. Increase tempo as you gain confidence. Day needs some scientific colors.

YOU BORN TODAY: An ambitious, engaging personality, a tireless worker (especially doing things you enjoy or for which you have talent). Inclined to extravagance. More self-restraint urged, and wisdom in saving and spending for security in old age. Also humility for true success and happiness (don't we all need this!) Learn by listening attentively; gain by past experiences—many don't. Good months ahead for business, professional endeavors. Apply self assiduously to life's work, but take occasional healthy relaxation also.

Birthdate of John Ericsson, Swedish-American naval engineer.

He's in love
This word is believed to have started in America as a variation of the word love. In the old Dutch section of New York this name was applied by a Dutch farmer to describe a new-working sailor who idled away his time with the farmer's daughter.

Two huge geraniums, the largest over 12 feet high and both a solid mass of blooms, are the pride of John Bell, gardener for the CPR at Port McNicoll's famous dockside gardens. Grown in his greenhouse, the two plants threaten to raise the roof. Port McNicoll is the home port of the CPR's Great Lakes Steamships about 70 miles North West of Toronto.
Mr. Bell has been gardener at Port McNicoll for 31 years and the results of his work have been a constant attraction to tourists who visit the Port, either en route for a Great Lakes voyage on a C. P. Lake boat or just to see the famous flower gardens.

MOTHER DIES SHIELDING CHILDREEN

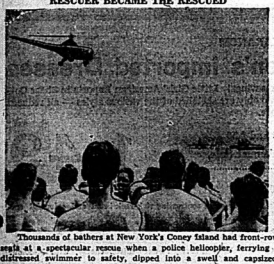
Mrs. Blake Huff

Left motherless by a freak accident are Trudy Huff, four, and Susan, her sister. Their mother, Mrs. Blake Huff, gave her life on their Caledon, Ont., farm when a tractor overturned. She threw Trudy away from the falling tractor, shielded Susan with her body when the tractor fell on them. Half an hour later, when neighbors managed to set the tractor upright, Mrs. Huff was dead. — Central Press Canadian.

THREATENED TO JUMP, BUT DIDN'T

Milton Samiof, 26, nude and chained to part of a bed, sits on the roof of his home in Troy, N.Y., after allegedly going berserk. Officials are investigating Samiof's story that he's been chained six days by his parents as penance for "bad thoughts." Breaking the bed apart, he smashed windows in his home and threatened to leap from the roof before being brought down by police. — Central Press Canadian.

RESCUER BECAME THE RESCUED



Thousands of bathers at New York's Coney Island had front-row seats at a spectacular rescue when a police helicopter, ferrying a distressed swimmer to safety, dipped into a swell and capsized. Bathers are shown watching as another helicopter comes in to rescue the two policemen and the swimmer. Pontoons of the overturned helicopter may be seen. — Central Press Canadian.

INDIA TRAINS MORE TROOPS AS WAR THREAT GROWS

India has ordered thousands of National Guard troops to active duty as unsettled issues with Pakistan threaten to break into open warfare. These students at Lahore are some of the estimated 50,000 new trainees in the Indian armed forces system. Principal issues of dispute between India and Pakistan are the control of the province of Kashmir and the treatment of minorities in both countries. — Central Press Canadian.

Timmins, July 30—(CP)— Add Donald the Hollinger moose to those who are having troubles in this strikebound gold mining area. Donald who, incidentally, is a female, was limping today when strikers on the picket line saw her. She apparently had been in a fight with two dogs and had been bitten on the hind leg while killing one of them. Donald is a yearling moose born when her mother wandered inside the Hollinger mine enclosure. She lives in the mine area.

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

The [illegible]t evening was much more serious of their marriage. Yet neither of them could [illegible] in a constant barrage of rags, any more than they could find a halfway meeting ground for the discussion of peace terms. Basically, Arthur was a fair-minded man, but Lucilla's deception had assaulted his sense of honesty all the harder because he was incapable of seeing that way himself and felt his wife should [illegible] automatically possess the same standards.

Lucilla, who knew she was a far more glamorous woman than she'd been six weeks before, tried to counter these arguments with the intangible that to a woman are as tangible as her nose.

"If you'd talk it over with me in the first place," Arthur said. "But no, you knew it was crazy, so you had to do it behind my back."

Lucilla's conscience had made her lustily for behavior so often in the past weeks, that he, had almost too many excuses to the fire, and none of them more than lukewarm. Arthur was providing her with a perfect excuse, a red-hot poker of indignation. "The reason I didn't tell you was because you wouldn't have given me credit for any judgment of my own."

"You're a 37-year-old woman, and you act as if you were in training for a beauty contest to be Miss America."

For anybody who had been floating in Beautiful-You's Fountain of Youth, the advice of being told one's real age was shock enough, without the added cruelty of Arthur's word and tone.

Lucilla was so mad she trembled all over. "Those may be other men who don't find me so old and unattractive. In fact, I have a date with one at 4:30 tomorrow."

Arthur was so flabbergasted he almost said, "Are you having an affair with him?" But he held it so large and blunt a thing to ask he couldn't get it out.

His mind and emotions were so hopelessly intertangled that even while he was thinking he was darned if he'd ask who the man was. He suddenly remembered that night Lucilla had cogetin late and said she'd been having cocktails with an instructor. The heartening thing was that Arthur didn't ask questions. He didn't even say he'd sleep on the couch. He simply went into the bedroom and left her sitting there, on her own climax.

There was no debate about whether to say good morning, because Arthur was out of bed when she woke up at 8. In the middle of breakfast, she had panicky notion that he might have taken his clothes, and even while she was telling herself, How ridiculous you'd have heard him, she couldn't finish her coffee until she'd gone in and checked to make sure his closet and drawers were still full.

All day, her ears were hypersensitively aware of Arthur, but Arthur did not call. During the last class she decided that if Arthur wanted to be so standoffish she'd stay a half-hour longer at Derek's.

Lucilla felt guilty all the way across town. But as she neared the address on East 31st Street, her viewpoint veered unconsciously toward Derek's.

There were eight name plates in the vestibule, and she had to lean over, squinting, to make out the right buzzer. Before pressing it, she paused to take stock of her grooming, a last-minute feminine process which is as miraculously compressed as a drowning man's review of his life. She twitched her left stocking so that the seam fell straight, wet her lips, wriggled her belt buckle to dead center, and shifted a bobby pin to catch a lock that had fluttered loose. Without consciously checking over her brain cosmetics, she thought of a line she could quote to Derek Kelsey immediately, remembering she ought to take the book of Eliot's back to the rental library because it was five cents a day) and prepared to ring the bell.

"Hello. Doesn't the bell work?" Derek had hurried out the door and was standing over her on the top step.

• • •

Lucilla's own conception of an ideal room was the sort House and Garden describe mistily, with a choke in the copywriter's throat, as "the sensuous mating of old and new produce the mellow pattina of yesterday and the simplicity of tomorrow." Derek's nest could hardly be said to have patina.

The room was dominated by startlingly black and white, zebra-patterned draperies that flanked the end windows. The next most noticeable object was the couch that bore a resemblance to the divan of degenerate emperors. Before it was a black coffee table shaped like a bloated kidney, featuring Greta's gradiated magazine arrangement. There were two of the boneless modern chairs slung on black metal standards, with the sling part in an insistent shade of chartreuse. A third chair had a rubber lunch-counter seat, with a cerise fishnet over the rubber. Strange sounds were swelling from the record-player: "swilly to swash, Yuinness or Yennessy and Leuba Licking like Leytha Liana...."

"Isn't it fabulous?" Derek asked in a hushed tone.

Lucilla listened more worshipfully then, and straightened her expression of rapt intellectual, which had slipped sidewise while she was thinking of the Jabberwock. By the end of the long record, she was rather bemused, and convinced that she'd adored it as much as she'd intended to.

Derek, leafing through a slim book in an orange-and-white paper binding, paused at the sling chair, then came over to the couch. "Mind if I sit here where the light's better?"

She said calmly, "Of course not," aware of an inward bounce of pleasure.

• • •

When he'd finished, several minutes later, the air still throbbed. Lucilla, without removing her finger from his, said huskily, "Oh, nobody could read it like you do."

On an intellectual level, she thought it was time to go home, but as far as her flesh was concerned, the clock had stopped at the witching hour of 5:45. He bent and kissed the hollow of her elbow. "You're so lovely." He kissed the hollow of her throat, and gave a little groan. Then he stroked her hair, murmuring, "How sweet you are." It was at this point that her mind, as opposed to her quivering flesh, detected a slightly stagy note.

She pulled loose. "I've got to go now."

Derek muttered, "No, you can't. You can't leave me now." With what could only have been the result of long, arduous practice, he scooped her off the side of the couch. Her legs dangled over his awkwardly, and she had never felt so silly in her life. "Put me down this minute," she said crossly. Derek, who was panting with the exertion, didn't answer, but only held her closer. She managed to squirm around far enough to kick him, whereupon he gave a surprised yelp and dumped her down. They stood breathing hard at each other. "What came over you?"

She faltered and said weakly, "I'm sorry, but you knew I was married."

He laughed unpleasantly. "What has that to do with it?"

"A great deal." She didn't know whether she was embarrassed because she hadn't sounded moral soon enough.

"The bathroom's beyond the door," he said formally, "if you want to fix your makeup."

She had a confused feeling that under the circumstances, it wouldn't be cricket to use a man's bedroom mirror and bathroom. "No, I have to hurry."

Contrary to all the tenets of Beautiful-You she marched out with her back turned full blast on her host.

• • •

But after she'd ridden a few blocks in a cab, she began to wonder if she looked disheveled. Then, she was intended to tell Arthur the man meant nothing to her, and that there'd never been anything between him and never could be, but if she walked in looking all pawed, it might give Arthur the wrong idea. She asked the driver if he could stop at the Lexington Grand Central.

"Not allowed to park there," the driver droned.

"Oh." She told him to go straight down to Tenth, the got out her compact and tried to redo her mouth. She felt messy inside and out. If only Arthur could be late, just this once, she thought.

Gretel let her in, and Lucilla looked eagerly over the maid's shoulder into the living room. Mr. Webb called and said he won't be home for dinner."

Lucilla's first reaction was annoyance; she'd only prayed for ten minutes' postponement, and now she'd even have time to kill. "Did he say how late he'd be working?"

"He didn't say he's was working," Gretel announced, with sly satisfaction, "He just said he wouldn't be home for dinner."

At 11, he still wasn't home.

He disclosed that this miraculous new discovery has rendered old-style hearing aids obsolete almost overnight, and brings new hope to the 15 million persons in the United States who are hard of hearing.

He reported that this electronic ear enables the deaf to hear without anything showing in the ear and without dangling battery wires.

To acquaint the hard of hearing readers of this paper with this new miracle electronic ear which hides deafness, full details are described in a fascinating booklet, "New Discoveries to Help the Deaf Hear." It will be sent free in a plain wrapper to anyone who requests it. Address: Electronic Research Division, 1450 Sound Building, Chicago 5, Ill. A penny postcard will do.—Adv.

Two Toronto Men Charged With Bradford Robbery

Pair Believed to Be Members of 'Numbers Mob'

Toronto, July 31. (CP)—Two Toronto men today were charged with the $20,000 robbery of a bank at nearby Bradford last Thursday.

Credit for nabbing Frank Watson, 35, and Leonard Jackson, 29, was given Edmund Tong, Sergeant of Detectives, whose suspicion of a gang that congregates a cocktail bar led to the arrest of the two men Monday.

Police said they believe the pair are members of "The Numbers Mob," which—bank robbers who operate with signals in the manner of a football team and who are believed responsible for $100,000 worth of bank holdups this year.

Three Months' Work

Sgt. Tong, who spent three months of undercover investigation on the gang, said the arrest of a third member is imminent. Jackson and Watson, alleged members of a trio that robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce branch in Bradford, will appear in a police line-up today.

A squad of policemen, left to wait for Jackson's return, found in his fashionable apartment, but approaching from the rear, he saw the officers and fled down a back lane, police said.

Sgt. Tong said he saw Jackson throw a bundle into a car parked on the lane. It was recovered from the motorist, who promised to leave for Kapuskasing a short time later. The bundle was found to contain $1,500, identified from several numbers as part of the Bradford loot, Tong said.

Sgt. Tong chased Jackson along back lanes and brought him down with a flying tackle.

Watson was arrested simultaneously by another squad while he slept in his apartment. Police said he was handcuffed "before he knew what was happening."

Police said those being sought included police according to Sgt. Tong. Bradford town area for him last night.

Police said Jackson is a landlady as he was taken out gave police no further reasons to believe there is a "mastermind" behind the holdups.

Watson shouted: "Call the Shoe. Tell Eddie to get me a lawyer."

Sgt. Tong said Jackson was assigned exclusively to the case following the robbery in Toronto Jan. 22 of the Bradford bank, the Commerce branch at $10,000.

Within three hours, Tony Brunet and Louis Stavroc, also believed members of the Numbers Mob, were arrested. They now are serving 15-year prison terms.

Police said they are the gang "took a powder" to Western Canada, then returned to stage a series of holdups throughout Ontario recently.

Ben-Gurion's Labor Party Wins in Israel

Tel Aviv, Israel, July 31—(AP)—Prime Minister David Ben-Gurion's Mapai (Labor) party was leading in returns from Israel's parliamentary election today with about 40 per cent of all votes counted.

The Conservative general elections were second in returns from Israel's two largest cities—Jerusalem and Tel Aviv—but their national standing was not yet apparent.

Voters in the holy city gave the communists only two per cent of the vote.

Observers, analyzing country-wide results as they became available, were surprised by the poor showing made by the communists and the pro-Russian Mapam (Socialist) party.

The Mapam won only five per cent of the vote in Jerusalem and appeared to be taking a licking around the country. It had been second in early returns from rural districts.

Balloting was for 120 members of the Knesset (parliament) and was the second election in Israel's three-year history. About 880,000 voters were eligible.

Of these, about 400,000 were new citizens who have come to Israel since the state was born in 1940. They were unknown factors in Israel's politics and made many a politician guessing doubly hazardous.

Results apparently showed, however, that they were impressed with Ben-Gurion's argument that only his party of a middle-planned economy and a foreign policy based on the United Nations charter could assure continued immigration and a living for newcomers.

Obtains 37 P.C. of Vote:

Ben-Gurion's Mapai won 37 per cent of the vote in Jerusalem—the first city to post complete returns—and it's next nearest rival, Herut, places in the commercial city of Tel Aviv.

The general Zionists had only 12 per cent in Jerusalem but took second place there as they did in Tel Aviv with 22 per cent of the 146,000 votes cast in that coastal city.

The right-wing freedom party was third in Jerusalem with 10 per cent and the religious bloc following "Cheruth" party was third in Tel Aviv with nine per cent.

The other Jerusalem Jewish groups did well in the balloting numerically, but were split into so many parts that their political effect is scattered. No party which ran on a strictly religious platform in Jerusalem, for instance won more than seven per cent of the vote. The total of all religious parties, however, was 28 per cent there.

Washington, July 31 — (AP) — Senator Brien McMahon (Dem., Conn.) just returned from a tour of Western European countries, said yesterday: "The chances of war with Russia are greater today than they have been before."

McMahon, chairman of the joint Congressional Committee on atomic energy, said in an interview since:

"I think we are in for a very anxious year. We must be on the alert for anything."

THE WEATHER

Toronto, July 31 (CP) Synopsis: The warm summer weather will not leave Ontario for at least the next couple of days. Fortunately the humidity will not be high. U.S. DEVELOPS ATOMIC WEAPONS OF GREATER POWER

Congress Hears Reports Revealing A. E. C. Work

By FRANK CAREY

Washington, July 31 (AP) — The United States Atomic Energy Commission is planning "much more frequent tests" of its weapons in the future.

This was announced yesterday in a press conference in connection with the AEC's 10th semi-annual report to Congress. The report was made public today.

At the conference it was also disclosed that the United States has developed some weapons that have a bigger "bang"—that is, greater "force"—than others. The others. The commission said that was the reason why some weapons have been tested to remote Eniwetok while others with smaller "bang" have been tested in Nevada.

"One of the considerations (in choosing testing grounds) is hurting somebody," chairman Gordon Dean of the A.E.C. told reporters. "When they get very large (in energy-releasing capacity) we take them away from people."

No Actual Size Given

The commission did not make it clear whether the weapons differed in actual physical size. The A.E.C. previously had disclosed that it is working on the development of atomic warheads for guided missiles and artillery shells as well as on bombs.

The commission, AEC reported:

1. Continued progress so far in 1951 in military and peaceful applications of atomic energy including advances towards developing atomic-powered submarines and aircraft.

2. Increased acquisition of uranium ore and progress in production of fissionable materials from them.

3. Achievement by the United States of its No. 3 spot among "the free nations" in production of uranium—second only to the Belgian Congo. Dismore Flaherty, commission member, said some time ago that the U.S. had surpassed Canada to take over second place.)

New Device

The commission announced completion of a new research device with which it hopes to determine whether it will be actually possible to "breed" a brand new atomic fuel at a rate faster than operating fuel is consumed. First operation of the "breeder" is scheduled to take place in about two or three years.

There was no mention in the report to Congress of how things are going on the projected hydrogen bomb.

Govt. Grants $3,275,000 Toward Cost Mental Hospital Located at Smiths Falls

Guelph, July 31. (CP)—The federal government will contribute $3,275,000 or 55 per cent of a new 2,400-bed hospital at Smiths Falls, Ont., for mentally deficient children, it was announced today by Health Minister Martin.

His announcement was contained in a speech prepared for delivery at the opening of the new Guelph General Hospital.).

Mr. Martin said the grant to the Smiths Falls Hospital is the largest ever made since the federal government's national health program was inaugurated three years ago.

The new hospital, to be built by the Ontario government, will also serve as a school for mentally deficient children. The only comparable institution in the province is the Ontario Hospital at Orillia.

"For many years now," said Mr. Martin, "Orillia has had a long waiting list and many children have been unable to secure adequate care for mentally retarded children."

Full Training Facilities

The Smiths Falls Hospital will be modern in every way. It will have full training facilities both for classroom and vocational training in shoe-making, furniture repair, dressmaking and other trades. A hospital farm will be operated in conjunction with the institution. The hospital will also be equipped to deal with medical and surgical cases and to provide the latest physiotherapy treatment.

"The construction of this new institution is evidence of our determination — in Ontario and throughout Canada — to meet the challenge of mental illness," said Mr. Martin. "It is also an indication of the changing attitude towards the whole problem of mental health.

Greater Understanding

"Greater public understanding and increased concern on the part of governments is at last breaking down the social stigma so long associated with mental defectives and kind and bringing the problem into its proper perspective."

Under the beginning of the National Health Program, federal aid has been approved for mental hospitals "this fall to help offset the critical shortage of this type of accommodation.

In all, he said, federal grants have been approved for nearly 400 hospital construction projects across Canada, which will provide an additional 32,000 beds.

Canada Refuses to Send Arms Until Standards Established

Montreal, July 31 (CP)—Canada served notice on her Atlantic Pact allies today that she is through making major arms shipments to Europe until the wrangle over a common rifle is settled one way or another.

Defence Minister Claxton, in an outspoken statement on the American-British rift over a common rifle, made these points in formally stating over equipment for a division to Italy:

1. Canada, in switching from British to U.S. arms, now has enough U.S. arms for a division but has stopped taking .300 Garand rifles from the Americans.

2. The government may decide to keep the .303 British-type rifle for the time being or adopt some other rifle and send the Garands to Europe.

3. Canada's rifle policy "will depend largely on the outcome" of this week's meeting in Washington to which he and the defence ministers of the U.S., the United Kingdom and France will try to settle the rifle argument. The core of it is that Britain has started to produce a new rifle weapon, the U.S. wants to stick to the .300.

4. Once the rifle question is settled, "we shall have further equipment to transfer to European countries on a considerable scale but until these matters are decided we are going to keep most of that equipment."

Likely the Last

Turning to the Italian ambassador aboard the arms-laden steamship Montrose, Mr. Claxton said Wednesday: "This will be the last shipment of arms we shall make for some time."

Mr. Claxton recalled that the Italian shipment brings to three the Italian divisions the number Canada has equipped with the British-type arms she is abandoning. The other countries to get them were Belgium and Holland.

In addition Luxembourg got enough Sten guns for an infantry regiment.

The minister's statement indicated Canada is set to take a tough stand at the standardization meeting in Washington Aug. 1 to try a new weapon to replace the Garand and the .303. . under consideration is a weapon of two different calibres, the .300 and the .280."

SEN. PROMISES DETERMINED NEW FIGHT FOR SEAWAY

May Put Authorization In Foreign Aid Bill

Washington, July 31 (AP) — Senator Blair Moody (Dem., Mich.) today promised an unrepentant fight to put authorization for the St. Lawrence Seaway and power project into the $8,500,000,000 foreign aid bill.

"I can assure you," Moody told a reporter, "that the senate will have an opportunity to act on the St. Lawrence project at this session."

He said Chairman Tom Connally (Dem., Tex.) of the senate Foreign Relations Committee had promised him and Senator George Aiken (Rep., Vt.) a hearing before the committee on inclusion of the St. Lawrence legislation in the foreign aid measure.

If the committee does not agree Moody told a reporter, an amendment will be offered when the Bill reaches the senate floor. Senator Aiken will manage the project was shelved last week by the Public Works Committee of the House of Representatives when it adopted, 15 to 12, a tabling motion sponsored by Chairman Tom Pickett. (Dem., Tex.).

Moody, blasting critics of the long-proposed St. Lawrence Seaway, said the time has come "when this matter can no longer be considered on sectional grounds."

"It is," he said, "a project that is absolutely essential to national defence—as pointed out by President Truman, Secretary of Defence Marshall and Defence Mobilizer Charles E. Wilson."

(President Truman, in a major speech at Detroit last Saturday, described the St. Lawrence project as one of the most urgent facing the country.)

Has No Doubts

Moody said he had "no doubts" that the seaway, which would open the Great Lakes to ocean shipping, could be considered in connection with foreign aid.

"We need the big waterway to provide easy access to the vast new steel production in Labrador," he said. "The iron ore from that area for our source will be used to arm our co-signers of the North Atlantic Pact nations."

Moody said the alternative is the building of the inland ore resources of the Mesabi Range.

"Do this," he said, "and we face three years of delay, and possibly-short supply in the event we are attacked and a war develops."

Aiken's forces attracted Mrs. Allen and she went into the yard to help him and met the same fate. Another attracted the neighbor, Cusson, who, in like manner, became the third victim.

Police said the first they heard of the slaying was when Martin arrived by car from Anderson Corner, walkfed into head-quarters in Montreal and told about one killing.

Police said Martin told them the argument began when his brother complained about the dog. Martin said he then left the house for a time and when he returned found the dog had been killed.

Killings Occur In Que. Following Family Argument

Police Say Soldier Grandson Of One Victim Confesses

Ormstown, Que., July 31—(CP)—Three persons were stabbed to death Monday night at Anderson Corner, near this town 55 miles southwest of Montreal.

Police said Martin surrendered in Montreal where he first was held as an "important witness" and later, after the bodies were found, was booked on a murder charge.

Dead were Mrs. Anthime Allen, 74, her husband Anthime Allen, 77, and a neighbor, Nelson Cusson, 74.

Killings Follow Argument

Police said they were told by Martin that the killings occurred following an argument between Martin and Anthime Allen, his grandfather.

Police said Martin, father of four children who live with their mother at St. Henri de Mascouche, about 15 miles north of Montreal, was on leave from the Royal 22nd Regiment and was slated for overseas service.

They said he walked into the Montreal headquarters of the provincial police at 4 a.m. today and told of having committed one murder at Anderson Corner.

When police investigated they found three bodies lying outside the Allen home.

All Had Been Stabbed

"They were lying in the yard in their 'own blood," said Inspector General Norbert Labbe of the provincial police. "All had been stabbed."

Police said that Martin, who used his fists, his feet and finally questioning told them he had a pocket knife with a three-inch blade to kill the three elderly people about 11 p.m. Monday night.

Police gave out this story, as obtained from Martin:

He left Montreal yesterday morning and did some drinking. Then he drove to his grandfather's place at Anderson Corner and became involved there in an argument with the old man.

The two went into the Allen yard and the argument continued. Then, Martin said, he beat the old man up and finished him off with the penknife.

Mrs. Allen's attracted Mrs. Allen and she went into the yard to help him and met the same fate. Another attracted the neighbor, Cusson, who, in like manner, became the third victim.

Police said the first they heard of the slaying was when Martin arrived by car from Anderson Corner, walkfed into head-quarters in Montreal and told about one killing.

Police said Martin told them the argument began when his brother complained about the dog. Martin said he then left the house for a time and when he returned found the dog had been killed.

Well-Heeled Gamblers' Gang Puts 'Fix' on Races at Fort Erie Says Paper

Toronto, July 31 — (CP) Tho 'the fix was in' grow stronger, Telegram says today in a news-page story that a "well - heeled gang of gamblers" has attempted with success in some cases, to 'fix' horse races at the Fort Erie track by bribing jockeys.

In a dispatch from Fort Erie, the newspaper says many of the gamblers are from the United States but recently have worked out of Toronto.

The story was published as the Ontario Racing Commission met in special session after Fort Erie tracks to investigate conditions which last week resulted in the suspension of Eddie Arcaro, Bobby Keane and Phil Marchese from riding privileges. It was also alleged that they were connected with "fixed" races.

A third jockey, Alfred Nash, was said to have been placed under police protection after he told authorities that he had been approached to pull his horse in a Fort Erie race. He refused.

The Telegram story says:

"Suspension of the two jockeys Keane is from Toronto, Marchese is from the U. S. and not known well in these parts — is just the beginning.

"Bookmakers last week were in having any part of large bets on Fort Erie races as the rumblings of a "stiff" spot in the race set - up to swing a deal."

S. A. to Extract Uranium From Gold Ore

Washington, July 31 (AP) — The Union of South Africa is building plants to extract uranium from gold ore, the Atomic Energy Commission told Congress today in its 10th semi-annual report.

While the uranium content of the ore is low, the A.E.C. said, the ore is great in volume.

Under a Canada-country agreement, South Africa-country mining companies have agreed to process the ore and ship the uranium to the United States and Canada. Uranium is a key metal in producing atomic energy.

WILL TAKE GENERATION

London, July 31 — (AP) Development of British atomic power facilities to supply industrial needs "is likely to take a generation at least," the government's scientific advisory council reported today.

The council is composed of scientists appointed by the government to give expert advice on the public use of scientific research.

There is a "reasonable prospect" that atomic power can eventually be produced at about the same price as electric power produced by coal, it said.

Washington, July 31 — (AP) — The United States has spent $1,900,000,000 on appropriated, but unexpended, funds — and it has asked Congress for $1,200,000,000 more for the current fiscal year.

The A. E. C. gave out these figures at a press conference yesterday in connection with its semi-annual report to Congress.

Booklet Telling How to Survive A-Attack 'Must' Reading for All

Ottawa, July 31. (CP) The Health Department released today a 48-page booklet telling how to survive atomic attack and said it is "must" reading for every Canadian without delay.

One hundred and thirty thousand copies are being printed as a preliminary step to bring home to the people its comprehensive lessons on what to do under a variety of perilous circumstances. They will cost 25 cents apiece.

The department said this is one of 12 pamphlets or booklets being published in a drive to acquaint the whole country with the dangers that may confront it at any moment. But this is the one for the man in the street.

Released at the same time were three others, one on the training plan for C. D. workers, one of the effects of an atomic bomb explosion on structures and personnel and one on Canadian organization for C. D.

The survival booklet has placed in a Canadian context the lessons that have already been learned about atomic dangers;

"There are some precautions you can take right now, like building shelters in our cellars or gardens," it says. "In addition there are lessons we should learn without delay . . . which will enable us to act quickly if a raid comes. The booklet will tell us what to do about them."

The booklets are going out to provincial and municipal C.D. authorities and may be obtained through them or from the King's Printer here. The department has also given permission for their reproduction by anyone who sees fit to do so.

Swimming Pool Officially Opens On August 8th

The Community Swimming Pool, sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen Club, is expected to receive its official opening on August 18, it was announced at the service club's bi-weekly meeting at the Hotel Quinte on Monday night.

Members of the swimming pool committee reported that the block layers had nearly completed their part of the job, the ceiling joists are almost ready for the roof, and that the retaining items are in place for the foundation under the fence around the pool. Two fresh coats of green paint have been applied to the interior of the pool and a four foot walk will shortly be installed around it.

Visit Other Pools

A delegation of club members is planning to inspect the swimming pools in Peterborough and Port Hope during the week-end of the type of fixtures that should be installed.

A vote of thanks was voted to several business firms and organizations for their generous offer of time, labor and material. Among these were No. 6 Repair Depot who donated light and power, the Belleville Lock Company, who donated all the hardware; Gus Freeman and Joseph Adanac, who donated the material for the steel ladders and Star Welding, who are constructing the ladders at cost.

Joe Large was especially mentioned for his offer of free time and labor to paint the project and the hope was expressed that a waiting list establishment would make a similar offer with regard to moving the dirt at the pool.

Inter-Service Tourney

Kinsmen were reminded of the inter-service club golf tournament being held at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club on August 8. An inter-service club cup for annual competition is being donated by Kinsmen vice-president Murray Davis.

Plans are nearly completed for the carnival being held in Victoria Park on the first four days in August. Twelve attractions will be offered each evening and the Kinsmen Club solicit the help of the citizens of Belleville to put this event across. All proceeds will go toward the erection of the swimming pool.

A good return was reported on the ticket sale for the Pontiac car which will be given for an Wednesday evening by Elmer Sandercock M.L.A. at the Kinsmen Carnival. The balance of the proceeds are being turned over to the swimming pool project.

Missing Boy Brought Home Does Not Know Why He Left

Robert Anderson, 13, ended a four-day disappearance from his Thurlow township home this morning. The boy was brought home by Ray Fox, of Trenton, who recognized him as he stood outside Fox's cartage company office.

The boy said this morning that he would meet or his time in Cobourg, and "didn't know" why he went away in the first place. He disappeared after being sent by his father to a strawberry patch on the farm.

The boy, without money, cashed in on old pop bottles he found lying beside the road and bought candy. For one day, he was the guest of a Pentecostal Mission in Cobourg. That was the only day he had meals of any sort.

On Friday morning, he hitch-hiked to Belleville with William Pascoe. Then he went to Trenton, again by thumb. By nightfall, he was near Brighton, and slept in a barn. By Saturday, he was in Cobourg, and slept that night in a park. On Sunday, he went to the Pentecostal Mission, was fed, had a swim, and wandered into a garage where he watched an Ontario Provincial Police constable fixing his motorcycle.

On Monday, he started home, and reached Brighton again, where he slept in the same barn, and was given breakfast this morning "by a doctor who owns the barn." The last step was to Trenton, where Fox, a friend of the family, spotted him.

This morning, through tears, the boy related the story. He told how he watched police patrolling the streets of Brighton on Monday looking for him. He said he watched them go by him three or four times, without recognizing him. Asked if no one had asked him who he was or where he had come from during his trip, the boy said, "Nobody asked me anything."

Half-hysterical, Robert could not explain this morning why he had left his home. His father, Roy Anderson said they were glad the boy was home, but that "the relief was almost as bad as the worry."

At any rate, the boy's homecoming is a nice present for his parents. They celebrate their 20th wedding anniversary Wednesday. There are three other children in the family, Donald 19, Carol 15, and Peter, three.

Careless Driving Charge Costs Driver $39

James I. Folster, Peterborough, pleading guilty through counsel to a charge of careless driving was fined $20 and costs amounting to $19 in magistrates' court today.

A dangerous driving charge laid in connection with the previous offence was dismissed for lack of evidence by Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

The charges arose when Folster's car went out of control, mounted the pavement near the Devil's Elbow and caused some property damage to a private residence, on July 18th.

In connection with the dangerous driving charges, police evidence revealed there was no indication of the car being driven at a fast rate of speed, that Inspector Hayes and Sergeant Milligan testified Folster was not under the influence of liquor at the time.

Wonderful to Be Canadian Says Rev. F. R. Harback

"It is astoundingly wonderful to be a Canadian" said Rev. F. R. Harback, pastor of Tabernacle United Church, in addressing the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon in the Quinte Hotel.

"Across the reaches of our land we have a great fellowship, a great loyalty and a great country."

Mr. Harback related many of his experiences from the R.C.A.F. in Calgary and in this district. One of the anecdotes was about three baby geese found in the bush near the air force station at Deseronto. When first found, they were quite wild and unmanageable but within relatively few days they had adjusted themselves to their new way of life. They had had the freedom of the woods but at the same time were numbed to the risks and dangers of wild life. The raccoons were willing to give up the wild life for freedom for the security offered them in the new home.

"Humanity is in much the same state", he said. "We are living in a country where we have the thinking or security, yet the forces round about have been such that we have never been more frustrated in our lives. Freedom is linked with an element of insecurity and hesitancy. Such is the state of world affairs many people do not feel as secure as before. Somewhere in the emergency arises, the people of the democracies have the best chance of survival." He also spoke related an experience of Russian Army officers in Berlin to bear out his point.

In conclusion, Rev. Harback said "Thank God for fellowship and freedom in this strange world of security."

The speaker was introduced by Captain Carl Crosby and thanked at the conclusion of his talk by Rotarians Ralph Allison.

Visitors were introduced from Kemptville, N.S., Ft. Pierce, Fla., Orillia, Peterborough and Shirley.

Birthday roses were presented to Rotarians Archie Cameron and George Lanning.

Madoc conducted the services.

Mrs. Rooke, 73, was born in Actinolite, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Reed. She had lived at Stoco and Madoc, and was a member of St. John's Church, Ottawa. She was a member of the Tweed Eastern Star, the Rebekah Lodge of Connaught Lake and of the Women's Benefit Association.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Leslie (Ila) Small, in Pennsylvania and Mrs. Fred (Doris) Carter, Ottawa, four sisters, Mrs. C. A. Collins, in Manitoba, Mrs. E. T. Nayler, Madoc and Mrs. Thos. J. Lough, Madoc, and Mrs. J. J. Hyland, Ottawa; one brother Howard Speck, Sudbury, and five grandchildren.

Plane Hits Wires, Three Injured, Dumped in Lake

Peterborough, July 31—(CP)—Three men were slightly injured Monday when their light plane hit hydro wires at McCracken's Landing and crashed into Stony Lake, 12 miles northeast of Peterborough.

Injured were: Dunlop Mathias, 26, Kenneth Wyatt, 29, both of Peterborough and Orville Braden, Hamilton. All suffered head lacerations.

The plane, piloted by Mathias, was coming in for a landing in front of a boat livery. He did not see hydro wires strung from the livery to an island. Either the propeller or the pontoons hit the wires, tearing the pontoons off.

Russ Carveth, operator of the livery, found one passenger crawling from the plane and another already out. Mathias was still in the plane, blood streaming from a cut on his head.

Hydro service to the district was disrupted for an hour after the crash.

$50,000,000 Gift Arms, Equipment Starts for Italy

Montreal, July 31 (CP) — A $50,000,000 gift of arms and military equipment from Canada was started on its way of Italy today in a brief ceremony at a Montreal pier.

A token shipment of the military aid, third similar gift Canada has sent overseas under its Atlantic treaty obligations was turned over by Defence Minister Claxton to Mario di Stefano, Italian ambassador to Canada.

The defence minister made the symbolic gesture of "presenting" the Italian ambassador with a 25-pounder self-propelled gun, which will take the shipment to Italy.

Previously, Canada made arms contributions of approximately $50,000,000 each to Belgium and The Netherlands. A smaller shipment, valued at about $5,000,000 has been sent to Luxembourg.

The arms and equipment are enough for a full army division, and include guns, tanks, trucks and spares.

500 IN SEARCH, BOY FOUND IN BUSH

Vincent Sorrente of Windsor, Ont., is safe in his father's arms after being the object of the biggest search Bruce peninsula has ever experienced. He wandered away from his grandfather's home at Tobermory, heard searchers but thought "they were chasing me." Rattlesnakes and bears are common in the bush where the boy was lost. Mosquitoes and hunger were his greatest danger, however, and searchers who found him said he could not have lasted another night after 26 hours in the brush. — Central Press Canadian.

Provincial-Municipal Committee Named by Frost

Toronto, July 31—(CP)—Personnel of the nine-member provincial - municipal committee which will study problems of municipal finance, responsibility and administration was announced today by Premier Frost.

Municipal representatives on the committee were selected by the municipalities with the government appointing its representatives.

Government representatives will be J. W. P. Carter of the Department of Municipal Affairs with R. L. Kennedy of the Ontario Municipal Board as alternate; H. H. Walker of the Department of Agriculture, with G. L. Duffin of the same department as alternate; G. S. Twiss, Department of Health with Dr. A. H. Sellers as alternate; J. L. Zoller, Department of Highways, with C. A. Clarke as alternate.

Municipalities are represented by Reeve W. E. Brandon of Swansea, with Mayor Clare of Guelph as alternate. Reeve Brandon is the representative of the Ontario Association of Mayors and Reeves.

Association of the rural municipalities nominee is Reeve E. B. McMillan of Chesterville village with Reeve J. McLennan of Charlottenburg as alternate. Alderman K. G. Crawford of Kingston will represent the Ontario Municipal Association with E. A. Outram, city clerk of Peterborough, as alternate.

The northwestern Ontario municipal Associations representative is J. W. Walker, municipal clerk of Fort Frances, with F. J. Hooper, city clerk of Kenora, as alternate.

Harold J. Chater, provincial statistician, was appointed chairman of the government.

The decision to create the committee was arrived at during a joint conference of municipal officials and Frost here last month.

The committee will delve into all phases of municipal-provincial relations particularly in the field of finance.

Exhaustive study will be made of the present grant system with consideration being given to the suggestion that "free" grants be made rather than tying the municipality to the use of the money for specific purposes.

During the earlier conference representatives of the municipalities held that the "car-marking" of grants for specific purposes by the government at times worked to the disadvantage of the municipality.

The committee will meet at an early date, Premier Frost said.

Check-Off Only Remaining Issue In Gold Strike

Timmins, July 31. (CP)—Workers of Timmins, which lives on gold, watched with apprehension today the lack of progress in the Hollinger mine strike. Granting the check-off of union dues, is almost the sole remaining issue in the dispute which began three weeks ago.

Worry creased the foreheads of many of the community's 30,000 residents following the Sunday night statement at a public meeting of C. H. Millard, National director of the United Steelworkers of America (C.I.O.-C.O.L.), that unless the strike were settled—"and settled fast"—striking members would be taken to jobs in steel mills and mines elsewhere in Ontario where the union has contracts.

But Eamon Park, union publicity director, said Monday: "There is no desire on the part of the union to uproot families and men from the area."

Adapt .302 Rifle

"Our part in this operation was to do the work on adapting or remaking the existing .303 Mark 4 rifle and the Bren (.303) gun to take either .300 or .280 rimless cartridges. We have done our part of the job. Both could be done, though at considerable expense.

"Canada's attitude made it plain that we would accept as standard anything agreed to by the U.K. or U.S. Unfortunately, such an agreement has not yet been reached. . . Canada will go to the (Washington) meeting with the intention of doing everything possible to secure the greatest measure of agreement. . ."

New Five-Year Trade Agreements To be Negotiated

Berlin, July 31—(AP)—Russia intends to step up the output of its satellites this year with new five-year trade agreements, Berlin sources reported today.

East Germany indicated the Kremlin's plan by announcing that Soviet-German talks on a five year trade treaty would start here Aug. 15.

Henrich Rau, chief of economics for the Soviet zone government, also instructed his staff to prepare data for additional conferences on five-year agreements with Poland, Czechoslovakia, red China, Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria.

Foreign quarters interpreted the move to mean that Moscow has decided its economic course for the next five years and now wants to guide all its pro-communist neighbors along that course.

Whether it will be a five-year "peace" or "war" economy is a Soviet secret. The progress of the Korean armistice talks might be a tipoff in this direction.

The last Russian five-year plan expired in April and there have been no announcements out of Moscow for the future.

Soviet trade relations with the Satellites have been on a short-term basis up to now. This has kept the Soviet Union in a flexible position to shift her demands.

THE IDOLS ARE SHATTERED

It is a long time, according to our newspaper colleagues who work on the sports side of the news, since being a pure amateur in sport even meant very much. They also tell us that there are very few fields of sport in which gambling has not raised its ugly, snapping head. This fact has been added to in the past few weeks with further basketball scandals in the United States. Those considered to be unapproachable in the sport world have not only been approached — they have accepted money, to manipulate the scores of games so that professional gamblers can make a killing.

These athletes are young men. In more than one instance, they have been elected to mythical "All-American" teams, because of their ability and character. They have become, quite rightly, the idols of hundreds of thousands of young people, who are endeavoring to make names for themselves in the world of sport. The dreams have truly been shattered.

Baseball had its famous scandal in 1919, when members of the Chicago White Sox were dubbed the "Black Sox" because of their pact with gamblers. Few sports have been without the taint of illegal activities during their history. The latest indication that these gamblers will not be stopped was embodied in statements telephoned to Lloyd Mangrum and Sam Snead, men of the highest rank in professional golfing. Mangrum's life was threatened in an effort to make him lose a tournament at St. Paul, Minnesota, and Snead was told to win. These men have ethics and morals, however, and were not tempted.

It would seem that gamblers enter the sporting world where amateurism, as such, leaves off. It is then that the results of the game mean so much to those who make their living by wagering or taking wagers on the particular sport.

It is not, however, reasonable to assume that professionalism in sport should be given up because of that. Many men make their living by participating in the various fields, and their privilege should not be denied. But it was their promoters, in the very first instance many, who were responsible for the temptation where it is. years ago, who may have put the temptation where it is. Men who place the honor for money in the sporting world are not worthy of the credit given them by younger men and women. The sooner their like is cleaned out, the better.

Perhaps what is needed is a return to the days when people played games for the fun in them. That is a dream none of us will live to see realized. Consequently, we shall continue to read of sport scandals.

THE TERRIBLE DROWNING TOLL

Ignorance of common safety practices on lake waters is a mighty weapon on hot summer days. Tragedies occur every day which emphasize that people are too careless, and too unskilled in various types of water craft, for their own good. Two cases in point, in which five persons were drowned each time, left a black story.

Safety supervisors have long been aware that the average vacationer's knowledge of boats is slim. They are constantly watching to see that those ignorant of the proper rules are protected. Recently, a supervisor of the Toronto Harbor Commissioners' bathing corps condemned the actions of many in and out of the water, laying many water deaths at the door of ignorance. The Red Cross is so alarmed about the situation that it is distributing labels to all boat owners. These list the basic rules of safety and tell what to do in case of an accident in the water, and are to be pasted on the gunwales of the craft.

The two cases mentioned above showed that five men got in a boat far too small, and with a motor far too powerful, for their purpose. When they got caught in a storm, the boat tipped, presumably through improper handling, since none had had much previous experience on the water, and all were drowned. In the other instance, people using a hand-operated cable ferry insisted on overloading the craft. When they shifted their weight, the ferry tipped and sank. Five were drowned.

In other cases, persons thrown into the water have unwisely decided to attempt to swim to shore, and have not made it. Despite countless warnings by safety instructors that the best thing to do is to hang on to the overturned craft, these unfortunate people strike out. Many never make it to land.

It is tragic that such things should happen in this country, where almost every person has the opportunity to use and enjoy thousands of miles of thousands of lakes and rivers every summer. They also have the opportunity to learn how to conduct themselves while they are boating, fishing, water-skiing or swimming. If the news headlines can be interpreted, few do. But until they do, the terrific toll will not decrease.

"TAKE IT EASY"

"You ought to take it easy," said the doctor, for a fee.
"The Good Lord didn't say that when to earth He ordered me.
If He did, I didn't hear Him," with a chuckle I replied,
"And I couldn't take it easy howsoever hard I tried."

He's a very kind physician and I'm sure he knows his stuff,
But worn patients disobey him they will find him rather tough.

Then he rapped me with his stethoscope and angrily he said:
"You'll start to take it easy or you'll very soon be dead."

I've a nasty bit of temper of my own I can display
And I answered him in anger: "These are easy words to say.
But I can't born to do it. As I am, I have to be!
And to learn to take it easy would be difficult for me."

THE PACKSACK

By GREGORY CLARK

The impending visit of Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh to Canada is doubtless reviving memories in all of us of the royal visit in May and June of 1939, on the eve, as it transpired, of the war. The chief difference between the two receptions will be that we showed the King and Queen our country at the height of spring and the dawn of summer. We will show the younger royal pair our late autumn.

It was my laborious privilege to travel in the pilot train of the 1939 royal tour which carried the newspapermen ahead of the royal train across Canada and down to the States. There were a great many memorable scenes in that pilgrimage; but the one that remains most vivid in mind was the farewell ceremony at Halifax. It was a perfectly beautiful June late afternoon. Estimates of the number of Maritimers who were present on the docks and in the parks, streets and boardwalks of Halifax, as well as on the hills, to watch the white ship sail so serenely out to sea range all the way from the tens to the hundreds of thousands. There was something of an almost breath - taking beauty about the hour, the place, the people. The crowd seemed inspired.

Then, all at once, when the royal couple appeared alone on board, at the rail or their great empty ship, somebody started to sing "Will Ye No Come Back Again", and my guess is that by the third bar, fifteen thousand people were singing it. Two hundred years ago, that song was prescribed, forbidden. It was one of the treasonable songs for the cause of Bonnie Prince Charlie. Behind me in the throng, one family group of Nova Scotians were singing it in the Gaelic. The lovely tune lifted and soared over the harbor like the gulls; and I don't suppose in all the history of royalty a more spontaneous and kindly adieu was ever given.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

LEISURE

Why is it that people are so much in a hurry? I stood in front of a candy store and watched for some time the cars that rushed by, each one vying with the other as to who would get to town first. For myself I have no ambition to beat the other fellow when driving. I slow up and let him pass if he gives me the signal. I always have a little leisure left over!

I came across a few lines by Thoreau in my recent reading that impressed me, so here they are. He said: "Great works of art have endless leisure for a background, as the universe has space. Time stands still, while they are created. The artist cannot be in a hurry. The earth moves round the sun with inconceivable rapidity, and yet the surface of the lake is not ruffled by it."

The songs of our youth stay with us. I recall one in which this line occurred: "Time, time to be busy." Now we ought surely to do that, and also take time out for prayer and meditation, for a review of the day's activities, and for a good rest for all of the faculties and organs of this wonderful body machine of ours.

Each day of our lives should have its leisure moments, for companionship, for the enjoyment of pure enjoyment of some sort. Too great importance can be placed on set and regular and habitual leisure. We all function better after a period of rest and change. Periods of leisure each day are as important as the meals we eat for the nourishment and strength of body.

It is amazing what an amount of reading can be accomplished, and new knowledge acquired, simply by devoting a stigle hour each day to the reading of good books. That would amount to about 45 eight hour days a year. A great deal of pleasurable and informative knowledge can be stored away through such a plan. The chances are that more than a single hour would be consumed, for once the habit of reading is established it grows and grows!

Season your days with profitable leisure and life will grow in enjoyment and interest. The birds take time out in a happy period of leisure—so sing!

Police Guard Courtroom For 'Jungle Girl'

Singapore, July 31 (AP) — Malay police, carrying rifles and pistols, and British police officers guarded the courtroom Monday when the Supreme Court of Appeals took up a review of the case of the "jungle girl," Maria Bertha Hertogh.

Counsel for Inche Mansoor Adabi, 23, Malay schoolteacher and newspaperman, told the court that British colonial tribunals have no right to annul a marriage to the girl, now 14.

Mansoor Adabi married 19 persons and injured about 200 last December when the lower court annulled the girl's Malay marriage and restored her to her Roman Catholic Netherlands mother. The mother, who has returned to The Netherlands with the girl, said the child was abducted from her in Java during the war.

Hybrid Sunflower Sought by Chile

Winnipeg — (CP) — Mario Astorga of Santiago, Chile, research director for the Chilean Department of Agriculture, is beginning a three-month stay at Altona, Man., in the hope of finding a hybrid variety of sunflower seed that will grow successfully in the prairie soil.

During his stay at Altona, where Canada's only sunflower breeding station is located, he will confer with Dr. Eric Putt, chief agronomist of Canada Packers, for the federal government. Between them they hope to improve the Chilean strain.

Ten years ago Chile imported its entire requirements but the government launched a $40,000,000 corporation for the promotion of production, including funds for research into the possibility of growing its own oil producing plants.

Imperia Cut

The scheme was a success and now Chile imports only 15 per cent of the seed for its 5,709,000 population. Within two years they should be self-sufficient.

Chile's main problem in the sunflower growing is to find such a seed that will grow in its different climates. Another handicap is that picking by hand is becoming increasingly difficult as stalks grow to 6 feet in height.

Ordinary combines, with inexpensive attachments, are being used at the southern Manitoba plant to harvest the sunflower seeds. Astorga plans to also investigate them with a view to buying some for experimental purposes in the South American country.

Russia was the first country to discover that the flower's oil could be used for industrial purposes and began experiments in the 30's and since then research has developed many varieties.

The Chilean government did not begin to investigate possibilities of home-grown sunflowers until 1940.

Personal Health Talks

THE FACE FEELING VENTURE

Every one whose face is pitted from chickenpox, smallpox or acne, or marked by large "pores" or "blackheads" or "whiteheads" or keratotic horny, wart-like patches, or freckles or other pigmentations that persist in adulthood, or wrinkles on forehead, cheeks or between the eyes, has at one time or another thought of face peeling as a plausible way to erase the blemish.

Some doctors, aware of the impossibility of removing some disfigurements, such as the wrinkles that come with the withering of advanced age, do not take seriously the complaints of people with moderate disfigurements because the doctors consider them unimportant.

A blemish is not "unimportant" simply because it does not endanger health or life. It may be a may handicap the patient's social and economic life. It is a spiritual or her self-confidence.

The younger the patient the greater the injury to personality. I remember too well how much I suffered in that way from simple acne when I was fourteen. It must be much worse for a girl. That is the reason why I write to every boy and girl with acne—blackheads and pimples—to send me a stamped self-addressed envelope and ask for my pamphlet on Acne.

Doctors, naturally, use a Latin word for skin peeling — one of the latest. Then, just in case you dumb laymen-catch up with us, we have another term for the effective peeling or scaling of the skin that follows the use of acetic acid peel, for instance, which some of you who went beyond the eighth grade in school may have heard before—desquamation.

The treatment of any of the skin defects or blemishes mentioned calls for expert knowledge, judgment and skill. One method such treatment should proceed warily, make certain of its effects, is one of recognized professional standing. Do so by asking your family doctor or any reputable doctor you know, whether the plastic surgeon is of good professional standing. Or telephone the County Medical Association or Society and inquire about any doctor in the community that's what the medical society's telephone number is listed for.

Controlled face peeling in the hands of the responsible plastic surgeon is a safe and fairly effective alternative to the practice of "face lifting" for the raising and wrinkles or premature aging. Unlike face lifting, the tell-tale scars of which betray the patients search for youth every time she has her hair dressed, controlled face peeling leaves no scar, does not distort the face and generally improves the texture of the skin even when it is repeated to take care of new wrinkles or saga. The entire treatment takes only a week, as a rule. Technical details of the treatment, which only a physician can understand, were given in Illinois Medical Journal (A.M.A.) by Dr. Joseph C. Urkov.

Controlled exfoliation is not a "100 per cent" cure—it doesn't restore the skin to its original perfection, but it does improve the appearance of the psychological handicap.

Answer — Yes.

Hospital Economy

Woman, 84, suffered a stroke and was taken to hospital. She dearly loved coffee, but in the hospital they would not let her have any because of high blood pressure. — (Mrs. M. H.)

Answer — You must remember, Ma'am, coffee is pretty high priced and hospitals have to keep expenditures as low as possible. The hokum about blood pressure patients is absurd as it is unkind in the circumstances.

Strength for the Day

DR. EARL L. DOUGLASS

GOOD RULE OF LIFE

Great success in business, science, and the professions seems usually to be achieved by those who give themselves to nothing but their work.

And yet we wonder sometimes if these successful people really are successful. Are they happy? Are they really getting much out of life? Are they beloved by their families and sought after by a wide circle of friends?

Occasionally we see a person who takes life very seriously, who does not pay a great deal of attention to success and yet who has made a whale of success out of living. I can think of a business-man who died a few years ago, rarely unsuccessful judged by standards of efficiency, and yet one of the most beloved characters I have ever known. He touched life at a hundred different points, and from morning until night he seemed to be full of exuberance, with the cup of life full and leaving over. He did not have much money, but in his heart he was a great person.

The world is wide
In time and tide
And God is guide;
Then, do not hurry.
That man is blest
Who does his best
And leaves the rest;
Then, do not worry.

The old saying "join the Navy and see the world" is true at least as far as the Sea Cadets at Belleville are concerned. No less than 14 cadets from the local corps this year going to camp for two week periods. Left to right are Acting Petty Officer Neil Judge; Cadet Petty Officer Ed Richards and Acting Petty Officer Stirling Shandrow who left Sunday morning, July 29th, for Cornwallis, N.S., for a two week training period.

King Carries Out First Engagement Since Illness

London, July 31 (Reuters) — The King today carried out his first official public engagement since his illness began in May. He decorated 65 persons who had received awards in the Birthday Honour List.

For more than half an hour, the King, wearing the uniform of Admiral of the Fleet, stood beside a small table on which was a cushion bearing the orders and decorations.

Thirty-four new Knights Bachelor knelt before the King who touched each of them lightly on the shoulder with his sword. When they rose they were officially Knights.

Among the recipients were two whose honor commemorated centenaries—Christopher Chancellor, General Manager of Reuters which celebrated its 100th birthday two weeks ago, and Gerald Barry, the man responsible for the organization of this year's Festival of Britain.

Henry Turner, Secretary of the Commonwealth Press Union, the newspaper organization devoted to Commonwealth press interests also received his accolade.

U.S. DEVELOPS

New advances towards developing atomic energy machines designed to power submarines and aircraft were listed among the progress items in the military field.

In various other fields of atomic endeavor A.E.C. reported:

1. Laboratory experiments have given hope of eventually finding a treatment for saving people exposed to heavy doses of radiation during atomic bombings or accidents.

Peaceful Application

2. Production and distribution of American-made radioactive isotopes — the atomic program's first definite contribution to peaceful application of the atom's power—have been increased.

3. New applications for the materials in industrial, agricultural and medical fields were found.

These included studies designed to determine exactly how a cow produces milk; a new remote-control technique for measuring the water content of snowfall on mountain slopes; and a new method for testing the efficiency of rust-preventives.

Bronte Finally Gains Status Of Village

Bronte, Ont., July 31 (CP) — A century is a long time to wait, but this little community on the shore of Lake Ontario, 10 miles northeast of Hamilton, is finally realizing its destiny.

It officially becomes a village today after more than 100 years of ups and downs during which it deteriorated from a thriving shipping centre to a population of less than 300, then made a comeback to be settled.

Some residents have always maintained that Bronte was cheated. Back in 1948 a survey of the community was made and it was decided that Bronte would have the distinction of being the seat of Halton county.

But that was before the coming of the railway. Instead of being the southern route along Lake Ontario, the railway was built further north. The communities of Milton, today a town, became the county seat.

Loss of the railway line almost brought extinction to Bronte, named after the Duke of Bronte —better known in history books as Lord Nelson.

It was the fishing industry that saved Bronte. Fish on the open markets in Hamilton and in Toronto, 27 miles east, came from Bronte and still does today.

In more recent years, Bronte has become a location for summer homes. Many of the summer residents have taken up permanent residence and the population now is 1,200.

Will Form Council

The three-man commission which handled the affairs of the community has been disbanded. Tonight residents will gather in a local hall and nominate candidates for a five-man council, including a reeve, deputy reeve and three councillors.

The election has been set for Aug. 13 and the first thing on the agenda of the new council will be establishment of a police force and appointment of a village clerk and assessor.

The village, covering 550 acres, with four miles of streets and 36 industries, will have its problems too. Erosion on the lakefront will have to be tackled and Bronte is about to undertake construction of a $192,000 water system.

But, with a natural shelter for a harbor, Bronte has high hopes for the future, particularly if the St. Lawrence Seaway is constructed.

URGES BOOST IN ARMS

Hong Kong, July 31—(Reuters) China's communist leaders today urged a boost in arms building and army recruiting because of the questionable success of the Korean truce talks.

"It is still difficult to determine at present whether the talks will be successful," Peiping radio said.

300 Houses To be Built At Windsor

Toronto, July 31 — (CP) William Griesinger, Ontario Minister of Planning and Development, announced Monday that construction will begin immediately on 300 houses at Windsor.

Costs of the houses, part of a 5,000-house project, will be shared by the federal, provincial and municipal governments.

Cost of the present project has been estimated at $2,631,755.

The houses will be built on Windsor's east side on city-serviced property.

Fifteen other municipalities are reported negotiating with the government but the Windsor contract is the first to reach the concrete stage.

Windsor Board of Control has directed that the houses have three bedrooms and be built of brick.

Reports On Missing Plane Are Discounted

Vancouver, July 31—(CP)—Reports of an additional message from the missing Korean airlift DC-4 were discounted last night by a Canadian Pacific Airlines spokesman here.

Search headquarters at Anchorage, Alaska, said a report from Whitehorse, Y.T., might indicate the missing C.P.A. plane was an hour's flying time farther north when it vanished July 21 on a flight from Vancouver to Tokyo.

But the C.P.A. spokesman said an airlines official in charge of the company's search operation had talked to the radio operator at Whitehorse and the operator could not say definitely what day he heard the message.

The message was about arranging meals for the persons aboard a plane, apparently beamed at Anchorage.

FOUND DEAD IN TRUCK

Ottawa, July 31 — (CP) — An American cattle buyer, identified as Charles Goldstein, 37, of Ware, Mass., was found dead in his truck parked in a clump of bushes off a highway on the outskirts of Ottawa Monday. He had been shot in the head.

Coroner Dr. Harry Dover said it was a case of suicide and there would be no inquest.

Goldstein was well-known in the Ottawa valley to which he made many business trips.

Vietnam Governor Killed by Rebel

Saigon, Indo-China, July 31—(Reuters)— Thai Lap Thanh, 56, governor of South Vietnam, was killed today by a nationalist rebel who sidled up to him with a live bomb concealed in his pocket. The assassin was blown to pieces by the explosion, and four French officers standing nearby were wounded.

The governor, who was on an inspection tour in the Sadec area 75 miles southwest of Saigon, had just stepped from his automobile.

Eyewitnesses said the killer had calmly strolled through a police cordon with his hands in his pockets. In one pocket he clutched a grenade. When near enough, he pulled the safety pin—but kept the bomb in his pocket.

There was a heavy explosion. The governor and the killer, described as a rebel Vietminh "death volunteer," fell dead.

SUSPECTS ROUNDED UP

Toronto, July 31 — (CP)—Two more suspects in the Bradford bank robbery last Thursday were rounded up Monday — at gunpoint.

Police fired five shots after one man before he surrendered after a chase through suburban Parkdale. The other suspect was arrested in a downtown rooming-house by detectives with drawn guns.

The two, held on charges of vagrancy, are being questioned in connection with the $4,200 robbery.

Three men, arrested last week, are still being held.

Atomic Research Head May Quit

London, July 31 (CP)—Sir John Cockcroft may quit as head of Britain's Atomic Research Establishment at Harwell, the supply ministry announced last night.

London newspapers have been predicting that the 54-year-old physicist, who has headed the Harwell project since 1946, would resign to become the British cabinet's top adviser on defence research.

The supply ministry said "the question of a successor to Sir John Cockcroft is under consideration against the possibility of his resigning."

Newspaper reports have said Cockcroft will be succeeded by Dr. Basil F. J. Schonland, 55, now director of the Bernard Price Institute of Geophysics at Johannesburg, South Africa.

Mystery of Man Dead in Swamp Is Cleared Up

New Orleans, July 31 (AP)— Part of the mystery surrounding a man found dead in a Louisiana swamp is cleared up, but his identity remains a puzzle.

Sam Jones, the one first identified as the victim, gave officers his version of how the man died. Jones said that Donald Easterwood, once tried and acquitted on a charge of murdering Jones, knew the man's name.

Easterwood, 26, was arrested at his Baton Rouge home after this disclosure by Jones yesterday and jailed on a charge of investigation of murder. He refused to say anything because his lawyers were not present.

Easterwood had been free on bond as a material witness. He was first arrested last week after Jones was found alive in Denver, Colo.

John Faulkner, chief deputy criminal sheriff, said the 40-year-old Jones signed a statement in which he said the man fell on a knife and killed himself during a fight. Faulkner quoted Jones as saying he put the body in the swamp.

Jones is being held under a murder charge.

The association in this town, 25 miles east of Toronto, says it has signed statements to back up the complaints. The information has been placed in the hands of Whitby's recently - formed police commission which comprises Judge J. F. MacRae, Mayor William Elliott and Crown Attorney Alex Hall.

POST—CORFIELD

Ferns and baskets of summer flowers formed a pretty setting on Saturday, July 28th, at 1 p.m., in St. Alban's Church, Amelisburg, when Grace Catherine Letitia Corfield, of Amelisburg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Corfield, was united in marriage to Norman Miles Post, of Carrying Place, Ont., son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Post. MARIO ... in his distinctive feature about FOOD ... What's Cooking?

The monument to potatoes in Rimmlage,/Germany, is unique. Monumental are usually erected to particular rather than general mortals. If they had chosen a magnificent baked stuffed potato or a plate of magnificent sautle potatoes, they would have given the sculptor something to test his skill.

The Germans, in this case, were not celebrating all potatoes so much the fact that in this particular town potatoes were first cultivated after they had been imported from Colonial America.

When mayonnaise is mixed with cold potatoes to make salad, it makes a thick and pasty sauce. To keep the sauce smooth and creamy, add milk or light cream to the mayonnaise. As the salad stands, it absorbs parts of the sauce, and more liquid should be added if necessary.

Cold Stuffed Ham, Potato Salad Plate—Serves 4.

4 large slices boiled ham
1 1-2 cups cottage cheese
1-4 cup sour cream
1-4 cup sliced radishes
2 tablespoons finely chopped scallions
Salt — pepper
4 medium size potatoes
1-3 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons light cream or milk
1 tablespoon vinegar
1 tablespoons chopped scallions or chives
1-2 cup diced celery
1-3 teaspoon dry mustard
1 teaspoon horseradish
2 tablespoons finely chopped parsley
2 tomatoes

Mix the cottage cheese, sour cream, radishes, 2 tablespoons scallions and salt and pepper to taste. Roll the ham slices to make three cones—shaped, with one end closed. Fill the large end with the cottage cheese mixture. Keep in the refrigerator until needed.

Boil the potatoes in the skin until done. When cool enough to handle, peal the potatoes and cut into slices. Mix the mayonnaise with the cream, vinegar, 2 tablespoons scallions, celery, mustard, horseradish and parsley. Add 1 teaspoon salt or more to taste.

Mix the potatoes gently with the mayonnaise mixture. Let the potatoes marinate at least 1 hour before serving. Serve the potato salad alongside the ham on serving plates. Cut the tomatoes into wedges. Garnish plate with tomato wedges.

Red Silk Faille Suit

By FRANELLA WOOD

THE SILK FAILLE afternoon suit is always with us, and what makes this one a true fall model, an advance glimpse of 1952, is its bright red color and its velvet collar.

Anything prettier indoors, or flashing beneath a warm coat outdoors, would be hard to find on a nippy day next season. The jacket buttons snugly with jet, and it has bracelet length sleeves; the jaunty skirt maintains its crispness with a crinoline petticoat.

Guests were present from Niagara Falls, N.Y.; Chippawa, Toronto, Niagara Falls, Ont.; Haven Hill, Mass.; Bowmanville, Sudbury, Corbyville and Frankford.

Bride-Elect Recipient Of Many Fine Gifts

Last evening the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Dent, Belleville, R.R. 6, was the scene of a happy get-together when the young people of the Alliance Tabernacle, accompanied by friends, met to honor Miss Lola Dent on the occasion of her coming marriage to Mr. La Verne Vader, on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Eunice Vader, as mistress of ceremonies, provided an interesting contest in the formation of words from the word marriage. To with the result being a tie between Mrs. Harold Robinson and the Reverend Robert Gray, a few of whose 'words' being new-comers to the English language. Choruses and, a social-tete-a-tete added their interest.

Lola and Vern were given seats of honor, and presented with a basket filled to overflowing with tangible evidences of the high esteem in which both are held. After the unwrapping and straightening of knots, both most graciously expressed their appreciation for the kind wishes tendered them and for the many lovely and useful gifts.

Refreshments, served by the hostess, assisted by several willing helpers, rounded out an enjoyable evening.

Basic Lines Stay Much the Same As Last Year

London, July 31—(CP)—Britain's fashion fans can relax.

Secrets of the new fall fashions have just been released by London's Big Ten of Couture, and it seems that last year's suits and dresses are still pretty up-to-date. This will mean a lot to smart women with small budgets.

Last year's straight-skirted suits need little changing. Basic lines stay much the same as they have been these last two winters, and the length remains just below the knees.

Although there are few surprises in design, a large stock of beautiful materials give an exquisite finish and color to challenge any necessity. Design lies in good tailoring emphasized by surprise touches at pockets, waist and lapels.

Michael, designer for Lachasse, shows considerable invention in the casual elegance of suit jackets built on the lines of the "hackling" jacket. The side seams of the basque are slit so than they slide through to pockets in the skirt. In both suits and loose coats the designer uses the brigand collar—shallow at back and deeply cuffed in front.

Lachasse is the newest member of the Big Ten.

Charles Creed, noted for adding piquancy to the straightest lines, puts this year's emphasis on the skirt. He permits a little fullness while keeping the popular pencil-slim outline.

This he does in four different ways, including alternate straight and bias panels of kilting, and narrow horizontal pleating in a style he calls "venetian blind". His jackets are perversely buttoned from left to right like a man's and often have several cuffs to a sleeve and several layers to a collar.

Colors this year are dark with a lot of pewter greys and earthy browns.

SWEET YEAR

Canada's peak year for honey output was 1949 when production reached 45,145,000 pounds.

GOOD MANNERS

Vac[illegible] . . . a good time to [illegible] good impression!

Your personality . . . the sum of all the qualities that make people like you or dislike you . . . is never more revealed than when you are on vacation. Generally you leave behind you your usual fortifications . . . your home-base background, your family, your close friends. And now here you are, in new surroundings, meeting new people, having new experiences . . . and hoping to make fine and firm and lasting friendships.

What first impressions, what last and lasting impression, are you going to make on people you meet in the precious days of your two-weeks-of-so of getting away from the little-old-routine to the radiant possibility of The New?

Now vacation-time is relaxation-time. And when you relax, you will, consciously or unconsciously, reveal your real manners. If you are, by nature or training, a mannerly person, your habits and your intuitions will be on so firm a foundation that even when you do or say will be a manifestation of your courteous manners. This is an ideal conditioning of your manners . . . to tolerate no difference between the fine manners you show when you are on vacation and your manners at any other time. Then, to "be yourself" on your vacation means that you are justifiedly proud of yourself (this last, remember, the same thing as conceit) . . . proud of your achievement of doing right by your manners and manner . . . everlastingly busy trying to broaden your social experience, your understanding, the value you put on social relationships.

Vacation-places are usually places where people of various backgrounds, tastes and places are gathered. And in this concentrated atmosphere our attractive qualities are usually appreciated and given full scope, and . . . when self . . . our less attractive qualities, our lack of manners, are revealed in bold-relief, too often in grimly "bold" relief. So let your attractive and endearing qualities come out in the sun and have a fine time. And, on the other hand, keep yourself sensitized, on the alert as to what impression your less fortunate inclinations may have on other people. You may deplore the fact that your co-vacationists, or at least some of them, are . . . but they may be just discriminating, deciding if they want to include you in their post-vacation plan for friendship.

How about giving yourself a social intelligence test to see how you would rate with people you would really like to add to your way-of-life? Do you, for example, when you are introduced, say the incorrect "Pleased to meet you," when you should be saying the always-correct "How do you do" . . . graciously adding the person's name (this always makes a hit!) . . . and putting such grace and friendliness into the words that you're off to a fine start with this prologue-to-acquaintanceship?

Do you hug tightly to yourself that socially-devastating excuse "I'm so self-conscious", instead of the spirit of the other person, trying to find out and talk about his or her interests and enthusiasms? Are you shunned, or do you spend your effort trying to intrigue someone or some type which, for the moment, intrigues you? Have you carefully checked up on your good points, to make the most of them?

Do you really try to discover the good in others . . . you never outgrown the "spoiled child" plan-of-life?

And . . . are you listening? . . . lest your inclination to say kind things, appreciative things, graceful things? Or is your tongue "at unruly member", too, too inclined to say tactless, barbed things that may quickly become a boomerang against your possible popularity?

Are you pleasant (and what a pleasant word pleasant is!) to everyone you meet, or do you turn-on your charm only for members of the opposite sex?

In the things you do and say, in your manners and in your manner, in the you that so inevitably shows in your expression, are you a smug, turned-in person, or a generous-thoughted, delightful, giving-out person?

Do you have all the answers", interested only in your own opinions . . . or do you charmingly "lean out your soul to listen"?

Happy Landing into a Happy Vacation!

CHILDREN REWARDED

Allentown, Pa., July 30—(CP)—Mrs. John Kropf, 65, yearned for the modern convenience. She bought an electric refrigerator and gave her old icebox to a junkman.

Two kids playing in the junkyard opened the icebox and found $13,815 in cash, wrapped in a box.

Mrs. Kropf, flabbergasted, said her ailing 82-year-old husband had apparently hidden the money there. She awarded the children.

ADVICE to the LOVELORN

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Even at 17, one must look ahead.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 17 years old and was going steady with a boy in service. He gave me a friendship ring, but it was understood that I could go out with other fellows while he was away. I did, and wrote him every time to tell him, so other people couldn't do it before I got a chance. However, he got mad about it and wrote me mean letters that hurt me very much, and we finally broke off about eight months ago.

I still think about him constantly, though, and can't feel right when out with other boys I wrote and told him how I feel but he doesn't seem to care. Now he has another girl, but I can't believe he really loves her after the things he said to me.

I guess him more than anything in the world. Please tell me if you think he will ever come back to me and what I should do if I have to get him back myself. It means practically my whole life to me.—A.A.

Dear A.A.:

I know it is hard to look very far ahead when you are 17, and that a disappointment such as yours makes it seem as though practically your whole life were ruined. But honestly it isn't.

No one could possibly tell you whether or not this boy will want to resume his friendship with you sometime, but surely you must know, from observing the experience of your boy and girl friends, that these things happen to every one. You must have seen your friends live through them, too, and later find others of whom they became just as fond.

Believe me, you are making a big mistake to keep brooding over this boy. You should go out with other boys even though, for awhile it may not "feel right". As time goes on, it will feel more and more "right" and—if you play fair and keep going even when you'd rather stay home and indulge in your day-dreams—in six months you'll find yourself happy again.

—X.

Cut out another fellow if you can, but do it honorably

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I like a girl very much who is going steady with another fellow. I hadn't seen her for several years, and when I saw her lately, I was surprised to find how much I liked her. She will be 19 in September and I will be 18 in December. The fellow she is going with now is 19.

When I was alone with her, I asked her if I would have a chance, and she said I should try. I told her I was going to give the other fellow plenty of competition.

Do you think I should try and forget her, or start dating her again, if she will go out with me?

—X.

Dear X.:

Don't you think your last question is rather superfluous, since the girl has indicated her willingness to have you give the other fellow a run for his money? Since she feels the way she does, I see no reason at all why you shouldn't try your luck with her, but if you want to do it the honorable way, I think you should see that she makes the situation clear to this chap with whom she is now "going steady". My impression of this "going steady" business has always been that it means a boy and a girl agree not to go out with anyone else. That has always seemed to me a very foolish arrangement, since what has happened now with this girl is so likely to come about with anyone, in spite of any promise to "go steady".

So cut in on the other fellow's time if you think you can, but be sure he knows it, and don't let the girl allow him to go on thinking he is her "steady".

Redmen Defeat Kingston 8-7 in Ninth-Inning Merriwell Finish

CHIPS OFF THE SPORTS BLOCK

By GEO. H. CARVER, Sports Editor

NINTH-INNING RAZZLE-DAZZLE

For a minute or two last night, Willie Fordham could have had the City Hall; Memorial Arena; a month's vacation in Florida and a life exempting from income tax. The tall lefthander who cooled off the Kingston Leafs in a sensational ninth-inning relief job or pitching won his own game with a perfect bunt that sailed lazily for a neat one-point landing and Dickie Fits scooted for home with the winner.

While placed that bunt perfectly. He knew the Leafs infield was set for the play, but instead of "laying it down" he hoisted it in the air and it lay on the ground looking as big as a "punkin" in a cornfield.

Pat Wilson's strategy paid off. He "out-brained" Coach Stan Scrutton who gambled on loading the sacks with one out for a double play. But Willie F. promptly squelched that idea and the Redmen trotted off with a well-earned victory; one they got the hard way.

But the strategy did not all belong to Wilson. "Red" Carson dug up oldtimer and completely fooled young Mr. Rose, Leafs' lefty who started the game. "Red" crouched in the batter's box looking for a nickel he lost there last year, and Rose threw a strike past him. "Red" repeated. This time it worked. Rose promptly balked and the boys on base were promoted.

The Redmen sought an uphill battle all the way after the second innings. Trailing the most of the game they clicked with long-distance clustered-clouting to even the count and go on to win. Tonight they take on the Picton Athletics — and brethren, that should be something to see and hear. Willie Fordham will do the hurling.

GOOD FISHING?

While a lot of the boys are getting their share or part thereof of the fighting muskies, pickerel and bass, there's another brand of angling going on in the district.

This is known as the "Short Cast"; the "Whispering Wobbler"; the "Mammon Moth"; the "Spondulex Spinner" and other similar monikers. The bait has something in common. All of them have a golden lure.

* * *

Results of the under-the-table contest will be available some time next October or November when the baseball season gets under way. Then we will get the "big fellows" is as yet a matter for conjecture, but the puckist master-minds in this part of Ontario have their undergrounds working, and don't be surprised at who you see in a Belleville, Kingston, or Peterborough (two teams) apparel come whistle-looting time.

* * *

They make no bones about the "summer fishing" up around Peterborough way. The Kawartha scrivener came out flatfooted the other day with the statement that Peterborough intercede "have checked" (or should be have written "choqued") one or two of the better Belleville forwards.

"And", he goes on, "more casts will be made by both clubs (Eagles and Petes) during August. Ned Vitarelli, former fiery coach of the Peterborough Legionnaires is back in his old home habiting grounds and likely will be heard from in a hockey capacity next winter.

* * *

The Kingston Nylons, it is stated, have successfully angled for the Redmen's former goalie Jim Irvine, and who knows what lines have been thrown out and what "hauls" will be made by deadline time.

* * *

Right now the lines with the golden lures are dangling temptingly in all sections. There is an ominous silence in Redmen circles, even the grapevine has "clammed up". But we don't imagine any alfalfa is sprouting between the pedal digits of the powers-that-be, or is it?

WHAT GIVES?

What goes on in the Commercial Softball League merry-go-round? Howe and Hagerman failed to field a complete squad on Saturday night, due, it was stated, to team members either on vacation, working or playing baseball. No schedule of further dates has been received as yet, so we're more or less in the dark as to what is happening in the "A" Section. Meantime the "AA" buckaroos roll merrily onward and tonight the Belleville Motors take on the Cleaner Combines, so the schedule says.

* * *

"Canada's Largest and Richest Amateur Golf Tournament" (Yuk, what these press agents won't think up) that's what we're advertising this year," boasts an official of the forthcoming annual Kawartha Lakes 54 Hole Amateur Golf Tournament.

The tournament is slated for August 4-5-6, it says here, at the Kawartha Golf Club with prizes totalling $1,500, plus the beautiful Lord Calvert Trophy as top award. The event, it is claimed, will attract the cream or Ontario and Quebec's golfing crop. It is expected last year's entry list of 263 will be topped.

GOOD SHOW!.

One of the most scientific and top-speed mat classics seen in many months is expected when Whipper Billy Watson defends his British Empire heavyweight wrestling crown against Mike "The Body" Sharpe on Friday night in the feature wrestling match in the ring at the Memorial Arena.

While both Watson and Sharpe have established sterling records as fearless, clean matmen, the fact remains that these two opponents are sure to produce a hard-fought an encounter as any of the bitter mat rivals, because of the importance of the title which will be at stake. It is Whipper's burning ambition to retain the empire title and go on to the championship ranks. Mike Sharpe, on the other hand, has been in pursuit of the Empire title for a long time and declares he's not going to miss this chance of clinching it once and for all.

Lee Henning, of Iowa, will meet Ben Sharpe, Mike's brother, in the semi-final. George Scott and Dave Simms will clash in the first event.

Fordham's Perfect Pop-Bunt With Bags Full o' Belleville Starts Winning Squeeze Play

By GEO. H. CARVER
Sports Editor

A perfect bases-loaded squeeze play in the last half of the ninth inning broke a seven-all deadlock and gave the Redmen an 8-7 victory over Kingston Dianey Leafs here last night.

The win gave the Redshirts a full-game margin over the Leafs and strengthened their hold on third place in the Central Ontario League standing.

Coaches Pat Wilson of the Redmen and Stan Scrutton of the Leafs hooked up in a duel of strategy in the ninth and the Redmen mentor sided and abetted by the sparkling play of pitcher Willie Fordham, emerged victorious.

The teams were stalemated going into the final inning and after Dick Fitzpatrick poled out a neat single to start the heat, Coach Scrutton decided to walk Red Carson. Gilmore went out on an infield grounder and again Scrutton signalled to pass Tom Buchanan, leading the base.

Fordham Comes Through

Wilson decided to gamble on a squeeze play. Fordham strode to the plate and as the Kingston infield charged forward lifted a perfect pop over the charging third baseman Rank and "Fitz" galloped home with the million-dollar run.

Fordham with an outstanding display of relief hurling won his own game and was credited with the win. He went in for a pinch-hitter in the ninth struck out Lenard and Carson on seven pitched balls and caused Carnegie to ground weakly to the mound.

It was an uphill battle for the Redmen all the way and only once prior to the ninth did they hold the lead. They scored one in the first off no hits and the Leafs came back with singles in the second, third and fourth. The Reds knotted the count in the fourth off consecutive singles by Carson, Gilmore and Buchanan and after the Leafs grabbed a single in the fifth scored another brace off Huck Reeves towering triple. Tom Buchanan's double and Vern Goyer's single to share a 5-4 lead.

Three in Seventh

Kingston roared back with three in the seventh to take a 7-5 margin but the Reds fighting back tied it up in the eighth off a walk, Goyer's three-base smash to right field and Tom Buchanan's third hit of the game.

Willie Fordham set the Leafs down in order in the top of the ninth and then came the "battle of the wits."

Rose, a lefthander started for the Leafs but lasted only two-thirds of an inning. He gave up three walks, a hit-by-pitcher for a lone run and was yanked in favor of Herring, a righthander.

Harry went the route for the Leafs giving up seven hits, three of them extra bases, walking six and whiffing a like number.

Barry Bower opened the show for the Redmen and lasted till the seventh when with two out he was removed in favor of "Cuffer" Noakes. Bower toiled through hard way and had difficulty in every inning he worked. He gave up 10 hits for all the Kingston runs, whiffed three and struck out four.

Cuffer to the Rescue

The "Cuffer" came in and retired the side. He gave up no hits for one and one-third innings and was removed for Geary, a pinch-hitter in the eighth. Willie Fordham came in for the ninth chuckger and sent the Leafs down one-two-three whiffing two.

Tom Buchanan led the Reds hit parade with a double and two singles. Vern Goyer drove out a triple and single and Huck Reeves also blasted out a three-baser. Dick Fitzpatrick, Carson and Fordham accounted for the remainder.

While, Rank and Lenard drove out a brace of singles each for the losers with Gilmore, Ferguson, Allan and Carnegie getting "oner's."

A couple of rhubarbs occurred at the plate when the Reds strongly protested Umpire Nicholls' "out" call for Goyer who was thumbed down after stealing home. Kingston "heeled" when Rank who pilfered the plate was sent back to third after the umps declared the batter had been hit by the pitcher.

Brantford Sox Establish Record Win 19 Straight

(By The Canadian Press)

An Intercounty Baseball League record was set last night at Brantford when the Red Sox gained their 19th straight victory on a home diamond.

Red Sox hurler Bill Gilles went the route to hand third-place Guelph Maple Leafs a 11-5 defeat. Gilles fanned 11 batters, six straight in the second and third innings, to equal the season's record set by Bill Slack of London Majors.

Six runs were batted in for the Red Sox by Clifford who homered twice in four trips to the plate. Gerry Wilson hit three for four.

Kitchener Legionnaires climbed back into fifth place in the league by defeating Waterloo Tigers 4-3. The Legionnaires lead their Twin City rivals by only a half game. Both have a record of 16 victories against 21 defeats.

Kitchener scored the winning run in the top of the ninth when playing manager Don Gallinger hit a ground ball to shortstop, scoring Freddie Thomas from second. Thomas hit a triple and a double for the winners in four trips to the plate.

Galt Terriers used four pitchers in subduing last place St. Thomas Legion 2-1 at Galt. Manager Johnny Panek scored the Legion run by blasting a homer over the right field fence in the fourth inning.

Bob Lewis went all the way for the Legion. Auggie Mormino got the nod for the Terriers in favor of Ross Patton after issuing three walks in a row in the fifth inning. One pitch by Patton was smashed into a double play to Ted Mesquita and Barry in the ninth.

In an Viaduct Major Baseball League game at Oshawa, Merchants defeated Toronto Kingsway Lumber 12-2. The Merchants scored all three runs in the bottom of the ninth to give the game a Hollywood ending. Buzzer Malloy of Kingsway and Jim Rogers of the Merchants were chased from the field when they started throwing fists in the fifth frame.

Gene Tunney resigned the world heavyweight boxing championship and retired from the ring 23 years ago today, a few days after he had knocked out Tom Heeney in 11 rounds at Yankee Stadium in New York. Sports Roundup

By MURRAY ROSE
(For Hugh Fullerton, Jr.)

New York, July 31—(AP) — Don't be surprised if Jersey Joe Walcott doesn't defend his heavyweight crown until next year, a long rest . . . then Jersey Joe's brain trust would like to clean up financially before the ancient warrior steps into the ring with his title on the line. . . Walcott can rake in the dough with television appearances, endorsements, refereeing shots, and maybe a movie on his poverty-to-riches career.

How many more schools will be drawn into the basketball scandal, the blackest chapter in American college sports history . . . District Attorney Frank Hogan of New York won't say but rumor has it that he has some more up his sleeve but will spread them out over a period of time. . . Will some of them pop up in October, close to election time?

'Yankee Clipper' Pulls Boner But Mates Edge Tigers 5-4 Cubs Nip Giants; Cards Win

By JOE REICHLER
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

For one of the few times since he came up to New York in 1936, Joe DiMaggio last night felt like digging a hole in Yankee Stadium and diving into it. The ofttimes shyhaired, reorganized ice for his ability to do the right thing at the right time, really pulled a dilly.

Fortunately for him, the Yankees went on to win — beating Detroit Tigers 5-4 — to minimize Di-Maggio's mental lapse. The victory fortressed the Yanks' first - place margin to 2½ games over the idle Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox.

The score was tied at 2-2 when the Tigers came to bat in the 8th. Doubles by Gerry Priddy and George Kell with one out put the Tigers in front 3-2. Steve Souchock filled deep to DiMaggio. Kell tagged up and headed for third.

Joe Heads for Dugout

DiMaggio made no attempt to head him off. Instead he began to jog toward the Yankee dugout with the ball in his right hand. Dick Bartell, alert Tiger third baseman, yelled Kell back to second. Joe finally understood why his mates were yelling and, waving the ball. But by then it was too late. Kell had scored the second run of the inning.

"I thought it was the third out," explained the embarrassed Yankee Clipper later.

But it was DiMaggio's ninth-inning hit that gave the Yanks the winning run for the Yankees. With runners on second and third with two outs, Joe lashed a single to right. That brought in Joe Collins with the tie-breaking run.

Collins also had got on via a blooper. With two away, he tapped a short fly that fell for a double. Bobby Brown walked to bring up DiMaggio.

Ed Lopat, although raked for 10 hits, went the distance to register his 13th victory. He has lost six. Virgil Trucks was the loser. He had replaced starter Fred Hutchinson in the eighth.

Giants Lose Ground

Hoot Evers collected a single, triple and homer for Detroit.

While the American League's activity was limited to one game, every team but Brooklyn and Pittsburgh was active in the National.

An eighth inning double by Roy Smalley drove in the tying and winning runs as Chicago Cubs whipped New York Giants 7-6. The Cub shortstop batted in five runs in all. His homer in the second came with two on. The Giants had fought back to go ahead 5-3 in the top of the eighth on Bobby Thomson's three-run homer.

Dutch Leonard was credited with his 10th victory in relief. George Spencer was the loser.

The loss dropped the Giants 9½ behind the leading Dodgers.

A two-run, eighth-inning rally, climaxed by Del Rice's double, gave St. Louis Cardinals a 3-2 victory over Boston Braves and boosted the Red Birds into a 3rd-place tie with Philadelphia Phils.

Hal Rice's single, a sacrifice and another single by Solly Hemus tied the score before Rice's game-winning two-bagger off loser Vern Bickford. Cliff Chambers went the route for his seventh victory.

Cincinnati Reds spotted the Phils a 5-0 lead and roared back to win 6-5 in a ninth - inning single by Bobby Adams and a triple by Connie Ryan. Jim Konstanty was the victim in relief.

Bakelite Crush Alemite 20-11 Gain 2nd Place

In an error-riddled slugfest at the Alemite Field last evening Bakelite outlasted Stewart Warner to take a weird 20-11 decision in eight innings.

The win left Bakelite tied for second place with Belleville Motor Car in the AA standings while Stewart Warner sank deeper into the league basement.

Bakelite jumped into a seven-run lead in the first inning on five hits, three walks, and four errors. Ray Jones' home run to left field was the big blow in the rally.

Stewart Warner used two wallys and two hits to score twice in their half of the first.

Bakelite kept piling up a lead as they gathered in three more tallies in the second on Lemon's homer. They were held off in the next two frames but came up with three more in the fifth on two errors, a walk, and two hits.

Alemite meanwhile ran in two runs in the fourth on a walk and Jim Watson's home run to left field. They added seven more in the fifth on three walks, six hits and three errors to leave a fifth inning score of 13-11.

Bakelite, held off in the sixth, came up with two runs in the seventh and five more in the eighth with pitcher Bob Green's homer to left field being the clincher.

Green went the route for Bakelite walking 11, striking out 13, and giving up 10 hits for 11 runs. Three Page and George Hammett shuttled on and off the Alemite mound with Hammett retiring the last two outs in the 8th inning and then coming in again with one out in the fifth to go the rest of the way.

Errors were too numerous to mention.

Lawn, with a homer and three singles in six appearances, and Peever, with a double and two singles in five tries led Bakelite's batting attack.

Lineups:

Bakelite: Littlejohn 3b; Graham ss; Powere 1b; Cousins c; Green p; Lawn rf; Lucas lf; Peever cf; G. Burley 2b.

Alemite: Bertrim cf; Upper c; Hammett 3b; Lewis ss; Tetworth 1b; Boyle 2b; Shaw rf; Watson lf, Page p, 2b.

Leafs, Royals Split Twin Bill, Cubs Check Chiefs

(By The Associated Press)

Bill (Spec) Padget is a big winner for a last-place club.

The 26-year-old righthander turned in his 12th victory last night as he pitched Springfield Cubs to a 3-1 victory over the third-place Syracuse Chiefs.

Padgett checked the Chiefs on eight hits and blanked them after the first inning. Gene Hooks drove in two Springfield runs on a pair of singles.

The setback prevented the Chiefs from taking over second place from Buffalo Bisons who dropped a 3-1 decision to Ottawa Giants.

Gerry (Red) Fahr stopped the Bisons on six hits to post his second victory without a loss since arriving from Cleveland.

To m(No-Hit) Simpson blanked the Giants until the sixth inning when Fred Gerken socked a two-run homer to win the game.

Montreal's league-leading Royals split a doubleheader with Toronto Maple Leafs, winning the first game 7-5 but losing the second 3-1.

The Royals clinched the opener with a six-ruf blast in the second inning, including home runs by Johnny Hetki and Jim Russell. Bob Alexander started and gained credit for his 12th victory.

Cliff Fannin stopped the Royals on seven hits in the second game. Fannin had a shutout bid in the three-run Toronto rally in the third.

Baltimore Orioles edged Rochester Red Wings 9-8 in 10 innings. Jim Gellela tripled home Johnny Mayo with two out to break up the game. Marv Rickert of the Orioles sent the game into overtime with a two-run homer in the top of the ninth. The blow was Rickert's 21st.

London Paper May Face Suit By Sugar Ray

London, July 31—(Reuters) — Sugar Ray Robinson, en route back to the United States, today threatened to sue Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, Robinson said the paper misquoted him.

In a story from Paris last Friday, the paper reported that the former ,,world middleweight champion had said he would hang up his gloves after his return flight in New York Sept. 12 with Britain's Randolph Turpin. Turpin captured Robinson's crown here earlier this month.

Robinson said in cable from the liner Liberte to the Express:

"I did not make any such statement to anyone. It is an unmitigated lie. Unless your denial of that story receives just as much prominence in your paper, I shall surely take you to court."

Robinson added that he did not intend to quit boxing for at least two years.

College Cage Star Offered $10,000 Basketball 'Fix'

New York, July 31—(AP)—A 33-year-old fruit dealer has been accused by the district attorney's office of attempting to fix the National Collegiate championship basketball game between C. C. N. Y. and Bradley March 28, 1950.

James O'Leary, secretary to District Attorney Frank S. Hogan said today that Jack Rubenstein was one of a group who offered Gene Melchiorre, Bradley all-American cage star, $10,000 if he would throw the title game with C. C. N. Y.

Melchiorre told the district attorney he refused to accept the bribe. City College beat Bradley 71-68 at Madison Square Garden.

At the same time, Hogan's office disclosed that Jack (Zip) West, wanted by police in connection with the fixing of Toledo and Bradley games, still was at large today.

The district attorney's office described Rubinstein as an associate of West. Rubinstein was arrested late yesterday and was formally booked on charges of bribery and conspiracy early today.

17-Year-Old Girl Replaces Veteran On Golf Team

Edmonton, July 31— (CP) — A slim, dark-haired 17-year-old is on her way to Quebec today to play against the best women golfers in Canada.

Rae Milligan, from Jasper, Alta., is a member of the Alberta team for the women's inter-provincial team championships in Quebec Thursday. She was chosen to replace Mrs. R. Adams of Calgary who voluntarily stepped down to allow the youthful golfer to add strength to the team.

Rae played in her first Alberta tournament — the second in her life—last week. The muscular Miss emerged Alberta women's golf champion. She romped to easy wins in the preliminary rounds and then came through with an impressive 8 and 6 victory over defending titlist Mrs. A. K. Snell of Edmonton in a 36-hole final.

Mrs. Adams, in a sporting gesture, didn't wait until next year when the provincial champion, for the first time, will automatically get a spot on the inter-provincial team. The Calgary woman qualified for the team with her scores in 10 test matches during the summer, in which Rae did not take part.

Miss Milligan became the second 17-year-old to win a provincial women's championship this year and the youngest person ever to win the Alberta title. Last month at Toronto, pert, freckle-faced Marlene Stewart of Scarboro Point, near Niagara Falls, romped to the Ontario women's championship.

Applies for Job Managing Browns

Harlingen, Tex., July 31—(AP)—Rollie Hemsley, minor league "manager of the year" last season, last night said he had "formally applied" for the job of managing St. Louis Browns.

Hemsley, a former major league star, now is managing the Texas City Texans in the class B Gulf Coast League.

Lacrosse

(By The Canadian Press)

The home grounds of Mimico Mountaineers and Toronto West Yorks are separated by only a few miles but the two teams acted like anything but good neighbors in their Ontario Lacrosse Association senior game last night.

Two fights, four major penalties and much misconduct provided some fist-swinging diversion as the Mounties defeated the visiting West Yorks 17-8.

Frank King of Toronto and Don McPhail started the brawling in the first quarter and got the first two majors. Then King, who suffered a cut on his left cheek in the fight, received a match misconduct for attacking McPhail in the penalty box.

Mimico's Chuck Simpson and Toronto's Jack Howse topped off the fighting with two more majors in the third quarter.

When it came to lacrosse, Ken Dixon with four goals for Mimico, and Denny Peterson with three, provided the best dishing.

At Hamilton, meanwhile, the Tigers took over sole possession of second place by beating fifth-place Brampton Excelsiors 12-8.

Two-Year-Old Nudges History At Thorncliffe

Thorncliffe Raceway, Toronto, July 31—(CP)—Bobby Herbert, a two-year-old colt making harness-racing history at Thorncliffe Raceway Monday afternoon when he paced a mile in 2.10 4/5—only 1/5 second off the all-time Canadian record for two-year-olds.

Bobby Herbert was bred and is owned by William H. Herbert and son, of London, Ont. He was sired by Alpa Hal and his dam, Jean Herbert, is a full-sister to Oro G. Herbert, which established the mile record of 2.04 4/5 at Thorncliffe a year ago.

In his first start at Thorncliffe on July 18, Bobby Herbert raced in 2.16 winning easily from a field of cheap pacers. On Monday afternoon he was racing against a field of older horses and romped home to a ridiculously easy win.

Secondary highlight of the day was the driving of Jack Mehlenbacher, Detroit, who moves up to National Hockey League officiating circles next winter. Mehlenbacher scored a double as he won with Irene Frisco and Ima Lady. Both horses made records for themselves over the fast Thorncliffe strip. Irene Frisco paced the mile in 2.10 1/5 and Ima Lady went the distance in 2.12 1/5.

Yankee Mermaids Enter CNE Swim

Toronto, July 31—(CP)—Two leading American women marathon swimmers will race in the three-mile event at the Canadian National Exhibition here next month.

George Duthie, C. N. E. sports director, said Monday he has received an application from Joyce Macrae Hawrylak, 27-year-old swimming instructor of San Francisco, who has set 10 U. S. distance records.

She is expected to give some tough competition to Bernice (Gertie) Gandall of Adahsla, O., who has won nearly the last four years.

'Whoa There, Dobbin' The Missus is Driving

Toronto, July 31 (CP) — The ladies are edging the horses out of the limelight at Thorncliffe Raceway.

Today's feature event is exclusively for lady-drivers.

Six ladies will be wielding the whips in the race, with Mrs. Grace Greig of Toronto picked by the track handicapper to win with Peter Aubrey.

In addition to the purse for the race, a special purse of $100 has been posted for the drivers.

Dodgers Recall 'Bad Boy' Palica

Pittsburgh, July 31 (AP) — Manager Charlie Dressen of Brooklyn Dodgers said Monday pitcher Erv Palica will rejoin the team in Pittsburgh today.

Palica, 23-year-old righthander, has been working out privately in Brooklyn since he pitched in the exhibition game against Philadelphia Athletics at Copperstown, N.Y., July 23.

Dressen called Palica a "gutless kid who doesn't belong in the majors" after a 13-12 loss to the last-place Pittsburgh Pirates several weeks ago. He said Palica would pitch nothing but exhibitions until he shows "he's ready to throw the way he should."

When you monkey around with redoubles, you must know there are two kinds. One redoubles asks partner to take you out. The other is a notice to partner that he should let it alone.

The laws of bridge will not permit you to redouble your own or your partner's double. The only double you can redouble is that of an opponent. So, it is always a redouble of a bid by your own side.

South opened with a bid of one spade when he held this hand:

♠Q-7 5 4
♥K J 9
♦A K
♣J 10 8 6

West passed. North responded with a bid of one heart. East doubled. Since west has not yet bid, such a double is for takeout. It asks west to bid something if south passes.

South, however, redoubled. Such a redouble asks north to leave it alone. It is a redouble that asserts with assurance that the one no-trump bid by north can be made with the values he holds.

Here the redouble is used in its generally accepted meaning. It is a way of saying to partner: "Regardless of what the opponents think they can do to us, we can make this bid."

There are times when a redouble does not mean that. It means, "I somewhat has 'is. "Take me out of this redouble just as if it was a takeout double." How does partner know which is which?

If partner has not yet bid and the bid is not more than three in a suit or more than one no-trump, a double made at the first opportunity is for takeout. So is a redouble.

If partner has already bid, a double or any bid at any time asks partner to pass. So does a redouble. Even if you had just read a book of the subject, logic would tell you this here.'

North has already bid and told what he had. South would have no excuse to force him to bid again. Obviously, he is requested to pass.

A wise player knows when to keep his mouth shut.

CAMPBELLFORD

Woman, 82, Dies Under Hayrake On Son's Farm

Campbellford (Special) — An 82-year-old woman died under a hayrake here Monday afternoon. Mrs. Christena Watson, visiting with her son, Harry, on the seventh concession of Seymour Township, either suffered a fainting spell and fell under the rake, or who hit by it as she walked along the lane beside her son's farm home. The tractor-rake combination was owned and driven b y John I. R. Kerr, who had been gathering hay on the Watson farm.

The woman had returned to the farm on Sunday afternoon after visiting with a sister in the district. When Kerr first saw the woman, she was standing at the back of the house as he went from the barn to the hayfield. He waved to her and went on to the field.

After he picked up his load, and was proceeding back to the barn, he noticed a portion of the woman's dress sticking out from the bottom of the rake. He stopped the machine and called his brother, Ralph Kerr, also working on the farm, and the woman's son, Harry Watson. The three men lifted the rake off Mrs. Watson. She died soon after. Investigating police have been unable to determine whether or not the woman suffered a fainting spell. Coroner Dr. F. M. Dewar said that Mrs. Watson had died from shock and internal injuries. No inquest will be held.

The farm is located about three miles northeast of Campbellford. Ontario provincial police constable Donald W. Erskine investigated.

Kerr, with his tractor and rake, had been employed on the Watson farm for about a week.

BANCROFT

Women Conduct Farmer's Market For Tourists

Bancroft — Although Bancroft has not a regular farmers' market of the type found in the larger towns and cities of the province it now has a Saturday tourists' market, sponsored by the evening auxiliary of St. Paul's United Church.

This new venture sells garden vegetables and home baking to tourists and residents from a stand on the grounds of the church property beside the community hall.

To date weekly activities on the past four Saturdays have been in the neighborhood of sixty dollars per market day so the ladies of the church body intend to continue for the summer months.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Dark Man, Top British Film"

"The Dark Man", starring Maxwell Reed, Natasha Parry and Edward Underdown, is now playing at the Odeon McCarthy theatre.

This is not just another murder melodrama but a cleverly directed, brilliantly observed and excellently told tale that cannot fail to arrest and retain attention. Gerald Dell has the perceptive mind of the novelist and the observation of the reporter and has most successfully welded the two into an entertainment that interests, enthralls and thrills in exciting succession. Director Dell appreciates that detail can make or mar an impression and has shown great skill in implying much by brief touches that serve to illumine the whole. An original opening secures interest and the plot unfolds with such impetus that the fact that the murderer's identity is no secret seems to enhance rather than to lessen the mounting heights. The background or a seaside town is well drawn and although there is comparatively little scope for acting in the full meaning, the players are recognizable types and their work is quietly effective. Touches of romance and humour dress the development, the action accelerates as it nears its climax, which, while rather overdrawn, is splendidly detailed and consistently exciting.

Edward Underdown plays the detective competently and his personality is of the type suited to heroic action. Natasha Parry is charming as the girl and Maxwell Reed suitably sinister as the murderer. Minor roles are well presented and William Hartnell has at least one memorable explosive moment.

Movie Column

By HOWARD C. HEYN

Hollywood, July 31. (AP)—Many an elegant dwelling goes begging these days, right in the heart of the hills made famous by movie millions.

Know why? No TV.

Those same picture waves just won't hurdle barriers like radio will, And people rich enough to live in such neighborhoods won't buy where television reception is bad.

It's getting to be quite a serious problem, one promising to affect property values.

Most real estate men, traditionally talkative, are stricken suddenly dumb upon mention of the subject.

But some of the most luxurious residential sections—deep in canyons north of Beverley Hills and Westwood—get no television at all.

One of the few property salesmen willing to discuss the matter (anonymously) says television has become his much of a factor.

"If you told a prospect that TV reception was bad, you'd never sell the house.

Television engineers are fairly certain that reception ultimately will be made possible in canyons and on nearly all hillsides, by use of reflectors and perhaps booster antennae. But this will take time, a lot of money and more research.

AT THE DRIVE-IN

TEA FOR TWO

Starring Doris Day and Gordon MacRae

Not knowing her well-meaning guardian has lost all her money, Doris Day plans to finance and star in a musical during the early days in 1929. Complications arise in the persons of two other actresses, both of whom have been promised leads by the show's promoter. However, Singer-composer Jimmy Smith (Gordon MacRae) is in love with Doris and refuses to sing his songs. Bill Goodwin, Doris' lawyer, arrives with the news that Doris' money is gone and the show is doomed. But five Arden, Doris' secretary, takes Goodwin, who still has money, auto riding and returns with a new financier. Goodwin's production opens successfully with Doris singing the tunes of her husband-to-be, including "Tea for Two".

TWO ARRESTED

Tokyo, July 26, (AP)—Two Japanese police, apparently part of a group protesting Russian detention of Japanese prisoners of war, tonight leaped in front of an automobile taking Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway to his home. The Supreme Commander's automobile swerved to avoid them. Police arrested the two.

Your Individual Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

For Wednesday, August 1

March 21 to April 20—(Aries)—Sensible caution and preparedness stressed. You may not make very extensive gains or advancement but can accomplish something in your special duties and that is indeed worth while.

April 21 to May 20—(Taurus)—Same is true for all of us today, to be a little more patient about details and preparations to avoid needless errors, having to redo or retrace steps. But don't worry, keep going.

May 21 to June 21—(Gemini)—You may be just as keen as ever today but take time to think and plan before going ahead in any important matter. It can save time, money, extra work. Discuss (calmly) when necessary.

June 22 to July 23—(Cancer)—All pettishness, indulging harmful moods out of order. Your duties and any extra responsibilities need not only calm management but clearness of vision. Aim for both and more.

July 24 to August 23—(Leo)—No unfavorable rays in your immediate sector but neither is there any show of extra help, so much be up to your good natured ability and common sense as to how much you achieve today.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — Can be ideal day for little items, things that often seem unimportant but one day prove helpful, almost necessary, in completing some big task or fill in to make a day more pleasant. Think!

September 24 to October 23—(Libra)—Clear something in day's schedule. How urgent the speed or energy necessary to complete matters? These will have to determine just how hard you should operate. And do it serenely.

October 24 to November 22 — (Scorpio) — Saturn about only planet in favorable aspect today. Practical and business ventures and difficult or laborious useful work are sponsored. Extra caution urged in other matters.

November 23 to December 22— (Sagittarius) — Heed advice to Scorpio and be sensibly careful in financial deals, spending generally. Your own good judgment best aid if you exercise it properly. Moderation a must.

December 23 to January 21— (Capricorn)—You are most favored of all of us today yet are cautioned not to go to extremes or work too hard or unevenly lest you upset what can be profitable rat least productive period.

January 22 to February 20— (Aquarius)—Shy away from persons and places that could lead you from good intentions, rightful duties. Don't fuss to get too much done but conscientiously stick at the urgent things. You'll gain.

February 21 to March 20— (Pisces)—Calmness, smart management of necessary matters, plus proper use of your imagination can help achieve many favorable results. Have incentive, help others to work for benefits. YOU BORN TODAY: Kindly, pleasing, usually generous. May also tend toward egotism if not careful. Misfortune may not deter your ambition—as a rule, you will try and try again, even venture to new fields for success. You have great salesmanship qualities, should use them (tactfully, of course) in whatver your occupation. Don't be averse to sound advice, helpful suggestions, we can always add to our knowledge, improve our ways and quality of work. Pray daily for the proper attitude and know that God will help if we seek His aid.

STIRLING

L.O.L. Lodges Jointly Honor Grand Master

Stirling — On Friday evening members of Springbrook L.O.L. 648 and Stirling Lodge No. 110 with their ladies held a special meeting in honor of Brother Fred Bateman of Springbrook and at that time Brother W. Carson conducted the initiation ceremony.

Fred's father and five brothers, all members of Springbrook, were present for this initiation ceremony.

Several years ago Brother Bateman moved from Rawdon township to Stirling where he has conducted a ladies' wear store and since after taking up residence in town, he took out a dual membership in Stirling L.O.L. No. 110.

His father, the late John Bateman and one brother, Frank, are deceased.

Recently Married

Brother Fred Bateman has been an ardent and enthusiastic member of both lodges. He rarely misses a meeting and is a living example of Christianity. He attends St. Paul's United Church and for years has had a class in his church services in the year to his credit and often has more than that. He is a firm believer in supporting all good Protestant ideas and his promotion to this signal honor of Grand Master of Ontario East is well-merited.

Bro. Murray Bateman, Master of Springbrook Lodge and Bro. Sid Demorest, Master of Stirling Lodge, arranged this special meeting and a large number were in attendance from both lodges as well as several visitors.

The program was rounded over by Bro. Wilfred Spencer, who spoke briefly. A sing-song followed with Mrs. John McKeown as pianist. Brother Bill Reynolds sang "The Lord's Prayer," as this prayer is used at all meetings and later he contributed a humorous solo.

Instrumental numbers, piano and violin, were rendered by Miss Eileen Cooke and Mr. Phil Beaudrie.

Brother Phil Carr delighted with three readings of interest.

Mr. K. P. Mayhew contributed a couple of solos with guitar accompaniment.

Special Address

Brother William Cottarel, Marmora, gave a special address on the theme, "What constitutes a good Orangeman?" In his various remarks, he pointed with pride to the honors he had held and filled the various obligations of the order so nobly during the best of years.

Brief remarks were given by Messrs. George Thompson, Springbrook, ex-warden of the county; Bill Barlow, Bonarlaw, clerk of Rawdon township; Harry Morrow, Deputy Reeve, Sidney; William Anderson and Phil Carr of Stirling Lodge and Dave Cotton, past master of Springbrook.

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman were given seats of honor on the platform after which the address of appreciation was read by Rev. A. H. Bean, Deputy Grand Chaplain, on behalf of the two lodges.

Brother Murray Bateman presented Mrs. Fred Bateman with a dozen red roses and Brother Sid Demorest presented Brother Bateman with a well-filled purse.

Mr. and Mrs. Bateman both graciously replied to this special honor bestowed upon them and thanked one and all for their great kindness.

The rendition of "Jolly Good Fellows" and the National Anthem closed an evening of special significance to members of the older.

Refreshments were served in the dining hall and a social hour of fellowship enjoyed.

RAWDON

Appointments Enjoy Lawn Social

Rawdon — On Friday evening despite the cold spells of the weatherman, a successful lawn social was held at the school grounds at Wallace's, sponsored by the committee appointed to look after the Rawdon United Church parsonage, with about 200 adults and 90 children in attendance. There was a short programme of recitation from the three appointments, Bethel, Wellman's and Mount Pleasant, with over 60 people from the latter communities. There were also guests from Burnbrae, Campbellford, Trenton and Belleville and all enjoyed a social chat with old friends.

Nice Booths

The booths were nicely decorated for the occasion with crepe paper streamers and bouquets of summer blooms.

The Wellmans young folk convened the fish pond which was a source for all the children.

The Mount Pleasant group had no trouble selling their pretty aprons at a quarter and realized over $2.

The Bethel ladies did a good business selling homemade candy and made over $11.

A mixed group sold confectionery, soft drinks and double dips of ice cream.

A number of the ladies arranged the plates with assortment, cake and a piece of pie, but owing to the pie scarcity, several ate their lunch minus the pie.

About 9.30 Mr. Orno Sharp acted as chairman (in the pastor, Rev. R. R. Bonsteel was attending Oak Lake Summer Camp.) Mr. Sharp spoke of the enjoyable evening when folks of the three appointments could gather for a evening of fellowship. Wellman orchestra contributed a couple of numbers.

Enjoyable Music

Several members of Tweed Salvation Army contributed a variety of numbers, vocal and instrumental. Mr. Everett Maybee, Wellmans, delighted with his piano accordion. Mr. Will Jeffs, Mount Pleasant, sang, giving her own guitar accompaniment. Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Broadworth sang. Mr. Gerald Taylor of Burnbrae and Miss Barbara Mikkie-John, of Springbrook, contributed piano music as a duet.

Miss Iva Scott (piano) and her brother, George (violin) delighted with musical selections.

At the close of the program, a vote of thanks was tendered to artists on the program.

Rawdon — Pauline and Jimmy Johnson, Mount Pleasant, are holidaying with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Johnson at Springbrook.

John and Gordon Royle are visiting their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Brady.

A large number of Rawdon Orangemen and their wives, attended the garden party Friday evening at Springbrook in honor of Brother Fred Bateman recently elected Grand Master of Ontario East and Mrs. Bateman. The honored couple were the recipients of a purse or money and a bouquet of red roses.

Miss Marion Fox, Foxboro, is visiting her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Doc Johnson, Mount Pleasant.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Johnston were honored guests at the home of their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Andrews.

Rawdon — Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Osborne Smith, Mount Pleasant.

Several neighbors gathered at the home of Mr. Murray Johnston on Wednesday and harvested his wheat.

Threshing is the order of the day and on several concessions the farmers are busy with their wheat. Only a few weeks ago it was seed-time and now the harvest is here with the grain being garnered in the granaries.

Mrs. Arthur Phillips, who has been convalescing for several weeks at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Percy Brooks, Carmen, was moved to her new home in Belleville on Wednesday. Her sister, Mrs. M. Delauney, plans to return to her home in Florida on Wednesday, August 1st, after spending several weeks at Carmen caring for her sister during her illness.

Miss Gertrude McMullen, of Belleville, spent her holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John A. McMullen, fifth concession.

Eighteen members of the Morrison clan enjoyed the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. John Morrison at Papineau Lake.

The group included Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Smith, Eleanor, Roger and Kenneth, Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hoard and family and others from Rawdon.

Mrs. John A. McMullen and daughter Gertrude and Mrs. Thomas Andrews, spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Clarence Reid, Ivanhoe.

Several farmers in Rawdon have lost valuable cows due to bloating. On one concession five nearby farmers each lost one of their best animals.

Mrs. M. Delauney, Florida, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Sid Williams spent Wednesday with his mother, Mrs. George Williams and his aunt, at Trenton.

For lasting beauty and freedom of repairs or expenses from fire, weather and wear, you're safe in choosing J-M Durabestos Shingles. ASBESTOS in action

Back in the 1870's a man of his vision saw miraculous possibilities in the practically indestructible mineral asbestos. He visualized fireproof building materials and insulation of every kind. He saw packings and brake linings that would resist burning friction.

He was H. W. Johns, co-founder of Johns-Manville. Today, many of his ideas have been achieved and even surpassed thanks to modern research. In the transportation field alone, for example — speedy ships, giant locomotives, fast planes, heavy trucks and automobiles, all depend on asbestos. Yes, the magic mineral plays an important role in our modern age!

THE FORM DIVINE

BY HILDEGARDE DOLSON

Along the day Arthur had reminded himself that he wasn't going to take this lying down. He'd pay Lucilla back. He'd show her a thing or two. He dimmed any plans involving Miss Nitz. It was too much like a Faith Baldwin serial to take another step next to dinner. But who? It was appalling the way he'd lost touch. If he wasn't going home for dinner, he'd have to let Grace know. At one minute of 6, he phoned the apartment. "Er—uh—Greta, I guess I won't be home for dinner."

"Okay," Greta said.

He was the only passenger in the elevator until, two floors down, a pretty young model from the agency got into the car. Arthur stared with new interest; her black hair was cut rather like Lucilla's and their mouths might have been painted on identical stencils. If he said, "Working hard today?" and they got to talking, then they'd walk out of the building together . . . and he could say, "I'm going across the street for a drink. How about joining me?" Then after a couple of drinks, they'd eat . . .

It was all so simple a line of progression in his head that he was baffled when the words wouldn't come out. The elevator, a local, seemed to be descending at furious speed. At the second floor, Arthur said desperately, more to the operator, "It's been hot today."

"Only it," the boy said. "Wait'll July."

The girl said nothing. Arthur walked out of the building a few paces behind her, but now the idea of asking her to have a drink was as preposterous as reaching out and snatching off her skirt. Still, he'd always had a date. All models had dates every night—with heroic Dodgers and T.-ness oil millionaires and foreign correspondents.

He turned into a restaurant several doors down the street. It was a large place, and relatively uncluttered in that the tables were, at least a foot apart. He joined the little cluster of people at the front and waited.

Arthur looked belligerently at the tables in that end of the room, to see if one wasn't about to be vacated. And although the girl at the table six feet away was beaming right at him, he didn't even see her until she raised her hand and said, "Hi, Mr. Webb."

She look familiar. Why, of course. Miss—uh—Miss Jepley from the Statistical Department. He nodded and smiled automatically, before his gaze moved on to the other diners. The couple at the table beyond Miss Jepley had the cake-crumbs look . . .

When the couple finally got up, he was in so hypertense a state that he spurted forward as if he'd heard the starting gun. The headwaiter trotted up to him. "There's a couple back at the bar, sir, who've been waiting a half hour. If you'll just get back into line, we'll have something very soon."

Arthur was perfectly entitled to argue, but he let his persecution complex out another notch.

"It's a shame, Mr. Webb."

He forgot Miss Jepley entirely.

She laughed, and it was a cheering process, full of good teeth.

"Then, soberly, "I'll bet you've been terribly busy with that American change in classified A listings."

Imagine her knowing that. He said gratefully it was a deuce of a job. She stirred her iced coffee, and he watched thirstily. "Say, if you'd care to sit down here . . . I mean, if you're not expecting someone else . . ."

"Why—uh—why, thanks, I'd like to." As he settled back in the chair opposite her, there came to him with a sense of almost awe, how this is how it's done.

Miss Jepley was an increasingly delightful dinner companion. He was, startled at the volume and duration for her laughter. He realized suddenly that he hadn't thought of Lucilla for at least 20 minutes.

She was saying she didn't know whether she ought to be telling him: "But honestly, Mr. Webb, you're supposed to be the nicest man in the whole department to work for."

He pooh-poohed this and became aware that their waiter was fidgeting. "How about a brandy?"

Miss Jepley accepted enthusiastically. "Look, would you just as soon move over to the bar? The Roller Derby comes on in a few minutes, and I'm crazy about it."

"Say, Derby, said that's the best sport of television. I'm glad you thought of it." He asked for the check and overrode her protestations masterfully, when she wanted to pay for her own.

After the second brandy, Miss Jepley was in such good voice, screeching and shouting at the screen that several people at the bar stared.

When the derby ended he wasn't even sure who had won. Arthur debated the problems of etiquette involved. Was he supposed to escort Miss Jepley home, or just leave her where he found her? She beamed so unsuspectingly that he didn't have the heart to be rude. "May I drop you some place?"

The only drawback was that once they got in the cab, Miss Jepley proved to be a hard girl to drop. She begged, in an exhilaration of brandy conviviality, to come up to her place for a nightcap. Arthur felt sorry for her, but not to the extent that he would offer himself as a living sacrifice. He refused gently and was startled when she lurched against him as the cab stopped and kissed him softly.

He took Miss Jepley into the dim-lit lobby of the apartment building, patted her arm, from a safe distance, and said too briskly, "It's been very pleasant," and bolted.

Lucilla, waiting at home, had begun the evening in a mood of penitent mother love. She had told Hoopy stories for an hour, working in such shining little morals, as, "And this little girl had a mommy and daddy who loved each other and loved her, just the way your mommy and daddy do." She had also encouraged her child to sing "I Been Workin' on the Railroad." They even had duets. Hoopy's last sleepy mutter was, "Kiss Daddy good night for me."

The regnesi flowed through Lucilla's mind with the cleasing effect of tears, and left her with one simple, natural picture: herself kissing Arthur and saying, "There's never been anybody but you. Please forgive me for being so silly." And then Hoopy would "e happily ever after, united in perfect accord, and solving all Hoopy's psychological fears even before they were hatched.

By 10:30, she had streaks of thinking he was really overdoing this. If he was staying out just to make her anxious, then it wasn't very nice of him. Just after 11:00, she heard his key click. Arthur entered. She had planned to fling her arms around him, but never having been a flinger, she just said, "I've been worried about you."

"Have you?" Arthur said distantly.

"Where have you been? Why did you stay out so late?"

It was the cue to say, "Because I was frantic at the thought of you with another man," and then she'd say, "There's never been, etc." But Arthur hadn't read the right script. In answer to her questions, he said, "I had dinner and spent the evening with a girl from the office."

His wife recoiled.

She had meant to tell him the whole Derek fiasco, but now . . . "Hoopy said to kiss you good night for her." The nasty perversity of fate that had forced Arthur to drink beer on top of brandy and therefore feel gloomily rotten and full of ungentlemanly reactions, made him say: "Thanks for the message," while he got out his handkerchief and wiped his cheek ostentatiously. Lucilla, who had left off her glasses for the reconciliation scene, hadn't even noticed the smooth of pink. Now she made one strangled little sound, before she went into the bathroom and locked the door. It was no longer the Secret Garden of Beauty. It was an armed fortress, with the moat drawn up.

Over the weekend, the apartment was so full of the noxious fumes of distrustful pollutions that both Lucilla and Arthur felt ready to choke. Each of them, separately, made a fuss over Hoopy and engaged her in paired-off activities: Saturday Arthur took her to the Bronx zoo, and let her have a strawberry soda so near suppertime that she was languidly disinterested in vitamin-bearing foods.

On Sunday, Lucilla rushed the child off to a neighborhood movie, expecting to see a cheerful little film about a talking mule. In her befogged state, she had gone by the weekday schedule of starting-times, and so it result she and Hoopy arrived at the double feature in the middle of a lurid triangle melodrama. "Why did the lady shoot the man?"
